Albert University Convocation.

We publish below the Prize Poem given by Mr. R. C. Clute at the last Convocation of Albert University. It will be remembered in the same young gentleman bore off the same honor at the University Convocation of 1868. Then his theme was, "Here Wolfe Died Victorious," something that would more readily excite our interest and enlist our Patriotism than the present choice. Yet this subject has an indescribable charm for every scholar, especially for every reader of mediæval and modern literature. We trust our young friend will diligently cultivate the powers that in youth are bringing him such honors, then in manhood he may be among us a professional man that finds pleasure and wins fame in the paths of literature:

DANTE.

Land of the poets, with flowers, with flowers,
Adorn your temples, raise your voice to heaven;
And let the summer queen, amid your bowers
And fragrant groves, weave laurels to be given
Unto the Prince of song. He brings your nation
A language pure and delicately woven
With golden wool from his imagination.
His thoughts sublime, pathetic and unbroken
Flow to the music of the heart's pulsation.
Now soft and low, almost on whispers spoken,
Reaching the soul through sympathy's attraction;
Now like a rushing torrent pent and broken
Ten centuries find a voice.—Awake to action;
And Italy aglow, with bosom swelling
Welcomes the banished bard in spite of faction.
Is it of love he speaks? His love excelling,
Inspires the flame in which his own is burning;
Of grief? The doleful song is but the swelling,
Dark waves of anguish to the sea returning.
Yet over all, such a sweet humility
Of Spirit breathes, and calms the deep heart yearning,
Clothing its thoughts with tender simplicity,
It seems than one bereft a fellow mortal,
Rather an angel moving us to pity.
Inspir? We see him standing at its portal,
Where every hope abandons those who enter,
Alone, with spirits doomed to wars immortal;
That flow unceasingly from the tormentor.
And make to tremble hell's deep, dark foundations,
From yawning mouth adown the depthless centre,
And back reverberate loud ululations.
An answer from the myriad-tongued dissater,
That fill the air with wailings of the restless,
And with no friend but Virgil, guide and master,
He passes through the gate into the city;
The city dolorous, and leaves all hope;
Falls on those who are the most at ecmity;
The wrath of justice through the grades descending.

With Dante, all is dark—no hope, no pity;
But only grief, despair—a spirit rending,
Till all have cut their impress on each feature,
And hell is left behind; and thus ascending,
With weary steps and slow—led by his teacher,
The Mount delectable through scenes beguiling,
That lend new hopes to the life laden creature,
The spicy groves, the song of songsters wiling
Awar the happy time, he gains a river,
Where flowers of vernal bloom are ever smiling;
Where dark remembrances are lost forever.
Lost and forgotten in the Crystal Fountain,
Whose waters are eternal as the giver.
Flowing around the paradisal mountain;
A music more delightful than the lyre,
Moves o'er the limpid waters of the fountain.
And all the air seems luminous as fire,
Fragrant with odors of the living flowers.
Here at his feet lie hushed relentless ire,
Revenges, hates and woes, through balmy bowers,
With Beatrice enters he in heaven.
Oh, Bard of Homer—flight, whose genius towers,
On wings of love and hides itself in heaven.
God-gifted singer to the unborn nations!
Oh, mighty voyager of worlds still hidden!
Dante a guide for future generations.
Whose lamp unkindled is the sacred fire
Of love, and guided by the sweet vibrations
Of that fair harp, which toned the thought's empire
When good Augustus reigned—his court adorning,
Rises above the city and the spire,
Gilding the clouds with rosette hues of morning,
Bright as a star in gloomy darkness burning
On Italy's horizon, and adorning
The silent walks and halls of ancient learning
With splendors unapproached, and re-illumining
The dusty courts of fame; their Prince returning.
Oh, land with orange blossoms ever blooming,
Mother of heroes, poets, kings and sages,
Shall thine light fade and die? Shall the assuming Hand of tyranny usurp the places
Of fallen sons: And writ thou never, never,
Shake off the Yoke, endured, alas! for ages?
Is slavery sweet, so that thou would'st not sever
The brilliant, golden chain? Has Dante taken,
And with him liberty, their tears forever?
Nay, sunny Italy, thou'lt not forsaken;
The spark of freedom burns with ancient fire.
The voice of freedom cries, thou shalt awaken,
The pulse of freedom throbs with high desire;
And Garibaldi lives, brave Garibaldi,
My sons, their arms with valor to inspire,
To lead their host to victory and glory.

Progress of Civilization.

Rear Admiral Bowan, commanding the Adriatic squadron, in a despatch from Yokohama dated June 6th, says the Japanese Parliament is yet in session, but not open to foreigners. It is reported that many important measures are under consideration, mostly relating to foreigners, foreign intercourse and finance. It is probable that the rebel forces on the island of Yeddo have been captured or dispersed. Many of the princes have surrendered their long-cherished feudal rights for the general good. Already have the Japanese far outstripped the Chinese in progress towards western civilization. The government has troops uniformed and armed with the latest improved breech-loading guns. The war vessels are well armed. An hospital has been built at Hiags, and is in charge of an American surgeon, and is open to foreigners. Light houses are built and lighted, and a light-ship is being equipped, to be stationed of Treaty Point. Coal mines are being successfully worked, and supply our squadron with coal, while the Chinese refuse to allow foreigners to mine coal, and will not mine it themselves because of the "Sung Chieu."

—Tongue is the favorite item on the bill of fare at the women's bureau.

A Sad, Sad Story.

A good many weeks ago, there came to Nashville and engaged rooms at one of the aristocratic up-town boarding houses, a young and prepossessing lady of evident culture and education. Her appearance was striking. A fine form, bust like the Venus de Medici, and a carriage graceful and fascinating in the extreme, was hers. A wealth of raven hair fell about her shoulders or was loped up a la elastique; mild, gentle eyes, full of an intelligence all their own, told plainly that she was of a higher class of society, and a woman of culture and intellect. She became at once a general favorite, and as she exerted herself to please, and manifested a spirit of refined kindness and regard for others, admirers were not wanting. Among the latter was a worthy young man of Nashville, who made her acquaintance, and after a short time, to make the matter plain to the comprehension of all, fell desperately in love with her. She seemed to reciprocate the passion, and a match did not seem at all improbable.

The young lady gave out that her father, a rich planter of Georgia, would call for her in the course of a few weeks, on his way to friends in Kentucky. The young man of whom we speak pressed his claims with ardor, and had, doubtless, made up his mind to meet the old gentleman with a bold face, and ask the daughter in marriage. He took her out to fetes and parties, introduced her to his friends, and was close and constant in his attentions. She appeared usually happy and brilliant in his presence; but there were times when clouds of melancholy gathered over her face, and when the merry laugh was silent and the smile quenched out. At last the young gentleman received, one afternoon, at his place of business, a note which called him to the young lady's boarding-place at once. It was from herself, and briefly asked him to call, as she had something important to impart. He, of course with something of wonder, promptly responded with his presence, questioning what it could all be about, as he had promised that evening to take her to an entertainment.

"I cannot go with you to-night," she said. "I cannot act a double part any longer, and though I never expect you to speak to me again after what I tell you, I feel impelled to undeceive you in regard to myself. To-day my illegitimate babe, born in a small country village miles away, and brought here for keeping, died at the house of the nurse in South Nashville. To-morrow I shall attend the funeral, and then I shall go far away, shall never see you again." And then she told the story, the oft-repeated story of man's deception, of the wiles of a false-hearted wretch whom she had loved too well, and who fled never to return. She told him how her life was blasted, how hope had fled from her bosom, how all the brilliancy and vivacity she had exhibited was a cloak to hide a broken heart, and then the two parted, he bent to the earth, sorrowing and wretched, she with a stern look of despair. A few days later, the brilliant woman from Georgia left the city for Kentucky, and there was much wonderment about the broken-off match which had been terminated so suddenly. Beneath the placid stream of daily life what tragedies and woeful dreams are constantly enacting.

The water of Salt Lake is so dense that a man cannot sink in it. The editor of the Corlinne 'Reporter' demonstrated this by standing upright in the water, and without the least motion could not sink to the chin. He could lie on the water, stand in it, take almost any position, and still he would float, and could not sink. It is necessary after swimming in this briny water to rinse off with fresh, for the salt of the water condenses on one's person, and leaves one, when dry, looking as if he had been powdered over with white chalk.

The artist returning the largest incomes in New York is Eastman Johnson, $3,789; the editor, J. G. Bennett, $186,500; the publisher, Jas. Harper, $58,074; the actor, Edwin Booth, $83,736; the banker, J. N. Benedict, $311, 789; the preacher, E. H. Chapin, $13,149; the saloon keeper, L. Delmonico, $125,931; the hotel proprietor, Paron Stevens, $244,395; the Judge, T. W. Clarke, $15,588; the lawyer, David Dudley Field, $70,148; the merchant, A. T. Stewart, $3,019,218.

Log Rafts.—We learn from the 'News and Reporter,' of Muskegon, that the amount of logs rafted to the several mills on this lake, up to the present time, is nearly 200,000,000 feet, according to the estimate of the Boom Company, of which a little over 120,000,000 feet has already been cut and shipped to Chicago. The 'big drive' is now near Newaygo, and contains 100,000,000 feet, and is coming down rapidly. Owing to the abundance of water but few logs are 'hung up.' White River has about 50,000,000 feet cut, with about 80,000,000 more in the drive and in mill booms; and all will be got out without difficulty. A raft containing 400,000 feet of logs was safely towed last week from White River through Lake Michigan to Toronto.

BELLEVILLE, MONDAY, AUG. 2.

INWARDS.—The Austrian passed Father Point inwards on the 1st, at 12 35 a. m., with 77 cabin and 673 steerage passengers.

BASE BALL.—A meeting of the Hastings Base Ball Club will be held at Hambly's on Tuesday evening, Aug. 3rd, at 8 o'clock.

GOOSEBERRIES.—Mr. E. Smeaton exhibited here to-day a quantity of Gooseberries of the Scotch variety, which for size and flavor beat anything we ever saw. Some of the berries measured three inches round, and from the stem to end four inches.

MASONIC.—The twelfth annual Convocation of the Grand Chapter of Canada, is to be held in the Masonic Hall, Kingston, Ont., commencing at noon on Tuesday, the 10th of August and continuing the following day.

ENLARGED AND IMPROVED.—The London Daily Free Press comes to us this morning in an enlarged form and clothed in an entire new dress, making it typographically one of the handsomest sheets in the Dominion. The Free Press has long been noted for the ability with which it has been conducted, and as a newspaper stands in the foremost rank of western dailies. May it go on and prosper.

ERRATUM.—In the letter of Mr. John Brenton, which appeared in Saturday's paper, there was an omission of a line in the last paragraph but one. The paragraph corrected reads as follows: "I find by searching in the Registry Office that lot 11 was sold by Wm. Johnston Taylor, brother of Sheriff Taylor, to one James T. Young, as bounded on Ann and Bridge streets, Young sold to Bogart; Bogart to Baker; and Baker to George Taylor; in each case the lot bounded in the same way."

FENIAN RAID RUMOURS.—A telegram from New York says:—"Rumours of another raid on the Canadian frontier are current. Stocks of arms and cases of raw material about headquarters have give a colour of probability to the report." In view of this fact, would it not be well for the Minister of Justice to open the Penitentiary doors, and allow the Ridgeway Fenians to get across the lines in time to help swell the ranks of the new invaders.

PRESENTATION.—On Thursday last a deputation from the Congregation of Christ Church, waited upon their Pastor, the Rev. S. Jones, and presented him with an address, expressing the unanimous desire of his flock that he should suspend his labours for a few weeks, in order that his energies, so unsparingly exerted in their behalf, might by change of air and scene, be renewed and restored to their wonted vigor; and, as a proof of the sincerity of this expression of their undiminished regard, the address was accompanied by a handsome purse of gold. Such an incident as this is very gratifying and reflects honour alike upon both Minister and Congregation.

WATERSPOUT ON LAKE MICHIGAN.—At about 4 o'clock on Monday afternoon, a waterspout formed on the lake between Racine and Kenosha, in the track taken by vessels bound Chicagoward. It made its appearance very suddenly and in a moment was lost to view. While it lasted the air was full of tremendous rushing, roaring noises dreadful to have to experience. The sight was grandly terrific. The bark Butcher Boy was caught in it and narrowly escaped destruction, with her crew. Her being almost out of her track was all that saved her. As it was, she was shaken from stem to stern, and those on board being entirely unprepared, by the suddenness of the occurrence, were terrified beyond description. The foretopmast and topgallant mast of the bark, together with all her head-stays and jibs, were carried away in a twinkling. Her foremast head was also twisted off. A tug was sent to her assistance, and she was brought into Chicago.

STATISTICS OF BRITISH SHIPPING.—In the year 1868 the registered shipping of the United Kingdom (exclusive of river steamers) employed in our home and foreign trade comprised the unprecedented number of 82,259 vessels, of 5,516,434 tons, employing 197,592 men, exclusive of masters, viz., 30,525 sailing vessels of 4,691,820 tons, employing 153,480 men, and 1,725 steam vessels of 824,614 tons, employing 43,662 men. At the end of the year there stood registered as belonging to the United Kinkdom 28,444 vessels of 5,780,530, viz., 25,500 sailing vessels of 4,878,233 tons, and 2,944 steam vessels of 902,297. This is the highest tonnage ever recorded. There were built and registered in the United Kingdom in 1868, 879 sailing vessels of 309,477 tons, and 232 steam vessels of 9,096 tons.

Gone West.

Rev. Mr. McMahon, the liberated Fenian, accompanied by Bishop Horan of Kingston, passed west on Friday per Grand Trunk evening express. His incarceration does not seem to have produced any bad effects on his personal appearance, for a member of the Queen's Own who assisted at his arrest on recognising him in the cars, said he looked much better now than he did when captured. It is to be hoped Mr. McMahon will not fail to visit the graves of the murdered heroes of Ridgeway in the Toronto Cemetery, when he passes through that city. It might be well, too, to stop at the Burlington Cemetery at Hamilton, where he could see further evidence of the bloody work done by the Fenian marauders. When he comes to settle down in his western home, it might possibly afford food for reflection, although the reminiscences would not be of the most pleasant character.

The fact that this priest, whose case, in the langusge of Sir John A. Macdonald, "presents no redeeming features," and who is therefore as guilty in the eyes of God and man as any of the rank and file now within the Penitentiary dungeon, is allowed to celebrate mass in a public church in Kingston the day after he obtained his freedom, and the fact that he is accompanied by distinguished prelates in his journey through the Province, are suggestive. It certainly is not very encouraging to those who many who went out in 1866 and saw their comrades shot down in cold blood by a body of men of whom McMahon was one, and who are expected at any moment to be called out again to meet a similar band of marauders. It does not tend to fire their patriotism or increase their loyalty, but we are much afraid that it will have a very disheartening effect upon the volunteer movement. Volunteers are but human beings, and if they are trifled with after this fashion, the Government which thus trifles with them, cannot find fault if they display an apathy and an indifference in strange contrast with the spirit exhibited in 1866.

The press have said very little about the liberation of McMahon. Some few have commended the pardon, while they have condemned the manner in which it has been done, and others have taken strong ground against the release. The Cornwall Freeholder, John Sandfield Macdonald's organ, in an article on this question uses the following language:—

"A case that on its own merits presents no redeeming features and affords no reason for the exercise of the royal clemency, is precisely the case that should undergo the penalty which the law has assigned it. McMahon, it will be remembered, was sentenced with others, all for the same offence. If his case presented any redeeming features, then his associates were in no worse position than he, and equally entitled with him to the exercise in their behalf of that mercy which has been extended to him alone. Until a general pardon had been projected we could not see any justification of the course pursued by the Minister of Justice in the case of McMahon—a case which, in his own words, 'presents no redeeming features.' This obeisance to national distinctions and sectarian jealousy is the meanest characteristic of our Government. When will it rise above that sort of thing? When shall we abandon our wretched peddling, jobbing, higgling practice of striving to please everybody, and take our stand on the broad and dignified ground that our administration is based upon the eternal principle of right."

Destructive Fire.

A fire broke out in Rathbun's mill, on the Island, about half-past twelve o'clock to-day, which, at one time threatened to destroy the whole building. The wind was blowing a furious gale at the time, and indeed, it is a great wonder that any part of the property was saved from destruction. When first discovered the flames were seen issuing from the roof above the boilers; the force pump connected with the mill was at once applied, and with the assistance of a gang of men and the water which is constantly kept standing on the roof, and by the aid of the force pump, the fire was kept from making a great deal of progress until the arrival of the engines from the Town. Both the hand engine and the steamer were soon on the ground and as soon as possible were got into working condition. The flames by this time had completely enveloped the roof of the engine building, and were gradually creeping up to the main roof, and it was the general impression that no human power could prevent the complete destruction of the Mill. The three powerful streams of water, however, which were thrown on the fire soon gave evidence that was under subjection, and by the continued exertion of the Fire Companies and the valuable aid rendered by the inhabitants, in less than an hour the flames were completely extinguished. Too much praise cannot be given to the Fire department for their exertions in putting out the fire.

The damage done to the building will probably not exceed $1,000, although until the debris is cleared away, it is impossible to estimate the extent of the loss. The engine building is destroyed and a portion of the main roof, but it is not thought that much, if any, damage has been done to the boilers or machinery.

The loss we understand is covered by insurance in the London and Liverpool. It is probable that the damage will be repaired so that the mill can commence running again in the course of eight or ten days.

Reminiscences of Belleville Schools.

To the Editor of the Daily Intelligencer.

SIR,—I happened the other day to fall in with a number of a Belleville newspaper published a good many years ago, and did what I am sure I would not do with one published to-day, and what I am quite sure no one did with this when it was fresh, that is, I read it through from beginning to end, advertisements and all, perhaps the advertisements fascinated me the most; I knew all the advertisers much better than I know the business men of the present. Some of them "continue to this day," others of them have gone down in the strife of life and appear no more upon the surface, and not a few "are not," and the news and prophecies as to what should happen, how quaintly they sound now that the "very latest" has become history, and the things which were sure to happen have not come to pass, and are now impossible.

With your permission I will some day throw together some paragraphs from this old sheet, that your readers may enjoy, with me, the pleasure—somewhat sad and subdued it may be—of reviewing these mementoes of the past. But that which prompts me just now to write, is the fact that this paper contains an account of a pic-nic of the town schools, which took place not long after the building of the present named school houses, and gives incidentally a good deal of the history of the schools of the town from the beginning. If "history is philosophy teaching by examples," we may be able at the present juncture to gather something for our guidance in dealing with this, the most important subject that can engage the attention of any community, for I assume that every parent is more interested in the well-being and succes of his children than in any other subject, and if it be true that

"'Tis education forms the common mind,
Just as the twig is bent the tree's inclined,"

Then is it true that no matter so important can be presented to the public as that of school education.

It seems from the statistics given in this paper that up to the year 1850, Belleville had not a single public Common School house; up to that time the schools were taught in any old building too dilapidated for a human habitation, that could be got for little or nothing; out on the open common for the most part, without closets or any of the necessaries of the barest civilization, they were vile in their surroundings, and most uncomfortable and unhealthy within.

And the class of Teachers which were procurable in those days, were as a rule quite in keeping with the houses; there was no regular provision for the examination of Teachers, they dropped in on the Superintendant whenever it was convenient for both parties, and after such an examination as he chose to put them through, they went out armed with his certificate, to "get up a school," as they best could; the schools were supported on the rate bill system, eked out by a small grant from the Government; according to this paper, "In the year 1849, "the last year of the old rate-bill system, we "had a school population of 707, and the "number of children of all ages registered "as attending school, was 273, the whole "amount of money at the disposal of the "Trustees for the payment of the salaries of "four Teachers was £113, just £28 5s each, "and the schools were kept open only 6 "months in the year."

I suppose the above pittance was supplemented by the rate-bill, but this must have been a very meager and precarious reliance; no wonder that the Trustees were often obliged to pay the Teachers in advance of quarter day with orders upon the stores, to enable them to live. In those days a man that became unfit for anything else, by physical misfortune or dissipation, at once sought a school; the first meeting of the Board of Examiners, under the law of 1850, is described as having brought together a most motley collection of candidates, the lame, the halt, the drunk, all descriptions of unfortunates, except the blind presented themselves, they were nearly all old teachers; one man who had taught with great acceptance for twenty years, was asked to parse the sentence "John hand me that book," he was an impulsive high-wrought Irishman, with nerves like an overstrung piano, when he came to the word hand he called it a noun, and when assured he was mistaken he jerked up his fist with great excitement, and asked the examiner "if a noun wasn't the name of a thing, and "if that hand wasn't a thing?"

The best candidate of the lot was so drunk that he couldn't come up till the next day.—Of course there were some good men engaged in teaching in those days, but as a rule they were deplorably defective in one respect or another.

Well, one would hardly suppose that a movement to improve such a state of things would be opposed by any one. Let us see? By the law of 1850 the Trustees were empowered to raise money for building school houses, and they set themselves seriously to work to see what could be done; after extensive enquiry they decided to build a Central School, but were met with the most violent opposition; a public meeting was called, and every effort made to keep things as they were, the cry of taxation was raised, and the existing system declared to be all that was needed; the Trustees stood firm, but the public clamour was so great, that as on another memorable occasion, they were finally obliged to give way, but in doing so, they effected a compromise, and the present Ward Schools and free system, was the result; an immense advance in the right direction certainly.

And with this increased efficiency how did the matter of cost stand according to the paper before me; it cost three and one half times as much to educate a child under the rate bill system as it did under the free system, when the number in attendance was counted, or in other words the people of the town got as much teaching for $1 as they used to get for $3 50, to say nothing of the better quality.

I am sure that still greater efficiency and greater savings may be secured. It would be odd, indeed, if education was the only thing in the world in which no improvement had been made in the last twenty years, and I hope that some one who has given the subject attention, and who has the time, will take this matter up and discuss it thoroughly in your columns, for as I said before, no other subject is so important to this community.

Truly, Yours,
A. N.

Celebration of the Twelfth of July in the North of Ireland.

The Londonderry Guardian says: Never has the anniversary of the victory of the Boyne, which secured the Throne to her gracious Majesty Queen Victoria, and civil and religious liberty to the vast and mighty empire over which she reigns, been celebrated by so large a number of the Orangemen and Protestants of Ulster as that which has just passed over. And notwithstanding the exciting and irritating circumstances of the time, the countless thousands of the Orange body who assembled on Monday last throughout the province behaved with a decorum and forbearance and entitle them to the greatest credit. That in some instances the strict letter of the law was violated, and that party colours were worn, and party tunes played cannot be denied, but the conduct of the parties was peaceable in the extreme, and they studiously abstained from giving offence to those who differ from them in politics or religion.

In this city three shots were fired from a heavy piece of ordnance between three and four o'clock in the morning, to salute the dawn of the auspicious day, but the police were unable to discover the locality from whence the report that made the welkin ring proceeded. At six o'clock the joy bells rang out their merry pesls, which were continued at intervals throughout the day. An Orange flag was displayed above the head of Governor Walker on the Testimonial, and the Union Jack in the Royal bastion. The Irish Societies banner floated from the flag-staff in the south-west bastion, and a crimson banner above the chancel window of the Cathedral. The day passed over in the most tranquil manner; but about eight o'clock in the evening a rush of persons was seen coming into the Diamond, and a skirmish took place at the lower side of it between a few individuals of opposite parties, when blows were exchanged and some blood was drawn. This temporary disturbance is stated to have originated in an assault committed on a Protestant in Ferryquay street: but the borough police and constabulary having arrived at the spot in a few moments, order was restored, although a good deal of uneasiness and excitement prevailed for a considerable time. A row had very nearly occurred about the same place on Friday evening. As the Hibernian Flute Band were playing through the streets about ten o'clock, after returning from Moville, they were followed by a crowd up Shipquay street, cheering and shouting "Dowse for ever." These cries elicited groans from some passing Protestants, and a collision, happily of short duration, occurred at the top of Shipquay street. The authorities ought strictly to prohibit the playing of bands of music through the town after night-fall.

At Muff Glen, a few miles from this city, there was an encampment of six or seven hundred Roman Catholics around on Monday. A large number of them were strangers to the district, brought thither to dispute the passage of the Orangemen through the Glen, should they attempt to march there in procession. Acting on the advice of their leaders, the members of the Orange Society did not walk in the direction of the Glen at all, and so an affray that might have been attended with a melancholy loss of life was avoided. A strong body of military and police were in the neighborhood, and Mr. O'Donnell, R. M., and Capt. Scott, of Willsboro', endeavored to persuade the Roman Catholic party to disperse, but it was not until the day was pretty far advanced that they retired from their encampment, several of them firing shots as they moved off.

A numerous body of Orangemen attended divine service in the First Presbyterian Church, Glendermott, when the Rev. H. P. Charlton preached an appropriate and eloquent sermon to them. And on Sunday the members of the Orange fraternity attended in large numbers at the churches of Tamlaght-Finlagan. Newtownlimavady, Strabane, Omagh, and several others in the Diocese of Derry, when addresses were delivered from the pulpits suitable to the critical and eventful times in which we live, and which made a deep impression on those that heard them.

Albany Lumber Market.

REVIEW FOR THE WEEK ENDING JULY 28.

The receipts for the week have been light for the time of year, and shipments have been fully equal to them, so that there is no accumulation this week. There has been a larger attendance of buyers attracted by the town prices, and the sales have been good. Prices of clear pine have settled some three dollars from those ruling in June, but few lots cannot be obtained at our lower range of figures. Common pines sympathizes but with this reduction in clear,and other lumber not at all. With higher canal and lake freights there is little doubt but that prices on pine will advance again.

Shipments have been larger and vessels are fairly engaged. We quote freights as follows:

New York, ₱ m.....	1,00
Bridgeport and New Haven.....	2,25
Norwich and Middletown.....	2,50
Hartford and Providence.....	3,00

SPECIAL NOTICES.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

The necessity of a due proportion of iron in the blood is well known to all medical men; when it becomes reduced from any cause whatever, the whole system suffers, the weakest part being first attacked, and a feeling of languor, lassitude, and 'all gone'-ness pervades the system. Stimulants only afford temporary relief, and have the same effect as giving a tired horse the whip instead of oats. The true remedy is to supply the blood with the necessary quantity of iron. This can be done by using the a protected solution of the protoxide of Iron, which it is prepared that it assimilates at once with the blood, giving strength, vigor, and new life to the whole system.

To take medicine to cure diseases occasioned by a deficiency of IRON IN THE BLOOD, without restoring it to the system, is like trying to repair a building when the foundation is gone.

An eminent divine says, "I have been using the PERUVIAN SYRUP for some time past; it gives me new vigor, buoyancy of spirits, and elasticity of muscle."

Pamphlets containing certificates of cures, and recommendations from some of the most eminent physicians, clergymen and others, will be sent free to any address.

The genuine has "Peruvian Syrup" blown in the glass.

Grace's Celebrated Salve.

From Mr. E. TUCKER, Depot Master at Salisbury, Mass.

"I have been troubled for years with a bad humor; sometimes outwardly and sometimes inwardly. During the past summer it manifested itself more than usual outwardly, and I used your Salve. All signs of it have since disappeared, without effecting me inwardly, indicating, I think, the eradication of the disease in the Salve."

Little Brown Hands.

They drive home the cows from the pasture,
Up and through the long shady lane,
Where the quails whistle loud in the wheat-fields
That are yellow with ripening grain.
They find, in the thick waving grasses,
Where the scarlet lipped strawberry grows;
They gather the earliest snowdrops,
And the first crimson blush of the rose.

They toss new hay in the meadow;
They gather the elder bloom white;
They find the dusky grapes purple
In the soft tinted October light.
They know where apples hang ripest,
And are sweeter than Italy wines;
They know where the fruit hangs the thickest,
On the long, thorny blackberry vines.

They gather the delicate sea-weeds,
And build tiny castles in the sand;
They pick up the beautiful sea shells—
Fairy barks that have drifted to land.
They wave from the tall, rocking tree tops
Where the oriole's hammock nest swings,
And at night time are folded in slumber
By a song that a fond mother sings.

Those who toil bravely are strongest;
The humble and poor become great;
And from those brown handed children
Shall grow mighty rulers of state.
The pen of the author and statesman—
The noble and wise of the land—
The sword and the chisel and palette,
Shall be held in the little brown hand.

Can a square meal be made off a round of beef?

Matters of moment ought to be described in a minute manner.

A favorite tune of the milkmen—Shall we gather at the river?

What soup would cannibals prefer? The "broth of a boy."

When was beefstake the highest? When the cow jumped over the moon.

Professional thieves lead a comfortable life because they take things easy.

A good suggestion is like a crying baby at a concert—It ought to be carried out.

News of a fresh disaster to our troops comes from New Zealand. They have been surprised by the rebels, and four officers and nine privates have been killed. From Melbourne we learn that great dissatisfaction has been expressed by the Colonies at the British Parliament being asked to reimburse the Duke of Edinburgh for the presents given by him in the Colony.

Habits of Authors.—Mr. Thackeray never began upon less than a quire of letter paper. Half of this he would cover with comic drawings; a fourth he would tear into minute pieces; and on two or three slips of the remainder he would do his work—walking about the room at intervals, with his hands in his pockets, and with a perturbed and woebegone expression of countenance. Some men bite their nails others stab the sides of their study chairs with pen-knives; others tear the fronts of their shirts; others eat blotting paper. One of the most erudite bibliographers I ever knew—a Franco-American, who wrote a life of Columbus—used to lie flat down on his stomach on the ground and grovel while he studied, like an old serpent. Longfellow can't make a speech; Tennyson is anything but a poet in his dress and habits. Washington Irving had a mortal dislike to the camera, and could seldom if ever be induced to sit for his picture. The picture of him with which the public is most familiar, representing him with his hand to his head, is a copy of an old portrait, said to be the only correct picture ever made of him.

Disasters on the Lakes in 1868.—The Inspector of Navigation for the district which comprises the great lakes on the northern boundary of the United States, has just made public his report of disasters during the year 1868. Of these disasters the most serious were the following: On April 9th, 1868, the steamer Sea Bird was burned off Waukegan, Ill., on the west shore of Lake Michigan, and out of seventy or seventy-five passengers only two escaped. The inspector reports that the great loss of life in this accident was caused by not stopping the engine at the first alarm, and recommends the adoption of a rule making it imperative upon the engineer of every steamer, in all cases of alarm of fire, to stop the engine, and not to proceed except by the direct command of the captain. On the night of June 28th, a collision occurred near Cleveland, on Lake Erie, between the passenger steamer Morning Star and the bark Courtland, by which both vessels were sunk, and about 50 out of 75 persons perished. This accident was caused by negligence in displaying signal lights. On August 8th a collision occurred off Point aux Barques, Lake Huron, by which one life was lost, and on Sept. 7th, the propeller Hippocampus foundered on Lake Michigan, with a loss of nine passengers and seventeen of the crew. On October 9th, the steamer Milwaukee, with 70 passengers aboard, was totally wrecked by striking on a sand bar at the entrance of the harbor of Grand Haven, Mich.; no lives were lost.—The statistics of the passenger travel and the disasters during 1868 are as follows: Passengers carried, 900,000; lives lost from fire, 73; from collision, 51; from wreck, 26; from explosion, 1; making a total of 151. The accidents were 19 in number, as follows: Collisions, 8; fire 6; striking on sandbars or rocks, 3; foundering, 2. Of the fires, five were of vessels burned at night, while laying at the dock.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys, is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Inveterate cases of Scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous affections and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulous contamination until they were painfully afflicting, have been radically cured in such great numbers in almost every section of the country, that the public scarcely need to be informed of its virtues or uses.

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this unseen and unfelt tenant of the organism undermines the constitution, and invites the attack of enfeebling or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed infection throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develop into one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the occasional use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla is advisable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, at length, cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions or visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Fits, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various Ulcerous affections of the muscular and nervous systems.

Syphilis or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these obstinate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Leucorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute Directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when arising, as they often do, from the rankling poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are Languid and Listless, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the affections symptomatic of Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, or do more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Bismuth, Zinc, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it in nowise injures any patient. The number and importance of its cures in the ague districts, are literally beyond account, and we believe without a parallel in the history of Ague medicine. Our pride is gratified by the acknowledgments we receive of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and where other remedies had wholly failed.

Unacclimated persons, either resident in, or travelling through miasmatic localities, will be protected by taking the AGUE CURE daily.

For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy activity.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly remarkable cures, where other medicines had failed.

QUERY?

Should we employ the noble doctors to bring us our tea and coffee in bottles, at an expense of at least four times what they now cost?

If not, why should we longer adopt that system in reference to medicines which are the simple extracts of herbs or plants and roots, and are as readily prepared as tea and coffee?

Each package of Dr. Thompson's Botanic Medicines contains more medical properties than can be procured in any other form for four times the amount of money.

We have in our possession numerous testimonials as to the practicability of, as well as the benefits derived from the use of Dr. Thompson's Botanic Medicines, viz:

Dr. Thompson's Blood Purifier

Cures all diseases arising from an impure state of the blood, such as salt-rheum, scrofula, king's evil, white swellings, tendency to boils, old sores, pimples or roughness of the skin. It regulates the stomach and bowels; it tones the liver, and promotes the general vigor of the system, without reducing the strength of the patient. Sold at 50 cents per package.

DR. THOMPSON'S

Stomachic Bitters.

A certain and speedy cure for Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, and Indigestion. For costiveness it has no equal; it is a mild and safe invigorant and corroberant for delicate persons; a good alterative tonic for ordinary family purposes; a powerful recuperant after the frame has been reduced by sickness; an excellent as well as an agreeable and wholesome stimulant, for general debility, and diseases having their origin in an imperfect digestion or a deranged state of the stomach. Sold at 25 cents per package.

Dr. Thompson's No. 6.

OR COMPOSITION POWDERS

It is used with success for diseases caused by colds, such as cold chills, chills and fever, headache, pains in the joints or limbs, neuralgia, rheumatic pains—in fact it may properly be called Pain Killer, as it may be used for all purposes for which Pain Killers or Reliefs are used, such as cramps in the stomach, colic, diarrhœa, dysentery, summer complaints, cholera morbus, female complaints or obstructions. It may also be used with great success as a Liniment. Sold at 20 cents per package.

The proprietor has been induced to adopt the present condensed style of putting up the medicine in packages, as he is thereby enabled to supply double the amount of medicine for one-half the regular price of similar preparations.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

Ayer's

Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Vol. 3. BELLEVILLE, COUNTY OF HASTINGS, DOMINION OF CANADA, TUESDAY EVENING, AUGUST 3, 1869. No. 79.

Why Men do not Marry.

A writer in the Chicago Tribune tells some plain truths in the subjoined extracts:

I think the reason young men do not marry is because girls have ceased to be domestic, and spend a great deal of money upon dress. They are not contented to live in a quiet way and dress moderately; they must go out, dress and ride, frequent places of amusement; have suppers and boquets, and receive adulation. It costs a great deal of money, which the young man furnishes, and he never gets ahead enough to marry; so they repeat and try their luck over again. It is the easiest thing in the world to do with less luxury, but it involves a little self-sacrifice and economy, and these virtues are fast coming exotics. Fully one half the girls who are now filling situations in stores, offices, etc., go there in the first place in order to be able to dress better. They live in plain but comfortable houses, and must help with the housework or the children of their own kin; but they hear glowing accounts of the city; they want the finery that is denied them and they want to go from those peaceful home lives, from the kind guardianship of parents, to the toil and temptations of the ten hour system. They go plain country girls, with modest, blushing cheeks and smooth, shining hair. They stay there a year or two, and their cheeks are pale and their hair is frizzed.—They have lost the gaucherie of blushing, and are bold at repartee. They dress somehow and live somehow; but they have hours of despondency that make them old. It is one long struggle with labor and temptation, and how they preserve their integrity God only knows. Now, would not these girls be happier as the wives of farmers or mechanics? Would not one word of genuine love outweigh a ton of admiration? Would not the smile of a little child be a thousand times better than the gaze of the libertine? Is it not easier to work for one's own than for strangers; to feel that you are king in your castle, if it is only a one-story cottage? Women's independence will work her a deadlier wrong than any bond she has ever worn. When she steps beyond the fair threshold of womanly power—the archetypal home, where God has made her supreme—to fight the demons of political or commercial life, she lays down a sceptre to take up a chain, whose iron canker will eat into her soul.

Says the New York World: "How to enjoy the pleasures of inebriety, and yet to escape the shame of discovery, is a problem which woman—especially those of the respectable, not to say fashionable class—have long endeavored to solve. The disreputable woman openly yields to the fascinations of gin and boldly avows her drunkenness; but the reputable repudiates the coarseness of undisguised liquor and dreads the disclosure of her intemperate propensities. Various aids to drunkenness have from time to time been adopted, and have enjoyed a temporary popularity. Not to give more than a passing mention to those familiar beverages of abnormally thirsty chambermaids (eau de Cologne and bay rum) there are the numerous preparations of sarsaparilla which ten or fifteen years ago were the peculiar delight of intemperate but strictly moral women. Bitters succeeded to the place made vacant by the abandonment of sarsaparilla, which had gained an unsavory reputation by the careless frequency with which it was exposed to the profane gaze of masculine intruders into the boudoir. In its turn, however, bitters became too notoriously a pander to unlawful feminine thirst to be longer a safe resource, and it became necessary to seek some new and unsuspected stimulant. At once there was a prospect that hasheesh would come into general use, but the introduction into the market of a so-called 'hasheesh candy,' which produced none of the desired symptoms of intoxication, brought the Oriental drug into complete disgrace. In the absence of anything better, opium, the use of which is only less difficult of concealing than that of alcohol, would doubtless have gained new devotees, had it not been discovered that chloroform was precisely the safest and most convenient agent with which female respectability could intoxicate itself."

Will any body tell why it is that the regions where the summer is the shortest are the richest? In Florida there are certainly more months in the year where sowing and reaping may go on together; and yet look at Florida and Vermont side by side. When shall the banks of the St. John's be studded with villages like those that stem the valley of the Connecticut, and when shall the three four-fold crops of Florida yield the income that the hard acres of Vermont yield? Our friend told us that the green meadow valleys through which we were passing were worth $250 per acre. The rich tracts on either side of the St. John's are not thinking of being worth that sum, yet they can raise oranges, lemons, limes, bananas, rice, cotton and sugar cane. Florida was settled a century before Vermont, and why is it at this day an unreclaimed, unembdued wilderness. Will anybody tell?—Harriet Beecher Stowe, in Hearth and Home.

IN THE OLD WORLD.

WILLIAMSON'S HOTEL,
BOW LANE, OFF CHEAPSIDE,
LONDON, July 22, 1869.

I closed my last letter with our arrival at Liverpool, but before proceeding with my tourney, of which I can give but a very faint sketch, there are thoughts which a few days at sea suggest to the mind, and which I propose to commit to paper before continuing notes from my journey. The moment you put foot upon the ship, the idea presents itself that you for a time at least are shut out from the world, and that within the precincts of that ship, (a tiny speck in the sea,) all the elements that constitute a world, from the Emperor to the serf, are to be found ; in short, a ship is a kingdom within itself, with rulers and subjects ; but though the Captain is supreme in authority, and his subjects for the time composed of all classes of the community, it's astonishing how soon the rigid formalities of the outer-world are thrown aside, all being drawn together as it were in one common band of brotherhood. The scion of royalty is to the Captain and to his fellow passengers, no more than the lowest plebeian, and soon mingles with the crowd, and becomes as one of them. Depend upon it, ship-board is the best place in the world to take the starch out of the snob, and to portray the true gentleman.—On board the Austrian, could be found a Fitz George, son of the Duke of Cambridge, Gen. Bissett, just relieved from the command of the force in Canada, and on his way to Gibraltar, Col. Monk, the merchant from different parts of Canada, the old soldier, the gentleman of means, the man with expectations, and he with none, the men and women returning to their native land after many year's absence, with the hope, though faint, of meeting old and familiar faces ; the keen, sharp witted Yankee, with his patent in his pocket or in his brain, ready to prove to old John Bull, the superiority of American genius, and to relieve him of a few of his pounds ; the American who "avows he earned his money hard, and he'd be darned if he would'nt spend some of it in seeing the world ;" the man who had no particular object, but wanted to see "Old England once more," or who desired to see it for the first time ; then there was the man who had traveled over most of the world, who could "yarn" it for an indefinite length of time, the happy and contented, the bilious and morose, the open-hearted and generous, the mean and narrow-minded, the jolly and sturdy Englishman, and the slim, cadaverous Frenchman, the close calculating Scotchman, and the witty, rollicking Irishman ; the Canadian, a combination of the whole, and the Jew who must have his pound of flesh ; all religions, and of all countries. Such are those who are thrown together upon a ship, and it is wonderful to witness how soon the sea breeze will blow little peculiarities of the human race away, as it were to other climes, all joining in making each other happy. Friendships are formed that are lasting, while others vanish as soon as the shore is reached. The hour arrives for landing, the little community is soon broken up, and ere an hour elapses, the hundred souls who for a few days had freely exchanged sentiment, are scattered, never to meet again. Is this not the world in a miniature form ? Is it not a prolific subject for reflection ? Yet in this busy world, with its multifarious avenues of trade, and the absorption of the mind with business cares, or pursuit of pleasure ; all is soon forgotten ; each man, and each woman move along as it ties of friendship had never been formed. It is well that an all-wise Providence has so ordained it. Were mankind continually brooding over his sorrows and his misfortunes, or exulting over his successes and pleasures, society would soon be dissolved, and the world become a chaos, so far as relates to the mind. A truce to further moralising. Let me again look at this little part of the world as partially, aye, very partially seen.

When Liverpool is first seen, that which strikes the eye with wonder and amazement, is the forest of masts that presents itself, and as you approach the city the wonder is not in the least diminished.—Not only safely ensconced in the docks, are to be seen these numerous ships, but as far as the eye can reach down the Mersey, are these evidences of commerce, presented to the view. This view is only equalled by the miles of docks that have been built of solid masonry for the accommodation of ships that visit the port. Of these the Canada dock is not the least imposing, and the only one of which I shall attempt even an outline, which will serve to give an idea of the trade of Canada to this port alone, as well as the extent of the dockage in Liverpool, for it must be remembered that the Canada trade is but a mite in this great shipping port. The Canada dock is about 1400 feet long, and contains a water area of 17 acres 4,043 yards. It is connected with the Huskisson dock by two separate passages, one of which is 80 and the other 50 feet wide. On its eastward margin it has a sloping quay for the purpose of unloading timber. Besides its connection with Huskisson dock the Canada dock communicates with the river by a lock called the Canada Lock, 650 feet long and 375 wide. The Canada Lock is 100 feet wide and 500 feet long. The gates at each end are enormous, but are worked with great ease, so perfect is the opening and closing machinery.—There is now completed a half tide dock, which is landwards of the Canada basin, from the centre of which is an entrance of 60 feet wide. The half tide dock is 509 feet long by 350 feet wide, and the water area is 4 acres 84 yards. To the eastward of the half tide dock two long narrow docks stretch inland, each of which is 800 yards. These docks are in use for the carrying trade, one is 140 feet wide, having a water area of two acres 2,764 yards ; the other 100 feet wide with a water area of one acre 4,048 yards. There is a passage 40 feet in width from each of them, communicating with the half tide dock. The quay between the docks is 950 feet long by 300 feet wide, while on the northern and southern sides they have 1,000 feet by 90 feet of quay space. To the north-eastward of the Carrier's dock, in front of a building which formerly stood on the shore known as "Miller's Castle," there is an extensive area enclosed as a dock yard ; to the northward of it is a large space of ground which is to be used as a timber yard, having a width of 700 feet. Between this space and the sea wall there is an area of 65 acres in extent, which is to be used as a floating timber dock. At the Canada dock end of this dock, is to be a line of railway crossing over the entrance bridges of the Carrier's dock, which will terminate in a jetty 40 feet wide, which will run out into the floating timber dock 400 feet. It will be supplied with cranes and all sorts of necessary gear for the loading of heavy bulks of timber. These works may be considered as the marvel of the present age. A few years ago hereabouts, were to be seen nothing but sand banks and a few scattered houses, while now are to be found massive walls and piles of masonry constructed into docks that will stand competition with the world and last for centuries to come, only to be enclosed as the trade requires. Yet we are told this country stands still, and that advance is not known here. A greater fallacy was never conceived nor uttered by man. These magnificent docks are the works of but a few years past, and when the reader considers that these are for Canada alone, it will not be difficult to arrive at a conclusion as to the requirements of dockage for the world.

Man judges of the extent and vastness of any one thing by comparison. Let the reader put this port to that test, and first visit Montreal, then Quebec, and he is amazed at the extent of the shipping, then to New York, when Montreal and Quebec are thrown in the back ground ; follow this up by a visit to Liverpool, and everything else becomes insignificant. The places of interest here such as St. George's Hall, etc., I must pass over, or I should have to write a book. One establishment however, I will mention, it is called the Compton House, and occupies a whole square. It is a splendid dome, which overlooks nearly the whole city. Here over 400 people are employed as clerks, tailors, milliners, tradesmen, &c. In short anything and everything can be purchased here, from a Cambridge needle to a handspike. I sent you one of their advertising pamphlets, which will give you an idea of how they advertise in this country. These pamphlets were circulated on board ship, by being put into each man's berth some days before landing.

After a short stay in Liverpool our party left for Manchester, the great cotton manufacturing city of England, and were fortunate enough to arrive upon the day of the trial of Reapers and Mowers, at the great exhibition of England, of various articles of machinery and agricultural implements. The latter portion of the exhibition was not open, however ; it was to be opened in a few days with great pomp and show by the Prince and Princess of Wales. To the exhibition grounds was the first movement ; here we found reaping and mowing machines from all parts of the country, not least among them was to be seen Brother Jonathan with his New York machine testing its qualities with slow, old John Bull. The great test was with one horse machines, which seem to be most in favor with the English farmer. Before farmers in Canada could think of using them, a different style of horses would have to be imported. Yet there are grave doubts in my mind whether the large, heavy fat horses at work here would do the work in Canada with the July and August heat to contend with. One cannot but be wonderfully impressed with the great proportions of the horses which he sees here, the bale, hearty and jolly appearance of the men, and the plump, rosy featured women that present themselves at every turn, leading you to the conclusion that beef and beer have much to do in producing such a race. For you must bear in mind that every one drinks beer here ; in some restaurants you pay as much for water as if you drank beer. Call for water and you are looked upon as a novice, or a flat, and gazed upon as an exceptional specimen of humanity. There are many and varied places of interest in Manchester and its environs. Not the least among them are the mammoth cotton factories, which supply the world, and draw tribute from every nation. As an evidence of the prosperity of this city, I find from statistics before me, that within the last ten or twelve years its population has increased from forty to fifty thousand souls. Yet how often we hear of the stand-still and snail-like progress of English cities. In fact, in America most people are led away with the impression that there is no progress here, that, in short, that word is only applicable to the great West. More erroneous ideas could not exist. True, the population is very great in comparison to the size of the Island ; notwithstanding this fact nothing has surprised me more than the few beggars met in the streets. Pass along the streets of Montreal for one day and you will be beset with more beggars than I have seen since I have been in England.

Having spent some little time in the Cotton metropolis of the world, we took rail for the Iron districts of Wolverhampton and Birmingham, passing through Stafford, famous for its Potteries. For a number of miles along this route you pass through what is called the "black country," not inappropriately named. Hundreds of immense high chimnies present themselves, from which roll forth black coal smoke from the smelting and roasting works of the various iron mines on either side of the road, obscuring not only the sun but most of the heavens. The clouds of smoke, lowring over the district like a funeral canopy, relieved only by the glare of light caused by the flames which belch out from the furnaces, giving the whole country, for miles around, the appearance of being on fire. In the evening, while rattling along at the rate of from 40 to 50 miles per hour, the scene presented is grand, though sombre, somewhat suffocating, for the more who have been breathing the pure air of Canada and the fresh air of the sea.

Having arrived at Birmingham and looked about the city, we were particularly impressed with the substantial appearance of everything about its free libraries, galleries of art, etc. Here, and in every city visited, beneficent charities and bequests have furnished for those who cannot afford it themselves almost every description of amusements, intellectually and otherwise. Artizans out of employment have free reading rooms, free libraries, free parks and free gardens to which to resort and spend their time. Sure, said this, drink is the besetting sin of the country. Go where you will and you see it in all its hideousness.

A pleasant ride through a beautiful country brought us to London, the centre of the world. All along the road the farmers are busy haying, and the crop is very heavy, much more so than for years past. The abundance of the single-leafed poppy, which is indigenous to the soil, gives the fields where it abounds an exceedingly rich and pretty appearance. Its existence, however, to any great extent is indicative of inferior low land, and not the best of farming, though it is difficult to destroy. Arrived at London at 6:30, took the train at once for the Crystal Palace to witness a grand display of fireworks, which were never exceeded even here, so say the Cockneys, and only equalled when the Viceroy of Egypt was in England. To say that they were magnificent would be to use a very insignificant word to express the grandeur of the scene.

On Friday last I had the pleasure of meeting Mr. Erastus Holden, whom his numerous friends will be glad to hear is much better in health than he had been. On Sunday, Messrs. Flint, Lazier, Jellet and Robertson having returned from the Continent, were also visited, and the sound of each other's voices was music to the ears of those so far from home. The various places of interest in this little place are too numerous, too extensive, and too everthing else to justify an attempt at a description, unless I intended remaining here for the next ten years, and then the work would be incomplete.

Our Belleville friends leave for home by the steamer which sails on Saturday next, and may be with you by the time this reaches Belleville.

Our intention at present is to remain here a few days longer, and then visit the East of England.

St. George's Society.

The annual meeting of the St. George's Society was held last night in Coleman's Hall. There was a large attendance of the members present, and the reports of the Managing Committee, Secretary and Treasurer, showed the Society to be in a very flourishing condition. The number of members on the roll is 186.

The following is the report of the Committee :

To the President and Members of the St. George's Society, Belleville.

On behalf of the Committee of St. George's Society of Belleville, I have the honor to make the following Report, and in so doing feel bound to congratulate my brother members upon the rapid progress and advancement made by the Society during the past year, which has been shown by the large increase of members and in the success which has generally attended the excursions, pic-nics and other amusements of the Society, from which the sum of $152 89 has been derived, a sum nearly trebling that received for member's subscriptions, and which amusements have greatly tended to raise the Institution in the eyes of the public, and enabled its Committee to do much in alleviating the sufferings of their poorer countrymen.

Your Committee would call attention to the large amount of subscriptions in arrears, as shown by the Secretary's Books, and suggest that some steps be taken for collecting this amount, and preventing such arrears for the future, by allowing the Secretary a small commission, or otherwise, as may be thought best at the Annual General Meeting.

Your Committee would report that during the past year, especially during the winter, they have been able to administer relief in many cases of dire distress, and though probably in some cases they have been imposed upon, they have felt that the depth of winter women and young children ought not to be left to perish in consequence of the depravity of fathers and husbands ; they would, however, observe from their experience, that the utmost caution is requisite, more especially among strangers or travellers, who are too often impostors, and have not the most claims upon the Society as those resident among us. Your Committee would mention with pleasure having provided for the funeral of an old brother countryman, long resident in this town, and would say that it gave them peculiar pleasure to be enabled to save him who had so long labored among them, from a pauper's grave, and are glad that many members of the Society followed him to his last resting place, a practice they would like to see more generally carried out at the funerals of our members and their families.

Your Committee express their thanks for the liberality of the Grand Trunk Company, with regard to the second excursion to Montreal, and the one now pending to Portland, which they believe will be attended with similar results, and in both cases believe it mainly due to the exertions of our excellent President, W. C. Nunn, Esq., who has so ably co-operated with and assisted your Committee in every matter during the past year, and whose welfare should ever be regarded with the warmest interest by every member of this Society.

To the press, and more especially to the Belleville Intelligencer, we are under great obligations for their favorable notices of the movements of the Society during the past year.

During the past year, some cases have been relieved at an expense of $89 41, and a further sum of $15 dollars also been loaned in furniture, $5 of which has already been returned.

Your Committee have prepared, in accordance with a resolution passed at a monthly meeting, some suggestions with regard to the proposed alterations of By-laws with regard to which they feel it to be the peculiar duty of the Annual Meeting to deal.

A clever writer when asked to describe the most beautiful hand, declared it to be a giving hand, an idea fully endorsed by your Committee, and though they may be blamed by a few for refusing relief in some cases, they have not done so without a firm belief in the unworthyness of the object, and the sequel has generally proved those so refusing to have been right, they would therefore strongly recommend as thorough a ventilation as possible of every claim for relief.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

ARTHUR FLETCHER,
Chairman of Committee.

August, 2nd, 1869.

After the adoption of the report the following were elected office-bearers for the ensuing year :

PRESIDENT—C. J. Starling.
1st VICE PRESIDENT—Jos. P. Reeves.
2nd VICE PRESIDENT—Henry Wilkins.
TREASURER—Geo. Wallbridge.
RECORDING SECRETARY—J. S. Hurst.
FINANCIAL SECRETARY—Geo. Metcalfe.
CHAPLAINS—Revs. S. Jones, Jos. Wild, and Wm. Lewed.
PHYSICIANS—Drs. Lister and Ridley.
MARSHAL—A. F. Ellis.
STANDARD BEARERS—Wm. Morman and R. B Bennett.
MANAGING COMMITTEE—Messrs. E. Hayne, D. Price, J. W. London, W. Boswell and J. C. Clarkson.

At the close of the business of the evening a splendid medal with an appendage of St. George and the Dragon, was presented by the members of the Society to the retiring President, W. C. Nunn, Esq., who in an appropriate manner acknowledged the gift.

Town Council.

MONDAY Evening, Aug. 3rd.

PRESENT.—His Worship the Mayor, and Messrs, Henderson, Kelso, Holden, Kennedy, Watters, Foster, Vair and Vandusen.

Several petitions were read and referred.

A letter from Messrs Nosworthy, Brenton, and others, calling attention to the closing up of Bridge Street was read and referred to the Street Committee who were empowered to obtain the opinion of a Solicitor and report at the next meeting of the Council.

The Clerk said he had received a Requisition and Estimate from the School Trustees.

Mr. Holden called attention to the fact that a good many Farmers are interested in the Lower Bridge, and that it was the duty of Mr. Rankin, Engineer, to have these repairs attended to.

Some members said that Mr. Rankin had been told to make these repairs and attend to other duties prescribed, but he had continually neglected to do so.

The Finance Committee presented a report recommending the payment of several accounts and the following report relating to the Requisition of the School Board.

The Committee have considered the requisition of the Board of School Trustees requiring the Town to levy and collect the sum of $9078.

In determining upon the amount which the Committee would recommend to be collected the present year, the Committee feel that to levy the whole amount required would be too great a burden upon the rate-payers for the present year.

They have to recommend that the levying the instalment for salaries to be paid 1st October, 1870, be postponed until next year, and that the sum of $3669, for school house, be not levied this year, on the understanding that if the Board of Trustees should require the money at the time intimated in their requisition, viz: 1st April, 1870, and 1st October, 1870,—the town will provide the money for the Trustees.

The Committee submit the following estimates for common school purposes for 1869, for adoption by the Council. The Committee are unable to fix the rate on the dollar required to raise the sum estimated, until they know the amount to be deducted from the assessed real and personal property, for the property of supporters of Roman Catholic Schools.

To ascertain this, they recommend that the Clerk prepare a statement showing the amount assessed of real and personal property owned or occupied by supporters of Roman Catholic Separate Schools.

The estimate herewith submitted does not include $477 received by the Town from the Chief Superintendent of Education, which sum the Committee recommend be paid to the Board of School Trustees.

THOS. HOLDEN,
Chairman.

August 2nd, 1869.

ESTIMATES FOR COMMON SCHOOL PURPOSES FOR 1869.

Instalment for Teachers Salaries due 1st October, 1869, on requisition of 1868,	$ 920 as requisition of 1869.
Teacher's Salaries due 1st January, April and July, 1870,	$5,171
For renting, repairing, &c., School Houses, payable in three instalments 14th December, 1869, 14th March and June, 1870,	$1,100
Other expenses,	$ 750
	$7,941
Expense collecting, $ 170
Loss on collection, $ 389	$ 559
	$8,500

Mr. Holden gave notice that at the next meeting of the Council he would introduce a By-Law to levy a rate for Common School purposes for 1869.

The Council went into Committee on Ways and Means. Mr. Foster on the Chair.

The various accounts were passed. The Clerk read the Requisition and estimate of School Trustees.

Mr. Holden said with respect to the Requisition of the School Board, the Committee thought best as the payments of salaries were required at various times, to have the last instalment which fell due on the 1st October, 1870, not included in this year's estimates, but do as was done last year, levy it next year, and thus the amount of the present taxation could be reduced. With reference to the sum of $3500, the Committee had not included it in the estimates, but if the amount is required by the Board the Town will guarantees to raise the sum. The Trustees will understand that in taking this course they in no manner reflected on their wisdom, judgment or discretion.

Mr. Henderson knew the Town was obliged to furnish the Trustees with money for all reasonable requirements, but he would like to know if the sum demanded was reasonable.

Mr. Holden said with regard to the $3000 there was no doubt Baldwin Ward needed a School House. The place at present occupied was a disgrace to the Town, and the Committee did not think it at all unreasonable that a school building should be erected in that Ward. But as it would be a permanent improvement it was thought desirable to have the expenditure spread over several years.—If the Trustees required the first instalment in April, the Town would have to furnish it, and the amount could be raised by Debenture. If the Trustees were not ready for it then he did not suppose they would ask it, and he supposed the Board would be quite satisfied with this arrangement.

The Committee rose and reported, and report adopted.

Mr. Holden said his attention had been called to the desirability of having a civic holiday, and as we were advised to follow the example of other places, it it was thought desirable he supposed the better way would be to pass a resolution asking the Mayor to appoint a day for that purpose.

Mr. Watters said it was very customary for other places to have public holidays, and he thought it desirable for Belleville to have one.

Mr. Vair did not know what the holiday was for.

Mr. Kelso said if the Town was prepared to give the people a pic-nic, there would be some reason for a holiday, but otherwise he did not see any necessity for it.

Mr. Holden's object in mentioning the matter was simply to elicit the opinion of the members, and that opinion was evidently against it. He had been told that their duty was to follow the example of other places, and he was afraid they might get into trouble by not following the example of other localities.

Mr. Kelso would like to know what action had been taken by the Committee respecting the Asylum election.

The Mayor said out of a Committee of sixty, only nine met that day, and the feeling of the majority was against a celebration.

Mr. Kennedy said if there was any demonstration, such as laying the corner stone of the Asylum, there might be some cause for a holiday, but otherwise he did not see any reason for it.

A motion was made to adjourn, which was carried.

Errata.

To the Editor of the Daily Intelligencer.

DEAR SIR,—In yesterday's issue of the Daily Intelligencer, I notice a typographical error in the publishing of the poem "Dante." In the seventh line from the first the word "woof" should take the place of "wool." The sentence would then read—

"He brings your notice
"A language pure and delicately woven
With golden "woof" from their imagination."

Resolutions were adopted that the question of British rejection of claims of the Irish American citizens, presents an international question between this country and Britain superior to those arising out of the conflict between the countries on the belligerent question of the rights of the North and South commonly called 'Alabama' claims. That the sympathies of the Democratic party are with the Cubans struggle to overthrow the exactions of the Spanish officers and the tyranny and partial Government for native Cubans, and that so far as we can, without rendering ourselves properly amenable to the neutrality laws, we will endeavor to succor and comfort the struggling people of Cuba.

GOV. HOFFMAN sent a letter saying our Government has been disgraced by its failure to protect American citizens against injustice, cruelty and oppression, whether in Great Britain or Cuba. It is the mission of the Democratic party to wipe out that disgrace and they will do it.

NEW ALBION HOTEL,

CRAIG-STREET,
MONTREAL, CANADA.

THE "NEW ALBION HOTEL," the largest Hotel in Montreal, has just been opened under the most favorable auspices.

Whilst the "Old Albion" has been long noted for the strict attention paid to its numerous guests, the "New Albion" takes its position as a first class Hotel, and is really, first class in every respect, except the charges, which better suit the ideas and requirements of the majority of travelers, the vanity of the so called, "first class Houses ;" which deserve the title more through the amount of their charges than aught else.

Already the crowded state of the "New Albion" promises well for its future career ; everything associated with its construction has been carried out with artistic taste and systematic correctness.

The large Hall, commodious office, spacious Reading room, convenient Dining Coffee, Wash Room, etc., etc., on the ground floor ; and the Reception Room and Suite of SPLENDIDLY FURNISHED and THOROUGHLY VENTILATED LADIES' PARLORS, on the second floor, will form no small luxury during the hot summer season. And, what is an exception to the general Rule in Hotels, the Bedrooms are all well ventilated and lighted, there not being a dark room in the House.

Being situated on the widest and healthiest Street in Montreal, commanding a Magnificent View of the River St. Lawrence and the Victoria Bridge on the left, and a full view of the Victoria Square with its numerous Vists of Taste and Mount Royal on the right, it cannot fail to commend itself to the travelling public.

From its situation on McGill Street, the great thoroughfare and commercial centre of the City it cannot fail to be, as the "Old Albion" has always been a strong favorite with the Merchants of Canada.

Notwithstanding the very large outlay in building and furnishing the house, the old price of $1 50 per day will not be departed from.

We, therefore, bespeak for ourselves a continuance of the patronage so liberally accorded to us during the past twelve years.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

The necessity of a due proportion of iron in the blood is well known to all medical men ; when it becomes reduced from any cause whatever, the whole system of the human breast part being first attacked, and a feeling of languor, lassitude, and all gone sinks prevades the system. Stimulants only afford temporary relief, and have the same effect as giving a tired horse the whip instead of oats. The true remedy is to supply the blood with the necessary quantity of iron. This can be done by using the a protected solution of the protoxide of Iron, which is so prepared that it assimilates at once with the blood, giving strength, vigor, and new life to the whole system.

To take medicine to cure diseases occasioned by a deficiency of IRON IN THE BLOOD, without restoring it to the system, is like trying to repair a building when the foundation is gone.

An eminent divine says, "I have been using the PERUVIAN SYRUP for some time past ; it gives me new vigor, buoyancy of spirits, and elasticity of muscle."

Pamphlets containing certificates of cures, and recommendations from some of the most eminent physicians, clergymen and others, will be sent free to any address.

The genuine has "Peruvian Syrup" blown in the glass.

Matters of the House.

If put on immediately, salt will take ink stains out of colored goods.

Stair carpets last much longer if two or three thicknesses of newspaper are laid over the edge of the steps under the carpet.

In boiling ham, weigh it, and allow fifteen minutes to every pound of meat. Put it on in cold water, and do not let it boil too hard.

Pans that have had mackerel in soak should be filled with earth; it removes the smell. Rub knives on the ground that have been used in fish.

Brass Polish for Stair-Rods.—1 gill of sweet oil, ½ gill of spirits of turpentine; stir in rotten-stone (which can be got at the druggist's), till the consistency of thick cream is attained. Rub on the rods.

To keep milk sweet during the warm weather, as soon as possible after milking put it into a basin of cold water to expel the animal heat. Then put it into a glass bottle, cool, dark place.

Currants Spiced.—To 8 quarts of ripe currants add 4 pounds of sugar, 1 pint of the best vinegar, and ground spices to suit your taste. Boil about one hour, put into jars, and cover as other preserves. They should not be used for two or three months.

On the boundaries of London, a solution of tunnstate of soda is extensively used. It prevents the fabrics with which it is incorporated from blazing, and does not impair the colors or appearance. At some of the theatres no ballet-dancer is employed whose garments have not been saturated in this solution.

When raisins, citron, and currants are wanted for cake, etc., always wash the latter the day before, that they may be thoroughly dry, or the cake will be heavy. Cut the raisins and citron then also, and before you put them in the cake roll them in flour. This prevents their going in lumps, and distributes them more evenly through the cake.

A most deliciously cooling drink in summer is orange sherbet. Make a rather strong orangeade, being careful not to put too much water to it, as the ice will dilute it. Add 1 lemon to every 4 oranges, and sweeten to taste; slice the half of a medium-sized pine-apple and put in, taking care not to mash it or let it break up; to this put a few drops of the real extract of vanilla and ice sufficient to make it cold.

Raspberry Vinegar.—Take one quart of the best cider vinegar (if possible); add to it 2 quarts of ripe raspberries; let it stand twenty-four hours; mash the berries and strain, adding 2 quarts more fruit after straining; let it stand one day; mash and strain, putting in 2 quarts of fresh fruit, when these have stood twenty-four hours strain; put 1 pound of sugar to 1 pint of juice; boil fifteen minutes, removing the scum. Bottle at once. Put a wine-glassful to a tumbler of ice-water.

A nice way of cooking a beef-steak is to lay it on the bottom of the dripping-pan in the oven. Have ready in a large plate a lump of butter with boiling water poured over it. As soon as the steak warms up lay it in the dish; turn it over two or three times, pressing it down with the knife.—The oven should not be too hot, and for a three-piece it will take about half an hour to cook. Baste it often, and at the last add salt and pepper to the water. You can make a thickened gravy, if you desire, os the water and butter you basted it in. Steak cooked in this way is very tender and juicy—quite equal to broiling, and more convenient.

Cottage Pudding.—1 pint of sifted flour, 1 coffee-cupful of sugar, the same of milk, 2 ounces of butter, 1 egg, grated rine of lemon, 2 tea-spoonfuls of cream of tartar rubbed into the flour. Cream the butter and sugar, add milk, yolk of egg beaten stiffly; and, last of all, 1 tea-spoonful of soda dissolved in a little milk. Bake in a well-buttered round pan in a quick oven. Eat hot, with fairy-butter or sauce. A richer one—that if any is left from table can be cut up for cake—is 1 pint of flour, ½ pint of milk, the same of sugar, ½ pound of butter, 2 eggs, 2 tea spoonfuls of cream of tartar, 1 of soda. Bake half an hour. Add currants and raisins to make it nicer.

—One of the London theatres is playing an interesting drama, the scene of which is laid in America, during the late war. The play is entitled "Edendale." The plot appears to be this: Edendale is a Virginian estate, owned by one Col. Vandeleur, a Southern gentleman, whose daughter Ada, the Juliet of the play, finds her Romeo in Esmond Fairholt, an officer in the United States army. Edendale is exhibited while peace yet prevails, and the course of true love between Ada and Fairholt is running smoothly enough. Then comes the attack upon Fort Sumter. Fairholt has to join the forces of the North, and to take arms against the Vandeleurs and the South. The lovers parted under these painful circumstances, do not meet again until Edendale has been ravaged by war and the confederate cause has suffered terribly. Ada hardens her heart against her lover, and holds him in detestation as one of the oppressors of her country. Col. Vandeleur is killed in action and his son is taken prisoner. An interval of eighteen months separates the events of the second and third acts. The war is over. Fairholt has become a General, and has received from the President a grant of the Edendale field. (!). He restores the estate to Mrs. Vandeleur, and obtains the release of her son from captivity. Ulimately Ada softens towards the generous conqueror, and the curtain falls upon her complete reconciliation with him.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys, is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Inveterate cases of Scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous affections and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulous contamination until th[illegible] painfully afflicting, have been radically [illegible] great numbers in almost every sec[illegible] country, that the public scarcely need to be [illegible] of its virtues or uses.

[illegible] poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this unseen and unfelt tenant of the organism undermines the constitution, and invites the attack of enfeebling or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed infection throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develop into one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the occasional use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla is advisable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, at length, cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions or visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Fits, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various Ulcerous affections of the muscular and nervous systems.

Syphilis or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these obstinate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Leucorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute Directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when arising, as they often do, from the rankling poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are Languid and Listless, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the affections symptomatic of Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, or do more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Bismuth, Zinc, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it in nowise injures any patient. The number and importance of its cures in the ague districts, are literally beyond account, and we believe without a parallel in the history of Ague medicine. Our pride is gratified by the acknowledgments we receive of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and where other remedies had wholly failed.

Unacclimated persons, either resident in, or travelling through miasmatic localities, will be protected by taking the AGUE CURE daily.

For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy activity.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly remarkable cures, where other medicines had failed.

QUERY?

Should we employ the noble doctors to bring us our tea and coffee in bottles, at an expense of at least four times what they now cost?

If not, why should we longer adopt that system in reference to medicines which are the simple extracts of herbs or plants and roots, and are as readily prepared as tea and coffee?

Each package of Dr. Thompson's Botanic Medicines contains more medical properties than can be procured in any other form for four times the amount of money.

We have in our possession numerous testimonials as to the practicability of, as well as the benefits derived from the use of Dr. Thompson's Botanic Medicines, viz:

Dr. Thompson's Blood Purifier

Cures all diseases arising from an impure state of the blood, such as salt-rheum, scrofula, king's evil, white swellings, tendency to boils, old sores, pimples or roughness of the skin. It regulates the stomach and bowels; it tones the liver, and promotes the general vigor of the system, without reducing the strength of the patient. Sold at 50 cents per package.

DR. THOMPSON'S

Stomachic Bitters.

A certain and speedy cure for Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, and Indigestion. For costiveness it has no equal; it is a mild and safe invigorant and corroberant for delicate persons; a good alterative tonic for ordinary family purposes; a powerful recuperant after the frame has been reduced by sickness; an excellent as well as an agreeable and wholesome stimulant, for general debility, and diseases having their origin in an imperfect digestion or a deranged state of the stomach. Sold at 25 cents per package.

Dr. Thompson's No. 6.
OR COMPOSITION POWDERS

It is used with success for diseases caused by colds, such as cold chills, chills and fever, headache, pains in the joints or limbs, neuralgia, rheumatic pains—in fact it may properly be called PAIN KILLER, as it may be used for all purposes for which Pain Killers or Reliefs are used, such as cramps in the stomach, colic, diarrhœa, dysentery, summer complaints, cholera morbus, female complaints or obstructions. It may also be used with great success as a Liniment. Sold at 20 cents per package.

The proprietor has been induced to adopt the present condensed style of putting up the medicine in packages, as he is thereby enabled to supply double the amount of medicine for one-half the regular price of similar preparations.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Vol. 3. BELLEVILLE, COUNTY OF HASTINGS, DOMINION OF CANADA, WEDNESDAY EVENING, AUGUST 4, 1869. No. 80.

The Future of the Dominion.

From the Halifax Express.

A speech of the Governor General, lately delivered at Montreal, has been made the subject of a good deal of newspaper comment and general speculation. The Annexation press have fastened upon one or two of its more salient points and interpreted them with unwonted eagerness to suit their own proclivities. Sir John Young, truly enough, said that in governing these Colonies Great Britain had an ends of her own to serve: that her only desire was to see the Dominion of Canada great, prosperous and happy, and that her constant desire would be, to be guided as to the management of its affairs by the advice of its leading statesmen, as the representatives of the public opinion and real wishes of the people. He further stated that if at any future time Canada should wish to change her allegiance, he did not think that the Government of England would throw any obstacles in her path, but even then would gladly assist her in working out her destiny, and thus, though the national tie should be parted, the feeling of mutual friendship and affection would remain. They would cease to be nominally dependent, but they would still continue brethren and allies.

Such was in substance, the gist of Sir John Young's remarks, and very important they were both in their tenor and their relations. The question, however, naturally and instantly suggests itself, what were the thoughts predominant in the Governor General's mind when he uttered these words? Was he thinking of the possibility of annexation to the United States, or of an independent nationality, on a constitutional basis, at some future day? If we may form an opinion from the context of this portion of the address, and from the general tone and spirit of the speech itself, we would say that he had in his mind very independence, and independence only. We did not indeed require to receive assurance to this effect from any functionary, however exalted. The public men, the press, and the people of the United Kingdom have all for years spoken the same language, and spoken it unreservedly. Public opinion in England would not tolerate the idea of a second revolutionary war with her colonies on this side the Atlantic. Yet she would prefer upon the whole that the connection should remain as long as possible; that the interests and well being of Great Britain and its dependencies should be reciprocal, that they should be more closely identified, instead of being drawn gradually farther apart. But notwithstanding this, should the Dominion of Canada elect, with anything like unanimity, to set up on its own account, the answer of the mother country would be frank and unreserved. It might say, we consider your action premature, you are scarcely strongly enough, or sufficiently consolidated to undertake all the responsibilities of nationality and guard them successfully, if assailed from without, but not a shot will be fired by us to retain you in unwilling connection, and though we do not think your resolution, as yet, either discreet or wise, so far from opposing it, we wish you God speed, and trust we shall ever remain friends and allies.

This, in the present temper of the mother country, would probably be the kind of answer that would be given, though it would be given with a feeling of disappointment and regret. There is a party, and a growing one, at home, who think that her colonies are not a source of strength to Great Britain. They bring in, they say, no revenue to the Imperial exchequer.—They contribute nothing either in men or money to the naval or military expenditure of the empire. They impose duties upon British manufactures, just the same as if they were foreign countries. They cost many millions annually to govern them, and yet the government is only an appearance—they enjoy the reality without the responsibility of independence. That there is a good deal of force in this reasoning few will be prepared to deny, and yet there is another and very serious side to the picture. Would great Britain be actually as strong, would her resources be as great, her influence or prestige anything like what it now is, where she to strip herself or be stripped of her numerous colonies and dependencies? At present England rules, directly or indirectly, one-fifth part of the terrestial globe. What would she be in the eyes of the world where she all at once to be confined to the area of the British Islands; to one hundred and twenty thousand square miles, instead of seven millions? Radical utilitarians may speculate as they please, but the probability, all but the certainty, would be that within a dozen or twenty years England would cease to be a first-class Power, would cease to be as she is at present, the ruler of the seas. Her trade and manufactures would show signs of decadence, her imports and exports would begin to decline rather than increase. A crowded population would be without steady employment. Hostile tariffs promoted by jealousy or interest, might cripple her industry at every point, and tell her in omi-nous words that the glory was departing from her. In a thousand ports and harbors the British flag formerly floated proudly, but now she would not have a port of call of her own in any distant part of the world. Were the United States once to get hold of British America, Mexico would shortly follow, and then the West India Islands. The Great Republic in possession of a continent, and every possible variety of soil and climate, could then very well afford to carry out a thoroughly protective policy, and in fact could dictate terms to the nations of the world. The sun of England, without her Colonies and her vast Indian empire, would gradually but surely set, and she would take a position such as that now occupied by Spain or Holland.

For England to part with her colonies, then on any terms but such as would insure a continuance of friendship, of pride in a common origin and a common greatness, would in view of the matter, be disastrous in the extreme to her, probably to both. Looking at the question in this light, as a national policy, the scheme of annexating these Provinces to the United States would be an act of madness. It would degrade the Colonies—it would degrade and ruin the mother country. When it came to the pinch, then—when England came to look at the results—we are convinced that a firm and resolute negative would be the answer to any proposal for a transfer of allegiance to the United States. And under the present paternal and fostering form of Government, there will always be, beyond a doubt, a great, probably a vastly preponderating, British party in these colonies prepared to make any effort and endure any sacrifice to keep themselves and their children under the protecting power of the British flag. Our interest, our honor, and our duty, all point in this direction. But to hold our position we must advance; our railway system must strike into the far West. British America, if it is to hold its own, must have its Pacific railway as well as the United States. To effect this, England and the Dominion, Australasia and India, must join hands and resources, and by consolidating the empire increase its power, and add immensely to the material prosperity and resources of every part of it.

Great Parisian Balloon.—Outside of politics, the chief event of the week has been the aeronautic ascent of the balloon North Pole. This is, I believe, the largest balloon ever made. It is twenty-eight feet in diameter, thirty-seven in height, with 3,300 feet of stuff, and contains ten thousand five hundred cubic metres of gas. Its form is perfectly spherical. It is made of two tissues, one upon the other, but separated by a web of india-rubber. Its exterior is covered with a coat of shellac varnish and six coats of oil varnish. To join together all the pieces of cloth of which it is composed required four thousand yards of seams. In the netting there are thirty-eight thousand meshes, and it weighs a thousand killogrames. It is made to contain pure hydrogen. In the upper part is a discharge pipe, a yard and a quarter in diameter, with a metal disk turned by eighteen steel springs. The car has a surface of nine square yards. It is provided with cushions, windows for observing, anchors and cords. It is the best thing of its kind, and the owners propose, if the trial trips meet their expectation, to cross the channel and then the ocean. The evening of the day they left Paris, they reached a point in Beauce, fifteen leagues distant.—There is a great difference between this and the Monogolfier hot air balloons, which carried up successively, papers, a dog a man, and now a little world. As far as steering goes, they have not advanced.—The North Pole does not seem to have succeeded in that respect. The mass of gas, which displaces just as much air as the Great Eastern does water, was still more difficult than its predecessors. But it is hoped that this may be remedied by modifying the apparatus, and towards the end of the month a new ascent will be made. This subject attracts many, each one dreams of it, and last Sunday the departure of the North Pole attracted two hundred thousand spectators.

Friendly.—Never forsake a friend. When enemies gather around—when sickness falls on the heart—when the world is dark and cheerless—is the time to try true friendship. They who turn from the scene of distress betray their hypocrisy, and prove that interest only moves them. If you have a friend who loves you—who has studied your interest and happiness—be sure you sustain him in adversity. Lay him feel that his former kindness is appreciated, and that his love was not thrown away. Real fidelity may be rare—but it exists—in the heart. Who has not seen and felt its power? They only deny its worth who have never loved a friend or laboured to make one happy. The good and the kind, the affectionate and the virtuous see and feel the heavenly principle. They would sacrifice wealth and honor to promote the happiness of others; and, in return, they receive the reward of their love by sympathising hearts and countless favors, when they have been brought low by disease and adversity.—Gleanings for all Seasons.

BELLEVILLE, WEDNESDAY, AUG. 4.

TO RESUME.—The Canadian Monetary Times says that "it is not impossible that the Royal Canadian Bank will resume business in about a fortnight."

FOR RED RIVER.—It is said that the Hon. Mr. Macdougall intends to leave about the 18th inst. for Thunder Bay, and perhaps, thence to Red River. He will be accompanied by the Hon. John Carling, Commissioner of Public Works for Ontario.

LADIES' AID SOCIETY.—The annual Excursion and Pic-Nic of the W. M. Ladies Aid Society will take place on Wednesday next, Aug. 11th, by Bay of Quinte to Bongard's Grove. Our readers will bear it in mind as it will be one of the most pleasant Excursions of the season.

A CRUISE.—The Yacht Rivet, the Hon. Judge Sherwood in command, left this port yesterday afternoon for a cruise down the Bay and River St. Lawrence. The party, seven or eight persons, expect to be gone about ten days. We wish them a pleasant voyage.

MORE EMIGRANTS COMING.—The Liverpool Courier of July 21st says: "The Marquis of Westminister has sent £1,000 to the British Colonial Emigration Fund. This will enable the committee to despatch to Canada from 200 to 250 emigrants before the end of the present month. Nearly 3,000 persons have been assisted to emigrate through the agency of this fund.

The Talked of Fenian Raid.

The New York World has been making enquiries about the alleged preparations for another Fenian Raid, and is of the opinion that there is trouble brewing. Of course, its opinion may not be worth much, and in all probability its statements are exaggerated, but when the Premier of the country, who is supposed to be acquainted with the movements and designs of this organization, goes so far as to say that that organization is as active as ever, there is very likely some ground for believing that the Fenians are making some preparations for a movement. The World tells us in the first place that there is to be a meeting of the Fenian magnates in high Council as early as the 10th of August, and surmises that steps will then be taken for developments in September and October next.—Its reporter visited the Fenian head-quarters in New York, and he tells us that there was convincing evidence that there was quite a revival in the life and energy of the organization. During the winter the report goes on to say, but few persons were seen entering or departing from the premises, and with the exception of the few clerks attending to the dull and idle routine of business, the place seemed almost deserted. For a week or two lately, however, this has all changed. Numbers of persons are constantly entering and departing, the clerks are busily engaged in the manipulation of documents, books, &c., and the leaders of the Brotherhood appear as bright and energetic as schoolboys at recess-time.

The appearance of things in the building is said to be significant of active and warlike operations. Stands of arms, packages of mysterious import, flags, boxes, muskets fresh with the glitter of recent burnishing, and equipments kept in useful order—all are mute but tell-tale whisperers of what may, might, and perhaps will be about to happen before the leaves of autumn fall.—Of course the officials are not very communicative, and to the inquiries of the reporters declare their ignorance of any such contemplated movement, and moreover that it would be very awkward to start a new raiding campaign this fall, if the administration on the neutrality law continues to be the same as manifested towards the Cuban expeditions. All of the equipments, arms, ammunition, &c., captured by the government from the Fenian army in the 1866 campaign, was restored under heavy bonds a year ago, and is now available for instant use. And the World states it as an unquestioned fact that the Fenians could at any time, on short notice summon from all parts of the country a large army. We are not told much about the plan of the next campaign, but are assured that it is to enter Canadian territory at a point never before attempted, and, with the co-operation of friends already there, to grasp certain railroads and capture strongholds before there is time or suspicion to thwart them. The next raid, they claim, will be desperate, sanguinary, and decisive.

If there is to be "the next raid," we have no doubt it will be "desperate, sanguinary, and decisive," if the Fenians will only be allowed to come across in any considerable number. It will be desperate, for once in our hands it will be a conflict for life or death; it will be sanguinary, for after the "mistaken clemency" exhibited towards the Fenian prisoners, no prisoners will be taken; and it will be decisive, for after the complete annihilation of whatever band comes to our shore, no similar army of invaders would care to molest us for long years to come.

King on Wall Street.

It appears that Mr. King's business in New York was not to recruit his health, for which he obtained six months' lease of absence, but to do a little gambling. He had tried that sort of thing repeatedly, sometimes making and sometimes losing, and having become emboldened with recent successes, resolved upon breaking the gold market in New York by a grand coup d'etat. The history of this operation is thus told by the New York World of the 28th ult.:

"The Gold room continues to attract the mercantile and speculative interests. The price of gold reached 137¼ and declined to 136½. A Canadian Bank official, recently arrived on a visit to the city, has gone into the gold-gambling business to an extent which rivals the transactions of our most reckless stock-jobbing cliques. To-day this official sold, for account of the Canada Bank, it is said, $2,500,000 gold, with the view of breaking the whole market and buying back again at a lower price. The Bills of exchange of this Canada bank have been of sale lately, even below the market quotations, on account of the general reputation enjoyed by the Bank of speculating in gold and exchange. The transactions [of to-day have been the topic of discussion among bankers and merchants, and the natural result is not favorable to the credit of their bills. The demoralization among all classes, more especially with the rich or those who enjoy large credit, is so widely spread that there is scarcely any amount of failures or defalcations which the public is not prepared to believe possible. A bank or firm that offers its sixty-day bills, or promises to pay, in exchange for the cash of the community, has no right to speculate; or, if they do, then are they unworthy of credit, and the public are certain to prefer the bills of those who possess a different reputation."

Other New York journals comment upon the operation of this speculation official in a not very complimentary manner. The World of the 30th says:—"The average price at which the gold was sold was about 136½, and it was all bought back again yesterday and to-day without any loss or profit. The profit or loss on a gold gambling transaction is not, however the point for the stockholders in a bank to consider. The question is "whether gold gambling in New York comes within the scope of a legitimate Canada banking business," and, "if so, how long will the capital of the bank remain intact?" Any departure from legitimate banking on the part of the manager of any bank will naturally injure its credit, and, as all experience has shown generally ends in disastrous losses."

The question has been asked and very pertinently: Is it for this that the Montreal Bank was chartered? Is it for this that it has been granted special and extraordinary privileges? To be permitted to withdraw its capital and deposits from the Dominion, to be employed in such reckless wholesale gambling transactions as are referred to, seems to us a most unwarrantable exercise of power, and altogether at variance with the object for which the Bank is established.—Apart from the mere question of withdrawing so much money from the country, it is nothing short of criminality of the worst character, for one of our Bank officials to play such a wild game of chance amongst the sharpers of Wall street, and to practice the deception which King resorted to in his operations. Such a course may prove successful for a time, but in the end is very likely to result in ruin.

The Intercolonial.

The Halifax Citizen of the 3rd of August gives the following information respecting the doings of the Commissioners:—In a week or two, advertisements will be issued calling for tenders for the construction of four or five additional sections of the road including all of the line that is now uncontracted for in Nova Scotia. For eighteen or twenty miles from Truro to the hill in the vicinity of the Londonderry Iron Works the line runs through a level and easy country, where the work of construction will be comparatively light, and can be rapidly proceeded with; and the contractor will be required to have the grading on this portion completed in about twelve months from date. As soon as completed, the cars can be put upon this part of the line, and the road from Dorchester to Amherst will also be completed by that time. The Commissioners have determined to import nothing that can be procured at home. It is expected that the Canada Iron Works will supply rails. Before the close of the present year, the whole line from Truro to River Du Loup is expected to be under contract. The Commissioners have left for the Upper Provinces.

—After the first day of January next liquor will not be allowed to be sold after nine o'clock, in Halifax, to any one who is not a traveller. And this very wise law provides that no person shall be deemed a traveller who does not live more than a mile from the tavern.

—Enormous quantities of blue-berries are now shipped from the St. Maurice district to the Montreal and Quebec markets. The Saguenay heretofore had a monopoly of the business, but the St. Maurice Valley people have lately made serious inroads upon it.

—The Washington correspondent of the Boston Traveller says: It is thought here that there is a combination going on between at least one of the Cuban Juntas and some of the leading Fenians.

Forty Years Ago.

For the Intelligencer.

MR. EDITOR.—In my last I promised to give some further information respecting "Jim." Jim was a shrewd fellow as will be seen by the following: Jim did not forget the Coat and Buttons, but some time after he called on the merchant, and says, "Mr, don't you want buy new bark canoe, me got good one down wharf, you buy um, me take two gallons rum." The bargain was made, but Jim had nothing to hold the rum so he says, "can't you lend um jug, no, lend um pail, tin pail do," seeing tin pails hanging over head; so the pail was taken down, the rum put in it, and Jim picks up the pail, "now me hurry, come quick get canoe" and started off very fast, the merchant after him, but not being able to keep up, Jim soon got out of sight.

At the wharf the merchant found a canoe with an Indian in it, who refused to give it up, saying "it was not Jim's canoe but his own."

After a lapse of some weeks Jim made his appearance at the store, and when asked about the canoe, expressed great surprise that the merchant had not got it; Jim was then asked why he did not return the pail, he replied, "pail, what pail;" answer, "the tin pail you borrowed." Jim replies, "pail, tin pail, O,' me 'member now, mouse eatum up," and Jim departed feeling satisfied as to the "Coat and Buttons."

After opening my store I made it a rule to ask the farmers as to the prospects of the crop, and found the answer generally favourable, not so much grumbling as of late years. One farmer when asked how his wheat was, remarked, "Oh, the wheat is good but the stem is too short," a trifling fault, but not enough to grumble about.

A Friend, from River Trent, called in one day and asked me if I had any tuff cloth; I said no but have some satinet; he replied, "I have mind thy business and I will mind mine." I replied, "that is my business."—After standing a few minutes he asked to see the satinett. I showed it and told him the price, 2s. 9d. per yard. In reply he said, "I will give thee four dollars for six yards." I said, "I am a Quaker in principle." "Cut it off, cut it off," says the old man. I did so, and, during my long life, was a fast and warm friend of mine.

Shortly after opening store a Friend from Sidney called on me, and says "has thee any tea." I showed it, and told him the price, 3s. 9d. "Has thee any tobacco." Showed that at 9d. He said, "I will take ten pounds of thy tea and ten pounds of thy tobacco and I will bring down a barrel of potash, and will settle this day week." I enquired his name; he told me. I let him have the tea and tobacco. He was punctual to the day, paid me and bought more; we dealt together several thousands of dollars, and while he lived we were always fast friends.

I will close this by one more incident. An elderly lady called and asked if I bought "socks," I said yes, and told her that I paid 1s 6d per pair. She asked 2s per pair, said she had never sold less than that price, and she knew where she could get it and went away. She came back again, said she had sold her socks at 3s. I asked what she got in payment, she stated "blue and white calico," which she showed me. I asked what she gave for it, "1s 10d per yard." I laid several pieces on the counter which she pronounced as good as her's, when I showed her the price in plain figures at 7½d per yard, and said while you have only got about a yard and two thirds for a pair of socks, you could at 1s 6d per pair have got about two yards and three-eighths of my calico; she replied, "well, well, don't that beat all, if I have anything more to sell I will bring it here, and you may give me just what you please." And during life this old lady was a good customer, never asking me to take less than my price.

In my next I will let you know how I bought veal 40 years ago.

Yours, &c., &c.,
BILLA FLINT.

Belleville, Aug. 2, 1869.

The Twelfth of July at Bangor, Hastings Road.

To the Editor of the Daily Intelligencer.

SIR,—Allow me through your columns to report the proceedings of Monday, 12th inst., 1869, at Bangor. The Royal Orange Lodge 1194 met at Bangor, Hastings County, in their lodge room. Present,—John Van Allen, Master; Joseph Phelps, Sen. Master; John Allen, Sec.; Rev. Frederick Allward, formerly Chaplain of Douglas Lodge, Boneshire-river; and about 14 members. After the usual salutations, &c., we proceeded to Mr. Allen's residence, where the ladies had a plentiful supply of roast turkey, fruit cakes, pies, and all the essentials for a good Orange dinner. About 75 partook of the rich repast. They did great havoc to the roast turkeys, fruit cakes, &c.; perhaps not inferior to the destruction brought on King James' army at the Boyne. The ladies deserve much praise for pleasing the palate; the rapid manner in which the provisions disappeared proving that they did it to a charm. Dinner being over, we proceeded to Mr. Allen's barn, where seats had been arranged to accommodate our visitors, among whom was a cheering mixture of the fair sex. Thomas Kelly filled the chair. After a short speech from the chairman, the Rev. Frederick Allward, was called on for an address, and the company was enraptured for about an hour with an eloquent speech from the Rev'd gentleman, in which he referred to the policy of the Romish Church, and the necessity of keeping up our institution, and guarding our sacred rights; after which he gave some friendly advice to our members and resumed his seat. The Chairman then called on John H. Ruttan, Wesleyan Missionary for "Brudenell and Bark Lake," to address us. He assumed that the "progress of the times" was mainly dependent on Protestantism and referred to facts in history to prove his position; then after some humorous remarks, he gave us some excellent advice from four words in our charter, viz:—"Religion, Charity, Loyalty and Truth."

After voting thanks to the Chairman and speakers, three cheers were given for our Institution, and three hearty ones for the Queen. The company then dispersed for ball-play, which was kept up briskly for an hour and a half. The company then quietly returned to their homes.

LEAVENWORTH, July 27th, 1869.

Leavenworth is the largest city between Saint Louis and San Francisco. It is pleasantly situated on the west bank of the Missouri river, in a location that must for a considerable time, command for it the trade of that large tract of country, extending from the Missouri River on the east, to the Rocky Mountains on the west. The first house on the site of this present city, I am informed, was built in 1855. The population in that year was 270, and when the last census was taken, which was in 1867, the number of inhabitants was 31,240, and it is estimated that in another decade the city will contain 100,000 inhabitants.—The population consists chiefly of Americans and Germans. The "coloured element," also contributes a large share to the population. There are in Leavenworth nineteen Churches and 24 Schools. The most prominent churches are the Roman Catholic Cathedral; the finest structure between the Mississippiand thePacific; the Baptist, Church, the Episcopal, the Congregational, and the Jewish Synagogue. The public schools employ over forty teachers, and can accommodate fully four thousand attendants. The streets run north and south, east and west. Those running east and west are the same in name to use Sewing Machines. Terms liberal.

business parts of Shawnee and Fifth streets. Delaware street, on both sides, from Third to Fifth has nearly all dry-good stores, whilst Cherokee for the distance of a quarter of a mile on both sides of the street, is in the entire possession of Jew second-hand dealers. The stores are all substantial brick edifices, and would do credit to many an older city in the East.

The crops in this section of the country, are very promising. Corn and oats are the staple grains. Wheat looks splendidly.—The weather has been so wet of late, that on the "bottoms" the harvest will not repay the cutting; but on the high and rolling prairie, corn, oats and wheat, are all that could be desired.

The human mind is a kingdom of power or faculty, which are very different one from another, but which be made perfectly to harmonise. When they are influenced aright, they, like the instruments of a band of music, blend and enrich each other, but when they disagree, are clash, and, as with an ill-assorted orchestra, though each instrument must be good, the whole effect is discordant and detestable.

A western justice ordered a witness to 'come up and be sworn.' He was informed that the person was deaf and dumb. 'I don't care,' said the judge, passionately, 'whether he is or not—here is the constitution of the United States before me. It guarantees to every man the right of speech, and so long as I have the honor of a seat on this bench, it shall not be violated or invaded. What the constitution guarantees to a man, I'm bound he shall have.'

The earthquake waves of August last in the Pacific about which we have heard so much, writes the Athenæum, were felt in a memorable way at Samoa (Navigator's Islands). At Upola, one of the group a wave from twenty to thirty feet in height burst upon the shore at two a. m, when the natives were all asleep. It came without warning in calm weather, and the affrighted people woke to find themselves floating, with the roofs of their houses and their household gear, among the treetops. Some were lodged in the branches, others were carried on by the rush and plumped into a swamp behind the village. The alarm was great, but the loss of life was small. The first wave was followed by a second nearly equal in magnitude; after which, in time to eleven a. m. the tide rose and fell eighteen times. What a striking incident this is for the Islanders.

COTTON CROP.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—The Times' Washington despatch says the Commissioner of Agriculture is in receipt of report from North Carolina, stating that the cotton crops in that State is in a most flourishing condition, and that the yield will be the largest known in many years.

PACIFIC COLONIES.

A London letter says, a meeting was lately held in London, consisting of all the most eminent representatives of the Pacific Colonies, and presided over by one of the most eminent of Colonial Governors. At this gathering deep and general dissatisfaction was expressed, with the political and moral relations of these important and growing countries, with the parent State, and all the influential Colonists present, representing in fact all the important interests of their respective settlements, joined in the expression of a determination to require of Great Britain a new reconstitution of her Colonial Empire, which should afford them a guarantee that the interests of the various Colonies should receive due and prompt attention. In the event of this being found impractical, and the sense of the meeting was decidedly, that it would be so found, it was declared by all present that they should use all their influence with their respective settlements to leave the British allegiance and seek in some form the protection of the United States, or at all events to become in such a manner as may be decided members of the system of the great Republic. The meeting was a public, but its results are likely to be made known at an early day.

BELLIGERENT RIGHTS.

The Sun says a rumor was in circulation yesterday, in the Federal Building, Chambers street, that the United States Government would grant belligerent rights to the Cuban people in less than three days. The report is said to have come from Secretary Fish himself, in a telegram to Judge Pierpont. This sudden change in the attitude of the Secretary is attributed to the alleged refusal of the Spanish Government to favor the negotiations of Gen. Sickles, for the purchase of Cuba.

SEIZURE OF GUNBOATS.

NEW YORK, Aug 3.—Marshal Barlow, acting under the general Commission to preserve the neutrality of the United States, this morning caused the seizure of eight gunboats recently built by order of the Spanish Government, and lying at the iron works of Delamater & Co., foot of 13th street, East River, on the ground that he believed they were intended to be used against Peru. The rest of the fifteen built here having been removed to Green Point, L. I., deputies were sent there to effect a seizure. The Marshal also despatched officers to, Mystic, Conn., to seize the fifteen additional gunboats constructed and being fitted out there for Spain. It appears representations were made to the Marshal that the vessels were intended to violate the neutrality laws, and that guns would be placed on board of each before leaving for their destination. Another report says the seizure was ordered by the Washington authorities.

NEW ALBION HOTEL,

McGILL STREET,

MONTREAL, CANADA.

THE "NEW ALBION HOTEL," the largest Hotel in Montreal, has just been opened under the most favorable auspices.

Whilst the "Old Albion" has been long noted for the strict attention paid to its numerous guests, the "New Albion" takes its position as a first class Hotel, and is really, first class in every respect, except the charges, which better suit the limited requirements of the majority of travellers, than many of the so called, "first class Houses;" which deserve the title more through the amount of their charges than aught else.

Already the crowded state of the "New Albion" promises well for its future career; everything associated with its construction has been carried out with artistic taste and systematic correctness.

The large Hall, commodious office, spacious Reading room, convenient Dining, Coffee, Wash Room, etc., etc., on the ground floor; and the Reception Room and Suits of SPLENDIDLY FURNISHED and THOROUGHLY VENTILATED LADIES' PARLORS, on the second floor, will form no small luxury during the hot summer season. And, what is an exception to the general Rule in Hotels, the Bedrooms are all well ventilated and lighted, there not being a dark room in the House.

Being situated on the widest and healthiest Street in Montreal, commanding a Magnificent View of the River St. Lawrence and the Victoria Bridge on the left, and a full view of the Victoria Square with its numerous "Jets d'Eau" and Mount Royal on the right, it cannot fail to commend itself to the travelling public.

From its situation on McGill Street, the great thoroughfare and commercial centre of the City it cannot fail to be, as the "Old Albion" has always been a strong favorite with the Merchants of Canada.

Notwithstanding the very large outlay in building and furnishing the house, the old price of $1 50 per day will not be departed from.

We, therefore, bespeak for ourselves a continuance of the patronage so liberally accorded to us during the past twelve years.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

The necessity of a due proportion of iron in the blood is well known to all medical men; when it becomes reduced from any cause whatever, the whole system suffers, the weakest part being first attacked, and a feeling of languor, lassitude, and 'all gone' ness pervades the system. Stimulants only afford temporary relief, and have the same effect as giving a tired horse the whip instead of oats. The true remedy is to supply the blood with the necessary quantity of iron. This can be done by using the a protected solution of the protoxide of Iron, which is assimilated with the blood, gives strength, vigor, and new life to the whole system.

To those who are sure diseases occasioned by a deficiency of IRON IN THE BLOOD, without restoring it to the system, is like trying to repair a building when the foundation is gone.

An eminent divine says, "I have been using the PERUVIAN SYRUP for some time past; it gives me new vigor, buoyancy of spirits, and elasticity of muscle."

Pamphlets containing certificates of cures, and recommendations from some of the most eminent physicians, clergymen and others, will be sent free to any address.

The genuine has "Peruvian Syrup" blown in the glass.

After waiting a little, he opened the door and walked in, saying in an authoritative tone, 'I should like to know who is the head of this house?' 'Well, sir, said the husband and father, 'if ye sit down a wee, we may be able to tell ye, for we're just trying to settle that point.'

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Inveterate cases of scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous affections and disorders, which ravage gravated by the scrofulous contamination until they are manifestly afflicting, have been radically cured in numbers in almost every section of this country. The public scarcely need to be informed of its virtues or uses.

No complaint is more common than that of scrofula, or king's evil, which is but one of the numerous forms of this destructive disease. Even this unseen and unfelt enemy of consumption undermines the constitution, and invites the attack of enfeebling or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed infection throughout the body, and then, as if it had found the occasion, rapidly develops into one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, to their horror, they are hastily deposited in the bosom of death, or, lingers formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the occa sional terror of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla is unfelt, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Taken in season, it expels the following complaints generally and immediate relief, and, at length, cure, by the use of a few bottles :—Salt Rheum, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions be using forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Pain in the Side, Stomach, Liver, Kidneys, Bowels, and the various Ulcerous affections of the mucous and nervous system.

Syphilis or Venereal Disease and Mercurial Disease are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these obstinate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of the medicine will cure the complaint. Female Weaknesses, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute Directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis; Rheumatism, and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaint, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice. Affections arising, as they often do, from the rankling poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has this single remedy won so wide and so deep upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. For a long series of years, and among most of the races of men, it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character for purity, its perfect freedom from every of the ingredients, has enabled it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease, and to young children, it is the most effectual remedy that can be used, and can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although in Consumption, in thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed to have fully completed its work, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral on the first appearance of a cough.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish them here. Every body has tried it, or knows those who have, and knows its qualities are fully sustained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Bismuth, Zinc, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it is now in every part of the United States in the number and importance of its cures in the diseases for which it is designed, more reliable than any remedy without a parallel in the history of Ague medicine. Our pride is gratified by the acknowledgments we receive of its perfect cures of the most obstinate cases, and where other medicines had failed. Unacclimated persons, after residence in, or travelling through, miasmatic localities, will be protected by taking the AGUE CURE.

For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is a valuable stimulant, promoting the Liver to healthy activity.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly remarkable cures, where other medicines had failed.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine ever introduced is required by everybody as a cathartic now ever was by any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this. All feel the need of a purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that this is more reliable and far more effectual than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them, and those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does it does well. Every dose of it never fails through any fault or neglect of its compounder. It is always uniform in all its compositions. Hence its remarkable cures of the cases of derangement of the digestive organs, which the following complaints, but which these cases are not enumerated, we need not publish them. Every neighborhood has them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates, containing neither alcohol nor any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them always fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from the use of them in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and their disease to soundness. Cures of many apparently desperate character have been effected by them. Even where they fail to cure, they relieve, and where the disease is beyond the reach of medicine, they at least palliate the severity of the symptoms as much as possible. Sold by druggists generally throughout the world.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color and beauty, with the freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands obsolete and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of soiling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. It wanted

Blessings in Disguise.

Mine eyes were stiffened with the last night's tears,
And my brow ached too heavily to weep,
Oppreet with sorrow past and future fears.
Too weary to awake—too sad to sleep.

With listless hand I drew away the blind,
To look where lay the morning dull and gray;
I heard no whisper of the cold night wind,
I saw no gleam to chase the gloom away.

Spread like a morning veil on every hill
Hung cheerless mist, through which the dark dawn crept;
The raindrops on the trees lay cold and still,
Like tears of one who in his sleep hath wept.

Sadly I turned and laid me down again,
Till sorrow's leaden trance my sense did steal,
As those who lulled by very strength of pain,
Forget their pain while, and cease to feel.

So passed the hours away, and I awoke;
But while I slept the world had travelled on —The damp mist rolled away, the morning broke;
And, pouring radiance forth, uprose the sun.

The purple hills were tinged with living light,
The grass was waving in the morning breeze
Like sparkling gems the rain-drops of the night
In rainbow showers were glittering from the trees.

Then my heart melted too, and the deep gloom
Passed like the dreary morning mist away;
The sun shone warm and bright into my room,
And I rose up from my dull trance to pray.

O God, most merciful! 'tis ever so;
While thankless man feels but the present pain,
And lies stooping in the weariness of woe,
Thy step is drawing near to heal again.

Then teach us, Lord, to bow beneath the rod,
Even for the chastisement to love thee more;
To trust the mercy of the loving God,
And in the very blow His hand adore.

So shall we walk through our life's chequered day,
Safe from its noontide heat, its evening blight,
Till the last hour of gloom shall pass away,
And leave us to awake in sinless light.

Consummation of Species.

From the Providence Journal.

A single fact has at length been discovered, perhaps it would be safer to say conjectured, which seems to lend direct support to the Darwinian theory of progress by natural selection. It has been easy for theorists to imagine that any species of animals might take new organs to perform new functions; but they could find no facts to prove the theory. All the connecting links between different species seemed to be lost in the process of transmutation, and none of them could be found even among fossil strata. Mr. Darwin can conjecture that a bear, by swimming with open mouth after flies, may be transmuted gradually into a whale, but no one has ever seen the case in progress, or any intermediate stage of it. The Darwinians have been troubled that nature is careless in preserving proofs of the changes she is working, and the methods by which she effects them.

But Mr. R. A. Wallace, an ardent disciple of Mr. Darwin, thinks he has found one of the missing links, as a type of many others. He has discovered in the Island of Borneo a frog, fitted for flying like a flying squirrel. It is a tree frog, about four inches long with web toes, and forelegs bordered by a membrane. The webs of the hind feet when fully expanded cover a surface of four square inches each, and those of the fore feet two square inches. A Chinese workman told Mr. Wallace he saw this frog fly down in a slanting direction from a high tree and the webbed toes looked as if they might serve as a sort o wings. So Mr. Wallace infers that here is one of the links of transition from batrachian to bird.

There are two flaws in the proof unfortunately, Mr. Wallace did not see the frog fly nor did any scientific observer. A Chinese labourer claimed to have seen him, but as Falstaff says, "How this world is given to lying," and Chinamen are not inflexible in adhering to truth. Another difficulty is that the web feet are exactly suited for swimming, but are not so well adapted for flying. If nature wishes to develope wings she would be more likely to start them at the sides, where they would be of service, than on the toes, where they help locomotion in the water rather than in the air. So Mr. Wallace may think he has made a discovery, but others less sanguine will say it only a conjecture.

A Beautiful Flower.

In a letter from Louisiana we read:—In front of this plantation on the bayou are numbers of a plant called Spanish dagger, belonging to the cactus tribe, and green all the year round. I noticed its novel and green appearance when we first arrived in this rainbow showers were glittering from the trees. Then my heart melted too, and the deep gloom Passed like the dreary morning mist away; The sun shone warm and bright into my room, And I rose up from my dull trance to pray. O God, most merciful! 'tis ever so; While thankless man feels but the present pain, And lies stooping in the weariness of woe, Thy step is drawing near to heal again. Then teach us, Lord, to bow beneath the rod, Even for the chastisement to love thee more; To trust the mercy of the loving God, And in the very blow His hand adore. He has discovered in the Island of Borneo a frog, fitted for flying like a flying squirrel. It is a tree frog, about four inches long with web toes, and forelegs bordered by a membrane. The webs of the hind feet when fully expanded cover a surface of four square inches each, and those of the fore feet two square inches. A Chinese workman told Mr. Wallace he saw this frog fly down in a slanting direction from a high tree and the webbed toes looked as if they might serve as a sort o wings. So Mr. Wallace infers that here is one of the links of transition from batrachian to bird. There are two flaws in the proof unfortunately, Mr. Wallace did not see the frog fly nor did any scientific observer. A Chinese labourer claimed to have seen him, but as Falstaff says, "How this world is given to lying," and Chinamen are not inflexible in adhering to truth. Another difficulty is that the web feet are exactly suited for swimming, but are not so well adapted for flying. If nature wishes to develope wings she would be more likely to start them at the sides, where they would be of service, than on the toes, where they help locomotion in the water rather than in the air. So Mr. Wallace may think he has made a discovery, but others less sanguine will say it only a conjecture.

The Crunch in Harvest.

The weather at this writing is magnificent for harvesting. Reapers and mowers rattle in every direction, and the hill-sides teem with busy binders. The weather is not too hot, and yet it is dry. It was feared that the torrents of rain which drenched the ground in the early part of the week would work incalculable damage to the crops, much of which was cut but unhoused. Had the rain been succeeded by hot, sultry weather, half the yield might have been destroyed by rust. But fortunately the air yesterday was cool, with a searching and drying wind. So the danger for the present is over. We now need nothing but a few fine days. How dependent is the husbandman upon the elements!

If a kind Providence permits the enormous and unprecedented crops now clothing hill and dale to be safely garnered, a time of great prosperity must result. No matter what the prices, bountiful harvests bring general content and prosperity—Political changes are not needed. Everything looks famously, with the solitary exception of turnips, of Indian corn, which is not a Canadian staple—certainly not a staple of the London district. Truly we have reason to rejoice in our country, and to be thankful to the great Giver of golden harvests.—London Advertiser.

The greatest depth to which a diver can descend is about 160 feet, and for this a bunch of hundred weights must be disposed about his person. The average depth at which he can work comfortably is about 90 feet, which was near the depth at which the operations upon the Royal George were conducted. In the water from 60 to 70 feet deep the men can work two hours at a time coming up for a ten minutes' rest, and doing a day's work of six or seven hours. An English diver went down in the Mediterranean to a depth of 165 feet, and remained there for 25 minutes; and Green inspected a wreck in one of the great lakes, at a depth of 175 feet; but his experience was enough to convince him that he could not work on it without danger of life. At this depth the pressure of the water on the hands is so great as to force the blood to the head and bring on fainting fits, while the requisite volume of air inside the dress to resist the outward pressure of the water is so great that it would speedily suffocate.

Paper as a Material for Clothing.—The Japanese paper handkerchiefs are assuredly coming, if the Globe be right. The paper collar manufacture has now been extended to less prominent but more important garments of great strength and flexibility which can be sewn with machine, giving seams almost as strong as a woven fabric! The inventor has particularly applied it to the production of petticoats, which are either printed in imitation of the fashionable skirts of the day, or stamped out with open work of such beauty and delicacy as no amount of labour with scissors and needle imitate. The marvel is that these really beautiful productions can be sold retail at 6d. each! Imitation crotonese and chintzes for bed furniture are also made, a set costing retail about 5s. The felted material is so flexible that a curtain may be twisted into a rope and shaken out again, showing as little creasing as a chintz similarly treated." There are also table cloths embossed with designs of great beauty. This felted paper may in the end have a serious influence on the production of the woven fabrics it is intended to displace. Imitation leather, impermeable to water, is likewise made of it, and produces a cheap and useful covering for furniture and even for shoes.

BELLEVILLE, THUSSDAY, AUG. 5.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.—It is said that the Legislative Assembly of Ontario will meet in time sufficient to enable the Session to be prorogued just before the Christmas holidays.

THE AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST for August is a capital number. Its various departments are replete with valuable hints and information, the illustrations adding greatly to the interest of the article. Published by Orange Judd & Co., at $1 50 a year.

THE ST. GEORGE'S EXCURSION TO PORTLAND.—We are given to understand that the St. George's Society have arranged for a sleeping car to run through from Belleville to Portland, for the special use of excursionists, also that parties desirous of breaking the journey have the privilege of stopping over at Montreal, Island Point, and Gorham for the White Mountains.

THE CHURCHMAN'S MAGAZINE.—The second number of this Monthly published by T. & R. White, Hamilton, has been received. It is in every respect fully equal to the first number, and is well worthy a place in the household of every friend of the church. An able staff of writers, we observe, has been engaged to contribute to its pages, and already articles have appeared from the pens of some distinguished Canadians. It should receive a most extended and warm support.

ICE.—An exchange says: The curative and relieving powers of ice are found more valuable year after year. Small lumps of ice swallowed whole will often check acute stomach inflammations, and will prevent nausea if heat is applied outside at the same time.—Pounded ice, applied to the spine is said to cure sea-sickness. A bit of ice will help diptheria and all throat compiaints. To become delightfully cool in summer, apply ice wrapped in paper, to the back of the head for one moment.

SHEEP KILLED.—We learn that some vicious dogs have been making great havoc with sheep in the township of Sidney during the last few days. Mr. A. Thompson, of the 2nd concession, had three killed. Mr. Barry lost three; Mr. McCoy had two killed; and last night Mr. Simmons of the Front of Sidney lost several. Mr. Thompson caught a large Newfoundland dog at his sheep and shot him. All these sheep-killing dogs should be served the same way.

COUNTERFEIT.—Another dangerous counterfeit is out, executed in a clever manner. The London Free Press says it is a counterfeit upon the one dollar bill of the Bank of Commerce to represent a ten dollar note. In the genuine ten dollar bill the ten is placed in figures, thus, 10, the numerals being at the top right hand and the bottom left hand corners. But in the forgery the ten is represented by an X at each corner. It is necessary to bear in mind, therefore, that in the genuine ten dollar the denomination is signified in the numerals 10—that in the counterfeit by X. There are several other minor differences observable to the experienced eye; but the one pointed out can be detected by any person. The forgery in question has been executed on a note bearing date Toronto, May 1, 1867, but counterstamped in blue ink for London. Look out for Commerce tens!

FIREMEN'S EXCURSION.—The Excursion of the Firemen of Belleville to Picton yesterday, was one of the most successful excursions that ever left this town; between 400 and 500 persons being on board the steamer Bay of Quinte when she left this port. The morning was fine, and everyone thought that they were going to have a beautiful day, but before the boat had reached Picton the weather changed and the rain began to fall and continued throughout the day, thereby marring the pleasure that all had anticipated enjoying. The boat arrived in Picton at 11 a. m. The Belleville Firemen were met at the wharf by the Picton Firemen, and were escorted by them to the Town Hall, where, owing to the rain, they were dismissed until one o'clock at which hour they again assembled and marched in procession to the wharf to receive the Fire Brigade of Kingston, who were to arrive on the steamer Watertown. After the Firemen from Kingston had disembarked they all formed in procession and marched through the town, the Kingston men headed by the Royal Canadian Rifle Band, and the Belleville and Picton men by their respective Bands. The different companies presented a fine appearance, but the two Companies from Belleville bore off the palm for cleanliness, discipline, and all that goes to make up a first-class Fire Brigade; it being the general remark that a finer body of men were never before seen in Picton, and that Belleville should feel proud of their Firemen. It was the intention to have gone to the "Lover's Walk," and spend the day in that beautiful retreat, but the fates willed it otherwise, and the next best thing to be done was to engage the halls in the town, which were soon brought into requisition. The Town Hall, Conger's Hall and the Gymnasium, were at once thrown open and were soon filled, where dancing was kept up with great spirit until the hour for departure had arrived. Great credit is due to the Firemen of Picton for the manner in which they exerted themselves to make their visitors comfortable.

Father McMahon Again.

The Kingston Whig denies the statement which appeared in the Intelligencer relative to the released Fenian McMahon having passed west on Saturday last. Whether his denial is correct or not we cannot say. We have every confidence, however, in the gentleman who furnished us with the information; and until we have better authority than the Whig's denial, we will be inclined to believe in the accuracy of the statement as furnished us.

Whether Father McMahon passed west on Saturday or not is a matter of little consequence, and in no way influences the force of our remarks which the Whig seems to be so much annoyed about. The facts of this case are too well known to require repetition. McMahon came into Canada armed, with hostile intention; the country was put to great expense; many of our young men were killed and wounded.—McMahon with others was found guilty of treason felony; he was sentenced to a long term of imprisonment; but recently, because, forsooth, he was a clergyman, the prison doors were thrown open; and again he breathes the pure air of liberty. That he should be idolized by men whose position in the church should make them frown upon him in consequence of his crime, appears strange indeed. But already enough has been said on this point.

The Whig learns that Father McMahon has been offered a parish in Canada, and has not yet decided not to accept it. We think the sooner he does so the better, for by so doing he would display an amount of sound sense not evidently possessed by his reverend admirers. Such an appointment would, to say the least of it, be an insult to the entire community, and would speak little for the discretion of the prelate who would make it, and would in no way be creditable to the loyalty and patriotism of the people who would accept such a man as their pastor.

Mr. White's Mission.

Late papers from England bring us accounts of the visit of Mr. White, Emigration Agent, which show that he is doing good service in the "Emerald Isle" in making known the claims of Canada, and especially of Ontario, as a field for emigration. In addition to lecturing in Derry, where all the papers gave full reports of the lecture, he has addressed letters to papers in Belfast, Armagh, Mullinger, Dublin, Clommel, Waterford, &c., in all of which the recent action of the Local Government and Legislature on the subject of emigration is fully explained. Being in Ireland during the period of the July Anniversaries, it was not considered advisable to hold meetings, but the letters to the newspapers are in many respects more efficacious than lectures. Mr. White was on his way to the Northern Counties of England at last accounts.

While referring to the emigration question we may mention the fact that there arrived at Quebec, by the Austrian, 164 emigrants, assisted by the Hon. Mrs. Hobart's Committee, and 25 from Rev. Mr. Herring's Committee. They are all good people, and will make excellent settlers.—On the following Thursday, the 29th ult., 256 emigrants were to sail by the Midway, from London, assisted by the British and Colonial Emigration Fund.

Irish Protestant Benevolent Society of the County of Hastings.

At the regular monthly meeting of this Society, held in the Town Hall on Tuesday evening, Aug. 2nd, the following officers were unanimously elected for the year 1869-70, viz.:

PRESIDENT—P. McAnnany, Esq.
1st VICE PRESIDENT—Mr. Jas. Macoun.
2nd VICE PRESIDENT—Dr. Stewart.
TREASURER—Mr. W. H. Scholes.
RECORDING SECRETARY—Mr. R. S. T. Galbraith.
ASSISTANT SECRETARY—Mr. Charters.
CORRESPONDENT SECRETARY—Mr. E. Harrison, Jr.
CHAPLAIN—Rev. John Grier, A. B.
ASSISTANT CHAPLAIN—Rev. Arthur H. Baldwin, A. B.
PHYSICIANS—Drs. Stewart and Potts.
COUNCIL.—Messrs. T. Kelso, E. M. Shillington, John Harrison, A. R. Dougall, John Macoun, W. Johnston, J. G. Moore, J. T. McCreary, and Geo. Gibson.
AUDITORS—Thomas Kelso, Esq., and H. Gillespie.

This Society has been instituted to advance the welfare of Irish Protestants in Canada, to afford advice, information and assistance to those emigrating hither, to promote their settlement within the Province, to protect their widows and orphans, and to afford pecuniary aid to those in need.

The Fenian Movement.

The New York Times is eager to assure its Canadian readers that there is nothing to be apprehended from the current predictions of further Fenian raids. This effort at consolation may be well meant,—We have no doubt it is. But on matters relating to Fenianism there are so many better authorities than the journal named—authorities that entirely disagree with it—that we do not set much high store by its consoling assurances as we might otherwise do. Our own advices, which come from tolerably authentic sources, seem to confirm the common rumors as to the Fenian movements—with this difference, that some portion of the New Brunswick or Nova Scotian frontier, and not Ontario, is their intended objective point. There is no cause for any wild alarm; but it cannot be too strongly urged that our volunteers should be fully prepared for any contingency.—Toronto Telegraph.

—The Kingston Regatta takes place on the 19th inst.
—Toronto beat Cobourg at Cricket, yesterday, by 13 runs.
—The Year Book for 1870 will shortly be issued. It is an invaluable publication.
—300 unlicensed dogs were killed in Montreal from the 14th to the 29th of July.
—The Virginia Penitentiary has 641 convicts, three-fourths of whom are colored.
—The Indian maids do not like the new Quaker agents. They are too stiff.
—Wild pigeons are unusually numerous this year.
—An observer at a watering place sadly declares that beauty never bathes.
—Hunter, who shot his wife the other day at Brantford, escaped from the constables yesterday.
—Passengers by the Pacific railroad stopping at Sherman station are warned to look out for bears.
—£430,564 was remitted in 1868 by settlers in Canada to their friends in the United Kingdom.
—It is said Reifenstein is willing to return to stand his trial in September. Rather doubtful.
—At the trotting races in Buffalo, next week, the prizes amount to $25,000. The largest prize is $10,000; the smallest $500.
—It is said that there is good foundation for the report that the Empress Eugenie will visit America next year.
—Mr. Bob Heart recently delighted the people of Omaha by sailing on the skating park lake in a tub drawn by six ganders.—He was upset during the voyage.
—The old town of Niagara is rapidly improving. It is becoming a favorite watering-place resort, and property is greatly increasing in value.
—"Colonel" Ryan, late of the "Cuban Cavalry," now at Niagara, says that the story that a body of Cuban volunteers were about to make their way to the Canadian frontier is without the least foundation.
—The Corn Exchange Association of Toronto asks for tenders from the three daily newspapers for its reports. A most extraordinary proposition. We trust the Toronto press will refuse to tender.
—A few days since, the wife of a respectable and well-to-do citizen of Toronto eloped with a young man and went to Detroit. The husband followed—met them on the street—gave the young man a severe drubbing, and begged his wife to return home. She declined, and a few days after the wife and her paramour were again in Toronto. Further developments are expected.

What Does it Mean?

(To the Editor of the Leader.)

SIR,—On Saturday last a party was seen in the township of Tyendinaga, county of Hastings, painting upon trees on the road side the enclosed figure in black and red colors. The party consisted of a man and boy in a one-horse spring waggon, with a ladder, paints and brushes. The copy which I enclose represents the original.—Whatever might be its significance I thought it of sufficient importance to send it to you.

Yours very sincerely,
A. RUTTAN, M. D.

HOW TO COLLECT AN OLD DEBT.—The Hamilton Spectator tells how an old debt was collected in that city: "A certain hotel keeper in town, the other night hit upon an effectual plan for collecting old debts. For the past six months a former boarder although in a good lucrative situation had refused to settle an old board bill of $15. The bill, properly made out, offered for sale cheap and passed in the hotel window, brought the former boarder to terms at once and the bill was paid."

—The Governor of Jamaica has published a statement containing some startling disclosures as to the working of the coolie system in that island. On some estates the mortality among the immigrants arrived during the last eighteen months has been 15 per cent., and on one estate the mortality has been as much as 50 per cent. The weekly earnings of a considerable portion of the coolies indentured on many estates have been so small as to be insufficient to afford food enough to maintain a working man in health, far less to afford means of supplying any other wants. The weekly earnings of a coolie have been found to be as low as 25 cents, and in many cases they have been found to be less than 75 cents.

—A melancholy little incident is related of the ex-Empress Charlotte. This unfortunate Princess has been staying for some time at Spain. The other day she insisted with such vehemence on playing at roulette that it was impossible to restrain her. On approaching the table she deliberately placed a gold piece on the number 19. The Emperor Maximilian was shot on June 19. The wheel turned, and, though 37 chances were against her, she won. She smiled sadly, took up the money, and quietly left the room. On her way out a poor man passed by. She gave him all the money, with injunction that he was to "pray for him." It is known that the Empress Charlotte never pronounces the name of Maximilian.

Eccentric Will.

The following is the will of the late Dr. Dunlop, better known as Tiger Dunlop, and at one time a member of the Legislature for Upper Canada:—

In the name of God. Amen.

I, William Dunlop, of Gairbread, in the township of Colborne, county of Huron, Western Canada, Esquire, being in sound health of body and mind, which, my friends who do not flatter me say is no great shakes at this best of times, do make my last will and testament as follows, revoking, of course, all former wills. I leave the property of Gairbread and all other property I may be possessed of to my sisters, Helen Boyle Story and Elizabeth Boyle Dunlop, the former because she is married to a minister who —may God help him—she henpecks; the latter because she is married to nobody, nor is she likely to be, for she is an old maid and not market rife. And also I leave to them and their heirs my share of the stock and implements on the farm, providing always that the enclosure around my brother's grave be reserved, and if either of them should die without issue, the other is to inherit the whole. I leave to my sister-in-law, Louisa Dunlop, all my share of the household furniture and such traps, with the exceptions hereafter mentioned.

I leave my silver tankard to the oldest son of old John, as the representative of the family. I would like to give it to old John himself, but he would have melted it down to make temperance medals, and that would have been a sacrilege. However, I leave him my big horn snuff-box—he can only make temperance horn spoons out of that.

I leave my sister Jenny my Bible, the property formerly of my great-great-grandmother Betsey Hamilton, of Woodhall, and when she knows as much of the spirit as she does of the letter, she will be a much better Christian than she is.

I leave my late brother's watch to my brother Sandy, exhorting him at the same time to give up whiggery and radicalism, and all other sins that do most easily beset him.

I leave my brother-in-law, Allan, my punch bowl, as he is a big gaucy man, and likely to do credit to it.

I leave to Parson Chevassie my big silver snuff-box I got from the Simcoe Militia, as a small token of my gratitude to him for taking my sister Maggie, whom no man of taste would have taken.

I leave to John Caddell a silver tea-pot, to the end that he may drink tea therefrom to comfort him under the affliction of a slatterply wife.

I leave my books to my brother Andrew because he has been jingly wally, that he may yet learn to read with them.

I leave my silver cup, with the sovereign in the bottom of it, to my sister Jane Graham Dunlop, because she is an old maid and pious, and therefore necessarily given too horning; and also my grandmother's snuff box, as it looks decent to see an old maid taking snuff.

I do hereby appoint, &c.

WILLIAM DUNLOP,
Huron County, C. W.

Wife! why in the name of goodness did you not make the washerwoman put starch in my shirt collar?'—'Why, my dear,' said the wife, 'I thought it a useful waste of article, for I can get your choler up so easily without it.'

A man who is full of vanity and egotism is certainly the happiest mortal in existence. He labors under the delusion that everybody is envying his superior abilities, when, on the contrary, he is the laughing-stock of sensible people. He is like the man in the balloon—everybody looks little to him, and he looks little to everybody.

—A young specimen of the Berardius arnuxi has been cast ashore on the coast of Canterbury, New Zealand. It was thirty feet long. The skeleton has been prepared, which shows that it is a young animal, as not a single epiphysis is anchylosed. The cervical vertebræ, which in the old animal evidently form a compact mass, are still partially free. The first three vertebræ including the alas, are anchylosed, and of them the first two completely; and in the second and third the neural arches are as yet not completely united into one bone. It has ten ribs, and only one of the pelvis-bones was lost in the preparation. It is only the second example of this typhous whale that has been observed.

TEMPERATURE OF THE EARTH'S CRUST.—As we descend, remarks the Scientific Review in a mine the increase of temperature appears to be independent of the altitude of the place or of the density of the air, as proved by the observations of Humboldt. Thus, in a silver-mine in the Andes of Peru, at an elevation of 11,875 English feet above the sea, the temperature was found to be 235·9 Fahr. higher than the external air. In another mine, at the same elevation, the difference between the temperature of the internal and external air was found to be 15·8·9 Fahr. and the water streaming down the rock showed 52·2·9 Fahr. These observations were repeated in other localities with similar results. The concurrent testimony, therefore, of all the observations which have been made is in favor of an increase of temperature, though at rates varying considerably from one another, and this has been established as holding good down to a depth of about 2,400 feet from the surface. What seems to us now to be required is a series of experiments made at even greater depths.

Business Notice.

Not many weeks ago a rich but childless landed proprietor breathed his last, leaving a large circle of relations to mourn his loss, and squable over their prospects of sharing his wealth. The day for reading the will at last came; the room was crowded with anxious expectants; the will was opened and to the inexpressible joy of all, the rich gentleman's relations found that to each of them had been bequeathed a case of Royal Italian Bitters.

Dissolution of Partnership.

TAKE Notice that the Partnership formerly existing between Samuel May and James L. Davis, in Belleville, under the style of May & Davis, as Billiard Saloon keepers, has been dissolved by mutual consent; Davis to pay all debts of the late firm and to receive payment of all accounts due them. Business to be continued by James L. Davis.

Lackawanna Coal Agency.

HAVING on hand 200 tons Lackawanna Coal, Chestnut size, for Stoves, which the subscriber wishes to remove immediately from the Gas Works, he will take orders if sent in before the 10th instant, at $8.50 per ton at the yard, or $8.75 per ton delivered, although, as most people are probably well aware, Stove Coal is now worth at least $10, with the prospect of being still higher.

Persons intending to burn Coal and having the self-feeding Stove will do well to lay in their winter supply.

Terms—Bankable Funds, PAYABLE WHEN THE COAL IS ORDERED

It is well known that the present high price of Coal has been produced by the Miners' strike. Work in the mines has been suspended for three and a half months, and a letter just received from one of the Companies states: "Our Miners still hold out, refusing to work, and our stock of Coal is rapidly melting away, so that we shall soon be entirely without Coal."

CARLIST MOVEMENT.

It is reported that formidable uprisings of Carlists have occurred at Lartassa and Tervel.

Several bands of Carlists in different parts of the country have been defeated and scattered within the past day or two.

HOUSE OF COMMONS—THE SAN JUAN BOUNDARY NEGOTIATIONS.

Viscount Milton asked if the Government could inform the House what progress had been made in the San Juan Boundary Negotiations, and what the expense of holding possession of the island had been?

Mr. Otway replied that as differences still existed with the United States on the question, Her Majesty's Government was unable to furnish any information or lay any correspondence on the table. The Government of 1860 had submitted to the House what information it thought fit. If Lord Milton was able to add anything to that, the Government would be glad to hear from him.—It was impossible, at such short notice, to say what the cost of the occupation of the island amounted to.

ENGLISH PRISONERS IN PARAGUAY.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—In the House of Commons, to-day, Mr. Otway, Under Secretary of Foreign Affairs, said the agents of the British Government were making every effort to obtain access to Englishmen now held captive in Paraguay. The last intelligence received in regard to them was furnished by two American naval officers, and was to the effect that they were all well, but still restrained of their liberty by command of Lopez.

The number of volunteers in the Island is 30,000.

WHAT THE REFORMERS ARE.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—The Herald's London special says: The Senators consultum is rapidly winning favor in France. It concedes three cardinal points. First, the legislature will have power to elect its own officers and govern itself. Second, it will have a right to initiate laws. Third, it will have the power to control France.

It will be thus seen that the sovereign power is divided between the executive, the legislature and the people.

NEW ALBION HOTEL,

McGILL STREET,
MONTREAL, CANADA.

THE "NEW ALBION HOTEL," the largest Hotel in Montreal, has just been opened under the most favorable auspices.

Whilst the "Old Albion" has been long noted for the strict attention paid to its numerous guests, the "New Albion" takes the position as a first class Hotel, and is really first class in every respect, except the charges, which better suit the ideas and requirements of the majority of travellers, than many of the so called, "first class Houses;" which deserve the title more through the amount of their charges than aught else.

Already the crowded state of the "New Albion" promises well for its future career; everything associated with its construction has been carried out with artistic taste and systematic correctness.

The large Hall, commodious office, spacious Reading room, convenient Dining, Coffee, Wash Room, etc., etc., on the ground floor; and the Reception Room and Suite of SPLENDIDLY FURNISHED and THOROUGHLY VENTILATED LADIES' PARLORS, on the second floor, will form no small luxury during the hot summer season. And, what is an exception to the general Rule in Hotels, the Bedrooms are all well ventilated and lighted, there not being a dark room in the House.

Being situated on the widest and healthiest Street in Montreal, commanding a Magnificent View of the River St. Lawrence and the Victoria Bridge on the left, and a full view of the Victoria Square with its numerous "Jets d'Eau" and Mount Royal on the right, it cannot fail to commend itself to the travelling public.

From its situation on McGill Street, it is the great thoroughfare and commercial centre of the City it cannot fail to be, as the "Old Albion" has long been a strong favorite with the Ladies' Suite of Canada.

Notwithstanding the very large outlay in building and furnishing the house, the old price of $1 50 per day will not be departed from.

We, therefore, bespeak for ourselves a continuance of the patronage so liberally accorded to us during the past twelve years.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry.

Where this article is known it is a work of supererogation to say one word in its favor, so well is it established as an unfailing remedy for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Asthma, Diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs, as well as that most dreaded of all diseases, Consumption, which high medical authority has pronounced to be an incurable disease. Those who have used this remedy know its value; those who have not, have but to make a single trial to be satisfied that of all others it is THE REMEDY.

THE REV. JACOB SECHLER,

well known and much respected among the German population of this country, writes as follows:

HANOVER, Pa., Feb. 16, 1859.

Messrs. S. W. Fowle & Son, Boston.

DEAR SIRS:—Having realized in my family important benefits from the use of your valuable preparation—Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry—it affords me pleasure to recommend it to the public. Some eight years ago, one of my daughters appeared to be in a decline, and little hopes of her recovery were entertained. I then procured a bottle of your excellent Balsam, and before I had used the whole of it there was a great improvement in her health. I have, in my individual case, made frequent use of your valuable medicine, and have always been benefitted by it. I would, however, caution the public against all imposition, because there is a good deal of spurious 'Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry' afloat throughout the country.

Grace's Celebrated Salve.

From Mr. JAMES CURLIS, of AMESBURY, MASS.

"I was afflicted with a severe felon on one of my fingers, and tried many remedies without relief. My friends induced me to apply your Salve. In two days it extracted the inflammation from my finger so as to enable me to resume my work. I can almost say that the Salve worked like magic, for it effected a cure without leaving a scar. I unhesitatingly proclaim 'Grace's Salve' an excellent remedy, and do not doubt it will be appreciated throughout the land." 25

Ye're here again! ye lang-legg'd deevil—
Ye bizzin', bummin', imp o' evil—
Haud ye'r buzz'd gab, and cantin' sneevil,
Or 'gainst the wa'
I'll plaster ye, if ye're no ceevil,
And stop ye'r jaw.

What brings ye here, I'd like to ken,
To bite and pester honest men—
To gar them think their latter en'
Is drawin' near,
And scart and claw like some auld hen,
And curse and swear.

Gae, tak that music o' the deil,
And serenade some ither chiel—
Some tough-skinned wretch that canna' feel
Ye'r cursed claws,
Or sinner, that has fatten'd weel
On broken laws.

Gang ower the road and ring the bell,
Ye'll find a rascal like ye'rsel—
A politician—jag him well,
And sting him sair—
He's sic a backbiter himsel',
Ye'll ne'er bite mair.

Wheest, there's an auld maid doun the street—
Ye'll find her tough, but guid to eat—
Ye'll easy ken her when ye meet—
She's o' your trade;
O' tea and scandal, strong and sweet,
Her bluid is made.

Just tak' a pattern by the flea,
That has it's bite, then waits a wee,
Afore he wets his ither e'e,
Or loups about;
And, puir thing, 's aye prepared to dee,
When he's fand out.

Or else the decent, sonsie bug,
Wha keeps himsel' sae douce and snug,
And 's no aye roarin in ye'r lug
His blastit airs,
But just lies doun like ony dog,
And says his prayers.

But you, ye grinnin', sneakin' braggart,
Ye greedy, ill-faurt, bizzin blackguard,
Wi' body skinny, lank and haggard,
And bluidy fang,
For a' ye'r boastin', blowin' swagger,
I'll stop ye'r sang.

So dinna fash yoursel' to stay,
And waste ye'r time wi' me the day—

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys, is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Inveterate cases of Scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous affections and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulous contamination until they were painfully afflicting, have been radically cured in such great numbers in almost every section of the country, that the public scarcely need to be informed of its virtues or uses.

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this unseen and unfelt tenant of the organism undermines the constitution, and invites the attack of enfeebling or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed infection throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develop into one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the occasional use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla is advisable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, at length, cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions or visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Fits, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various Ulcerous affections of the muscular and nervous systems.

Syphilis or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these obstinate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Leucorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute Directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when arising, as they often do, from the rankling poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are Languid and Listless, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the affections symptomatic of Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, or do more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Bismuth, Zinc, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it in nowise injures any patient. The number and importance of its cures in the ague districts, are literally beyond account, and we believe without a parallel in the history of Ague medicine. Our pride is gratified by the acknowledgments we receive of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases; and where other remedies had wholly failed.

Unacclimated persons, either resident in, or travelling through miasmatic localities, will be protected by taking the AGUE CURE daily.

For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy activity.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly remarkable cures, where other medicines had failed.

Prepared by DR. J. C. AYER & CO., Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass., and sold all round the world.

QUERY?

Should we employ the noble doctors to bring us our tea and coffee in bottles, at an expense of at least four times what they now cost?

If not, why should we longer adopt that system in reference to medicines which are the simple extracts of herbs or plants and roots, and are as readily prepared as tea and coffee?

Each package of Dr. Thompson's Botanic Medicines contains more medical properties than can be procured in any other form for four times the amount of money.

We have in our possession numerous testimonials as to the practicability of, as well as the benefits derived from the use of Dr. Thompson's Botanic Medicines, viz:

Dr. Thompson's Blood Purifier

Cures all diseases arising from an impure state of the blood, such as salt-rheum, scrofula, king's evil, white swellings, tendency to boils, old sores, pimples or roughness of the skin. It regulates the stomach and bowels; it tones the liver, and promotes the general vigor of the system, without reducing the strength of the patient. Sold at 50 cents per package.

DR. THOMPSON'S
Stomachic Bitters.

A certain and speedy cure for Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, and Indigestion. For costiveness it has no equal; it is a mild and safe invigorant and corroberant for delicate persons; a good alterative tonic for ordinary family purposes; a powerful recuperant after the frame has been reduced by sickness; an excellent as well as an agreeable and wholesome stimulant, for general debility, and diseases having their origin in an imperfect digestion or a deranged state of the stomach. Sold at 25 cents per package.

Dr. Thompson's No. 6.
OR COMPOSITION POWDERS

It is used with success for diseases caused by colds, such as cold chills, chills and fever, headache, pains in the joints or limbs, neuralgia, rheumatic pains—in fact it may properly be called PAIN KILLER, as it may be used for all purposes for which Pain Killers or Reliefs are used, such as cramps in the stomach, colic, diarrhœa, dysentery, summer complaints, cholera morbus, female complaints or obstructions. It may also be used with great success as a Liniment. Sold at 20 cents per package.

The proprietor has been induced to adopt the present condensed style of putting up the medicine in packages, as he is thereby enabled to supply double the amount of medicine for one-half the regular price of similar preparations.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

Ayer's
Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Vol. 3. BELLEVILLE, COUNTY OF HASTINGS, DOMINION OF CANADA, FRIDAY EVENING, AUGUST 6, 1869. No. 82.

Kilauea—The Sandwich Island Volcano.

About a year ago, at the time of the great earthquake and eruption on Hawaii, action in the old crater suddenly ceased.—Simultaneous with the tremendous shock of April 2, 1867, which shook the whole archipelago, from Kau to Niihau, the internal fire ceased to burn, and the bottom of the crater subsided from three to five hundred feet below its level. It seemed as if the lava had suddenly drawn off, as was doubtless the case, leaving the floor of the crater caved in. Had it not been held together by its great thickness and lateral strength, no one can tell where it might have fallen to, and no traces of fire have been seen until lately, except in the "old South Lake," which seems to be a funnel leading from the deep internal fires. Travellers who have lately visited the crater assure us that the old South Lake is growing in size and activity. It increases its area, not from overflow, but by the caving in of the surrounding rim. At times immense portions of the adjacent old and hard lava cave in and are swallowed up in the boiling lava of the fiery chaldron. In this way the active lake has increased from 200 or 300 feet to over 1,500 in diameter, and is still extending. Some think that it may continue to enlarge its borders till it engulfs the greater part of Kilauea. From this it will be seen that the crater is undergoing a great change, and that the internal fires are becoming more active, though it may be years before they acquire the force necessary to produce another eruption. Its present condition is very similar to what old residents represent it to have been in 1830 or thereabouts. Not only in this steady increase of activity going on now in Kilauea, but occasionally jects of lava are thrown up out of the old south lake to such a hight as to attract the attention of natives living near or passing by at some distance from the crater. The southern part of Hawaii, from Hilo to Kau, is still subject to earthquake shocks, and scarcely a week passes without one. These are not sufficiently severe, however to cause any damage. But their existence creates a doubt as to the late eruption having been so thorough as those of former years, in pacifying the rebellious elements at work under Mauna Loa. Those who have visited Kilauea in former years will readily observe the great changes in the depression of the floor of the crater, as well as the comparative activity of the molten lava; while a stranger might not noticeany thing peculiar, and perhaps be even disappointed in not finding the display such as his imagination had pictured. Compared with the occasions of great eruption, Kilauea is still quite dormant; and yet the changes we have noted will interest all who have ever visited this great outlet of the internal fires.

Koopmanschaps.

Who He Is, What He has Done, and What He Proposes to Do.

Cornelius Koopmanschap was born in Amsterdam, Holland. He came to this country in 1851, landing at this port and proceeding almost directly to San Francisco, where just at that time there were some excellent openings for business men. He immediately established the house of Koopmanschap & Co., which was at first engaged in importing flour and other provisions. In 1855 the firm went into the China business, establishing a line of clipper ships and carrying freight and passengers between the two countries.

It was in 1861 that the firm commenced the business of bringing over coolie laborers to San Francisco. Within the eight years ensuing they have landed over 30,000 Chinese immigrants in San Francisco. Most of these are still in this country, though some have returned to their native land. It is the importation of these coolies in the past and the proposed transportation immediately of hundreds of thousands more to our shores to supply the demand for everywhere, and in every industrial department, and especially to cultivate the neglected plantations of the South, that have made the name of Koopmanschap famous in the land.

Mr. Koopmanschap yesterday received our reporter at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, and talked freely with him with regard to the enterprise in which he is engaged. His statements concerning this interesting topic stripped of all colloquial superfluities, were substantially as follows:

It is proposed to supply without delay to all employers in this country who need them, but more immediately to Southern planters, all the coolies that they may want, upon the condition that they pay these laborers from $8 to $12 per month, besides supplying them with board and lodging. At home the coolies receive but $4 per month and "find" themselves; so that Mr. Koopmanschap finds no difficulty in inducing them to emigrate. It will cost $100 apiece for transporting them from China to San Francisco and then to Omaha whence they may be conveyed to any part of the country where their services may be required. He charges a commission of $20 for each coolie to the employers; and charges each emigrant a given amount for transportation, including a commission of twenty or thirty per cent. on the amount for which the vessel is chartered—$1,000 or $1,500—which constitutes part of the profits of the firm in the enterprise. Within the next year he expects to bring to this country 100,000 coolies.

Of course, the Chinamen thus imported are not generally skilled in the peculiar kinds of labor that will be required of them, but they are intelligent and quick, and speedily learn to do anything that is required of them. The woolen factory of Lasar Freres, in San Francisco, employs 300 Chinamen, who make splendid hands, although they were entirely ignorant of the business when first employed by that firm. This was two years ago, when the Irish hands refused to work more than eight hours a day. The firm immediately discharged them and employed the coolies paying the latter for ten hours' labor only $1 per diem on an average, while to the Irish laborers they had paid on an average $3 per diem, or from $60 to $100 per month.

There is, as is well known, much feeling in California against these Asiatic laborers on the part of those whose places they have supplied to cheaper rates. The coolies have suffered more or less in consequence. They have been mobbed, and some of them have been killed. Local legislation in some parts makes it difficult for them to labor at all. They make good miners, but in some countries in California a county tax of $3 per month is imposed on every Chinaman in the mines. Wendell Phillips who prophesied so correctly concerning the troubles that are past, may not be so very far wrong when he predicts that the friends of humanity in this country will have far greater labors to perform in the future in protecting the hundreds of thousands of Asiatics who are coming to our shores than those who for so many years battled for the African.

Mr. Koopmanschap says that he does not bring over Chinese women. They are sure to follow wherever the men go. The Chinamen will import them for themselves. The women in China are not generally taught to labor. They will not become good domestics. Almost the only employment in which they engage at home is that of children's nurse. There are 5,000 China women in California now, and more coming. —N. Y. Paper.

Henry Keep.

Mr. Henry Keep, the well-known financier and railroad director, died at his residence in New York city on Friday evening at the age of fifty-one years. His career was a remarkable one. He was a native of Jefferson County, N. Y., and the son of poor parents. His father died when he was a small boy, and his mother was compelled to receive assistance from the county authorities. As soon as he was old enough to work he was bound out to a farmer whose neglect and harsh treatment drove the boy to run away from his master. He went to a town near Rochester, and, after vainly seeking employment for some time at last hired himself with a cooper. When the financial crisis of 1837 came he had laid by a little money which he invested in shinplasters, the price of which had been enormously depreciated. These were subsequently redeemed, and he found himself in possession of a very pretty sum of money, which he increased by judicious lending. Afterwards Mr. Keep drove a prosperous business by buying up Canadian bank notes, which were at a discount, and carrying them to Canada where they were cashed at par. His fortune having thus obtained a solid foundation, he went to Watertown, where he married, and afterwards to New York city, where he became largely identified with the railroad interests of the country. He was at various times treasurer of the Michigan Southern Railroad, President of the New York Central, and President of the Chicago and Northwestern. The last named position he held at the time of his death. He controlled a majority of the stock of various other roads, which, under his guidance, came to be a dividend paying basis. He was popular, and possessed the confidence of all who knew him. Mr. Keep lately endeavored to start a national academy for the advancement of art, offering to give to it the magnificent sum of a million and a half dollars.

—Artificial ebony, now used to a considerable extent, is said to be prepared by taking sixty parts of seaweed charcoal, obtained by treating the seaweed for two hours in diluted sulphuric acid, then drying and grinding it and adding to it ten parts of liquid glue, five parts gutta percha, and two and a half parts india rubber, the last two dissolved in naphtha; then adding ten parts of coal tar, five parts pulverized sulphur, two parts pulverized alum, and five parts powdered rosin, and heating the mixture to about 300 degrees Fahrenheit. The imitation substance thus obtained is said to equal ebony in color, hardness, and capability of taking polish, while it can be furnished at a tithe of the cost of the article.

BLANK NOTES,
BOUND in Books containing 100, 50 and 25 notes each, printed on fine paper, for sale at the Intelligencer Office.

Why not Advertise in Dull Times?

Since the very nature of an advertisement is to secure more business and greater returns, it would seem as if the above question was practically unnecessary, yet our experience thus far proves the opposite. There is a large class of advertisers who, when dull times approach, instead of exercising the usual sagacity exhibited at other seasons, tie an additional knot in their purse strings, withdraw their names from before the public, and then set down to lament their sad fate, and wonder why "so little is going on." We have often endeavored to expose the fallacy of such a course, and point out its ruinous consequences, yet neither the example of the wise and prudent who heed not dull times and consequently are not afflicted with them like others, nor their own ill success, has as yet convinced them of their error.

It may be laid down as an indisputable fact, that if in good times it is necessary to advertise to secure business, in dull times it is all the more so. And why?—Simply because the fact of advertising at all is proof conclusive that such a course will and does bring business; hence the more one patronizes the press the greater will be his revenue, and the more certain his success. Many men are dependant entirely upon advertising for success. Suppose they were to refuse to advertise at all? Dull times would be the inevitable result, and no one would wonder at their failure.

Of course some seasons of the year are better adapted to particular classes of advertising than others, yet the general advertiser can never afford to withdraw himself from the public, even for a single day, and the judicious one never will. Persistency and energy are always requisite, and their fruits can be gathered by no other incentives, much less by inaction and lamentation. If, then, you find that business is dull, of profits are growing beautifully less, instead of thrusting all the blame upon the poor public, look closely and see if it is not rather in your one self, and if convinced of this, act as you would at any other time and obviate the cause by advertising.

BELLEVILLE, FRIDAY, AUG. 6.

FOR HALIFAX.—It is said that Sir John A. Macdonald will next week visit Halifax and Prince Edward Island.

EMIGRANTS.—One hundred English and Scotch emigrants passed West by Grand Trunk this forenoon, most of whom will remain in Ontario.

IN READINESS.—The Montreal Gazette of yesterday says: "The Volunteers in the district of Bedford were ordered last week by telegraph to hold themselves in readiness to proceed to the frontier. All leaves were stopped."

THE REIFFENSTEIN CASE.—A writ of extent was issued to determine the property of Reiffenstein, and the case came up for consideration on Wednesday. It was shown that $1600 of the bail was contributed by Mrs. Reiffenstein. The investigation shows that Reiffenstein has systematically put out of his hands all his property. All of the personal property of the Reiffensteins' belongs to Mrs. Reiffenstein, and has so belonged for many years, under her marriage settlement and a deed and will of a relative.

NEW INSOLVENTS.—The following new insolvents are gazetted; Ephraim Chapman, Nassagaweya; Donald Reid, Harrington; A. Pinet, Kamouraska; Thos. Camm, Newboard; Hugh McPhee, Biddulph; Adam Craig, Darling; John Stoughton Dennis, Toronto; R. B. Clement, Brant; Jas. McWilliams, Weston; E. W. Evans, Owen Sound; Jno. Kinsmen, Guelph; C. E. Smith, do; Francis Prest, do; W. D. Depburn, do; Robert Coulson, Rockwood; Thomas McLean, Brantford; John Stockdale, Berlin Starmour & Co., Wallingford.

AN ASYLUM FOR GIRLS.—It seems that Miss Rye has not given up the idea of establishing an Asylum in Canada for young English Emigrant girls as was reported. She has made the purchase of the Old Niagara Gaol for that purpose from the County authorities, and will soon commence the necessary alterations. She designs to bring out fifty girls during the present season. There will ultimately be a plot of four or five acres round the house, which will be worked as a kitchen garden. The people of Niagara have given a warm welcome to Miss Rye, and will actively assist her in carrying out her plans.

THE NORTH BRITISH REVIEW.—The above quarterly, for the period ending July has been received from the Leonard Scott Publishing Company, New York. Its contents are: Dr. Hanna's Life of Christ; Henry Robinson's Dairy; History of European Morals; Geological Time; Danish Literature Ludvig Holberg; Memoir of Sir William Hamilton, Bart.; the Early history of Man; Walter Savage Landor; the Irish Church Measure. The "North British" is published by the Leonard Scott Publishing Company at $8 a year.

THE TRIP TO PORTLAND.—We understand that the Committee of Management for this cheap trip, have made arrangements for board at the seaside, at from $10 to $15 (greenbacks) per week. Parties intending to go should procure their tickets without delay.

The Solar Eclipse.

The grand celestial phenomenon which is to take place to-morrow afternoon, will be observed with unusual scrutiny by astronomers all over the Continent. Extensive preparations have been made for temporary observations. It is stated that six parties will be in position with all the requisite instruments and apparatus, on or near the central line of totality. The line of the total eclipse stretches across the continent from Alaska in the North-west, through a portion of the British North-west Territory, Indiana, Kentucky, Virginia and North Carolina; the most northerly point of observation being in Alaska, and the most southerly at Louisville, Ky. These expeditions are under the auspices of the most prominent scientific associations on the continent, and it is expected some valuable revelations will be made with the aid of the apparatus in their possession. During the total eclipse of 1868, which was visible in Southern Asia, the period of totality was unusually long, and by the aid of the spectroscope and the lunar photograph, important evidence was taken respecting the form and composition of our central luminary. In photographs of this eclipse, two separate ranges of violet-colored prominences, each embracing about one-sixth of the moon's circumference, were represented, while on the opposite side was shown the peculiar hook-shaped projection, the height of which is estimated at almost one-fourteenth of the sun's diameter, or about 60,000 miles. Dr. Janssen, the head of the French expedition, reported that a spectroscopic examination of the prominences showed them to be gaseous emanations—in fact, veritable flames—and not, as many had previously supposed, masses of condensed vapors resembling terrestrial clouds.

The observations to be made by the expedition parties now at their respective stations, an exchange says, will be to test the accuracy of this conclusion, and by the use of the spectroscope, during the interval of totality, search for those peculiar lines in the spectrum which indicate the presence of elementary substances identical with some of those found on the earth. It is fortunate for the cause of Science that appearances so evanescent as those presented during the period of total obscuration may be copied and preserved by means of the photograph. Should lumar pictures be taken at each of the stations, a comparison of them will enable the scientist to settle the question as to the changes of form which these remarkable prominences and productions may undergo during a given time.

The eclipse will only be partial in this vicinity, yet if there be a cloudless sky the spectacle will be grand and magnificent, and one long to be remembered. The first contact takes place here about a quarter before five o'clock, and the eclipse will continue until nearly sunset. Those who have no astronomical instruments at command may amuse themselves by watching the eclipse from some commanding eminence. An exchange gives the following method of observing it:—"Take a large card with a small round hole in the centre, and hold it against the sun's rays, so that the shadow will fall on the floor, pavement, wall, or other dark and smooth surface. In the middle of the shadow there will be a true image of the sun, and the eclipse can be studied in its progress without straining the eyes, and without smutting the face or hands with smoked glass. This simple process was suggested by the familiar circumstances that the light spots in the shadows, during a solar eclipse, take the shape of the luminous portions of the sun's disk; and the perforated card has been used with perfect success."

Activity Among the Fenians.

The following is an extract from a party in Chicago to one of the Captains of the 15th Battalion, Belleville, dated August 1st. He says:—"There has been great activity among the Finnigans here, lately. To-day they hold a grand pic-nic. I saw them parade over 2000 strong well armed and equipped with breech loaders and Springfield Rifles. They wore a bright green uniform, trimmed with yellow and gold lace. A number of notices of extra meetings in connection with the Fenian organization are advertised for this week, and there is unusual activity displayed by the members of the association. I am in a good situation, but if there is any call for boys, count me as one. Though far from Canada I am ready to shoulder the rifle in defence of the dear old flag."

What Does it Mean?

The Napanee Standard of to-day furnishes the following additional information respecting the painting on trees and fences in Tyendinaga. What does it mean? The Standard says: "One day last week Mr. Switzer, foreman in the cheese factory near Allison's, Tyendinaga, observed a man and a boy driving along the road in a waggon. The horse was stopped in sight of the factory, and the man got out of the waggon and taking a ladder, paint pot and brushes, proceeded to work upon a large tree near the road side. Mr. Switzer thought some agent was taking this method of advertising somebody's Pills, and after some time went to the tree to see what it was.—Instead of an advertisement he found upon the tree a draft of a sword, the blade done in red paint and handle in black, with the following words underneath:—'Mo Diah Acus Mo,"—a sentence in the Irish language, which being interpreted is, "My God and my." In different parts of the township the same inscription has been put upon trees by the road-side, with crossswords, cross guns, &c. It is difficult to conjecture what can be the meaning of these paintings—no one would surely go to such trouble and expense to get up a hoax, and just now it might be a dangerous one to be caught at."

A Letter from Rev. Mr. McMahon.

The following letter from Rev. Mr. Mc. Mahon, appears in the New York Tablet of Saturday last:

"Through the kindness of Mr. Coddington, of this city, we are able to present our readers with the following letter from Father McMahon; the first since his release:—

"KINGSTON, July 24, 1869.

"Robert Coddington, Esq.

"DEAR SIR.—You will no doubt be surprised on the receipt of a few lines from me; I dare say you will learn, ere this reaches, that I am a free man. I was pardoned on Thursday, at 8a. m. His Lordship the Bishop came for me and drove to the palace, where I am now stopping under his kind treatment.

"The following day I celebrated Mass in the Cathedral at the very hour on which I obtained my release.

"I have a sore foot which I received as a souvenir of my delightful boarding-house. I hope it will not signify. I can creep to church and no more. My health is very much broken down and it will be some time ere I recruit myself. However, with easy times and kind treatment I will get around.

"The Bishop has offered me a parish in Canada; but I am undecided. I am going back to see you all again.

"Hoping you are in good health, I remain

"Yours truly,

"JOHN MCMAHON.

"P. S.—Kind remembrances to your brother William. Excuse haste."

The Suez Canal.

M. de Lesseps has sent the following circular to the Presidents of the various Chambers of Commerce:—

"MONSIEUR LE PRESIDENT: I have much pleasure in handing you the enclosed notice to merchants and shippers, which I shall be obliged by your bringing to the notice of the merchants and shipowners of your town. I need not call your attention to the importance of the document, which fixes definitely the opening of the Suez Canal to general navigation. I would request you to direct the attention of merchants and shippers to the importance attaching to a prompt and easy development of commercial relations with the East. The length of time occupied in the voyage round the Cape, and the delays consequent on transhipment in Egypt, have restricted trade to and from the East. When once the barrier is removed, and the route to the Indies shortened by one half, it will permit of a complete interchange of European and Asistic produce. It becomes necessary to anticipate this great commercial undertaking by providing sufficient means of transport to meet the occasion.

I have, &c.,

"FERD DE LESSEPS."

"NOTICE TO MERCHANTS AND SHIPPERS.—The Suez Canal will be opened throughout to navigation the 17th of November, 1869, with the depth of water eight metres. On the occasion of the inauguration merchant vessels and those belonging to various governments, presenting themselves at the two extremities of the canal, namely, at "Port Said" and "Suez" on the 16th, 18th, 19th, and 20th November, will be exempt from all dues. From November 21, conformably with Article 17 of the Act of Concession, the rate of passage through the canal will be fixed at ten francs a head for passengers, and per ton according to the legal tonnage measure of the respective nations. The administration will publish, shortly, regulations for the navigation of the canal, comprising rates of pilotage, towage, &c., &c."

Miscellaneous.

—A man who marries a widow is bound to give up chewing and smoking. If she gives up her weeds for him, he should give up the weed for her.

—Handkerchiefs are now made in New Orleans from the Ramie plant. The texture is finer than silk, and the handkerchiefs are pretty.

—A New Orleans paper says that a young widow in that city, who writes well, is "training herself for an editor." Prentice hopes that he is not the editor she is training herself for.

A shrewd but unenlightened school director, out west, used to say, on examinating a candidate for the post of teacher,—"We all know that a, b, c, is vowels, but we want to know why they is vowels."

TALKING AND THINKING.—It is an old and true saying, that the man who thinks much says little—that is in proportion to his thoughts. He selects as a general thing, that language which will convey his ideas in the most explicit and direct manner. He tries to crowd as much as possible into as few words as he can.

A member of the Conneticut Legislature was told by a fellow member that it was a 'good day for the race.' 'What race?' said the shad eater. 'Humsa race,' said the joker. The shad-eater was so impressed with the sell that he tried it on a friend after the following fashion: 'It's a good day for the trot.' 'What trot?' asked the other, 'The human race,' shouted the joker, who flattered himself he had said a good thing.

You will sometimes find in your fields a large black beetle wearing upon its broad back rows of the most brilliant golden dots. Know that this is not to be destroyed. According to Dr. Fitch, the distinguished entomologist, its eggs produce the corn-grub killer, that most inveterate foe of the cutworms. It hunts them continually, and feeds on nothing else, so long as the supply holds out. When it finds them in plenty it gorges and surfeits itself upon them, till so distended that it hardly knows how to ster, for it never does respect a cutworm's desire to be "let alone." It grasps him in its strong jaws, and despite violent writhing and struggle, holds him fast. Ploughman, spare that bug!

—A New York gentleman, sometime since, took a seat in a Seventh avenue railroad car, and remarked a peculiar smell in the cushions, which he feared had been occupied by some diseased person; and about ten days thereafter he was taken with small-pox and barely escaped with his life. He is evident that he contracted the disease in that car, and remarked to his wife, directly after the ride, that he feared what actually happened. Of Course all persons afflicted with infectious diseases cannot be kept out of public conveyances; but the circumstance suggests the wisdom of frequently and thoroughly cleaning railroad cars and all other vehicles for the accommodation of the public.

Business Notice.

Not many weeks ago a rich but childless landed proprietor breathed his last, leaving a large circle of relations to mourn his loss, and squable over their prospects of sharing his wealth. The day for reading the will at last came; the room was crowded with anxious expectants; the will was opened and to the inexpressible joy of all, the rich gentleman's relations found that to each of them had been bequeathed a case of Royal Italian Bitters.

Lackawanna Coal Agency.

HAVING on hand 200 tons Lackawanna Coal, Chestnut size, for Stoves, which the subscriber wishes to remove immediately from the Gas Works, he will take orders if sent in before the 10th instant, at $8.20 per ton at the yard, or $8.75 per ton delivered, although, as most people are probably well aware, Stove Coal is now worth at least $10, with the prospect of being still higher.

Persons intending to use Coal and having the self feeding Stoves will do well to lay in their winter supply.

Terms—Bankable Funds, PAYABLE WHEN THE COAL IS ORDERED.

It is well known that the present high price of Coal has been produced by the Miners' strike. Work in the mines has been suspended for three and a half months, and a letter just received from one of the Companies states "Our Miners still hold out, refusing to work, and our stock of Coal is rapidly melting away, so that we shall soon be entirely without Coal."

FIRE IN A CATHEDRAL—LOSS OF LIFE

FLORENCE, Aug. 5.—During the celebration of a great festival in the Cathedral of Fraln, Sicily, the drapery caught fire. The Church was crowded at the time, and the congregation was seized with a panic, and a rush was made for the doors. In the confusion, 16 persons were trampled to death, and a large number badly injured. The fire was easily extinguished before any considerable damage had been done to the Cathedral.

THE CASE OF PRINCE KARAGOOGAE-WICH.

PESTH, Aug. 5.—The Emperor has declined to grant the petition of the wife of Prince Karagoegsewich for the pardon of her husband, accused of assassinating the late Prince of Servia, and has ordered that his case be dealt with by the ordinary tribunals.

SPEECH OF BARON BEUST.

VIENNA, Aug. 5.—During the discussion of the war estimates in the Reichsrath, Baron Von Buest said it was hazardous to promise to maintain peace for a considerable length of time; but he expressed the opinion that if no war occurred during the next four years, the preservation of the peace of Europe for a long period beyond was certain.

THE LATEST.

A CONSULSHIP.

LONDON, Midnight, Aug. 5.—In the House of Commons to-night, Oliverp in reply to a question from Bowning, said in consequence of the recommendation of the official committee, the Government had declined to fill the vacancy in the British Consulship at Chicago.

CANADIAN LOAN BILL.

Stansfield moved the second reading of the Canadian Loan Bill, which proposes to guarantee a loan of £300,000 for the purchase of the Territory and rights of the Hudson Bay Company. Stansfield stated that in order to facilitate the adjustment of the question which was of considerable importance in respect to the relations of England with America, to promote settlement of the Territory, Her Majesty's Government undertook in accordance with pledges it had given to propose a guarantee to the House. Monck opposed the motion, and moved an amendment, that the second reading be postponed three months. Dilke seconded the amendment. He hoped the Government would lay down some clear distinct policy with respect to Colonial guarantees. After some further discussion, the amendment to postpone the second reading was rejected by 65 to 10, and the Bill was then read a second time.

HARVARD CREW.

In their practice to-day, the Harvard Crew made better time and showed better power than heretofore. They made 34 strokes per minute in the start, and gradually increased the number.

YACHT RACE.

COWES, Aug. 5.—To day the third Royal Yacht squadron regatta race for the Town Cup, a piece of plate valued at £100, took place. It was sailed over the Queen's course 50 miles, and was a time race on the Royal Yacht Squadron scale. The weather was fine. The race was won by Mr. T. Chamberlayve's cutter Arrow, 102 tons; Mr. Sutton's schooner Alice, 216 tons, was second; Mr. C. J. Tanatt's cutter Ounaira, 165 tons, was third.

STILL LATER.

ATTEMPT TO BLOW UP THE HOUSE OF PARLIAMENT.

LONDON, Aug. 6.—At an early hour this morning, during the session of Parliament, great excitement was occasioned by a loud explosion in the building. A search was instituted, and a tin case, which had contained powder was picked up on the Terrace. Not much damage was done. No arrests were made. The affair is involved in mystery.

ELECTIONS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—The Times' Knoxville, Tenn., despatch says: The Election returns received to-night show a sweeping Democratic victory. The Senate is elected by 60,000 majority. Johnson's return to the Senate is almost certain. The blacks much divided, and for some local offices voted largely democratic.

ARRIVED.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—The steamship 'City of Cork,' from Liverpool, has arrived.

The weather is very cold here.

A man who is full of vanity and egotism is certainly the happiest mortal in existence. He labors under the delusion that everybody is envying his superior abilities, when on the contrary he is the laughing-stock of all sensible people. He is like the man in the balloon—everybody looks little to him, and he looks little to everybody.

NEW ALBION HOTEL,

McGILL STREET,

MONTREAL, CANADA.

THE "NEW ALBION HOTEL," the largest Hotel in Montreal, has just been opened under the most favorable auspices.

Whilst the "Old Albion" has been long noted for the strict attention paid to its numerous guests, the "New Albion" takes its position as a first class Hotel, and is really first class in every respect, except the charges, which better suit the ideas and requirements of the majority of travellers, than many of the so called, "first class Houses;" which deserves the title more through the amount of their charges than aught else.

Already the crowded state of the "New Albion" promises well for its future career; everything associated with its construction has been carried out with artistic taste and systematic correctness.

The large Hall, commodious office, spacious Reading room, convenient Dining, Coffee, Wash Room, etc., etc., on the ground floor; and the Reception Room and Suits of SPLENDIDLY FURNISHED and THOROUGHLY VENTILATED LADIES' PARLORS, on the second floor, will form no small luxury during the hot summer season. And, what is an exception to the general Rule in Hotels, the Bedrooms are all well ventilated and lighted, there not being a dark room in the House.

Being situated on the widest and healthiest Street in Montreal, commanding a Magnificent View of the River St. Lawrence and the Victoria Bridge on the left, and a full view of the Victoria Square with its numerous "Jets d'Eau" and Mount Royal on the right, it cannot fail to commend itself to the travelling public.

From its situation on McGill Street, the great thoroughfare and commercial centre of the City it cannot fail to be, as the "Old Albion" has always been a strong favorite with the Merchants of Canada.

Notwithstanding the very large outlay in building and furnishing the house, the old price of $1 50 per day will not be departed from.

We, therefore, bespeak for ourselves a continuance of the patronage so liberally accorded to us during the past twelve years.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry.

Where this article is known it is a work of supererogation to say one word in its favor, so well is it established as an unfailing remedy for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Asthma, Diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs, as well as that more dreaded of all diseases, Consumption, which high medical authority has pronounced to be an incurable disease. Those who have used this remedy know its value; those who have not, have but to make a single trial to be satisfied that of all others it is THE REMEDY.

THE REV. JACOB SECHLER,

well known and much respected among the German population of this country, writes as follows:

HANOVER, Pa., Feb. 16, 1859.

Messrs. S. W. Fowle & Son, Boston.

DEAR SIRS—Having realized in my family important benefits from the use of your valuable preparation—Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry—it affords me pleasure to recommend it to the public. Some eight years ago, one of my daughters appeared to be in a decline, and little hopes of her recovery were entertained. I then procured a bottle of your excellent Balsam, and before she had taken the whole of it there was a great improvement in her health. I have, in my individual case, made frequent use of your valuable medicine, and have always been benefited by it. I would, however, caution the public against imposition, because there is a good deal of spurious 'Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry' afloat throughout the country.

Yours, JACOB SECHLER.

☞ None genuine unless signed 'I. BUTTS' on the wrapper.

Prepared by Seth W. Fowle & Son, Boston, and for sale by Druggists generally. 25

Grace's Celebrated Salve.

From Mr. JAMES CURTIS, OF AMHERST, MASS.

"I was afflicted with a severe felon on one of my fingers, and tried many remedies without relief. My friends induced me to apply your Salve. In two days it extracted the inflammation from my finger so as to enable me to resume my work. I am almost say that the Salve worked like magic, for it effected a cure without leaving a scar. I unhesitatingly pronounce 'Grace's Salve' an excellent remedy, and do not doubt it will be appreciated throughout the land." 25

Domestic Receipts.

CHERRY ICE CREAM.—Take half a pound of cherry preserves, pound them and put them into a basin, with cream, prepared as above, pass through a sieve and freeze as usual.

ECONOMICAL PASTE FOR MEAT PIES, ETC.—Three cups of sifted flour, one cup of lard and butter mixed; a pinch of salt. Chop all together with a chopping knife. Sufficient ice water to mix and roll.

COCOA NUT PUDDING.—Grate one nut; boil a quart of milk, and pour upon it. Add five eggs with a cup of sugar, an ounce of butter, a few drops of essence. Bake half an hour. Some line a dish with a rich paste, and pour the mixture into it.

RASPBERRY VINEGAR WITHOUT COOKING.—Dissolve five ounces of citric acid in two quarts of water and pour it over twelve pounds of fruit—let it stand twenty-four hours—then strain, and to each pint of clear liquid add one pound of sugar, then bottle the syrup without corks for a few days. After a week it will be fit for use.

NEWPORT CAKE.—One quart of sifted flour mixed with two teaspoonfuls of cream tartar; two eggs; half a cup of sugar; Beat eggs and sugar together until light—half a very light—half a very light—half a cup of milk, a teaspoonful of soda dissolved in hot water—stir all well together, and bake in a quick oven. Add the soda, mixing thoroughly, the last thing. This cake much resembles the Sally Lunn.

ICE CREAM.—Sweeten and flavor the cream to taste; put it into a tin for the purpose, with a close cover, set it into a tub of ice broken fine, mixed with a good quantity of salt; when the cream thickens round the edge, stir it and keep stirring it till of a proper thickness. There are many improved ice cream freezers as they are styled, but we fear they are liable to get out of order, and in our experience, we have found none so good as the old-fashioned kind, which may be bought at any tin shop.

—It is found that the loss of currency by wear and tear is more than sufficient to pay the expense of printing and issuing it. The average life of a bank note is three years, and that of currency a much shorter time.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Inveterate cases of Scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous affections and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulous contamination until they became painfully afflicting, have been radically cured in a great numbers in almost every section of the country, that the public scarcely need to be informed of its virtues or uses.

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this unseen and unfelt tenant of the organism undermines the constitution, and invites the attack of enfeebling or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed infection throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develops into one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tuberculous deposits are probably deposited in the lungs, heart, or tissues formed in the liver, or it shows itself in severe eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the once general belief of a taint of this Sarsaparilla is admirable, even when no active symptoms of disease are present. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, in time, cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scurfy, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions of visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Heart Disease, Fits, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various Uterorean affections of the muscular and nervous systems.

Syphilis or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these obstinate maladies by any remedy. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Leucorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute directions for each case are found in our pamphlet, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, Jaundice, when arising as they often do, from the rankling poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are Languid, Listless, Dyspeptic, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, will find relief in the general symptomatic of Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has so strong a way won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men, it has been known and higher in degree in estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character for the power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that in most instances but few doses will relieve. Nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, or do more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical, or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Mercury, Zinc, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it is in no sense injurious to any patient. The number and importance of its cures in the ague districts, are truly astonishing, and, on account, and we believe without a parallel in the history of Ague medicine. Our pride is gratified by the acknowledgments we receive of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and where other remedies had wholly failed.

Unacclimated persons, either resident in, or travelling through subamatic localities, will be protected by taking the AGUE CURE daily.

For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy activity.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly agreeable cures, where other medicines had failed.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. AYER & Co., Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass., and sold all round the world.

QUERY?

Should we employ the noble doctors to bring us our tea and coffee in bottles at an expense of at least four times what they now cost?

In no way should we longer adopt that system in reference to medicines which are the simple extracts of herbs or roots, which can be easily and readily prepared as teas and coffee?

Each package of Dr. Thompson's Botanic Medicine contains more medical properties than can be procured in any other form for four times that amount of money.

We have as our possession numerous testimonials as to the practicability of, as well as the benefits derived from the use of Dr. Thompson's Botanic Medicines, viz :

Dr. Thompson's Blood Purifier

Cures all diseases arising from an impure state of the blood, such as Rheumatism, Scrofula, Salt Rheum, White swellings, tendency to took sid sores, pimples or roughness of the skin. It regulates the bowels, and invigorates the whole system, allaying the strength of the patient. Sold at 50 cents per package.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any which have been hitherto known, and all know that when it does cure it does so. Hence, wherever they are known, they have established a character for the cures they perform, which is not equalled by any other medicine. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take. Containing no mercury, mineral or vegetable, no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by exciting the vital forces of the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action, thereby relieving the disorders of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring them to vigorous action and health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure :—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to restore the tone to the stomach and produce a healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Attacks, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the disturbance which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change these complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a powerful purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

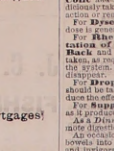

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

Ayer's

Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. When it is gray, hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those injurious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

ROYAL ITALIAN BITTERS
OR TONICO REALE.

Del Dottore F. P. Veri, Prof. of Chemistry, in the of University Padua, Italy.

THIS Celebrated Preparation—for which a Certificate of Merit was awarded to the original preparer at the National Exposition at Torino, Italy by which Signor Mr. Gianelli obtained the Recipe, and was also awarded a Diploma at the Provincial Exhibition of Canada, held at Montreal in September, 1865, is without exception, the most powerful, as Salubrious and agreeable Tonic ever introduced to public notice either in Europe or America.

For seventeen years it has, in Italy, been a universal favorite among the elite of society, being generally served in the Drawing Room immediately before dinner, in preference to Vermouth.

☞ The ingredients of its composition have been imparted to the leading Physicians of Montreal, who have received their unqualified approval on every account.

The Proprietor has no idea of parading or puffing it before the public, but merely asks a sound and unprejudiced trial.

Kept by the principal Wine Merchants, Druggists, and Grocers throughout Canada.

Death.

Out of the shadows of sadness,
Into the sunshine of gladness,
Into the land of the Blest—
Out of the land of the dreary,
Out of the world of the weary,
Into the rapture of rest.

Out of to-days' sin and sorrow
Into a blissful to-morrow,
Into a day without gloom;
Out of a land filled with sighing—
Land of the dead and the dying—
Into a land without tomb.

Out of a life of commotion,
Tempest-swept oft as the ocean,
Dark with the wrecks drifting o'er,
Into a land calm and quiet,
Never a storm cometh nigh it—
Never a wreck on its shore.

Out of a land in whose bowers
Perish and fade all the flowers—
Out of the land of decay;
Into the Eden where fairest
Of flow'rets, and sweetest and rarest,
Never shall wither away.

Out of the world of the wailing,
Thronged with the anguished and ailing,
Out of the world of the sad;
Into a world that rejoices—
World of bright visions and voices—
Into the world of the glad.

Out of a life ever lornful,
Out of a land ever mournful,
Where in bleak exile we roam,
Into a Joyland above us,
Where there's a Father to love us—
Into "Our Home, Sweet Home."

Life Thoughts.

If you cannot do as well as you wish, do as well as you can.

Promises made in the time of affection require a better memory than people commonly possess.

When you hear a man say, "Life is but a dream," tread on his corns and wake him up. Life is real.

Be deaf to the quarrelsome, blind to the scorner, and dumb to those who are mischievously inquisitive.

To mingle the useful with the beautiful, is the highest style of art. The one adds grace, the other value.

Wear your learning like a watch, in a private, and don't endeavor to show it unless you are asked what o'clock it is.

Be always sure of doing good. This will make your life comfortable, your death happy, and your account glorious.

He who cannot abide the storm without flinching, lies down by the wayside to be overlooked or forgotten.

Horace Greeley says that the darkest day in any man's career is that wherein he fancies there is some easier way of getting a dollar than by squarely earning it.

When friendship is to be Valued—Value the friendship of him who stands by you in the storm; swarms of insects will surround you in the sunshine.

Success in life is very apt to make us forget the time when we wasn't much. It is just so with a frog on a jump; he can't remember when he was tadpole—but other folks can.

The following sentiment is attributed to Napoleon Bonaparte: "A handsome woman pleases the eye, but a good woman pleases the heart. The one is a jewel—the other a treasure."

Memory presides over the past; faction over the present. The first lives in a rich temple hung with glorious trophies, and lined with tombs; the other has no shrine but duty, and it walks the earth like a spirit.

If you are a wise man you will treat the world as the moon treats its. Show it only one side of yourself, seldom show yourself too much at a time, and let what you show be calm, cool and polished. But look at every side of the world.

"When a stranger treats me with want of proper respect," said a philosophic poor man, "I comfort myself with the reflection that it is not myself he slights, but my old shabby coat and hat, which, to say the truth, have no particular claims to admiration. So if my hat and coat choose to fret about it, let them: it is nothing to me."

Never intentionally wound the feelings of anybody. The good opinion of the world is the very best kind you can have, and the more the better. The man or woman who says he or she doesn't care a pin what the world thinks or says, gives utterance to what they know is absolutely false. We do care, and it is well we do; and those are rarely mistaken who say they do not.

Hearts are not trumps in a great game of life. As a sentiment the heart is commonly regarded as pretty, but as a fact of little account. It is quite the thing to splurge about the little beater, but the world really holds it in no more estimation than did Shylock—Money is the trump card, and to which all others in the pack pay homage. If any dispute this, let him open his eyes and look about him.

Education does not commence with the alphabet. It begins a wife with a mother's look; a father's nod of approbation, or his sign of reproof; with a sister's gentle pressure of the hand, or a brother's noble act of forbearance; with a handful of flowers in green and daisy meadows; with a bird's nest admired but not touched; with pleasant walks in shady lanes; and with thoughts directed, in sweet and kindly tones and words, to nature, to beauty, to acts of benevolence, to deeds of virtue, and to the source of all good—to God himself!

Is the Solar System in Danger.

The London Spectator has a curious speculation upon "The Solar Mutability" the scientific basis of which is in the following facts:

"The sun has been shown to be subject to variations in brightness and heat, which entitles it to be called a variable star.—These changes are periodical, and are pretty certainly connected with "magnetic storms" on earth, which take place when the spots on the surface of the sun are agitated. On September 1, 1859, the most remarkable of these storms that has been observed took place, and all the telegraphic wires of both hemispheres were disturbed. In some places severe shocks were felt by operators, and even flames appeared in the instruments: at night magnificent auroras were seen. Another similar storm is expected in 1870, astronomers believing that it will recur every eleven years.

The Spectator believes that men's minds are greatly influenced by the agitations going on on the sun. It says:

"And we now know that these appearances are not merely matters for the curious, with which as they happen at a distance of above ninety millions of miles, practical men need not concern themselves. In point of fact, it is by no means impossible that the issues of peace or war, of a financial crisis or a religious agitation, may be closely bound up with these phenomena; if not, indeed,—which is also quite possible—the sudden disappearance of our whole system, after the fashion of other systems which have thus disappeared. This much at least is certain, that the vast changes now going on in the physical constitution of the sun are changes which do most powerfully affect the electric condition of our earth, which have in former years caused the most violent disturbances in the various artificial as well as natural electric apparatus of the world we live in, which, to speak of the least of all possible effects, might just as well as not happen some day to throw the electric condition of every telegraphic cable on our planet, under the sea or above it, into the most dire confusion, and send down telegraph companies' shares to zero in a lump, even if they did not contrive to telegraph to us after some strange inarticulate fashion, that shares in all public companies, even in that very limited public company, the human race are in a physical point of view, of very doubtful value indeed."

Some of the British writers try to make a first-class "sensation" of the matter. A few years ago a small star suddenly blazed into great brightness and burned out, and the spectroscope showed that the flames was burning hydrogen. Now it is certain that the sun contains an immense amount of hydrogen, and at times sends up flames of it many thousand of miles. What would be the result if the sun should suddenly develop a blaze like that of the star so recently lost? "The earth would be turned into vapor," says a leading man of science, "as quickly as a drop of water thrown into a furnace."

Orange and Green at Liverpool.—On Saturday a woman (an old and respectable woman she is called) named Eliza beth Lynch was charged before the Liverpool Magistrates, with throwing boiling water upon the infant child of a man named Thos. Hallam. On Friday, several children decorated themselves with orange lilies and ribbons, and were playing near the prisoner's house in Queen Ann Street. Mrs. Lynch, who is a Roman Catholic, seems to have been annoyed at this display of orange colour, for she deliberately threw a quantity of boiling water upon the children, amongst whom was a daughter of Hallam's, who was nursing the infant. The latter was very severely scalded and also one of the other children. The case was remanded.

A Warning to Jokers.—An extraordinary affliction has just overtaken a young man William Howell, of Bell's Depot, Tenn. It seems that out of mere sport, while on the train on the road to Memphis, when the news-boy came around and offered him a paper, he feigned to be both deaf and dumb, and in this way annoyed the vender of the latest Memphis papers no little. The newsboy passed on, but the unfortunate joker never spoke again. When he began to realize the extent of his misfortunes, he got off the train bound for Memphis, at Mason's Depot, and took the first train that came along for Bell's Depot. On the train he indulged in loud lamentations and cries, as if sorely distressed. The affair excited intense interest among his fellow passengers and on his speedy arrival home, so soon as he stepped out on the platform, he seized a pencil and a bit of a paper from a citizen in the crowd, and wrote "struck dumb on account of my folly," and continued weeping in most piteous tones. The whole community was stirred to its inmost depths by this unmistakeable visitation of the wrath of God. There seemed to be no doubt about the matter. When young Howell left that morning for Memphis he could hear and speak without difficulty, and the loss of these senses, under the circumstances, is a most astounding incident.

BELLEVILLE, SATURDAY, AUG. 7.

NEW BARLEY.—The first lot of new barley this season, offered for sale here, was purchased by Messrs. A. Fletcher & Co., this morning. The berry is plump but slightly colored.

EMIGRANTS.—And still they come. Last night about 150 Norwegians and Danes passed up by Grand Trunk last evening, all bound for the Western States.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL.—At a meeting of the Trustees held on Tuesday evening, it was agreed to re-admit girls to the Grammar School immediately after the midsummer holidays.

A BOGUS NOBLEMAN.—A man named Mitchell, hailing from Montreal, has been swindling hotel keepers in New York under the assumed name of the Hon. W. P. H. Carrington, Grenadier Guards, Montreal, Canada.

NEW JUDGE.—Mr. Steel, of the law firm of Sherwood & Steel, of Brockville, has been appointed Judge of the United Counties of Leeds and Grenville, in the room of Judge Malloch, who tendered his resignation lately because of advanced age.

ROYAL CANADIAN.—The Trade Review says that it has information from one of the Directors of the Royal Canadian Bank, that steps are being rapidly taken for its re-opening, and it is hoped the doors will be opened before the 20th instant. It is to be hoped for many reasons that this may prove true.

THE TRIP TO PORTLAND.—Don't forget the cheap trip to Portland on Monday under the auspices of the St. George's Society of Belleville. The many inducements offered should make this one of the most successful excursions which ever went from Belleville. Excursion train leaves the Station at 11.25 A.M. Monday.

BRINGING THEM TO TIME.—There has been a lively incident in the fishing waters of Prince Edward Island. About ten days ago two of Her Majesty's vessels of war came among several American fishing vessels on the North Side which had encroached on the fishing grounds, and scattered them like a lot of sheep. One Schooner, which thought to run away, was brought to after a blank shot, and finally after a cannon ball was sent whirling across her bows.

FIRE AT NAPANEE.—On Friday afternoon about five o'clock, the wood shed at Napanee Station was discovered to be on fire, supposed to have caught from sparks from an up train. A strong wind prevailing at the time, the fire spread with great rapidity, consuming the shed with a considerable quantity of cut wood and a large quantity of wood piled in the yard adjoining. Altogether about 400 cords of wood were destroyed. In addition to the Kingston and Belleville G. T. R. Engines, the Fire Company of Napanee rendered valuable assistance, and through their combined exertions, succeeded in preventing the destruction of a large amount of property in the vicinity of the fire.

VAN AMBURGH & Co's MENAGERIE.—This well known and popular establishment, the reputation of which is so well understood that it needs no special commendation from us, is now in the Province, and will visit this place soon. Since it was in Canada two years ago, large additions to its attractions have been made by securing, especially from its agents in Africa, a number of animals which have never before been exhibited in Europe or America. The entire zoological collection numbers about five hundred rare animals, birds, &c., in the transportation and exhibition of which about four hundred men and horses are employed, it being larger and more comprehensive in all its departments than any establishment ever organized. It is the intention of Van Amburgh & Co. to visit all the principal cities and towns in the Dominion, and we have no doubt it will receive most liberal patronage from the public everywhere, as it depends for support exclusively on its merits as a first-class menagerie, unconnected with circus performances. A menagerie is one thing and a circus is another and the two specialities being incompatible, they should never be put together. A few animals in a circus do not convert a circus into a menagerie, any more than the introduction of the pony and monkey-riding makes a menagerie a circus; and those who desire to see a complete and exclusive menagerie can only do so by visiting Van Amburgh & Co's establishment.

—The great sporting event of the season will be the great trotting meeting to take place at Buffalo on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week, when purses to the amount of $25,000 will be given, the largest being $10,000, and the smallest, $500. It is expected that the best horses in America will be present, including 'Lady Thorn' and 'American Girl.' The number of trotting horses expected is one thousand.

—A certain amount of opposition is a great help to a man. Biters rise against the wind and not with the wind; even a head wind is better than none. No man ever worked his passage anywhere in a dead calm. Let no man wax pale, therefore, because of opposition; opposition is what he wants, and must have, to be good for anything. Hardship is the native soil of manhood and self-reliance.

The Case of Reiffenstein.

The more you examine into this case of Reiffenstein the more ugly it looks. For years it has been known he has been living beyond his means, or at least beyond the amount of his salary. He has been "swelling" it in a manner which should certainly have created suspicion in the minds of the authorities, unless, indeed, he obtained his means from private sources independent of his salary. He had his carriage and his servants, gave dinners and balls, had the choicest of wines, and fared sumptuously every day. Now the Government officers ought to have known whether he was independent of his salary, and if not, how it came that he was able to live in such a magnificent style. The conduct of the officials in this respect is highly censurable. There can be no question that for years he has been deliberately swindling the department of which he had charge with false figures and false reports, and although we have a system of audit which financiers have repeatedly said was the most perfect in the world, this peculation has been going on from day to day and from year to year without detection. It certainly does not redound much to the credit of the system of auditing of which we have heard so much.

Then there are the circumstances connected with the arrest, the investigation, the release on bail, and flight to the United States, which are very discreditable. While the investigation was going on property belonging to Reiffenstein was made away with, and it is found that the estate is scarcely worth a cent. The release of the prisoner on bail, is the most humiliating and disgraceful transaction we have ever been called upon to record. "If," as an exchange says, "Reiffenstein had been some "poor man, who had taken five or ten "dollars not his own, to buy bread for his "famishing family, he would certainly "have gone to the penitentiary. But because the culprit in this case operated by "thousands, and stood high in so-called "polite society, given fine dinners and balls "at the public expense, the prison door "opens and his crime goes unwhipt of "justice." The whole case from beginning to end is most disgraceful, and the conduct of the magistrates and judge who were parties to his liberation, should be thoroughly investigated.

The Fenians.

A RAID CONSIDERED CERTAIN.

The Montreal Star of last evening contains the following announcement:—"We received information to-day, from a source which is too authentic to permit for a moment of doubt, that preparations are quietly going on for a Fenian raid or rather two of them, one from the direction of Malone and one from Buffalo, and that operations are expected about the 15th September.

"We have been carefully collecting all possible facts on this subject, and though it is not wise now to make any further disclosures, we shall lay before our readers in a few days the precise state of things, and the result of the researches of our correspondents.

"The government is in full possession of all the reliable information which has as yet been obtained. And though no sensational alarm is required, still we can with safety state the desire of the authorities that the people should be made aware of this intelligence."

The Intercolonial.

A despatch from Halifax, dated August 6, says: "The Railway Commissioners advertise for tenders for four further sections of the Intercolonial Railway contract. No. 8 will be in the Province of Quebec, and extend fr m the easterly end of contract No. 5 at Rimouski, to a point near the Mites river, about 20¼ miles in length. Contract No. 9 will be in New Brunswick, and extend from the easterly end of contract No. 6 towards the town of Bathurst, about 20¼ miles in length. Contract No. 10 will be in New Brunswick, and extend from the centre of Chaplin Island Road, near the Court House at Newcastle, towards Bathurst, about 20 miles in length. Contract No. 1 will be in Nova Scotia, and extend from the easterly end of contract No. 7, at Folly Lake, to a junction with the existing railway at Truro, about 24½ miles in length. Contracts No. 8, 9 and 10 to be completely finished before the first day of July, 1871. That portion of No. 11 east of Folly river to Truro to be finished and ready for laying the track by the 1st day of October, 1870; from Folly river to a point opposite the Londonderry Iron Works by the 1st of January, 1871, and the remaining portion by the 1st of July, 1871. Tenders to be received at Ottawa up to the 1st of October. Plans to be seen at the various railway offices after the 15th of September."

Endowment of Queen's College.

This scheme on which the future progress of Presbyterianism in Canada so much depends, has already met with such a measure of success as must, we think, be exceedingly gratifying to its promoters. Whenever the claims of the institution have been fairly presented, a most hearty and liberal response has been given. Congregations in cities, towns and rural districts, have vied with each other in contributing towards the attainment of the end in view.

The Deputation in whose hands the enterprise is being so successfully prosecuted, consisting of the Rev. Principal Snodgrass, D. D., and Rev. Professor MacKerras, M. A., will visit Belleville next week. A public meeting will be held (D. V.) on Monday evening, the 9th inst., in St. Andrew's Church (the Rev. J. C. Smith's), to which all friendly are respectfully invited.

Mr. Snodgrass will preach in St. Andrew's Church to-morrow forenoon, and Professor MacKerras in the evening.

About School Matters.

To the Editor of the Daily Intelligencer.

DEAR SIR.—I read with much pleasure the communication from A. N., which appeared in one of your late issues, not only on account of the matter which it contained, but also because it affords evidence that a more general interest is beginning to be felt by our citizens in the subject of Common School Education.

I trust that A. N. will soon redeem his pledge and favor your readers with another contribution. What particularly struck me in his letter was his description (by no means overcolored) of the condition of our schools previous to 1850, coupled with the fact, that the popular voice at a public meeting was for a time actually opposed to any change in so vile a system. Thus history repeats itself, and the enlightened friends of progress at the present day need not be discouraged by the unreasoning roar of disapprobation which meets their primary endeavors to improve the condition of things around them. We must learn to labor and to wait. A. N. seems to compare with some complacency the state of school affairs to-day, with what it was twenty years ago, and closes his letter by surmising that there may still be room for improvement. This is the point to which I wish to say a few words. Progress has undoubtedly been made, and much credit is due to those who have effected even this much in the face of the blind and violent opposition; still my own opinion, founded upon actual observation, is, that there is still much room for improvement, both in our Common Schools and in our School Buildings, and that instead of being proud of, or even contented with the present state of affairs, we ought to be heartily ashamed of it. We are altogether behind the time. Look at the facts.

I will begin with our Common School Buildings. Now I suppose that it will generally be admitted that schools, like stores, workshops, manufactories, and the like, can be most effectively carried on in buildings especially built for and adapted to the several purposes to which they are applied. Practical men would, I think, tell us that all make shifts are usually not economical. The right thing will, in the end, save time and strength and money, and be far more effective. In other words we put it to the public Intelligence of Belleville whether Schools ought not to be carried on in School Houses. And yet how are they carried on here? One half of our Schools are still, after twenty years' progress, held in hired tenement houses. In fact we have six Schools and only three School Houses properly so called.

The best of these three make shifts is occupied by School No. 5 in the Grove, West Belleville. But even this is a long, narrow, low-celled room without means for ventilation, hot and close in summer, cold in winter—a dismal place to hold a school in.

School No. 6, the Girl's High School, Dundas Street, is held in what is simply a common tenement house without a room in it fitted for school purposes. It is cut up, of course, into small apartments, hard to ventilate and troublesome and expensive to warm. In winter the children sit mostly with their outside wrappings on, endeavouring vainly with fingers benumbed to use to advantage pencil or pen. Many times School has had to be dismissed soon after assembling, and numbers contracted rheumatism and dangerous colds. Every crevice must be closed to keep in the heat, and the atmosphere loaded and tainted with so many breaths and exhalations becomes sickening and full of headache and disease. The galleries (mere carricatures) are ill-constructed, almost necessarily so, in such low celled apartments, and as two stories of the building have to be used, there is such a getting up stairs and getting down again, and such a squeezing and filing through narrow door-ways as causes unavoidable disorder and wastes much valuable time. And there is no playground except that very objectionable one, especially for girls, the Street.

But the vilest monument of public indifference to the comfort, health, and interests of our little ones, is that memorable illustration of our civic economy, that unsightly, crazy wreck in the Hospital lot, School No. 4. I think that for the sake of cheering the hearts of some future reformers twenty years hence, a photograph of it ought to be taken before it tumbles to the ground. It is to be hoped that the pupils may not be in it at the time of the downfall. Cold and misery have driven the children out of the lower storey, and only the upper one is at present occupied. We trust that the occupants will soon be driven out of this also. To this we climb by means of a venerable flight of steps, constructed, I should suppose, not long after the early settlement of the town. We open the door and enter the room dedicated to the noble purpose of training the youthful mind, and what do we behold? A wretched attic, with low ceiling and cracked and grinning walls, forlorn, ricketty, aguish, mutilated desks and benches, stinking at every step which passes on the rough and splintered floor. And how the children contrive to write upon such tremulous concerns is somewhat of a mystery to a visitor's mind. A few ragged maps and a couple of rusty blackboards nearly complete the furniture of this ancient temple of science.

And then if we continue our rounds and examine the three school houses proper, we shall not see much to be proud of.

There is an intimate connection between the public buildings of a place and its public spirit; and the condition of our Common School houses is not a bad index to the state of the schools which are taughtin them, and to the degree of interest in Common School education which is in general taken by the community. There is a close relation between these things, somewhat like that between the body and the mind. Applying this criticism to school houses what is the result? We see in general a series of dirty, dingy, unwashed, unwhited, ill ventilated, inconveniently arranged, ill furnished structures, without any proper play ground, and utterly devoid of any attractive features. The school buildings of every spirited village are usually an ornament to it, ours are a disgrace.

I wished to say a few words about the financial working of our present mongrel school system into which the Trustees have, I believe been driven contrary to their better judgment; for it will be easy to demonstrate from figures, that the mode now pursued is as costly as it is ineffective. Let full information upon this subject be laid before the tax payers, and they will not much longer allow themselves to be led blindfold in the matter. It will not be difficult to point out the wretched defects of our present costly system, and the infatuation of multiplying our Ward Schools, or re-producing that blundering, though well intended compromise between the Ward and Central system, the enlargement of School No. 2. $2,000 have been sacrificed to a senseless popular cry, to say nothing of the Teachers' salaries; and if the tax payers are wise, they will say, That is enough, we have no more money to throw away. With your permission, I will on some future occasion say something about the actual condition, not only of our School Houses, but our Schools.

Yours truly, E. S.

P. S.—I reserve for a postscript a repulsive subject which must not be passed over in silence. The school out-buildings are a scandal and reproach, as outrage to the eyes and nose of any patriot who for the public good may venture, nostrils compressed, on tip-toe, with cautious tread, upon a voyage of exploration into regions which are not to be named, much less described to ears polite.

Business Notice.

Not many weeks ago a rich but childless landed proprietor breathed his last, leaving a large circle of relations to mourn his loss, and squable over their prospects of sharing his wealth. The day for reading the will at last came; the room was crowded with anxious expectants; the will was opened and to the inexpressible joy of all, the rich gentleman's relations found that to each of them had been bequeathed a case of Royal Italian Bitters.

Belleville, August 6th, 1869. 82-2w

Lackawanna Coal Agency.

HAVING on hand 200 tons Lackawanna Coal, Chestnut size, for Stoves, which the subscriber wishes to remove immediately from the Gas Works, he will take orders if sent in before the 10th instant, at $8.50 per ton at the yard, or $8.75 per ton delivered, although, as most people are probably well aware, Stove Coal is now worth at least $10, with the prospect of being still higher.

Persons intending to burn Coal and having the self feeding Stoves will do well to lay in their winter supply.

Terms—Bankable Funds, PAYABLE WHEN THE COAL IS ORDERED.

It is well known that the present high price of Coal has been produced by the Miners' strike. Work in the mines has been suspended for three and a half months, and a letter just received from one of the Companies states "Our Miners still hold out, refusing to work, and our stock of Coal is rapidly melting away, so that we shall soon be entirely without Coal."

THE LONDON PRESS ON CUBAN AFFAIRS.

LONDON, Aug. 6.—The seizure by the American Government of the gunpowder building for the Spanish Government at different points in the United States, has elicited the following from the London papers:—

The Morning Star (Radical organ) says that the American Government having exhibited vigor in favor of Spain by enforcing the neutrality laws, has now proceeded equally vigorously against Spain, and for the same cause.—The writer remarks the recognition of Cuba by Peru as ill advised, though spirited. In spite of all predictions, the Cuban insurgents seem to be able to hold their own. Whispers of the cession of Cuba to the United States are now louder than ever. The Americans have desired to come into possession of that island for the past twenty years. Now, the object of slavery having been removed, if a fair purchase can be effected, all parties may be satisfied with arrangements which will give another State to the American Union, and remove a great perplexity from the arena of Spanish politics.

The News concludes its article as follows:—"Considering all the circumstances which make it difficult for Europeans to keep hold of their unwilling colonies in America, and reflecting that Cuba is now in insurrection, Spain will be fortunate if $20,000,000 ever reaches Madrid as the price of Cuba."

FRANCE.

PARIS, Aug. 6.—The Emperor and Empress go to Chalons to-morrow, where they will remain until the 21st inst. The Empress will be absent about three months in her trip through Turkey and Egypt.

ILLNESS OF MARSHALL NIEL.

Marshall Niel is quite ill.

DUEL.

Yesterday a duel was fought between Paul de Cassagnac and Gustave Fleury. The latter received four wounds, one of them a severe one.

SPAIN.

MADRID, Aug. 6.—Nearly all the Carlist bands have dissolved and disappeared. The Carlists are discouraged and the movement is considered as having died out.

TURKEY.

PARIS, Aug. 6.—Difficulties between the Sultan and the Viceroy of Egypt are in a fair way of settlement. Nearly all the representatives of the Powers at Constantinople urged on the Sublime Porte the cause of conciliation and moderation.

ENGLISH MARKETS.

LONDON, Aug. 7, 1:30 p. m.—Consols for money 92¾; 5-20's 83¾; Erie 19¾; I. C. 94¾.

LIVERPOOL, Aug. 7, 1:30 p.m.—Red wheat 9s 7d to 9s 8d; White wheat 10s 10d; Lard 70s. Cotton steady; Uplands 12¾; Orleans 13¾; sales 12,000 bales; others unchanged.

American Despatches.

REPUDIATION.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—The Herald's Washington despatch says: Ex President Johnson in a speech of over three hours duration at Blountsville, Tenn., the last he made before the election in that State, took most open and unequivocal grounds in favor of national repudiation.—The Bondholders he said, had already received the amount of their investments. The greatest enthusiasm was manifested throughout the address.

ANOTHER GREAT FIRE.

The large Oilcloth Factory of Sampson, Eldon & Sons, at Columbusville, Long Island, was burned last night. Loss estimated from two to four million dollars.

A QUEER RUMOR.

The Tribune states it is widely rumored in Cuban circles that a deputation of native Cubans are now at the Court of Spain endeavoring to persuade that Government to sell the Island to the Insurgents.

Stock Market.

NEW ALBION HOTEL,

MCGILL STREET,

MONTREAL, CANADA.

THE "NEW ALBION HOTEL," the largest Hotel in Montreal, has just been opened under the most favorable auspices.

Whilst the "Old Albion" has been long noted for the strict attention paid to its numerous guests, the "New Albion" takes its position as a first class Hotel, and is really first class in every respect, except the charges, which better suit the ideas and requirements of the majority of travellers, than many of the so called, "first class Houses;" which deserve the title more through the amount of their charges than aught else.

Already the crowded state of the "New Albion" promises well for its future; everything associated with its construction has been carried out with artistic taste and systematic correctness.

The large Hall, commodious office, spacious Reading room, convenient Dining Coffee, Wash Room, etc., etc., on the ground floor; and the Reception Room and Suits of SPLENDIDLY FURNISHED and THOROUGHLY VENTILATED LADIES' PARLORS, on the second floor, will form no small luxury during the hot summer season. And, what is an exception to the general Rule in Hotels, the Bedrooms are all well ventilated and lighted, there not being a dark room in the House.

Being situated on the widest and healthiest Street in Montreal, commanding a Magnificent View of the River St. Lawrence and the Victoria Bridge on the left, and a full view of the Victoria Square with its numerous "Jets d'Eau" and Mount Royal on the right, it cannot fail to commend itself to the travelling public.

From its situation on McGill Street, the great thoroughfare and commercial centre of the City it cannot fail to be, as the "Old Albion" has always been a strong favorite with the Merchants of Canada.

Notwithstanding the very large outlay in building and furnishing the house, the old prices of $1 50 per day will not be departed from.

We, therefore, bespeak for ourselves a continuance of the patronage so liberally accorded to us during the past twelve years.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry.

Where this article is known it is a work of supererogation to say one word in its favor, so well is it established as an unfailing remedy for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping for Coughs, Asthma, Diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs, as well as for the relief and cure of Consumption, which high medical authority has pronounced to be an incurable disease. Those who have used this remedy know its value; those who have not, have but to make a single trial to be satisfied that of all others it is THE REMEDY.

THE REV. JACOB SECHLER,

well known and much respected among the German population of this country, writes as follows:

HANOVER, Pa., Feb. 16, 1859.

Messrs. S. W. Fowle & Son, Boston.

DEAR SIRS,—Having realized in my family important benefits from the use of your valuable preparation—Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry—it affords me pleasure to recommend it to the public. Some eight years ago, one of my daughters appeared to be in a decline, and little hopes of her recovery were entertained. I then procured a bottle of your excellent Balsam, and before it was used taken the whole of it there was a great improvement in her health. I have, in my individual case, made frequent use of your valuable medicine, and have always been benefited by it. I would, however, caution the public against imposition, because there is a good deal of spurious Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry' afoot throughout the country.

JACOB SECHLER.

Grace's Celebrated Salve.

From Mr. JAMES UNGER, OF AMHERST, MASS.

"I was afflicted with a severe felon on one of my fingers, and tried many remedies without relief. My friends induced me to apply your Salve. In two days it extracted the inflammation from my finger so as to enable me to resume my work. I can almost say that the Salve worked like magic, for it effected a cure without leaving a scar. I unhesitatingly pronounce 'Grace's Salve' an excellent remedy, and do not doubt it will be appreciated throughout the land." 25

Beautiful Island ! Pearl of the Sea !
Land of the Brave ! Home of the Free !
Refuge of Exiles ! Thy banner unfurled,
Streaming aloft to the gaze of the world,
None can outvie thee, to thee belong
The Peerless in Science, the matchless in Song.

Where the Grecian's conquest ended on the bank of Indus' stream,
Far beyond the Romans boundary, Britain's flag is to be seen,
Floating in the spicy breezes of old India's coral strand,
And her standard proudly crownth Asia's golden land,
Cape of Storms, and Ceylon's Isle, Helena's rock, Napoleon's grave,
Each, all behold the Red Cross wave.

Where the beaver builds its hut, where Lake Erie's torrent's roar,
From Quebec to Lake Superior, or the Coast of Labrador,
Where the constant Gulf Stream leaveth, where it sweeps for evermore,
Past Jamaica to Newfoundland, Prim Vista's ice bound shore,
Islands Windward, Hlands Leeward, Canada, and Hudson Bay,
British Columbia, Vancouver's Island, all alike that flag display.

On the Rock of Gibraltar, key of Europe's inland seas,
There St. George's emblem flutters gaily to the swelling breeze,
On the Damerara River, Sabelmandel's Coast,
Every nation, every climate, views Brittania's pride and boast.
East and West, North and South, kissed by every wind that blows,
Floats that glorious "Semper Eadem" the terror of our foes.

Beautiful Island ! Pearl of the Sea !
Land of the Brave ! Home of the Free !
Refuge of Exiles ! Thy banner's unfurled
Streaming aloft to the world,

BROOD MARES.—During the seventh and eighth months of the period of gestation, brood mares are more liable to lose their foals than at any other time. For this reason, after the sixth month has passed, every mare should be provided with a box stall, while she is in the stable, even if the partition between two stalls must be removed for such a purpose. Then the droppings should not be allowed to accumulate so as to render the surface uneven and disagreeable when she lies down. A little worrying by a disagreeable driver, a little neglect about watering and feeding, often result in slinking of the foal.—Hearth and Home.

COW LEAKING HER MILK.—A subscriber asks, "What will prevent a cow from leaking her milk ?" We have seen it prevented by placing an India rubber ring around the teat after milking. Another remedy common with dairymen is to milk such cows three times a day until the teats gain sufficient to hold the milk from morning until evening. Another very successful and simple way is to apply a small quantity of collodion to the end of the teat immediately after milking. This forms at once a thin tough membrane of skin, which will prevent leakage and is easily removed before milking. It may be had of the druggists.

—Otto Vogel's Submarine Steamship, the plans of which have been approved by the Prussian admiralty, is covered with strong plating, is entirely below the surface of the sea, with the exception of the deck, which is surrounded by a vaulted iron roof of immense strength. Beneath this covering heavy guns are placed, so that the whole greatly resembles a first-rate iron-clad. It is said that besides all the advantages of such men-of-war, the new ship may be entirely submerged, and in this position is so completely under command that it can outwait or a storm or attack an engagement with submarine cannon and torpedoes. Vogel is now engaged in constructing a large model 24 feet in length.

—An Iowa town gets ahead of all other places in the world by having a shower of gravel, the pebbles ranging from the size of a pigeon shot to that of a hen's egg.

THOUSANDS OF PROMISING YOUTHS, of both sexes, go down to untimely graves, from general debility and weakness, who might be saved by fortifying their systems with Iron. The Peruvian Syrup is an Iron Tonic prepared expressly to supply this vitalizing element, and is the only preparation of Iron that will assimilate at once with the blood.

BRYAN'S WAVERS.—The great public remedy, have now been in use over twenty years, hence it cannot be said that they are on trial. They have been thoroughly tried and pronounced to be a sure, harmless and eminently salutary preparation, and if taken in season will invariably cure coughs, colds, sore throat, and all Bronchial affections. One fair trial will convince the most skeptical. Sold by all medicine dealers, at 25 cents per box.

ACCIDENT.—There was an explosion in Doct. Ayer's Laboratory, yesterday, which caused some excitement in the vicinity. Ayer's Pills are manufactured under an enormous pressure, in cylinders, like cannon, which sometimes prove too weak for the compressed forces, and burst with terrific violence. Fortunately, the pieces do not fly far, so that no one has ever been hurt by them. The action is more like too much powder; but it makes Pills which all the world acknowledge are Pills. [Daily Journal, Lowell.

PRINCE OF WALES.—The Prince of Wales will now, thanks to the skillful and vigilant management of his father, enjoy in peace the enjoyment of an income of $250,000 a year, and a half million of ready money from the revenues of the Duchy of Cornwall. This is a nice little sum of money for an annual dividend, but with all this vast amount of money which will be under his control, it will not go so far as to relieve rheumatism, pains in the side and back, tooth ache, burns, bruises, frost-bites, &c., as a bottle of the "Canadian Pain Destroyer," which is sold by all Medicine Dealers, at the low price of 25cts per bottle.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys, is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Inveterate cases of Scrofulous disease, when the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Even running sores and bad disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulous contamination, until the system is literally one mass of corruption, have been radically cured by it. Erysipelas, Eruptions and Pimples on the face, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sores and Ulcers, and other manifestations of the impurities of the blood, are literally driven out of the system by it. Mercurial disease, and that more dreadful scourge, Consumption, which mercury originates, are counteracted by it, if taken in time. Indeed, so complete is its conquest over the taint of scrofula, that the most obstinate of its victims yield to it. When nothing else could reach the disease, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally is this understood, that we need not publish the certificates of those who know that we assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marshy, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Bismuth, Zinc, nor any other mineral or dangerous substance whatever, it in noways injures any patient, no matter how old or feeble. Those who have suffered the tortures of the ague dreadful enough, but the after consequences, and we believe it produces more real misery than all other diseases put together. Our pride is gratified by the acknowledgments we receive of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and the many other remedies have wholly failed. Disacclimated persons, either resident in, or travelling through miasmatic localities, will be protected by taking the AGUE CURE daily.

For Fever, Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy action.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy. Many cases have been remarkable cures, where other medicines had failed.

QUERY?

Should we employ the mute doctors to bring us our tea and coffee in bottles, at an expense of at least four times what they now cost ?

If not, why should we longer adopt that system in regard to the more precious articles, as the active extracts of herbs or plants and roots, and are as readily prepared as tea and coffee ?

Each package of Dr. Thompson's Botanic Medicines contains the same medical properties that are prepared in any other form for four times the amount of money.

We have no use for other recommendations than to the practicability of, as well as the benefits derived from the use of Dr. Thompson's Botanic Medicines, viz :

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its virtues in character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for confirmed consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the lungs and throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach the disease, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthful and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those pernicious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required and relied upon as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as the mild but efficient purgative pills. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other which has been discovered. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them ; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all who take it are cured. It does all and more than is claimed for it. The obvious consequence is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other which has been discovered. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them ; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all who take it are cured. It does all and more than is claimed for it. The obvious consequence is, that it has a more general and wider use as a purgative than any other medicine in the world, and is in more constant demand by those who know what good pills are. Hundreds of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, of such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and constitutions, all climates, containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Purging is their least effect. Sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable they cannot harm from any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting disorder of the system, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills speedily cure :

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Low Spirits, arising from a torpid state of the stomach, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Foul Stomach, they should be taken as a purgative, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice, or Gastric Derangement, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each disease, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence in its often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels generally well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

OR TONICO REALE.

Del Dottore F. P. Verri, Prof. of Chemistry in the of Univerrity Padua, Italy.

THIS Celebrated Preparation—for which a Certificate of Merit was awarded to the original proprietor at the Great Exhibition at Torino, Italy, by whose favor Mr. Gianelli obtained the Recipe, and was also awarded a Diploma at the Provincial Exhibition of Canada, held at Montreal in September, 1865, is without exception, the most Genuine, Salubrious and agreeable Tonic ever introduced to public notice either in Europe or America.

For seventeen years it has, in Italy, been a universal favorite among the élite of society, being generally served up at the Dining Room immediately before dinner, in preference to Vermouth.

☞ The ingredients of its composition have been imparted to the leading Physicians of Montreal, and have received their unqualified approval on every account.

Comets.

It is needless to dwell here upon the numerous varieties and peculiarities in the lengths and positions of the tails of different comets; it will suffice to say that in a general way the telescopic aspect is that of a quantity of vapor escaping from the nucleus toward the sun, and then carried directly behind the comet, as if by a repulsive force emanating from the sun, some times for a distance of myriads of leagues, thus forming a tail. Hence, in whatever direction the comet is moving, the tail is turned away from him, the furthest end being curved backwards, just as a flexible rod or feather would be if whirled rapidly round one extremity. Now, the great difficulty lies in conceiving the possible constitution of a body which can deport itself in the way we have been describing. We should imagine that it must sweep away planets in its wild gyrations. We hardly regard it as ridiculous that Whiston should have gravely maintained that it was by a whisk of one of these tails that the deluge was brought about and calculated the particular comet which caused that catastrophe. However, everything goes to prove that these comets are huge impostors—head and tail alike—and are the most vapory, windy bodies conceivable; so much so, that it is no exaggeration to say that the tail, with all its millions and billions of miles, might if properly packed up and stowed away, travel by a continental passenger train, and cost nothing in the way of extra luggage. This has been long known, and Sir John Herschel sees no difficulty in conceiving that the tail of a great comet, as, for instance, that of 1680, with its twenty millions of leagues, might weigh only a few pounds or even ounces. This tenuity of constitution is proved in many ways; partly by the disturbances and deviations caused in a comet's motion by the approach to any other body; and partly again by the fact that stars have been seen to shine with undiminished lustre, alike through their heads and tails—stars which would be utterly obscured by a few feet of ordinary terrestrial mist. But, granting any amount of tenuity, it is hard to conceive such an extended mass whirled half round in two hours, and retaining its continuity. Sir John Herschel, therefore, ventured upon a conception involving the total absence of matter altogether—suggesting the hypothesis of a negative shadow; and an original thinker, speculating upon the last big comet of 1858, announced the discovery in the papers that comets were worlds of fire, most probably suffering the punishment of their wickedness; and that the light proceeding from the conflagration was invisible where the sun's rays penetrated, but was seen in the shadow cast by the head, thus producing the tail—an idea involving, among other absurdities, the necessity of all the planets appearing with black tails behind them.—Chamber's Journal.

A Marvellous Mendicant.

The London Daily News is responsible for the following story. It is, at all events, well told:

'Many strange stories are told of the wealth accumulated by blind beggars, and Paris seems to be their paradise. It is a thriving trade this blindness, and two pretty stories have just now turned up together. One is of a pretended blind man, who has found out a new method of picking pockets. He walks the streets with the sad upturned visage of a blind man till he comes to a crowded crossing, where he gives every token of being afraid to cross. He appeals to the passengers to take pity on him and help him in his difficulty. Some charitable creature takes his arm and leads him across. He is thanked by the poor blind man; he goes on his way feeling that he has done a kind deed; and the next time he puts his hand into his pocket for his watch he finds that it is gone.

'The other story is of a really blind man, who is always to be found ensconced in a gateway on the Boulevard Sebastopol, nearly opposite the Square des Arts et-Metiers. A certain Parisian often passes that way, and was in the habit of giving him a penny—a two-sous piece; but the other day by mistake he dropped into the poor fellow's hat a double louis of forty francs. Some time afterwards he discovered his mistake, and off he ran to the Boulevard Sebastopol to get back his money.—No beggar was there, but in his place a cripple. 'Where is the blind man?' said the benevolent man. 'Do you mean Monsieur Benjamin?' replied the cripple. 'He has just gone—he has gone to to his house to breakfast.' 'Is it far?' 'Only a couple of steps in the Rue du Petit Carreau.' Away went the inquirer to the address indicated, which he soon found.—'Monsieur Benjamin here?' he says to the concierge. 'All right; second floor; door to the right,' was the answer. He mounted the stairs, rang at the door. A nicely dressed servant came to open it. 'Monsieur Benjamin in?' 'Yes, sir;' our friend is shown into an elegant ante-room, through which one could see into a dining-room, where there was a table admirably appointed with fine white linen, crystal and silver. It seemed as if there must be an error; but there was little time to consider; the maid came quickly to say that Monsieur Benjamin would be glad to see his visitor, and at the same instant she opened the door of an apartment furnished in Turkish fashion, in which the blind man, smiling, was seen seated on a divan. 'You wished to speak to me?' he said. 'Yes, indeed, sir,' replied our friend, rather embarrassed; 'I am very sorry to trouble you, but the fact is—I believe—I rather think—that in passing along the Boulevard Sebastopol this morning, I gave you by mistake two louis for two sous.' The blind man said, with the utmost coolness, 'That is quite possible; I have not looked at the cash yet; and if there is a mistake, nothing is easier than to rectify it.' He rang a bell, which was answered by the maid. 'Ask Mr. Ernest,' he said, 'if in the receipts of this morning he has found a piece of forty francs.' The piece was there; the maid fetched it, and, at the bidding of her master, presented it on a tray of Chinese lac to his visitor. The visitor pounced upon his coin, and without more ado proceeded to take leave. 'Pardon, sir,' said the blind man, 'you forget something—there are two sous to return me.'

Red River News.

We extract the following from the Nor' Wester of the 17th ultimo:

Governor McTavish has not yet arrived from the Norway House. He is expected daily.

Mr. John Higgins, of this place, from St. Paul, and a number of Canadian families have passed on to the Portage.

In the gardens the onions, cabbages, beets, carrots, potatoes, &c., are looking well and promise a fine crop of vegetables for winter use.

Mr. Cecil Graham late from England, arrived by the way of the Lake Superior with canoe. He is now stopping at Fort Garry, and intends taking a trip into the interior for the purpose of seeing our country.

The price per pound for wool varies in Ontario from 1s 2d to 1s 6d. It would even command a higher value in this Settlement, and we repeat our assertions in our last number, that our farmers could not do better than to engage in the growth of wool as largely as possible.

Our roads and streets are in a delightful state of muddiness. Specimens of the sod are alternately lifted by the pedestrians, size nearly as large as a peck or a half-a-bushel more or less. We don't think Canadians will be bothered a great deal in this way before they look out for some gravel and stone to macadamize the roads.

We have been blest during the last three days with copious showers of rain. This was much needed, as owing to the dry weather of the last few weeks the crops, and especially the gardens, were beginning to suffer. Everything looks bright now, however, and if present appearances are to be depended upon, Red River will this year show an astonishing crop, especially of the cereals.

—Paris has in her midst a generous miser, about whom Figaro relates the following anecdote. He met in other day a little street harper, who begged him to give him something. Give me a few sous kind sir, I have no change. The little harper repeated his request. Let me see, could I give him something. After a moment's reflection his face brightened and he exclaimed: Nobody shall say that I let a poor boy pass without giving him something. So saying he offered the boy a pinch of snuff.

Mistakes will happen, but a little presence of mind and a good deal of audacity will sometimes get a person out of an awkward position. A London paper tells the following anecdote in point—Two youths were speaking to each other in a crowded ball room. 'Oh, look at that old man, what a ridiculous head he has got,' says one. 'I beg pardon, it happens to be my father,' says the other. Replies the first: 'Indeed, that is your most respected father? Well, could you see mine—it is quite another affair—he is twenty times more ridiculous.' The two laughed, shook hands and understood each other perfectly.

A little darkey was recently found sitting on the step of a fashionable house crying pitifully. 'What's de matter wid you?' asked a colored woman. 'Dar's matter nuff—trouble all dere de house. Fadder am drunk—mudder am gone wid some close—sis broke de lookin glass wid de broomstick—de baby got her eyes full of kyan pepper, and little Ned Anthony put de mustard on his hair for goose greese. I put salt in my tea for white sugar, and it made me sick. De dog licked Ned's face and got his mouth full of mustard and lies under de bed a howlin. De kitten got her head in de milk pot, and I cut head off to save de pitcher, and den I had to break de pitcher to get de head out; and de way I'll get liked when mudder comes home for setting de bed afire will be a sin.

From the Oil Regions.

The oil business is looking up, and we are glad to hear such cheering accounts of the prospects in the Enniskillen regions. The Free Press says :—

"The successful treatment and shipment of Canadian petroleum is having a marked influence on the development of Petrolia. More attention is being paid to the rig and working of the wells ; matters are looked more closely after, and the result is that the product is increasing. In addition to this, a great many wells are going down, and considerable enquiry is afoot for new territory by those who contemplate sinking fresh holes Besides this, the oil interest has got fairly out of the distressing condition it was once in. Men of capital have got hold of the interest at both ends, and, as a necessary consequence, matters are being pushed. There will be no further halting ; no more depressed spirits and long faces—to say nothing of empty pockets. The Canadian oil enterprise is now upon a safe, because a legitimate basis and all that remains to be done, is to punch more holes, pump up more oil, erect more refineries, make more barrels, ship more burning oil and yet more again. The world is as large as it is round, and the burning oils of this continent are now being sought after by all populations that are even one remove above barbarism. The Canadian oil territory appears to be inexhaustible, and the oil in its manufactured state burns longer, looks and smells better than even the best Pennsylvanian, and cannot explode under any ordinary circumstances. We fully expect to see the attention of more United States firms direct, ed to Canada as the best field for oil enterprise.

A correspondent of the Wyoming News Letter gives the following report of what is going on at Petrolia :

Nothing very exciting has taken place during the past week, and as a consequence, nothing very extraordinary must be looked for from your Petrolia correspondent. Well, to begin with, Mr. Stacy B. Hill's well, which I noticed last week, has been gradually falling off in its production, and now averages only about ten barrels daily.

Mr. Bennet has finished his well and commenced testing it, but finds that the 2½ inch pump which he is at present working is to small to materially reduce the water supply ; so he has taken steps to get a 3 inch pump instead. He is very sanguine that his well will turn out a good one as soon as the machinery to work her properly is introduced.

Mr. Harry Prince has just brought up from Bothwell a forty-horse power engine ; he intends with this to pump his well and take away the engine he has been using, it being considered too small. The new engine was built by Thomas, of Hamilton, and is in my judgement, capable of pumping any two wells in the place.

Mr. Noble has again been adding to his already large investments in the oil territory. This week he has bought the two wells owned by Captain Tyler & Co., and this last purchase makes him the owner of no less then 21 good paying wells.

Mr. Lawson has commenced building a " rig " northwest from the Kingston well. This is the only new well commenced this week.

The productions of the wells this week has not been quite so large as last week, the estimation from the most reliable sources being 800 barrels daily. Producers are sanguine of a rise in the price of oil in the fall, and as quotations from foreign markets are at present higher and stocks peing held firm, there is every prospect that they will not be disappointed.

The market for refined oil is becoming more active. The price has advanced to 20 cents per gallon, with prospects of a further rise. Estern dealers are anxious to make contracts with refiners for if they can manufacture within the next two months. Nearly all the refiners are working to the full extent of their capacity, and with the new processes many of them are working by, there is no doubt but very soon our oil will take a firmer stand on the foreign markets. As the oil resources are developing more and more every year, it will be to the interest of the manufacturer to spare no pains in making a quality of oil that will sell in any market of the world.

From Red River.

The Advertiser says the Rev. Dr. Davidson, of Aylmer, passed through London last Wednesday night on his return from Red River, and reports that eighty miles south of Fort Garry he met the grasshoppers in dense clouds flying northwards, and if they reach the Red River this season the destitution there will be even greater than last year. But Mr. Davidson hopes that they have not got to that quarter, from the fact that the next day after he met them the wind changed round to the north, and continued from that quarter for three or four days, and it is a well known fact that the grasshoppers never fly against the wind. The Rev. Dr. reports very favourably of the country—its fertile and inexhaustible soil and equable climate. He has brought samples of wheat and pemican with him ; the former a very fine sample, and the latter very good food, we dare say, but rather strong for our Canadian stomach.

We are rejoiced to see that most of our Canadian Exchanges are getting quite lively over the Pacific Railway question. They deem it to be the only expedient way to open out and develop this Territory properly. They are quite right, and we advise them to continue with us in pounding away at the question. Capitalists and Government will yet get warmed up through the process.

BELLEVILLE, MONDAY, AUG. 9.

HOGS.—A train of thirty double decked cars of hogs passed east on the Grand Trunk Railway this forenoon.

EXCURSION.—The Excursion of the season comes off Wednesday next under the auspices of the W. M. Ladies Aid Society. See their advertisement in another column.

INWARDS.—The steamer Moravian passed Father Point inwards on Saturday evening at 9:14, with 63 cabin and 596 steerage passengers.

QUEEN'S COLLEGE.—We remind our readers of the public meeting to be held this evening in St. Andrew's Church, in connection with the scheme for the endowment of Queen's College. Principal Snodgrass and Professor Mackerras will address the meeting in explanation of the nature and object of the scheme, and will give some account of the remarkable success which has hitherto attended the movement.

THE ST. GEORGE'S EXCURSION.—The Excursion to Portland under the auspices of St. George's Society has not been so successful as anticipated. Only about twenty-five left here by train to-day, but this number will be added to at Shannonville, Napanee and other Stations, so that the party will consist of about fifty persons. To those who desire to avail themselves of this cheap and desirable trip it may be stated that tickets will be good by any train until to-morrow night, and to return will be good until August 24th.

DENIAL.—The liberated Fenian McMahon writes a letter to the British Whig denying the authorship of the letter copied from the New York Tablet, and further states that Bishop Horan never offered him a Parish. How did the Whig obtain its information respecting the Parish business ? It was in that paper the announcement was first made that McMahon had been offered a Parish, and as it seemed to be an authorized announcement, it was generally believed to be true. If that was not correct, what reliance can be placed upon the statement that McMahon had never left Kingston ? While McMahon was about it why did he not deny that he had left Kingston in company with Bishop Horan ?

Deaf and Dumb Institution.

The following account of the proceedings of a meeting of the workmen connected with the Deaf and Dumb Institution, has been handed us for publication :—

On Saturday last a meeting of the operatives was held at the Institution to enquire what steps had been taken in relation to laying the corner stone. After some discussion it was understood that the Town and County Council having failed to take the necessary steps, it was resolved that a Committee be formed at once to take the matter in hand. By a vote of the meeting the following gentlemen were appointed to act.

COMMITTEE—Messrs. P. F. Canniff, J. Nicholson, P. Horrigan, James Johnson, J. Ling, C. Doran, R. S. Conklin, Secretary.

A subscription was then taken up amounting to $130, and the meeting adjourned till 8:30 in the evening.

In the evening Mr Canniff having been appointed Chairman, the following resolutions were submitted and adopted.

Moved by Mr. Nicholson and seconded by Mr. J. Johnson, That the citizens who desire to unite with us be requested to do so.

Moved by Mr. Nicholson, and seconded by Mr. Ling, That the Freemasons be requested to take charge of and lay the corner stone, and that an invitation be extended to them at once.

Moved by Mr. Horrigan, and seconded by Mr. Ling, That the Firemen of the Town of Belleville be invited, and the invitation be extended to their guests who are expected from Oswego.

Moved by Mr. Johnson, and seconded by Mr. Conklin, that a platform be raised to accommodate the Ladies and others who wish to partake in our amusements.

Moved by Mr. Horrigan, and seconded by Mr. Nicholson, That all the clergymen of Belleville be invited to unite with us, and also the Principal of the Deaf and Dumb Institution at Hamilton.

Moved by Mr. Ling, and seconded by Mr. Nicholson, That Mrs. Crowther, and the Ladies of Belleville be requested to commemorate the occasion by appropriate vocal music.

Moved by Mr. Nicholson, and seconded by Mr. Ling, That the head musicians of every religious denomination be invited to take part in the proceedings of the day.

Moved by Mr, Johnson, and seconded by Mr. Doran, That the members of the press of Belleville be invited to attend, and unite with us.

Moved by Mr. Horrigan, and seconded by Mr. Johnson, That a proper case be prepared for the reception of such matter as copies of the daily press, records of the institution and the current coin, &c.

Moved by Mr. Nicholson, and seconded by Mr. Horigan, That an invitation be extended to the Engineer, (Mr. Kivas Tully), Mr. Price and the Contractors.

Moved by Mr. Horrigan, and seconded by Mr. Nicholson, That the proceedings of this meeting be advertised in the Daily Intelligencer and Weekly Chronicle.

We understand that the ceremony of laying the Corner Stone will take place on Thursday, the 19th of August, at 2 o'clock, p. m. On the same day the Firemen of Oswego are to visit Belleville.

The Eclipse.

This anxiously looked for phenomenon appeared according to announcement. The first contact took place here at seven minutes to five o'clock. The sky was almost cloudless, the day's business was pretty much closed up, and as the performance had been liberally and extensively advertised, and as it was a free exhibition, all the world and his wife were to see it. The streets were crowded with young urchins and old urchins, the housetops were covered with anxious gazers, and the loftiest eminences were taken possession of by enthusiastic astronomers who wanted to be as near as possible to the great luminary. Every one had his piece of smoked glass, and some tried the perforated card which a New York paper had so highly recommended, but it wouldn't work. The smoked glass, however, answered every purpose, and the sun was about the only object that could be seen clearly by looking through a glass darkby Mr. Ackerill, had his new telescope, (a powerful instrument which that gentleman lately brought from England) on the hill in front of the English Church, and through his kindness a large number were permitted to view the eclipse with that instrument. The greatest observation was about 5:45, and the eclipse ended about 6:40.

During the progress of the eclipse a marked change in the state of the atmosphere was observable. A peculiar yellow hue, which is generally the companion of a brilliant sunset, seemed to cover everything the eye rested upon ; and the pleasant degree of heat which previously existed, suddenly changed into a coldness seldom experienced during this season of the year, and at such an hour in the day.

That the great solar eclipse of 1869, now past, has been a subject of great importance to astronomers, and will so continue to be for some time to come, has been demonstrated by the lively interest taken therein, the result of which will be, we have no doubt, an increased knowledge in matters pertaining to the great luminary, the centre of the solar system.

News Condensed.

—The Boston 'Advertiser' says that Mr. King made $250,000 in greenbacks by his recent 'spec' on the New York gold market.

—About 30 oxen and 1,322 sheep were received at Boston, from Canada, last cattle market week. One or two lots of selected Canada lambs sold at $5 a head.

—The London 'Field' tells how a sheep-killing dog was cured of his bad habit by tying him between two rams and letting the triple team loose in the field. There dragged poor Boss around on the run till all three were dead tired, and the cure was complete.

—The Springfield 'Republican' says the workmen at the end of the Hoosac Tunnel have unexpectedly struck a vein of soft rock, of the mica slate order, which is quite easily pried off without blasting. If this sort of rock extends for any considerable distance, the contractors, the Messrs. Shanley, will be saved a great deal of money.

—General O'Neill and two or three other leading Fenians made a strong appeal to the faithful of Brooklyn two or three days ago with the object of getting them to enlist in a local Fenian Regiment, but notwithstanding their promise that they would soon lead them to meet the foe, only 28 of the 300 present came forward and signed the rolls.

—A correspondent of the Boston 'Traveller,' who is afflicted with a mathematical turn of mind, computes that the amount of whiskey lately destroyed in Philadelphia (40,000 barrels) would have made 64,000,000 'straight' drinks ; and at 15 cents a glass the whole would amount to $960,000,000, or a sum sufficient to extinguish more than one-third the national debt.

—The winner of the Queen's prize at Wimbledon this year and in 1866, Angus Cameron, is a native of, and a dweller in, the village of Kingussie, the capital of Badenoch. He is not yet twenty-three years of age, and has, ever since leaving school, assisted an elder brother in the management of a modest 'general shop.' It is pleasant to add that his 'plunder' taken from Wimbledon in 1866 enabled Angus to go into partnership with his brother.

—George W. Kirkland, formerly of Bucyrus, Ohio, married, on the 1st inst., Miss Mollie E. Brown, of Atlantic City, Wyoming territory. The wedding was the first ever solemnized in Atlantic City, and the wedding cards were the best and the only ones on the market. They were a very superior article of playing cards. On the ace of hearts was written, 'Mr. and Mrs. Dr. James Irwin, at home, Thursday evening, July 1, 1869. Ceremony at 9 o'clock.' On the king of hearts was written the name of George W. Kirkland, and on the queen of hearts, the name of the bride, Mollie E. Brown.

—A telegram from Montreal dated August 7th says :—Before 9 o'clock last evening a fatal affray took place at No. 14 Queen street. The house was occupied by the wife and family of Adolphe Belanger, including a grown up daughter. Belanger himself had not lived with his family for a year or two, and Louis Labonte, a foreman in Tate's dry dock was in the habit of visiting his wife, and an improper intimacy is said to have existed between them. Yesterday evening Belanger found Labonte with his wife, though he had warned him against continuing to visit the house. Words arose, followed by blows, and Labonte being knocked down, was kicked by Belanger, and apparently died almost instantly. The jury returned a verdict of wilful murder.

American Despatches.

THE ECLIPSE.

SHELLYVILLE, Ky., Aug. 7.—Observations here to-day were very satisfactory. One of the most important discoveries were made by Prof. Winlock, it was eleven bright lines in the spectrum of protuberances of the sun, only five having heretofore been determined. He also observed a shower of meteors between the earth and the moon. Photographs of the sun were taken at different times during the partial observations, and beautiful red or solar protuberances were visible to the naked eye. Arteurus, Vega, Venus and Mercury, were visible to the naked eye during the total phase.

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—The eclipse at Springfield was a startling and sublime phenomena. One hundred photographs of the eclipse were taken when the total observation took place. Heaven and earth presented a scene of awful sublimity, brilliant amber colored corona appeared around the sun and moon, shooting rays of lights outward in all directions when the whole horizon was illuminated with a light of the same color.

News from Europe.

THE FENIAN PRISONERS.

LONDON, Aug. 7.—In the House of Commons Mr. Moore, member for Tipperary, inquired as to the course of the Government in regard to the Fenian prisoners.

Mr. Bruce replied that O'Donovan and Rossa were subjected to punishment which strict discipline and their misconduct required. The treatment, however, was not unnecessarily severe.

Mr. Maguire, member for Cork, appealed to the Government to extend clemency to the Fenians.

THE YACHT SQUADRON.

LONDON, Aug. 7.—A grand dinner was given to the members of the Yacht Squadron at Cowes Castle yesterday. James G. Bennett and many others were present. Mr. Bennett's yacht Dauntless remained at anchor yesterday, declining to enter the contest.

THE AMERICAN CONSUL AT GLASGOW.

LONDON, Aug. 7.—The British Government has refused to grant an exequator to James Haggerty, appointed Consul of the United States at Glasgow. The Government base the refusal on the ground that Haggarty was connected with the Fenian movement.

THE BRITISH AMERICAN BOUNDARIES.

LONDON, Aug. 7.—In the Commons last evening, Vicount Milton made inquiry respecting the boundaries between the United States and the British possessions.

Mr. Otway replied that the land question was already settled. With regard to the water boundaries, Earl Russell had, in 1869, proposed that the matter be referred for Arbitration. The United States Government agree to this proposal, but negotiations were interrupted by the breaking out of war. In October last the American Government renewed the proposition for arbitration and a convention was signed which now awaits the ratification of the Senate.

PROPOSED CABLE.

The prospectus of the West Indies and Panama Telegraph Company has been issued.—The design is to connect South America with Europe and the United States by cable from Cuba to Central America.

HUDSON BAY TERRITORY.

A complete Government for the Hudson Bay Territory will soon be formed. Hon. Mr. McDougall will probably be appointed Lieutenant-Governor, and Mr. Rose Minister of Finance.

ARRIVAL.

Marquis de la Vellette has arrived in London.

THE KENIAN PRISONERS.

DUBLIN, Aug. 7.—The Freeman, referring to the statement made by Mr. Bruce, Home Secretary in the House of Commons, concerning the treatment of the Fenian prisoners, says it has reason to believe that he has been misled by prison officials into justifying the treatment of the prisoner Rossa. New facts are known, and will be the subject of further investigation, which will show that the severities practiced upon him have been concealed.

THE INTERNATIONAL BOAT RACE.

LONDON, Aug. 7.—The Oxford crew is expected at Putney on Wednesday. The new boat for the Oxfords' has arrived. It is 42 feet long.

The Harvard crew were out last evening. Their speed is greater than ever.

PUZZLING QUESTIONS.—The Uppingham School Magazine, a very amusing and well written periodical, got up by the boys at Uppingham School, gives in the number for June a capital skit on the style of 'Examination Papers' frequently presented for the fortune of pupils. We select one or two examples, which our friends may work out in their leisure ; Supposing the River Ganges to be three cubits in breadth (which it isn't), what is the average height of the Alps, stocks being at 91½ ? If in autumn apples cost 4d a pound in London, and potatoes a shilling a score in spring, when will greengages be sold in Paris at 1½d, each, Spanish oranges being at a discount of five per cent ? If two men can kill two brace of partridges in going up the right side of a rectangular turnip field, how many would be killed by five men and a terrier pup in going down the other side ? If a man is 6 ft. 4 in. in height, while sitting on a three legged stool, took 4 pints of milk out of every 15 cows, what was the size of the field in which the animals grazed, and what the girl's name and age ? If 30,000,000,000 human beings have lived since the beginning of the world, how many may we safely say will die before the end of it ? N. B.—This example to be worked out by Simple Substraction, Algebra, and the Rule of Three. Compare results.

Business Notice.

Not many weeks ago a rich but childless landed proprietor breathed his last, leaving a large circle of relations to mourn his loss, and equable over their prospects of sharing his wealth. The day for reading the will at last came ; the room was crowded with anxious expectants ; the will was opened and to the inexpressible joy of all, the rich gentleman's relations found that to each of them had been bequeathed a case of Royal Italian Bitters.

The Western Powers are likely to put pressure on the disputants that will make Ismael yield, and the Sublime Porte expresses satisfaction.

THE DUEL.

The 'Times' to-day has an article on the duel yesterday between Paul Cassagnac and Gustave Flourins. It concludes as follows:—If better days are in store for France, and if the Emperor is really bent on opening a fair field for political contests, we should look for the gradual and final discontinuance of appeals to the sword, which only escapes being ridiculous when absolutely atrocious.

A DECREE.

MADRID, Aug. 8.—In anticipation of the clergy assisting in an attempted rising of the Carlists, Minister Sconla has promulgated a decree, ordering the Bishops to issue a circular to the Clergy of their respective Dioceses, recommending obedience to the laws, and threatening to withdraw the power to preach, and hear confession from all who are hostile to these requirements.

FROM FRANCE.

PARIS, Aug. 8.—It is rumored in Cairo, that Ismael Pasha will go to Constantinople in obedience to the demand of the Sultan. The Committee of the Senate has accepted the first article of the Senator's consultum. The disposition of the Senate is favorable to the project. An Imperial decree appoints Admiral Rigault de Genouily to the charge of the Ministry of War, during the illness of Marshal Nell.

A SPECK OF WAR.

FLORENCE, Aug. 8.—The correspondence Italienne, announces that the English squadron has sailed from the Bay of Naples, for Malta, where it will soon be joined by the Atlantic squadron. This assembling of the English Naval forces is intended to prevent, in case of need, hostilities between Turkey and Egypt.

EMPEROR NAPOLEON.

PARIS, Aug. 8.—The Emperor will leave for the camp of Chalons on the 12th inst. The departure of the Empress, for the East is fixed for the 24th inst.

ETIQUETTE.

LONDON, Aug. 8.—Advices read from Auckland, to June the 1st, state that the Duke of Edinburgh sailed without according an interview to the King. The latter in consequence had refused to see the Governor of Cologne.

EARTHQUAKE.

A severe shock of earthquake visited the Islands on the 5th of May. No lives were lost.

THE HARVARD CREW.

LONDON, Aug. 9.—The Saturday Review in an article on the International boat race says: If the Harvard crew can show anything new in rowing we shall be glad to see it; it also proves able to relieve the monotony of the Oxford success; we think Oxford herself will be grateful for it. The resolution to surrender the peculiarities of our own system and accept only conditions under which it was possible to make the match, cannot be estimated too highly, at the same time the Harvard's made a great concession in taking a cox-swain and the boldness with which they challenged the Oxford's on their own grounds, deserves sympathy and admiration. The writer concludes by hoping that the treatment of the American boatmen during their visit, will be such as to encourage its expedition. Notwithstanding previous reports, the date of the race has not been finally decided upon.

FROM AUSTRIA.

VIENNA, Aug. 8.—In the discussion of the Hungarian delegation yesterday M. Cresigy, on the part of the Government, presented an analysis of its foreign policy, and declared it was dictated by a desire to preserve and develope the interests of peace and liberty and to maintain harmony with east and west, but as such policy had not always been received with the spirit in which it was conceived, it could not show equal success every where. The Hungarian delegation finally adopted all the items of the Budget of the Minister of Foreign Affairs. This is considered as a strong manifestation of confidence in the policy of Baron Von Beust.

NEW ALBION HOTEL,

McGILL STREET,

MONTREAL, CANADA.

THE "NEW ALBION HOTEL," the largest Hotel in Montreal, has just been opened under the most favorable auspices.

Whilst the "Old Albion" has been long noted for the strict attention paid to its numerous guests, the "New Albion" takes its position as a first class Hotel, and is really, first class in every respect, except the charges, which better suit the ideas and requirements of the majority of travelers, than many of the so called, "first class Houses;" which deserve the title more through the amount of their charges than aught else.

Already the crowded state of the "New Albion" promises well for its future career; everything associated with its construction has been carried out with artistic taste and systematic correctness.

The large Hall, commodious office, spacious Reading room, convenient Dining, Coffee, Wash Room, etc., etc., on the ground floor; and the Reception Room and Suits of SPLENDIDLY FURNISHED and THOROUGHLY VENTILATED LADIES' PARLORS, on the second floor, will form no small luxury during the hot summer season. And, what is an exception to the general Rule in Hotels, the Bedrooms are all well ventilated and lighted, there not being a dark room in the House.

Being situated on the widest and healthiest Street in Montreal, commanding a Magnificent View of the River St. Lawrence and the Victoria Bridge on the left, and a full view of the Victoria Square with its numerous "Isle d'Jour" and Mount Royal on the right, it cannot fail to commend itself to the travelling public.

From its situation on McGill street, the great thoroughfare and commercial centre of the City it cannot fail to be, as the "Old Albion" has always been a strong favorite with the Merchants of Canada.

Notwithstanding the very large outlay in building and furnishing the house, the old price of $1 50 per day will not be departed from.

We, therefore, bespeak for ourselves a continuance of the patronage so liberally accorded to us during the past twelve years.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry.

Where this article is known it is a work of supererogation to say one word in its favor, so well is it established as an unfailing remedy for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Asthma, Diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs, as well as that most dreaded of all diseases, Consumption, which high medical authority has pronounced to be an incurable disease. Those who have used this remedy know its value; those who have not, have but to make a single trial to be satisfied that of all others it is THE REMEDY.

THE REV. JACOB SECHLER,

well known and much respected among the German population of this country, writes as follows:

HANOVER, PA., Feb. 16, 1859.

MESSRS. S. W. FOWLE & SON, Boston.

DEAR SIRS,—Having realized in my family important benefits from the use of your valuable preparation—Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry—it affords me pleasure to recommend it to the public. Some eight years ago, one of my daughters appeared to be in a decline, and little hopes of her recovery were entertained. I then procured a bottle of your excellent Balsam, and before she had taken the whole of it there was a great improvement in her health. I have, in my family, used one, and made frequent use of your valuable medicine, and have always been benefited by it. I would, however, caution the public against imposition, as I am aware there is a good deal of spurious 'Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry' afloat throughout the country.

Grace's Celebrated Salve.

From Mr. JAMES CURLIN, of AMESBURY, MASS.

"I was afflicted with a severe felon on one of my fingers, and tried many remedies without relief. My friends induced me to apply your Salve. In two days it extracted the inflammation from my finger so as to enable me to resume my work. I am almost say that the Salve worked like magic, for it effected a cure without leaving a scar. I unhesitatingly pronounce 'Grace's Salve' an excellent remedy, and do not doubt it will be appreciated throughout the land." 25

Mona, Seven Years Old.

Breaking out of her homespun gown,
Just like a wild-flower out of its burr;
Legs bare to the knees, and the shoulders down
To the waist, I marvelled and mused at her.

Her hands had been kissed and kissed by the Brown as berries; she held her hair (sun
Away from her dove-like eyes as she
And stared at me, straight as eyes could stare.

One moment—then, being well content,
She dropped the tresses, that over the white
Clear brow and sweet eyes came and went,
Like shadows blowing across the light.

"A picture, such as the painter loves."
I said and passed, but she would not stay;
Those sweet eyes staring, round as a dove's,
Held me and haunted me all the day.

One foot on the other, bare and brown—
The shining fall of her dead-leaf hair—
Legs and shoulders out of her gown—
She held me and haunted me, everywhere.

An Honest Negro wants a Divorce from a Stealing Wife.

(From the Philadelphia North American).

Among the recent visitors at the Central Police Station to his Honor Justice Kerr was a stalwart coloured man, accompanied by a couple of female Americans of African descent. The male was as solemn in manner, and as dark in the cuticle, as a prize hearse. The trio arranged themselves in front of the Justice's desk, and the man asked an official audience. The genial and and gentle Justice took a fresh dip of ink, and opened a conversation as thus:—

'What is your name?'

'Gracchus Johnson, sah.'

'Crackers Johnson, did you say?'

'No, sah; my fader, sah, was not a baker, sah. My name is Gracchus, sah; my mudder, sah, called me her 'jewel,' sah. De reason dat my fader called me Gracchus, sah, was 'cause Mrs. Gracchus called her children her jewels' (with dignity).

'Ah! yes,' said the Justice, blandly, 'black diamonds, I suppose. Are you from the Lehigh or the Schuylkill region, Mr. Johnson?'

'Needer, sah; I was raised in one of de fustest families in Virginyah" (a little indignant).

"And what do you want with me, sir?"

"Why," was the reply of the very respectable looking African, 'de case is jes' dis. Dis yer gal Cynthia says I'se her husband. I says (looking fondly over the top of what nose he had) dat I belonged to Rose, dat 'oder gal dar. We 'greed to come to you to decide the question.

'This is a singular proceeding, Crackers.'

'Gracchus, sah—not Crackers. I told yer that afore,' interrupted the postulant.

'Of course, certainly, go on Mr. Gracchus.'

At this point the woman Cynthia, loosing all patience, thrust a crumpled marriage certificate under the face of the justice with a request for his immediate and critical examination. It was a certificate of the marriage of Gracchus Johnson to Cynthia Brown. Gracchus admitted that the certificate was genuine, but claimed—and proved—that Cynthia was a thief, that he had married her in good faith, and that she had just come from a two years' incarceration in the county prison. In the meantime he had wedded Rose. After listening to the facts of the case, Justice Kerr looked very grave.

'This is serious business, Crackers.'

'Not Crackers, sir, Gracchus,' was the impatient remark of the puzzled object of so much female affection.

'Well, Gracchus, your case is certainly a hard one, but you know what the good book says: Whom the Lord has joined, let no man put asunder.'

'Well sir, den why didn't de woman behabe civil? Whar's de use of stealin'—what's de use?'

'Certainly, there's no use stealing, Mr. Gracchus,' replied the Alderman. 'It is a violation of one of the cardinal points of the decalogue. But you know that the obligations of matrimony are very sacred. Don't you remember the charge made to you in the course of the ceremony, by the magistrate who performed it?'

'I do, sah; it was jes free dollars.'

'I don't mean that, sir; I mean the counsel that he gave you.'

'He didn't give me any counsel, sah.'

'That's strange.'

'Yes, sah; de only counsel I got was from der constable.'

'And what did he say?'

'Why, I only had two dollars and a half, and he told me if I didn't bring the other half dollar in de mornin', he'd burst my head.'

'You're dismissed on your own recognizance,' said the magistrate, 'until Thursday next, at three o'clock. At that time a decision will be rendered.'

The trio then departed as they came.

—A large force of Chinese laborers has been employed to work upon a Georgia railroad.

—"Pepa, what is humbug?" "It is," replied papa, "when mama pretends to be very fond of me, and puts no buttons on my shirt, till reminded of it a dozen times."

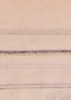

A boy heard the quotation: "A little learning is a dangerous thing," wished to stop going to school because he was afraid he should not live long enough to get past the dangerous point.

—A Missourian informed a traveller who inquired about his corn that each stalk had nine ears on it and was 16 feet high. "That's nothing to our corn," replied the traveller. "Up in Illinois, where I came from, we always had nine ears to each stalk, and a peck of shelled corn hanging to each tassel; but we could never raise any field beans with it." "Why is why" "Because the corn grew so fast that it always pulled the beans up."

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,
FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. In cases of Scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous affections and disorders which were aggravated by the scrofulous contamination multiply with painfully afflictive forms, which are radically cured in great numbers in almost every section. It may be safely said, that the public scarcely need to be told of its virtues or uses.

Scrofula, or Kings Evil, is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this unseen and unfelt tyrant of the blood undermines the constitution, and invites the attack of entire ling or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed infection throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develop into one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be insidiously developed in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows itself in external eruptions of the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the occasional need of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla in addition to the more active symptoms of disease upon which no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, at length, cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: Salt Rheum, Ringworm, Tetter, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions or visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Pain in the Side, Kidney Complaints, Liver Complaints, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various Ulcerations and disorders of the mucous or nervous systems.

Syphilitic or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these obstinate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the worst cases of Mercurial Disease, Ulcers, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and finally cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute Directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when resulting as they often do, from the rankling poisons in the blood. This is the GREAT BLOOD a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are Languid, Nervous and Listless, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fearfulness, will find the affection symptomatic of Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,
For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character has power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a protection against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they usually disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, or do more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure.
For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Bismuth, Zinc, nor any mineral nor vegetable substance whatever, it in no wise injures any patient. The number and importance of its cures in the ague districts, are literally beyond account, and we believe without a parallel in the history of Ague medicine. Our pride is gratified by the acknowledgments we receive of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and where other remedies had wholly failed.

Unaccustomed exposure, either resident in, or travelling through miasmatic localities, will be protected by taking the AGUE CURE daily.

For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy activity.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly remarkable cures where other medicines had failed.

QUERY?
Should we employ the noble doctors to bring us our tea and coffee in bottles, at an advance of 100 per cent over the price we pay for them now?

If not, why should we longer adopt that system in reference to medicines which are the simple extracts or herbs or plants and roots, and which are usually prepared as tea and coffee?

Each package of Dr. Thompson's Botanic Medicines contains more medical properties than can be procured in any other medicine for four times the amount of money.

We have in our possession numerous testimonials as to the genuineness of our as well as the benefits derived from the use of Dr. Thompson's Botanic Medicines, viz.:

Dr. Thompson's Blood Purifier
Cures all diseases arising from an impure state of the blood, such as salt-rheum, scrofula, king's evil, white swellings, tendency to boils, old sores, pimples or roughness of the skin. Where it has been ordered by sickness, no excellent as well as an agreeable appetizer can be procured. In cases of debility, and diseases having their origin in an imperfect digestion or a deranged state of the stomach. Sold at 25 cents per package.

Dr. Thompson's No. 6.
OR COMPOSITION POWDERS
It is used with success for diseases caused by colds, such as cold chills, chills and fever, pains in the side or joints or limbs, neuralgia, rheumatic pains—in fact it may properly be called PAIN KILLER, as it may be used for all purposes for which Pain Killers or Reliefs are used, such as cramps in the stomach, colic, diarrhœa, dysentery, summer complaints, cholera morbus, female complaints or obstructions. It may also be used with safety in connection with any of the above. Sold at 25 cents per package.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,
For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally lauded into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but effectual Sugar Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and better purgative than any which have been hitherto known, and that its a more reliable and better purgative than any which have been hitherto known, and that its a more reliable and better purgative than any which have been hitherto known, and that its tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that they cure their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of testimonials of its wonderful cures of the following complaints, but deem it unnecessary to publish them here, as the Pills are sold everywhere in every neighborhood, and we need not prove them adapted to all agents and purposes in all climates. containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Being sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while they purify the blood, which is the fountain of life, and diffuse through the whole system the principle of health, operating on every fibre of the machine. Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Biliousness, Languor, and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restoring the vigor and healthy tone to the digestive organs.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Biliousness, Sick Headache, General Debility, Jaundice, or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as their presence in the blood is the cause of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a hydrogogue purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

Ayer's
Hair Vigor,
For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of feeling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

ROYAL ITALIAN BITTERS
OR TONICO REALE.
Del Dottore F. P. Verri, Prof. of Chemistry, in the of the University Padua, Italy.

THIS Celebrated Preparation—for which a Certificate of Merit was awarded to the original preparer at the National Exposition at Torino, Italy, by whose favor Mr. Gianelli obtained the right to prepare and sell—received a Diploma at the Provincial Exhibition of Canada, held at Montreal in September, 1865, is without exception the most valuable, delicious and agreeable Tonic ever introduced to public notice either in Europe or America.

For seventeen years it has, in Italy, been a favorite among the elite of society, being generally served in the Drawing Room immediately before dinner, in preference to Vermouth.

☞ The ingredients of its composition have been imparted to the leading Physicians of Montreal, and have received their unqualified approval on every account.

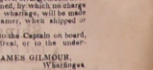

The Proprietor has no idea of parading or puffing it before the public, but merely asks a sound and unprejudiced trial.

Kept by the principal Wine Merchants, Druggists, and Grocers in Canada.

Prepared and sold wholesale by the Proprietor,

A. M. F. GIANELLI,

Du Luth as it Is.

HOW THINGS LOOKED TO A BUFFALONIAN.

(From the Buffalo Courier.)

I left Buffalo May 25th, and after a ten day's voyage landed at Du Luth at about 12 o'clock at night. There being no hotel there at that time, and the night being dark and cold, made it rather unpleasant for us. There were ten of our party, and with no place to sleep in, we all thought of Buffalo and wished ourselves back among our friends. We finally roused a family and got permission to sleep on their kitchen floor, with a blanket each. Very little sleeping was done that night. We pitched our tents next day and had comfortable quarters the remainder of my stay. I stayed in Du Luth six weeks and prospected the country around very closely. The land for miles around Du Luth is very poor. It is timbered mostly with scrub pine, and there is not a cleared farm in that vicinity. The railroad company own nearly all the land and are working on the road, but accomplish very little at present. The country is mountainous and the road consequently is very difficult to build. I think it will be some time before it is completed.

During my stay there were built at Du Luth over forty buildings, mostly for business purposes, besides a hotel which is partially completed. The buildings are of the balloon order, built quickly, cheaply, and ready to move at a minute's notice, which I think is wise, for it is impossible for any person outside of the railroad company to decide where the city is to be at present.—The company take good care to keep the secret to themselves, but have their agents selling lands where they can find a customer. There is no doubt but there will be a large commercial city in that vicinity, for the railroad will open up the greatest wheat growing country in the west, and that region being nearer some point on Lake Superior than on Lake Michigan, of course the grain will flow that way east, while merchandise will return for the great west by the same route. But where is this point to be? If Du Luth is the point settled upon for the city, the property there is cheap at present. But for a person to purchase, under the circumstances, is absurd. Lots are selling from five hundred to twenty-five hundred dollars apiece, and "clear them yourself." In regard to the harbor, there is Superior Bay, which is seven miles long and from one to two miles wide, which is partially navigable at present, and can be made a good harbor at a very little expense. Du Luth lies at the northerly end of this bay, and Superior City at the southerly end. The Superior City people claim that to be the point; the Du Luth people claim that they have the point. Some people think that Rice's Point is the spot. Rice's Point lies about half way between Du Luth and Superior, on the northwest of the bay, and is a good site for a city. Steamers can run to Rice's Point at present; but the people of Rayfield, which is about eighty miles east of Du Luth, claim the best harbor on the chain of lakes, and assert that the railroad must end there—that they will leave the other places out in the wet, and have the great city there.

They have a fine site for a city at Bayfield, and a splendid natural harbor. All kinds of business are overdone at Du Luth; but anybody who wants to work can find a chance there at present and at good prices. The site for a city at Du Luth is pretty good. It lies on a bluff of easy ascent, fronting both the lake and the bay.—There is a peninsula called Minnesota Point, which runs from the main land of Du Luth across the head of Lake Superior. This neck of land is seven miles long and about six hundred feet wide. It divides the bay from the lake, is perfectly level, and is an elegant place for mansions. They have laid out an avenue through this point, which would make a splendid drive. The city is nicely laid out and looks very fine on paper. They also propose to have a breakwater at Du Luth. The reason for this is that the entrance to the bay from the lake is on the Superior City side of the bay, which the Superior people claim to be greatly in their favor. Du Luthians say they will build a breakwater and cut a canal through Minnesota Point to the bay, and cut Superior city off that way. So it stands at present. The papers talk of elevators for Du Luth; but I could not learn anything of them up there. The climate is healthy, and there is splendid water. There is no game, but plenty of fishing. The finest kinds of fish in the lakes are caught.

SUNFLOWER SEED TEA.—A remedy for summer complaint. A correspondent of the Scientific American says that a tea made of the leaves of the sunflower, roasted like coffee berries, is an admirable remedy for all species of summer complaint. A half pint of the seed is sufficient. It should be remembered, however, that serious results often follow the too sudden stoppage of diarhœa by astringents, and with this, as with all remedies of a similar nature, caution should be used.

Men with Tails.

The papers by the last India mail contain two long letters from a gentleman in Calcutta named Cameron, proposing a scientific expedition to Borneo, in search of tailed men and women, who he believes are to be found in the forests of that island. Mr. Cameron (who shows himself "a firm believer in the Mosaic revelation") says:—"When I was in Sarawak, I met now and then with traders, who had been in Kyan country to the north-west of the Northern Peninsula or projection of Borneo, who gave me detailed and definite accounts of a race of men (not the urang utan) who dwelt among dense forests, living up trees (which are of gigantic size) with their wives and children, with their bows and arrows and other rude implements, whatever they may be. They lived entirely by hunting, and had no sort of agriculture. I do not recollect now, after the lapse of such a long period, whether they made use of fire, or whether they cooked at all. They had no intercourse with any other people, and spoke a gibberish of their own. It was only now and then that Kyans, Mylays or Dyaks, ever came upon their leafy habitations, when of course a speedy retreat used to be beat by the strangers. These accounts by people who had been in that part of the country were confirmed by other Dyak tribes and by Malays. I find no great difficulty in believing this story. Science, in one sense, almost requires it. And in Borneo the monkey tribe has received almost its highest development; and why not man be found in its primeval and untrodden forests existing in his initial state of progress?

We have lately heard of a story coming from Africa, that there is a race of men with tails, far away in the interior of the great continent, and it is noteworthy that the centre of Africa, like Borneo, is just under the line, and that in Africa, also we find the monkey race in a high state of development, and the lowest race of man, the negroes living side by side with them.—Viewing the subject as about the most important matter which can engage the attention of science and of humanity (in the large sense explained above) in the present day, I offer myself to its elucidation. I have little doubt that if the Asiatic Society and the Indian Museum, jointly, take earnest action in the matter, they could easily induce the government to aid in the enterprise." Mr. Cameron then details his plans:—"First I should have to start for Sarawak, and there procure the active co-operation of my friend Mr. Crookshank, the present officiating governor of the kingdom. I should have to provide myself with a quantity of valuable trumpery articles, such as mirrors, beads, &c. I should also be provided with some rifles of a long range. These would be useful either to repel attacks, or to bring back at least a dead specimen (Query—Would I be guilty of murder? And, if so, what court would try me?) At Sarawak I would, with Mr. Crookshank's assistance, organize a party of, say, thirty Dyaks to accompany me. The next point to make would be the Millanow country to the north-east of Sarawak, and north or north-west of the tracts supposed to be inhabited by the race with tails. Hence, after due preparation, I should have to strike off into the interior—into trackless forests after my object. To meet with them may be easy if they exist, and even to bring back a dead specimen, but the difficulty would be in opening up communications, and inducing them to show a friendly feeling, if, indeed, they know what that means. If it is possible, should friendly negotiations fail, we might proceed to use artifice or force to capture women and children."

In his second letter, Mr. Cameron remarks that the Duke of Argyll has written a work called "Primeval Man," which shows his Grace to be a disbeliever in the ape-development theory. "His Grace (he adds) is the present Secretary of State for India, and it would be a pleasant thing for him for this country to conclusively disprove his weak theories by showing that the ape is the physical progenitor of of a man (not woman.) Will the Asiatic Society act? The founder of the Indian Museum some time since proposed a universal Ethnological Exhibition at Calcutta. The tailed race, if it exists, would stand naturally in the front ranks of such an exhibition, and the specimens would excite the curiosity and remark not only of Calcutta, but of the entire scientific world. This is the true 'missing link'—this the great Asian Mystery!"

—A man has appeared in a county district of Poland who pretends to be Our Saviour, come again for the salvation of the world. He has selected twelve followers, who go about the country with him as apostles, and he pretends in the usual manner of such people to work miracles. He devotes himself particularly to the healing of the sick. All this has had a great effect upon the Polish peasantry; the would be prophet and his followers are everywhere received by them with open arms. He is now turning his success into political capital. He decounces the peasantry for their indifference to the rising of 1863, calls upon them to repent and prepare for new efforts, and prophecies the speedy re-establishment of the old Polish kingdom.

A MAIDEN'S "PSALM OF LIFE."—Tell us not in idle jingle "marriage is an empty dream!" for the girl's dead that's single, and things are not what they seem. Life is real! life is earnest! single blessedness a fib; "Man thou art, to man returnest!" has been spoken of the rib. Not enjoyment, and not sorrow, is our destined end or way, but to act that each to-morrow finds us nearer marriage day. Life is long and youth is fleeting, find our hearts, though light and gay, still like pleasant drums are beating wedding marches all the way. In the world's broad field of battle, in the bivouac of life, be not like dumb driven cattle! be a heroine—a wife. Trust no future, howe'er pleasant, let the dead Past bury its dead!—act, act to the living Present! heart within and hope ahead! Lives of married folks remind us we can live our lives as well, and departing leave behind us such examples as shall 'tell.' Such example that mother, wasting life in idlesport—a forlorn, unmarried brother—seeing, shall take heart and court. Let us, then, be up and doing, with a heart on triumph set—still contriving, still pursuing, and each one a husband get.

THE MAN WITH THE GLASS EYE.—A few nights since, an enterprising burglar says the New Orleans Picayune) visited the room of a person who, among his other noticeable attractions, has a glass eye. It happened that on the night in question he had retired to rest without removing his artificial optic. The burglar cautiously entered the room, dimly lighted by the faintly burning gas. Just as he was about laying his hand on the costly chronometer and a well-filled purse, his attention was attracted to the sleeper, and to his infinite surprise he encountered the gaze of one full opened eye, fixed fiercely upon him.—In the glare of the lamplight, it sparkled like a gem, and the burglar thought it emitted rays of fire. He had heard of people sleeping with one eye open, but had never seen it illustrated before. None, he thought but the evil one possessed such a faculty.—Even in the act of grasping the spoils, his hand was arrested by the singular apparition, and darting out of the room, he tumbled down stairs, never stopping until he reached the banquette. Here he was laid hold of by a policeman, who demanded to know what he was about. "The devil's in there!" exclaimed the frightened outlaw. "The Pernership!" "Yes; I know it must be he, for he sleeps with one eye open!"

—A telegram from St. Johns, N. B., Aug. 9, says, 'The Prince Edward Island steamers 'Princess of Wales' and 'St. Lawrence' came into collision on Friday about midnight. Both vessels were much damaged, and the 'St. Lawrence' was towed into Summerside in a sinking condition. No lives lost."

Montreal Time.

Daily Intelligencer.

BELLEVILLE, TUESDAY, AUG. 10.

INWARDS.—The steamship St. Andrew passed Father Point inwards this morning at 7.30, with 132 cabin and 123 steerage passengers.

NOT GOING.—The Toronto Leader has reason to believe that Mr. Carling will find it inconsistent with his public duties to visit the North-West Territory in company with Mr. Macdougall.

THE INTERCOLONIAL.—A Quebec paper asserts that all the remaining contracts for the Intercolonial Railway will be given out during the course of the present year, and that acting on the principle of retaining all the money possible in the country, the rails, even, will be manufactured in this country.

MAN STABBED.—A telegram from Madoc says:—At Bannockburn on Saturday about 9 p. m., a young man named Allan McLeod was stabbed in the side, the wound penetrating the left lung. He is not expected to live. He was stabbed by a man named McCarrie, who is arrested and will be examined to-day.

THE ECLIPSE.—The London Free Press says that an old gentleman, residing in Exeter, anxious to view the eclipse, and, being dubious of its visibility in that village although it eclipses many others in smartness—came to London for the purpose, and brought his wife and family! He was no doubt a little crestfallen, on going home, to find that Exeter too shared in the sublime vision.

SUCCESSION OF ACCIDENTS.—A telegram from Kincardine, Aug. 9th, says, "A young lad, son of Mr. John Sturgeon, of this place was drowned in Sutton's mill pond this afternoon when returning from school. While Mr. G. Sturgeon and his wife were driving to the place of the accident the horse ran away, throwing them out and injuring Mrs. Sturgeon very severely. Hopes are entertained of her recovery.

THE THISTLES.—It is most earnestly to be hoped that the officials whose duty it is will see that the Thistle Act is enforced. There are a great many places on the highway as well as on vacant lots, and sometimes is cultivated gardens, where this weed is permitted to grow unmolested, and unless cut down within a day or two the whole Town will be seeded. A prompt enforcement of the law now will save a great deal of trouble and annoyance hereafter.

WORKING MEN'S TEMPERANCE ASSOCIATION.—As will be seen by advertisement this Association meets every Tuesday evening in the Marble Hall, at 8 o'clock. It is in a prosperous condition. The following are the office-bearers for the present quarter:—Hugh Walker, President; William Bosly, 1st Vice President; Mr. Palen, 2nd Vice President; John Cornetious, Recording Secretary; D. C. Ferguson, Finance Secretary; Wm. White, Conductor; John Urquhart, Assistant Conductor; W. Tuite, Warden.

RAILWAY TRAFFIC.—The Railway traffic returns for the half year ending 30th of June, 1869, show the Great Western at $1,956,798 against $1,774,735 return of the same period last year; Grand Trunk, $3,344,989 against $3,202,526; Northern railway, $309,428 against $268,123; Brockville & Ottawa, $77,711 against $71,918; St. Lawrence & Ottawa, $64,431 against $59,516; New Brunswick & Canada, $47,106 against $45,718; European & North American, $80,781 against $72,394; Welland railway, $29,279 against $27,514. The small lines all show a slight decrease.

UNIFORM.—The Volunteer Review is informed from a reliable source that officers of country battalions are strangely negligent in the matter of uniform. It says: "It is a common thing to see many of them appear on parade and at drill in private uniform and armed with a stick. Other instances are known where they have appeared in regulation trousers, sack coat and shacko, or with tunic, beaver hat and umbrella. This sort of thing is absurd in the extreme, and calls for a speedy correction. It should be made a sine qua non that gentlemen before being allowed to assume a position as officers in the Force should qualify and procure the necessary outfit."

POST OFFICE SAVING'S BANK.—The statement of the Post Office Savings Bank account for the month of June, 1869, shows that there was in the hands of the Receiver General, as per last statement, May 31st, 1869, $771,389 83; received from depositors during June, $99,506; interest paid on closed accounts during June, $326.58; do accrued during the year, made principal on the 30th June, $19,008 67; withdrawal cheques paid during June, $32,416 82; in the hands of the Receiver-General, 30th June, 1869, $856,814 26; bearing interest at 4 per cent, $496,517 19; do bearing no interest at 5 per cent, $353,209; bearing no interest, being the amount in the hands of the Receiver General to meet outstanding cheques, $7,097.07.

THE FIRE IN PHILADELPHIA.—The Philadelphia papers in giving the losses entailed by the recent great fire in that city, say that the offices transacting business in Canada are "let lie for the following respectable amounts: Queen $66,000; Royal, $180,000; Liverpool and London, $185,000; North British $12,000; Imperial, $349,000; Etna, Hartford, $63,000.

LAND SLIDE.—A telegram from Hudson, N. Y., of the 7th says:—The town of Stockport, in this county, has been the scene of considerable excitement during the past week, on account of the gigantic land-slide, and thousands have visited the spot. The earth caved in to the distance of over 80 feet, and the surface, as indicated by trees and fences, moved a distance of over six hundred feet.

Queen's College.

The public meeting in connection with the endowment of this Institution was held in St. Andrew's Church last evening. The Pastor of the congregation occupied the Chair. Although not numerous, those present appeared to be deeply interested in the movement, and listened with eager attention to the lucid and eloquent speech of the Deputation.

Principal Snodgrass gave a summary of the history of the Institution from its formation to the present time, showing the various trials through which it successfully passed, and of the hearty and seasonable aid which was extended to it by its friends in the time of its need. He also intimated that in every place which the Deputation had visited in advocacy of the claims of the College as that on which the prosperity and increase of the Church mainly depend, such a response had been invariably given as to indicate beyond all doubt, the speedy and successful accomplishment of the enterprise.

Prof. McKerras, himself a graduate of the University, and an honored occupant of one of her Chairs, then addressed the meeting, showing, in a vivid, eloquent and impressive manner, what benefits had been already conferred both on the Church and country, and what advantages may reasonably be expected to accrue from the upholding of Queen's College in a condition of increased efficiency.

We were happy to observe among others present at the meeting, the Rev. William McLaren, Canada Presbyterian Minister, Rev. Mr. Brethour, Wesleyan Minister, and the Rev. J. H. Bates, Charleston, U. S.

The addresses being finished the Chairman called for an expression of opinion from those present regarding the scheme, when the following resolutions were put and unanimously carried :

Moved by Andrew Thomson, Esq., seconded by Wm. Graham, Esq., that this meeting highly approves of the proposal sanctioned by the Synod to raise an adequate endowment for Queen's University and College; heartily rejoices at the remarkable success which has hitherto attended the efforts that have been made to give effect to the proposal, and pledges itself to do its utmost to assist in securing the completion of the undertaking.

Moved by Thos. Kelso, Esq., seconded by S. S. Lazier, Esq.,—That James Brown, Esq., M.P., and Messrs. John Bell, George Neilson, David Pitcaithly, Alexander Robertson, Andrew Thomson, Alexander Burdon, and Archibald L. McLellan, be a Committee to assist the deputation in obtaining subscriptions from the friends of the College in Belleville. James Brown to be Convener, and Andrew Thomson to be Treasurer."

The Deputation, we understand, intend personally to canvass for subscriptions in furtherance of the object in view, during the present week in Belleville, and we cordially bespeak for them much sympathy and a generous response to their appeal. It must be gratifying to all true friends of a liberal education to know that the munificent sum of $77,000 has already been secured, thus affording the prospect of Queen's University and College being, at no distant day, placed entirely beyond the range of all political changes.

The Hodge Gold Mine.

The Montreal Gazette has the following account of this mine which is located about a mile from the Mallorytown Station of the Grand Trunk Railway, twelve miles west of Brockville, and about a mile from the bank of the river St. Lawrence. The property on which the mine has been discovered contains about seventy acres; the vein of rock at present being worked measuring about nine feet thick. Shortly after its discovery by the proprietor, a chartered company was organized, with a board of directors and officers duly elected, the president being Ira Mallory, the secretary, G. L. Mallory; the treasurer, D. McDonald; and operations were immediately commenced. We have said that the company have leased the property for a period of 99 years, and will pay a royalty of one-sixteenth of the net profits. The capital of the Company is $150,000, in 6,000 shares of $25 each. A ten-stamp crushing machine, with an engine of 40 horse power, (manufactured at Brown's Foundry, Belleville) has been working successfully during the past month the yield varying from $8 to $28 per ton. Free Gold in small quantities has been taken from pockets in the vein alluded to. With its present capacity the mill crushes ten tons per day, requiring the assistance of six men. The rock embraces white and grey quartz, indicating a richness equal to any of the recent gold discoveries made on this Continent.

—More than 100 tons of frozen poultry, packed in ice during the winter, have been disposed of in Faneuil Hall market, Boston, since the 1st of April. The largest portion of it came from Vermont, where packing poultry is quite a business. It was all in good order.

—The United States pays $15,000 for each West Pointer.

Prizes for Cheese.

We are informed that M. Hannan & Co., of Montreal, have offered $50 as a prize for the best six cheeses, Factory make, to be competed for at the next exhibition of the West Hastings Agricultural Society.—The cheese to be competed for must be that made in the last week of July and for the following five weeks. Mr. Graham, member of the Ontario Legislature for West Hastings, has offered $25 for the second best lot, and it is to be presumed that the Society will offer a third prize. The cheese of this County stands high in the Montreal and English markets, and it is to be hoped that the competition which these liberal prizes will induce, may have the effect of still further improving the quality. Mr. Graham is now in England, and we are informed a lot of 1,200 boxes were shipped to him by yesterday's train, which will go by Saturday's steamer.

Forty Years Ago.

For the Intelligencer.

MR. EDITOR.—Forty years ago a farmer from Thurlow called at my store in the afternoon, and asked me to buy a "veal." I said I did not know what to do with it. He answered "you must take it and sell it, for I have no time to do so." I told him I would try to sell it for him, and to bring it in. He went out and brought in a live calf, and laid it down on the floor. I said that is not a veal, but a calf; his answer was, "you must kill it;" I told him I would do the best I could for him, and he left the calf on the store floor.

I found a man to kill it, rather than do it myself; sold the skin and the meat; paid the man 2s 6d, and settled with the farmer for the balance. If I could not have got a man to kill the calf I should have done it myself, having often, when living in Brockville, left the store at 8 p. m., walked out to the farm 7 miles, and the next morning killed a calf or two sheep, dressed them, harnessed the horse, and rode back to Brockville in time to have some of the mutton or veal cooked for my breakfast by 7 o'clock. No doubt many of the clerks of the present day would object to be both clerk and butcher.

Forty years ago on opening my store, I had a beautiful piece of orange dress silk; one day I showed it to a young lady from the country; it took her fancy, and she bought enough for a dress. A few days after she made her appearance before the store, on horseback, seated upon a man's saddle, with a basket of eggs; I took the basket and helped her to alight. Her dress attracted great attention, coarse leather shoes, blue woolen stockings, black belt ribbon, a faded black silk bonnet, (not of the shape of the apologies worn now,) but a real bonnet, and the new orange silk dress. What would our young ladies say to such fashionable dressing at the present time?

Forty years ago I arranged with a warehouse man to store goods, flour and grain for me, but as he was much from home, his good wife took charge of the storage, and to her praise I say she did the work well. After harvest, in one day between the hours of 10 a. m., and 4 p. m., she took in, and weighed, swore to its being deposited all right, up one pair of stairs, and wrote and gave receipts for 836 bushels, and 32 pounds of wheat, and when I called on her about 5 p. m., she looked the very picture of health, after expressing herself as "rather tired." I paid three coppers for receiving, and two for delivering each bushel, so that the six hours' work performed amounted to $20 91 cts.

In my next I will state something about the school, and old school houses of forty years ago.

Yours, &c., &c.

WHAT IS REQUIRED OF THE CHURCH.

MADRID, Aug. 9.—The recent decree issued by the Spanish Government, in regard to the part taken by some of the clergy in the Carlist conspiracy, calls upon the Bishops to report what steps they have taken to restrain such disloyalty, and to furnish the Government with the names of the conspirators. The Bishops are required to issue to their pastorals, requiring obedience to the law within 8 days.

AUSTRIA.

VIENNA, Aug. 9.—There was a full sitting of the Reichsrath delegation to-day. A long discussion on the budget of the foreign Minister, took place. Baron Burst, in his remarks admitted that most of the disagreements with Prussia arose from what was contained in the Austrian Red Book, but defended it on the ground, that its publication is calculated to remove misapprehensions. He reiterated that Austria had formed no new alliances, but added that in France she had many good friends. It is questioned whether Germany could help Austria, even if the assistance of the German States were wanted, France on the contrary has proved herself a friend throughout.

A NEW CONSPIRACY.

MADRID, Aug. 9.—A fresh conspiracy has been discovered in this city. Numerous arrests have been made, including 17 Gendarmes.—Thirty arrests have taken place at Burgos.

FAILURE.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—The Express announces the suspension of the eminent dry goods and commission house of Bowers, Beckman & Co., the consequence of the steady decline in woollens. Liabilities estimated at $3,000,000. Assets large.

COMING AFTER ALL.—The St. John Telegraph says it is authorised by the Lieutenant Governor to say that His Royal Highness Prince Arthur, will arrive in Halifax by a steamer of the Inman Line, about the 22nd inst. After remaining in the Nova Scotia capital a few days, the Prince will proceed to Charlottetown, to which place two or three days will be given. From Charlottetown the Prince will come to St. John; thence he will go to Fredericton, and on to Quebec by way of the St. John River.

A young New Haven gentleman recently answered a matrimonal advertisement in a New York paper, inserted by a young and wealthy widow. A correspondence ensued, the admiring gentleman went to meet the advertiser and found her to be a rare and radiant beauty and very wealthy, but entirely insane. A constant watch had to be kept over her to prevent such affairs, as the would be husband learned and he returned a terribly disappointed man.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry.

Where this article is known it is a work of supererogation to say one word in its favor, so well is it established as an unfailing remedy for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Asthma, Diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs, as well as that most dreaded of all diseases, Consumption, in which high medical authority has pronounced to be an incurable disease. Those who have used this remedy know its value; those who have not, have but to make a single trial to be satisfied that of all others it is the remedy.

THE REV. JACOB SECHLER,
well known and much respected among the German population of this country, writes as follows:

HANOVER, Pa., Feb. 16, 1859.

MESSRS. S. W. Fowle & Son, Boston.

DEAR SIRS,—Having realized in my family important benefits from the use of your valuable preparation—"Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry,"—it affords me pleasure to recommend it to the public. Some eight years ago, one of my daughters appeared to be in a decline, and little hopes of her recovery were entertained. I then procured a bottle of your excellent Balsam, and before she had taken the whole of it there was a great improvement in her health. I have, in my individual case, made frequent use of your valuable medicine, and have always been benefitted by it. I would, however, caution the public against imposition, because there is a good deal of spurious "Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry' afloat throughout the country.

Grace's Celebrated Salve.

From Mr. JAMES CURLIN, of AMESBURY, MASS.

"I was afflicted with a severe felon on one of my fingers, and tried many remedies without relief. My friends induced me to apply your Salve. In two days it extracted the inflammation from my finger so as to enable me to resume my work. I can almost say that the Salve worked like magic, for it effected a cure without leaving a scar." I unhesitatingly pronounce 'Grace's Salve' an excellent remedy, and do not doubt it will be appreciated throughout the land." 25

NEW ALBION HOTEL,
McGILL STREET,
MONTREAL, CANADA.

THE "NEW ALBION HOTEL," the largest Hotel in Montreal, has just been opened under the most favorable auspices.

Whilst the "Old Albion" has been long noted for the style of attention paid to its numerous guests, the "New Albion" takes its position as a first class Hotel, and is really first class in every respect of the changes, which better suit the ideas and requirements of the majority of travellers, than many of the so called, "first class Hotels;" which deserve little more than the amount of their charges than aught else.

Already the crowded state of the "New Albion" promises well for its future career; everything associated with its construction has been carried out with artistic taste and systematic correctness.

The large Hall, commodious office, spacious Reading room, convenient Dining, Coffee, Wash Room, etc., etc., on the ground floor; and the Reception Room and Suite of SPLENDIDLY FURNISHED and THOROUGHLY VENTILATED LADIES' PARLORS, on the second floor, leave nothing to be desired in the manner of the amount of their charges than aught else.

Although situated in the widest and healthiest Street in Montreal, commanding a Magnificent View of the River St. Lawrence and the Victoria Bridge on the left, and a full view of the Victoria Square with its numerous "Jets d'Eau" and Mount Royal on the right, it cannot fail to commend itself to the travelling public.

From its situation on McGill Street, the great thoroughfare and commercial centre of the City it cannot fail to be, as the "Old Albion" has always been a strong favorite with the Merchants of Canada.

Notwithstanding the very large outlay in building and furnishing the house, the old price of $1 50 per day will not be departed from.

We, therefore, bespeak for ourselves a continuance of the patronage so liberally accorded to us during the last twelve years.

A Death Kiss.

From the Nashville (Tenn.) Press, July 26.

A young gentleman named Joe White, a very respectable, industrious, quiet, good-looking fellow, of about eighteen years of age, and a resident of Germantown, went to South Nashville Saturday night to visit his lady love, a Miss Barns. He had been frequently to visit her before at various times. They were engaged to be married. He found her in the parlour, sewing, as a proper young girl should be. She was anxious to finish the article, and therefore concluded not to throw it aside when he entered, particularly as he complimented her on her pretty appearance, with her beautiful face bending over her slender figure as she plied the stitches with as much grace and rapidity as other girls display in skimming over the keys of a nasty piano.

He took his seat beside her. They chatted very gaily. After waiting for a few minutes, which to him seemed hours, he became impatient, and longed to imprint a chaste kiss upon her ripe and pouting lips. With the view of carrying out his design, he let his arm encircle her waist furtively, and as he was drawing her close to himself, she objected to being disturbed until her little work was finished; but he insisted. She made a motion to shove him off, as girls are said to do generally, but the motion proved fatal to her happiness and to his life. He became impetuous, and drawing her to him with much violence, the needle which was caught in her thimble got between them, the point toward his heart.

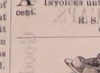

It entered, and as he was about to imprint a kiss of love upon her lips, his own became salty pale, his vigorous grasp relaxed, and then the fire of love died out as if by a celestial pall, at the moment of contact. He sickened, fell back upon the sofa, quite helpless. The young lady was much alarmed, and ran for assistance. The family all ran into the room, and proceeded to open his shirt collar, thinking he was in a fainting fit, and that the usual restoratives would suffice. In undoing his vest it was found that the needle had penetrated his side very deeply, a circumstance which the young lady never noticed in her fright. The doctor was sent for. He administered what remedies he could. Partial consciousness was restored, and the young fellow enabled to talk. The scene between him and his first, last love, was extremely affecting.

She wept like one who feels that all hopes of earth is lost, and he seemed to regret her loss and not his own condition. He consoled her by saying that she would soon get another lover to fill his place, who would be more worthy of her love than he could hope to be, and who would make her happy. This but increased her sorrow. She sank down upon the floor beside him and cried aloud. When Joe was speechless, worse, and the doctor gave the emphatic opinion that he could not live, she started suddenly to her feet, and running into another room, swallowed a large dose of laudanum, which was kept there for the use of a young member of the family that was sick. It was some time before she was discovered, and then was only with the difficulty she was brought back to consciousness. The first word she uttered was, "O, where is he? let me go to him; I will be with him." At the same time the young gentleman was resigning his spirit into the hands of its Maker in the adjoining room. He died about 10 o'clock. She is still in a precarious condition, and evinces symptoms of insanity.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,
FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys, derived from its cures of many of which are truly marvellous. Inveterate cases of Scrofulous disease, which had seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous affections and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulous constitution until they were painfully afflicting, have been radically cured. Even running sores upon the surface yield to its purifying power, and the public scarcely need to be told of the virtues of this remedy.

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Once this unseen and unfelt scourge of mankind has established the constitution, and let loose the attack of enfeebling or fatal diseases, we have not even a suspicion of its presence. Again it seems to invite infection throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develop into one or other of the hideous forms, either on the surface or internal organs, that afflict us. These deadly diseases may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or heart, or they may fasten upon the liver, or it may be produced by conditions on the skin, or foul ulcers and corruption of the blood. Hence the once almost universal necessity for the use of this Sarsaparilla is not yet abated, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons affected with the following complaints should not neglect a thorough trial of it, for in time, cure, by the use of this, SARSAPARILLA, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sores, Ulcers, and other eruptions or visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in those more dangerous forms of Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Fits, Epilepsy, and the various Uterine affections of the muscular and nervous systems.

Syphilis or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are commonly cured, though a long time is required for subduing these obstinate maladies by any medicine. Nothing combines so perfectly as this medicine will cure the complaint. Leucorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, Female Weaknesses, Barrenness, are commonly soon relieved, and ultimately cured by its purifying and strengthening effect. Minute directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism, Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when arising from the absorption of bilious poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the enfeebled and wasted by age or system. Those who are Languid and Listless, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the affections symptomatic of Melancholy, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,
For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, And Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the nations of men, it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as its virtues have become known, and its character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs established. Hence it is known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for confirmed consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although Cherry Pectoral is in the gift to accumulate still greater numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by its use, and where it has failed, the Cherry Pectoral they unbiased the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,
For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Bismuth, Mercury, nor any mineral nor vegetable substance whatever, it in no sense injures any patient. The number and importance of the testimonials we give illustrate, are literally beyond account, and we believe there is not a parallel in the history of Ague medicine. Our pride is gratified by the acknowledgements we receive of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and where other remedies had wholly failed. Even a partial application of it to persons resident in, or travelling through miasmatic localities will be found protected by taking a dose of AGUE CURE daily.

For Liver Complaints, arising from derangements of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the liver into healthy action.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy. Purifying the blood, it removes manifold cures, where other medicines had failed.

Prepared by DR. J. C. AYER & Co., Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass., and sold all around the world.

Albany Lumber Market.

REVIEW FOR THE WEEK ENDING AUG. 4.

The receipts for the past week have been small, partly owing to the break in the canal at Frankfort. There has been a good attendance of buyers, and sales have been larger than for the past few weeks. Although there has been no increase in prices, it is evident that a better and stronger feeling prevails, and while increased sales and canal freights higher prices are expected before long. The shipments have been large, and the supply of vessels is ample.

The receipts at Albany by the Erie and Champlain canals for the fourth week in July were:

QUERY?

Should we employ the noble doctors to bring us out of sin and suffer a bottle of Pain Killer, at less than four times what they now cost?

If not, why should we longer adopt that system in reference to medicines which are the simple extracts of herbs or plants and roots, and carefully prepared as tea and coffee?

Each package of Dr. Thompson's Botanic Medicines contains more medical properties than can be procured in a dozen bottles now for the same amount of money.

We have in our possession numerous testimonials as to the practicability of, as well as the benefits derived from the use of Dr. Thompson's Botanic Medicines, to prove the above.

Dr. Thompson's Blood Purifier

Cures all diseases arising from an impure state of the blood, such as salt-rheum, scrofula, boils, tetter, white swellings, tendency to, cold sores, pimples or roughness of the skin. It frees the stomach and bowels, it tones the liver, and promotes the general vigor of the system, without reducing the strength of the patient. Sold at 50 cents per package.

Dr. THOMPSON'S
Stomachic Bitters.

A certain and speedy cure for Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, and Indigestion. For costiveness, they are unequalled, as it is a mild and safe invigorant and corrective for delicate persons as well as those of more robust constitutions, and is a powerful recuperant after the frame has been reduced by sickness, and excellent as a tonic, agreeable and wholesome stimulant, for general debility, and diseases having their origin in a disordered digestion or a deranged state of the stomach. Sold at 25 cents per package.

Dr. Thompson's No. 6.
OR COMPOSITION POWDERS

It is used with success for diseases caused by colds such as cold chills, chills and fever, headache, pains in the joints or limbs, neuralgia, rheumatism. In fact it may properly be called PAIN KILLER, as it may be used for all purposes for which PAIN KILLERS or Reliefs are used, such as cramps in the stomach or bowels, dysentery, summer complaints, cholera morbus, female complaints or interruptions. It may also be used with great success as a Liniment. Sold at 25 cents per package.

The proprietor has been induced to adopt the present method of selling by the medicine in packages, as he is thereby enabled to supply double the amount of medicine at the same regular price of former preparations.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,
For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally relied on. It is adapted to every country and climate, to all ages, and to all diseases of which this class is the head. Every one knows what they want when they call for a cathartic, and almost every one of intelligence has tried it, know that it cures them, those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that it is the safest physic to take. —that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its compounder, and that it is the cheapest in dollars and cents of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, which are within the memory of every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and constitutions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera restoring the stomach and bowels into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver and other parts of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever such exist, such derangements are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills are speedy cures for:

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor or loss of appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach into healthy action, and restore its tone and vigor.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice, Dysentery, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continually taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change these complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, they are one of the Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose to those whose stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels himself unwell, does not know what of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their healing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

Ayer's
Hair Vigor,
For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and glossy. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

ROYAL ITALIAN BITTERS
OR TONICO REALE.

Del Dottore P. P. Verri, Prof. of Chemistry in the of University Padua, Italy.

THIS Celebrated Preparation—for which a Certificate of Merit was awarded to the original preparer at the National Exposition at Torino, Italy, by whose favor Mr. Gianelli obtained the Recipe, and was also awarded a Diploma at the 1st Provincial Exhibition of Canada, held at Montreal in September, 1868, is without exception, the most Genuine, Salutary and agreeable Tonic ever offered to public notice either in Europe or America.

For seventeen years it has, in Italy, been a universal favorite among the elite of society, being generally served in the Drawing Room immediately before dinner, in preference to Vermouth.

☞ The ingredients of its composition have been imparted to the leading Physicians of Montreal, and have received their unqualified approval on every account.

The Proprietor has no idea of parading or puffing it before the public, but merely asks a trial and unprejudiced verdict.

Kept by the principal Wine Merchants, Druggists, and Grocers in Canada.

Prepared and sold wholesale by the Proprietor,

The Grand Trunk Railway—Its Increasing Prosperity.

From the Berlin Telegraph.

We have much pleasure in recording the greatly increasing prosperity of the Grand Trunk Railway. From facts and figures which we will adduce, and which is thoroughly reliable, it will be seen that this road under its able and energetic manager, Mr. Brydges, is daily obtaining a degree of success which is truly astonishing—a very gratifying fact to all who are interested in the material prosperity of our country.—Without the means of transport which the Grand Trunk affords at all seasons of the year, our trade would be in a deplorable condition, and no class in the community would feel this depression more than the farmer; hence the importance of the Press, irrespective of politics, when it can honestly do so, supporting and aiding in sustaining the credit of an enterprise which is so closely bound up with the material well-being of our country. It is needless to say that for several years back, the very mention of the Grand Trunk was sufficient to arouse in the public mind visions of "jobbery and corruption," and this cry of "corruption" was so generally indulged in by the press and public men, that it seriously damaged the credit of the company in England. This, however, we are glad to say, has done much to correct this strong feeling of prejudice, and tone down the party bitterness with which it was so often assailed. The press and our public men have both seen the folly of unjustly assailing this company for mere party ends. As an indication of the change in public sentiment in this respect, a journalist may now refer to its success and say a kindly word in justice to its Managing Director, without having the purity called in question, or running the risk of giving mortal offence to his readers. And here we would distinctly state, that, although saying this much in favor of the Company, we are not prepared to say that there was no "jobbery and corruption" connected with its construction. On the contrary, we believe there was, and that to a considerable extent; but these days have long since passed, and this line, we are happy in saying, is under a new regime. All must admit, that since Mr. Brydges assumed the chief management of the Grand Trunk, although under the most disadvantageous circumstances, its affairs have assumed a more prosperous aspect. Every week gives unmistakable evidence of this. The physical condition of the road has been greatly improved. We learn on reliable authority that within the last six years the Company has expended £150,000 sterling per annum, in addition to the regular and ordinary expenses, in the improvement and completion of its railways and works. With this expenditure a large proportion of the track has been re-laid with heavier and better rails than have hitherto been used. The ballasting of the road has been greatly improved; besides a large number of new sleepers have been put in. Accommodation in the way of warehouses has been largely increased, and the road is now in a condition properly to perform the business of the country and to carry off this fall the products of the fields, which promise to be abundant, if safely harvested; for the rolling-stock has been greatly increased. This is evidenced by the facts that during the last twelve months there has been no complaints in the newspapers, so far as we have seen, and we are informed none from individuals, of any failure on the part of the company properly to move all the freight that was desired to send by it. Both its Roadway and stock are now in a much better condition than at any time since the line was opened throughout, while the receipts have increased during that period by about sixty per cent.—This is a larger aggregate increase in so short a time than has, we think never before been exhibited in the history of any railway company. The receipts of this road, notwithstanding the dullness of trade in Canada, are now increasing at the rate of about $30,000 a week; and there seems to be little doubt that the gross traffic of the line during the present year will reach the sum of £1,500,000 sterling, or about $7,500,000! It is also gratifying to know that the Grand Trunk is every year absorbing more and more of the carrying business of the country, because shippers are now enabled to get their produce and freight to market with greater regularity than heretofore, and certainly with much more despatch than by the old means of conveyance. That this great success is mainly due to the foresight and great business qualities of Mr. Brydges, does not admit of a doubt, yet there is no public man in Canada that has been more soundly abused in certain quarters. In this country he is assailed by leading journals for the over zeal which he displays for the success of the company of which he is the chief Manager; while in England strong efforts have been made by several croaking shareholders to oust him from his present position on the ground that he is not sufficiently alive to the interests of the company. We are glad to see, however, that this movement proved utterly abortive. We have no hesitation in saying that no greater blunder could be committed at present than to remove Mr. Brydges from his position as Managing Director at the very time when he is so successfully managing the affairs of the company as to give promise of a handsome dividend. If Mr. Brydges, with his large railway experience and acknowledged ability, cannot make the Grand Trunk a paying concern, we may well despair of any one else endeavouring to do so, certainly no gentleman imported from England would be more successful—no matter how great his abilities—until he had served several years apprenticeship in managing a railway in this country, which is so different from that pursued in England, arising from difference of climate, the circumstances of the country and the genius of the people.

CORRESPONDENCE.

The Twa Dogs.

To the Editor of the Daily Intelligencer.

SIR,—At the present time there is a fierce competition going on between Toronto and Ottawa for a prize well worthy of a great struggle, nothing less than the transit route of what must be ere long the great artery of commerce for the Dominion of Canada, and a large part of the western and middle States. The Toronto Dog, represented by Mr. Capreol, is showing great pluck and endurance in fighting a battle that, like their Georgian Bay and Toronto Cause, must always be up hill work (and it is very hard to make water run up hill). And surely the Ottawa Dog (that like Cerberus, the dog of hell, has a number of heads but only one tail), is waking up from his lethargy, and begins to bow wow for the Nipissing and Ottawa Canal. They are both good dogs, and will fight hard for their bone; but there is another Dog that seems to be just as big, in his kennel, and if he wakes up and rouses himself to action, can take the bone away from both the other dogs; that Dog, may if he chooses be the victor, has his "local habitation and his name" at Belleville. This is no doubt a startling operation to most of your readers; but it is one of those facts that being based on a great law of nature, and supported by superior natural advantages, needs only energy and skill to be realized. A glance at the map of Upper Canada shows what nature has done for us by a chain of Lakes and Rivers connecting the waters of Lakes Huron and Ontario by the way of Lake Simcoe, Rice Lake, the River Trent and Bay of Quinte. The feasibility of this route attracted attention as long ago as 1836.

As may be seen by referring to the appendix, to the Journal of the House of Assembly, 2nd Session, 13th Parliament, Vol. 1st, where the reader may see a "report on the most eligible route for a canal between Lake Simcoe and Rice Lake, by N. H. Baird, Esq., C.E.; but, at that time Upper Canada was young, the advantages accruing from the work were of a local nature, and other influences prevailing, the project was dropped. With us, of the present day, the case is different; we have not only all the local wants, and local advantages contemplated by the men of '36, but we have that new Empire of the West, looming up in the Hudson Bay Territory—that 160 million acres in the fertile belt, that in a few years will be the best half of Canada, and for which we must provide a highway to the ocean. Then there is the gigantic trade of the Western States, that has sprung into existence since '36, and that has for years past been seeking an outlet to the ocean by our inland waters. These are wants that must be provided for, Toronto ever greedy of gain, but taking good care not to risk much in a public enterprise, is trying to stuff us with the idea of the Georgian Bay Canal, a work that we know to be impracticable. But, they want that 10 million acres of our public land to speculate on, and I don't know how much money besides. Poor fellows, they'll have to wait some time before they get either the one or the other.—The Ottawa route is more feasible; their water run down hill, and there is plenty of it; but the difficulties surrounding that route are so formidable, that it will take a richer country than Canada to overcome them, and a greater necessity than we can now contemplate for attempting the task. Indeed, there is no need for entertaining the wild delusion of the Toronto schemer, or the herculean task of making the Ottawa and its Nipissing tributaries navigable for first class steamers, whilst we possess the geographical advantages of the route from the Georgian Bay to the Bay of Quinte, by way of Lake Simcoe, Rice Lake and River Trent. By this route we shall secure the American trade of Lake Ontario, which we should lose by the Ottawa route. With these objects in view, and the necessity that presses upon us for selecting some route for such an important link in the great chain that is to bind our Dominion together, it becomes the duty, not only of the men of Hastings, but of every true patriot in the Province, to select the line that is cheapest, shortest, most easy of accomplishment, and that when completed will be to Canada what the Nile is to Egypt.

CANADIAN WOOL IN BOSTON.—3,000 lbs. of Canada Combing Wool recently sold on the Boston market at 75 cts. per lb. Combing and Delaines were in brisk request, and a further advance was shortly anticipated.

PIC NIC TO MASSASSAGA POINT.—The Annual Pic-Nic of the St. Andrew's Society of the County of Hastings to Massassaga Point, will take place on Thursday, the 19th inst. Full particulars will be given in a few days.

RACES AT BUFFALO.—There were 8,000 people at the races at Buffalo on the 10th inst. The First race for $1,000 was won by "Grey Hawk," time 2 29½ ; 2 29¾ ; 2 43¾. Second race, for $2,000, was won by "Henry," time 2 27 ; 2 27¾ ; 2 30½.

FIRE.—On Sunday night the farm house belonging to and occupied by Mr. John Coulter, lot No. 30, second concession of Thurlow, was completely destroyed by fire. Nearly all the furniture and contents were saved. There was no insurance. The fire is supposed to have caught from a defective stovepipe.

CRICKET MATCH.—The Belleville Eleven started on Monday for a week's Cricketing tour. On Monday they played the Port Hope Club, winning the game by five wickets. Yesterday they played the Lindsay Club with the following result: Belleville, 1st innings, 117 ; Lindsay, 65. Belleville, 2nd innings, 79 ; Lindsay, 58, with seven wickets to go down. It was decided a drawn game, in accordance with the arrangements made between the two clubs.

THE GOVERNOR GENERAL'S TRIP.—The Quebec Chronicle thus refers to the trip of the Governor General:—The Napoleon III. will stop first at the Saguenay, where the party will spend two or three days. They will then proceed to Gaspe, Prince Edward Island, and will land at Pictou, from whence the steamer will return to this port. His Excellency and party will continue to Halifax, St. John. N. B., and Fredericton, and will return by way of Portland. His Excellency will then visit the Niagara Falls and other places in the West, previous to proceeding to Ottawa.

INSENDIANY FIRES.—Montreal had three incendiary fires on Monday, and we now have an account of an attempt to burn the St. John's barracks. The western wing guard house, and storeroom quarters of the barracks were destroyed by fire on Monday. Loss $12,000. The Montreal fire brigade was sent for but the fire was subdued before the train started. The Gazette says: "The St. John's barracks was just about to be handed over to the Dominion Government when it took fire, and, failing the transfer, the loss will consequently fall upon the Imperial Government. It was very recently occupied by two companies of the Royal Canadian Rifles, who were lately removed to Kingston and was in charge of Captain Elliot, late of H. M. 15th Regiment, Acting Barrack master. They were built about thirty years ago and could easily accomodate 2,500 to 3,000 men. They were situated on the brink of the river Richelieu and within four or five hundred yards of the town."

Laying the Corner Stone.

At the request of the Contractors the Masonic body will lay the Corner Stone of the Deaf and Dumb Asylum to-morrow at 3 o'clock, p. m. The Grand Master, Bro. A. A. Stevenson, of Montreal, with several Grand Officers, will be present, the Grand Master performing the ceremony of laying the Corner Stone, in accordance with the usuages of the Order. A telegram has been received from Kingston to the effect that the Grand Chapter, which is now in session at that place, will take part in the ceremony, arriving here by this evening's train. A number of Brethren from this District have been invited, and are expected to be in attendance. We understand the Brethren will meet at the Lodge Room at half-past one o'clock to-morrow, to form in procession.

The Firemen's Demonstration.

On the occasion of the visit of Hose Company, No. 7, of Oswego, to this town to-morrow, No. 1 Company of the Fire Brigade of Belleville intend giving them a grand reception. The Oswego Firemen are expected to arrive either by the morning train, or by the mixed at 11:25 from Kingston. They will be accompanied from Kingston by the Band of the Royal Canadian Rifles, which has been engaged by a Committee from Belleville, and will be received with appropriate honors by the whole Fire Department of Belleville. It is contemplated to have a parade through the principal streets, and a trial of the Engine, of which due notice will be given. The various Companies will participate in the demonstration of laying the corner stone, after which the Oswego firemen will be entertained by a dinner at the Dafoe House. In the evening a grand ball in honor of their visit will be given in Ontario Hall. The splendid band of the Royal Canadian Rifles will furnish music on the occasion, and it is expected there will be a grand turn-out.

A Public Holiday.

It will be seen by advertisement in another column that nearly all the merchants and business men of Belleville have agreed to close their places of business to-morrow for the purpose of allowing their employees the privilege of participating in the different demonstrations which are to come off on that day. The desire to have a holiday having been expressed so generally it is to be hoped that all those whose names are not attached to the published list will conform to the general wish, and thus give their employees an opportunity of enjoying the holiday.

We understand that the Ferry Boat will run to and from the Deaf and Dumb Asylum dock, leaving Belleville at half-past one, and making several trips afterwards. This will be a great accommodation to the people.

A Few Reflections.

Belleville has a provincial reputation for high-toned morality, which it is highly desirable to preserve. In proportion to its population there is probably less crime, less drunkenness, less disorderly conduct, less open wickedness than in any other place in Canada. The laws of the country and the town are generally obeyed, the Sabbath is generally respected, and so far as outward appearances go, the tone of the morality of Belleville is above the average. Such a happy state of things is no doubt attributable, partly to the inherent virtue of the people, partly to the labors of earnest Clergymen, and partly to the healthy and vigorous enforcement of the laws.—There is no doubt that the prompt enforcement of the law has contributed much to this happy condition of affairs. Some men are constrained by love, and coaxing, and entreaty, to do what is right, and no doubt the vast majority are thus influenced. But there are those who can only be kept from committing crime and violating laws by not merely holding up to them the terrors of the law, but by causing them to experience its severity. It is therefore essential to the cultivation and maintenance of a healthy tone of morals, that the laws restraining vice and immorality should be executed with inflexible severity. While it is mercy to deal leniently with first and slight offences, it is criminal to tamper with hardened offenders. The man who openly and unblushingly violates the laws, who in defiance of repeated warnings, snaps his fingers at the law and authorities, should be made to feel the terrors of the law. There should be no trifling with such men. The utmost penalty of the law should be inflicted, be it fine or imprisonment.

A case came up before the Police Magistrate on Friday which revealed a state of things highly discreditable, and which the people of Belleville would hardly believe existed. Mr. Cronn, of the Club House, was the accused, and the witnesses against him were persons who had, according to their own testimony, night after night and way into the early hours of the morning, gambled in his place for money with cards, with dice, and by other games of chance—gambled openly and unblushingly, and in which games of chance the accused himself participated. The evidence of his guilt was strong and conclusive—it was evidence which would lead us to believe, that after all, Belleville is not the high-toned moral Town we have supposed. Large sums of money were lost and won, the place was open at all hours of the night, and apparently there was but very little effort at concealment of what was going on. This state of things is certainly not very creditable to Belleville—it does not sustain the reputation we have abroad—it does not say much for the efficiency of the Police force we have had—it shows a laxity in the enforcement of the law altogether unjustifiable, and conveys a lesson which every father and mother in the Town should learn, and learn well.

But Cronn's is not the only place where the laws of the land are openly and flagrantly violated. In other places there is gambling going on, where young men are being trained for a life of vice, immorality and crime, and there is no concealment made. Every Saturday night the law regarding the bars of hotels and saloons to be closed at 12 o'clock, is violated. Every Sunday scores go in and out of some of these taverns and saloons, even while the Policeman is walking up and down the street in front of these places. Every day minors are permitted to play at Billiards in defiance of the law, and in defiance of the repeated remonstrances of their parents or guardians. Every day liquor is sold to minors and apprentices, and to persons in an intoxicated condition, contrary to law.—Every day liquor is sold in unlicensed groggeries and shebeen shops, and every day we are drifting further and further from that high stand-point which is a tower of strength to any community, and drifting further and deeper into the current of vice and immorality. It is time, high time, these offenders against law and order should be punished, and the tide stopped. An example has been made of one; equity and justice demand that other offenders should be punished with equal severity. Shall it be done?

The Stabbing Affair at Bannockburn.

FULL PARTICULARS.

A correspondent furnishes the following account of the stabbing affray at Bannockburn: "On Saturday evening last, Aug. 7, another affair of stabbing occurred at Bannockburn. It seems there has been some difficulty for some time past between two families residing there, by the name of McLeod and McCanse. Thomas McCanse, Benjamin McCanse and Allen McLeod, met at Mr. Maitland's Hotel on Saturday evening, and commenced quarreling, it seems about some report that McLeod had made disparaging to McCanse's sister. Soon words came to blows, and Benjamin McCanse and Allen McLeod got into a fight, the result of which was, that McCanse stabbed McLeod with a knife in the left side, very near the heart, inflicting a wound about two inches long, passing between the ribs, and supposed to penetrate the lungs. As soon as it was ascertained that McLeod was stabbed, Wm. Maitland, Esq., issued a warrant for the apprehension of McCanse, and swore in several special constables to arrest him, but he was no where to be found, and was not taken until next day, when the Constable arrived from Madoc; he came out of the woods and gave himself up. His brother Thomas was also taken, as being an accessory with him. On Monday following they were tried before W. Wood, B. Vancleeck, and W. Maitland, Esqs., at Bannockburn, where a large crowd had collected to hear the trial.

At two o'clock the Court opened, and there were about twelve or fifteen witnesses called for the prosecution, who testified to the fight having taken place and the cause of the fight, but none could swear positively to McCanse stabbing McLeod as it was too dark to see him use the knife, although the deposition of Allen McLeod taken before the three Magistrates was positive as to McCanse stabbing him. The consequence was, that no charge was found against Thomas McCanse, but Benjamin McCanse was found guilty, and sent to Belleville for trial. I forgot to mention that Dr. Sutton from Madoc was called upon by McLeod, and he testified in Court that his case was very critical, although the chances were in his favor.

Yours, &c.

The Mining Regions of North Hastings.

To the Editor of the Daily Intelligencer.

SIR,—In our weekly issue of August 6th, I see a letter headed "The Gold Regions," signed "A Miner," and dated at Tudor, July 19th. This, and the style in which it is written, is as much as to tell us it is by W. H. Palmer. In speaking of the results from the Gilbert Mill, in Marmora, he says "this news is gratifying to those who knows the defectiveness of the Mill it proves the richness of the lode." Now, Sir, a few words in regard to the defectiveness of the Mill. When Mr. Gilbert decided to erect a Mill on the property he consulted with the best, probably, and most experienced, mining engineer in regard to gold mining and milling in Canada. I allude to J. H. Dunstan, Esq., whose advice was to take the old Mill and repair it, and with the addition of new copper plates and a shaking table, to use it until such time as the mine is properly proved, and as soon as work commenced to save all concentrated tailings, and after properly testing the sulphurets, and they, as well as the mine, should prove good, that the Clorination process could be added for working all the concentrated ore. This advice, in my opinion, is much wiser than Mr. Palmer would lead one to suppose his advice would be, which by reading his letter I should think would be, "to rush into building furnaces and mills, perhaps to the cost of twenty or thirty thousand dollars," and then, perhaps, find out it was all useless. We have had enough of such useless waste, and to such wild advice we may charge our poor standing as a mining country at present. It was on such advice that the Bay State, Anglo-Saxon, Merchants' Union, Toronto and Whitby, and other Mills was erected, and I think that both Mr. Dunstan and Mr. Gillen deserves praise, the one for giving and the other for following such advice, instead of doing what Mr. Palmer and his friend would seem to recommend.

"Mr. Palmer says the gold in that vein is chiefly locked up in Arsenical Iron Pyrites," on this point I don't know their own business best; but I hope nothing will be done wildly in Marmora, as in regard to erecting works for milling and mining, for in case the mill and works which are spoken of as going to be erected, should turn out as some of them in Madoc, it will throw back the development of this section for years, therefore let us follow Mr. Dunstan's advice to all ever since he has been in the country, "to be cautious and economical, and be sure you have something to warrant the erection of works before you commence."

In my opinion we should develope and prove our mines, and when we show that we have plenty of ore that will pay for working, there will be time enough to think of getting more mills, and by that time we shall know what processes we want, and who are best qualified to erect and work them.

Attempt to Inveigle the Cuban General Ryan into Returning to the States.

CLIFTON HOUSE, 9 P. M., Aug. 6.

Jas. H. Day, formerly private Secretary to Gen. Ryan, arrived here last night with a letter purporting to come from the Cuban Junta in New York, asking the General to return to New York immediately with Day. The General saw at once that it was a forgery, and accused him of treachery. Day then made a full confession of his rascality and treachery. He also confessed that he left the General arrested in New York, and that he had forged letters for the purpose of extracting money from a certain lady in New York who took a lively interest in Gen. Ryan and the Cuban cause. This confession he made in writing in a letter addressed to the New York Herald, and signed it in his own blood in the presence of the Telegraph operator of the Hotel. The General gave him a severe and unmerciful beating before he wrote the letter, and severely horsewhipped him after the confession was made. All this took place in room fifty-six, of the Clifton House, and no small excitement was created. Day on his knees begged for mercy, but none was shown him till the guest rushed in and took the whip from the General. Day is a man of 5 feet 11 inches in height, weighs about 195 pounds.

CARLISTS GATHERING AGAIN.

MADRID, Aug. 10.—The Spanish Consul at Bay Orme telegraphs that the Carlists are gathering again on the frontier, and intend to make an irruption into Spain to-morrow. The Government is fully prepared to meet them all along the line. All Carlist bands now in the country are seeking refuge in the mountains.

ABOUT THE RED BOOK—A SINGULAR SPEECH.

VIENNA, Aug. 10.—Baron Von Beust in his speech before the delegation yesterday, defended the publication of the Red Book and all it contained. Its discussion he argued would remove misapprehension and not create disquietude. He contradicted the assertion that he had interfered in the affairs of the German States or exercised any pressure to form a South German Confederation. He reiterated his previous assertion that no alliance existed between Austria and any European power, but adds in France we have a good friend. It is questionable if Germany could help us. France has always shown friendship and sincerely entertains kindly feelings for all the people of Austria. In conclusion the Premier stated that most of the disagreements with Prussia were through the publication of the Red Book, and in justice to Werthes he was bound to bear testimony that he offered no impediment to better relations. The policy of Austria was one of domestic, not foreign alliances.

PRUSSIA NO FRIEND.

PARIS, Aug. 10.—It is generally understood here that Baron Von Beust in alluding so positively to the sincere friendship of France, desired to convey the impression that he did not consider Prussia a sincere friend.

A PROFITABLE RAILWAY.

The earnings of the Central Pacific Railroad for July were $379,000. The results of the operations of the first three months since the connections of the Eastern lines show a revenue at the rate of seven millions dollars per annum, of which three millions is net earning.

ARRIVED.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—The steamship "Lafayette" from Havre has arrived.

A FEMALE FENIAN'S OATH.—A day or two ago, among other "suspicious" documents found on the person of Patrick Hughes, who was brought before the magistrates at Dublin on a charge of being a Fenian, was the following form of oath, written by a female hand, and signed, "Your sincere friend, Nanny Egan" :—"I do hereby sware (sic) that I will attend to the utmost of my power all the members of the Fenian Brotherhood which has established in Ireland a good and just cause. I will wash, mend, and make, help the sick and wounded in hospital—at the battle fields of America, and at the colors of our own native land. Here's to the green fields and the Grannel walk, Fenian lads and time to talk. Here's long may the Country pre smile. May Hagle who sold them and Judge Keogh who tried them—may the light of heaven never shine upon them—may the hearthstone of hell be their tombstone (sic) forever !" The precise offence charged against Hughes, who was remanded, was that he threatened to blow up the house of a policeman with whom he had loged, and also said he could get three hundred men in Dublin to blow the heads off all the members of the metropolitan force.

IRELAND.—A woman named Moor, who had occasion to go with a Scotch police-officer to take charge of a pauper family which had to be removed to Sligo, has had a narrow escape of losing her life. She accompanied the officer and another man on Monday, the 12th to visit Sligo Lake, and as the party were returning were set upon by a party of Irishmen armed with stones, and the woman was very severely hurt. On the matter being brought under the notice of the police it was pointed out that the woman wore a yellow flower in her bonnet, and this, on the Twelfth, was interpreted by the Roman Catholics of the neighborhood as a proof of Orange sympathies. The police told their Scottish colleague that such things were common enough in Ireland, and they had no hope of bringing the guilty parties to justice. They further advised him to get back to Scotland as soon as he could, for if the fact that he had given information of the outrage came to be known he would probably be made to suffer for it. He took the hint and left as soon as possible.

THE SOUL.—What makes the soul so valuable? It is immortality. When endless years have run on, the soul will exist; amazing thought? Will it never tire? Will the eternal pulsation of sublimited existence never grow heavy? Will the wheel never be broken at the cistern? Never! The soul will endure as the throne of God! As heaven's wall shall gather no mosses from age, neither will the soul become decrepit; and in all the multitudes of heaven not one shall be seen leaning upon his staff for very old age! What like the angels never grow old? To be always the same through dateless centuries as when first created? But cannot she annihilate herself? Oh no! the soul's literal suicide cannot be performed! No Judas Iscariot can find a tree, or jutting wall which in Gehenna's caverns, and burning fields, may offer him suspension between life and death. The soul must live on.—Rev. Dr. Andrews.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry.

Where this article is known it is a work of supererogation to say one word in its favor, so well is it established as a healing remedy for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Asthma, Diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs, as well as that most dreaded of all diseases, Consumption, which high medical authority has pronounced to be an incurable disease. Those who have used this remedy know its value; those who have not, have but to make a single trial to be satisfied that of all others it is THE REMEDY.

THE REV. JACOB SECHLER,

well known and most respected among the German population of this country, writes as follows :

HANOVER, Pa., Feb. 16, 1859.

MESSRS. S. W. FOWLE & SON, Boston.

DEAR SIRS,—Having realized in my family important benefits from the use of your valuable preparation—Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry—it affords me pleasure to recommend it to the public. During eight years ago, one of my daughters appeared to be in a decline, and little hopes of her recovery were entertained. I then procured a bottle of your excellent Balsam, and before she had taken the whole of it there was a great improvement in her health. I have, in my individual case, made frequent use of your valuable medicine, and have always been benefitted by it. I would, however, caution the public against imposition, because there is a good deal of spurious "Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry" afloat throughout the country.

Grace's Celebrated Salve.

From Mr. JAMES CURLIS, of AMESBURY, Mass.

"I was afflicted with a severe felon on one of my fingers, and tried many remedies without relief. My friends induced me to apply your Salve. In two days it extracted the inflammation from my finger so as to enable me to resume my work. I can almost say that the Salve would take a magic, for it effected a cure without leaving a scar. I unhesitatingly pronounce 'Grace's Salve' an excellent remedy, and do not doubt it will be appreciated throughout the land." 25

NEW ALBION HOTEL,

McGILL STREET,
MONTREAL, CANADA.

THE "NEW ALBION HOTEL," the largest Hotel in Montreal, has just been opened under the most favorable auspices.

Whilst the "Old Albion" has been long noted for the strict attention paid to its numerous guests, the "New Albion" takes its position as a first class Hotel, and is really, first class in every respect, except the charges, which better suit the ideas and requirements of the majority of travellers, than many of the so called, "first class Houses" which deserve the title more through the amount of their charges than aught else.

Already the crowded state of the "New Albion" promises well for its future career; everything associated with its construction has been carried out with artistic taste and systematic correctness.

The large Hall, commodious office, spacious Reading room, convenient Dining, Tea, Wash Room, etc., etc., on the ground floor; and the Reception Room and Suite of SPLENDIDLY FURNISHED and THOROUGHLY VENTILATED LADIES' PARLORS, on the second floor, will combine to satisfy the fastidious the most summer season. And, what is an exception to the general rule in Hotels, the Bedrooms are all well ventilated and lighted, there not being a dark room in the House.

Being situated on the widest and healthiest Street in Montreal, commanding a Magnificent View of the River St. Lawrence and the Victoria Bridge on the left, and a full view of the Victoria Square with its numerous "Jets d'Eau" and Mount Royal on the right, it cannot fail to commend itself to the travelling public.

From its situation on McGill Street, the great thoroughfare and commercial centre of the City it cannot fail to be, as the "Old Albion" has always been a strong favorite with the Merchants of Canada.

Notwithstanding the very large outlay in building and furnishing the house, the old price of $1 50 per day will not be departed from.

We, therefore, bespeak for ourselves a continuance of the patronage so liberally accorded to us during the past twelve years.

What Shall we Drink.

Cold water swallowed during the progress of digestion instantly arrests it, and the process is not resumed until the water has been there long enough to be warmed from the temperature at which it was drank to that of the stomach; or from forty degrees to one hundred; to accomplish this the heat must be extracted from the general system, chilling it. Strong, robust persons may not feel this; but if a man is feeble health drinks cold water at a meal at all largely, he rises from the table chilly, and soon has fever, while the stomach, being kept at work that much longer in digesting the food, loses in natural vigor, the digestion is imperfect, and the food becomes impure thus laying the foundation of disease. The inevitable inference from these facts is that cold water is injurious to health if taken at meals. Injurious to the most robust, if taken largely, and to persons in feeble health, if taken at all, beyond a few swallows at a meal.

It therefore set it down as a clearly established fact that a glass or more of cold water, drank habitually at meals, or soon after, is a pernicious practice, even to the healthy.

Injury is done in another manner. Water, or any other fluid, dilutes the gastric juice, and thus weakens its power to dissolve the food. The amount of gastric juice is not lessened, but its power is diminished by its dilution. The finger will be scalded by dipping it into a vessel of boiling water; but if an equal amount of cold water is added, it may be thrust in with impunity, although there is as much heat in the mass as before, but it is diffused.

Any kind of fluid taken largely at a meal or soon after, is positively injurious to health.

A standing item of advice to my patients is—take but a glass of water at a single cup of weak tea or coffee, never incressing the strength or quantity, and drink nothing within an hour after eating.

If cold drinks are injurious at meals, cold food is for the same reason also injurious; thus it is that some of the most terrible forms of disease are brought on by persistence in eating cold food exclusively in winter time.

If cold fluids are injurious at meals, we naturally conclude that warm fluids, in moderation, are beneficial, rightly so.

It then follows that if we drink anything at meals, it should be first warmed.

We may safely admit that the universal custom of a country is founded on common sense, being the teachings of experience.—Common sense and the experience of the civilized world is, that a cup of good hot coffee for breakfast, or a cup of good hot tea for supper, is "wholesome."

The old adage, that we must make hay while the sun shines, is about to lose altogether its significance. The toil of days succeeded after to have nothing whatever to do with hay making, beyond rigeding the grass for the mower. An apparatus has been contrived and put in operation in England, which takes the grass as soon as it is mown, and places it in a strong current of hot air set in motion by a fan, to be worked by steam or horse-power, as preferred. The hot air generated is like manner with that which heats our dwelling houses in winter, by a furnace and the revolving fan throws it upon the grass. In this manner, upon the testimony of Mr. Mechi, who writes a letter to the London Times on the subject, moist grass may be converted into hay of the best quality in ten minutes. The revolving fan thus promises to bring about a revolution in the haymaking process. Farmers will then be independent in a great measure of the weather for drying their grass; no hay need hereafter be destroyed or even damaged, and two crops can certainly be made in the season. A good deal of the poetry of the hay field will be lost by this process, but the increased production will abundantly compensate us for it.

AN INSTANCE OF RARE GENEROSITY.—The Richmond, Va., Journal gives this instance of generosity:—"A colored man in this city some eighteen years ago bought his freedom of his master, and working hard, early and late, soon was able to buy his wife. He has been prosperous since, and he now owns the finest livery in the South. His fortune is estimated at about $50,000. His old master, who, at the evacuation of Richmond, was worth half a million, became ruined. The former slave, being apprised of the misfortune of his old master, took him to his house, and gave him everything he desired. Shortly after this the old man died. His funeral was a large and expensive one, and he was borne to a lot in the cemetery paid for by his old slave, who also paid for his funeral outlay. Over him was raised a handsome monument, paid for with the colored man's money. The widow of the deceased slaveholder lives in a house presented by the colored man, who also supplies her with every comfort."

The other day X called on Madam Q. 'Madam can I see your husband?'

'No, sir: he is out at present. He went out to buy a cigar.'

'Did he say when he would return Madam?'

'No.' 'He has been gone long?'—'More than twenty years.'

'Ah! I see said X., he wanted to get a good one.'

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,
FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys, is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Inveterate cases of scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous affections and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulous contamination until the system painfully suffering, have been radically cured by it. In these and other great numbers in almost every section of the country that the public scarcely need to be reminded of its virtues or cures.

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this unseen and unfelt tenant of the organism undermines the constitution, and invites the attack of enfeebling or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed infection throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develop into one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or tissues formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by tumors on the skin, or foul ulcers about the extremities. Before the poison has had time to fortify itself, Sarsaparilla is to be given, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Personas afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, at length, cure, by the use of this: Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions or visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Fits, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various Ulcerous affections of the pasages of the throat and nostrils.

Syphilis or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these obstinate complaints by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Leucorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute Directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when these manifestations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaint, the result of Indigestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when arising, as they often do, from Biliary poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the shattered nerves of the system. Those who are Languid and Listless, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, will find all the affections symptomatic of Weakness, will find immediate relief and continuing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and the young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dreadful ravages of the throat and lungs. As a protection against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known, that we need not publish the certificates of them here, or do more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Bismuth, Zinc, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it in nowise injures any patient. The number and importance of its cures in the aguish districts, are literally beyond account, and we believe without a parallel in the history of Ague medicine. Our pride is gratified by the acknowledgments we receive of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and where other remedies had wholly failed.

Unacclimated persons, either residing in or travelling through miasmatic localities, will be protected by taking the AGUE CURE daily.

For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy activity.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing in many truly remarkable cures, where other medicines had failed.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. AYER & Co., Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass., and sold all round the world.

QUERY?

Should we employ the noble doctors to bring us our tea and coffee in bottles, at an expense of at least four times what they now cost us?

If not, why should we longer adopt that system in reference to medicine which we see in the extracts of herbs or plants and roots, and are as readily prepared as tea and coffee?

Each package of Dr. Thompson's Botanic Medicines contains more medicinal properties than can be prepared in any other form for four times the amount of money.

Dr. Thompson's Botanic Medicines stand unrivalled as to the practicability of, as well as the benefits derived from the use of, Dr. Thompson's Botanic Medicines, viz:

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use by every country and among all classes. Its searching but efficient purgative power renders it the most perfect antidote for the various derangements of the digestive organs, that itis a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that where it does cure it does the work—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its compounding. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, and we need not publish them, for everybody knows what they are, and needs them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in life, purely vegetable, containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, where such exist, those deranged elements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are found in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor or low spirits, a dose or two should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action, as well as an agreeable and wholesome simulant, for general debility, and diseases having their origin in an imperfect digestion and deranged state of the stomach. Sold at 25 cents per package.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be taken as directed, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change these complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge, as directed.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it often is advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and purifying effect upon the digestive apparatus.

Ayer's
Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. It is well known that gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of forcing the growth with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious drugs which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Vol. 3. BELLEVILLE, COUNTY OF HASTINGS, DOMINION OF CANADA, FRIDAY EVENING, AUGUST 13, 1869. No. 87.

Too Late.

"Ah! si la jeunesse savait—si la vieillesse pouvait!!"

There sat an old man on a rock
And succising bewailed him of Fate—
That cowards where we all must take stock
Though our vote has no bearing or weight;
And the old man sang him an old, old song,
Never sang voice so clear and strong
That it could drown the old man's long,
For he sang the song "Too late! Too late!"

"When we want, we have for our pains
The promise that it we but wait
Till the want has burned out of our brains,
Every means shall be present to state;
While we stand for the napkin the soup gets cold,
While the bonnet is trimming the face grows old,
When we've matched our buttons the pattern is sold,
And everything comes too late—too late!

"When strawberries seemed like red heavens—
Terrapin stew a wild dream—
When my brain was at sixes and sevens
If my mother had folks and ice-cream,
Then I cared with a thickwish hunger
At the restaurant man and fruit-monger—
But oh! how I wished I were younger
When the goodies all came—in a stream!
in a stream!

"I've a splendid blood horse and a liver
That it just late tortures to trot;
My row boat's the gem of the river—
Gout makes every knuckle a knot!
I can buy boundless credits on Paris and Rome,
But no palate for mosses—no eyes for a dome—
Those belonged to the youth who must tarry at home
When no hope but an attic he'd got—he'd got.

"How I longed in that lonest of garrets,
Where the tiles baked my brains all July,
For ground to grow two pecks of carrots,
Two pigs of my own in a sty,
A rose-bush—a little thatched cottage—
Two spoons—lots—a basin of pottage;
Now in a chateau I sit—and my dotage—
With a woman's chair empty close by—close by!

"Ah! now, though I sit on a rock,
I have shared one seat with the Great;
I have sat, knowing naught of the clock,
On Love's high throne of state;
But the lips that kissed and the arms that caressed
To a mouth grown stern with delay were pressed,
And circled a breast that their clasp had blessed
Had they only not come too late! too late!!"

—Fitz Hugh Ludlow, in Harper's Magazine.

The Line of the Intercolonial.

A correspondent of the Toronto Telegraph has discovered that there is really a very fine country along the line of the Intercolonial Railway. The Montreal Gazette says:—We knew this before, but so many in the West through ignorance, and in the East through interested motives, have asserted the contrary that we are glad to have this fresh testimony to the fact.—The correspondent says of the AGRICULTURAL CAPABILITIES OF THE COUNTRY:

I am satisfied that the agricultural capacity of this part of the country has never been properly understood. The teeming waters of the Chaleurs and the vast forests combined with the absence of the necessary facilities for getting agricultural produce to market, have tended to make the population mainly fishermen and lumbermen, and looking upon the land as only necessary to be worked to an extent sufficient to supply them with potatoes, a little corn and such like. Farming has consequently been neglected, but there is no part of the Dominion where potatoes, barley, oats, coarse grain of all kinds, root crops, and grain in certain localities, can be grown better or cheaper than in the valley of the Restigouche, the north shore of the Bay of Chaleurs, and the country between Dalhousie and Bathurst and in the Miramichi district. We saw many farms where the crops were most excellent, the cultivation exceedingly good, and the soil naturally productive. There is a large area of country of which this description is perfectly correct, and there can be no doubt that after the Intercolonial Railway has been opened a few years, and it has brought the country into notice, and provided a market for its surplus productions, that a great change will be seen, and that the local traffic upon the Railway will be very much greater than any one hitherto has ventured to suppose.

PROBABLE TRAFFIC FOR THE LINE.

The traffic in fish, upon which I shall have something to say in my next letter, will also be very large, although, of course, its weight cannot be great. The lumber business on many parts of the line will also be very considerable, and I am bound to add that, having formed a poor opinion of the prospects of the business upon the Intercolonial line, before I had seen the country in summer, I shall return with the conviction forced upon me by the logic of facts, that the country has been underrated, and that it has a much larger capacity for the support of a large and thriving population than I had ever supposed possible.

A NEW BRUNSWICK FARM.

At Bathurst, the Hon. John Ferguson has a farm of 350 acres, in a high state of cultivation, which would not fear to stand a comparison with some of the best farms in Ontario. It is thoroughly well cleared; has about fifty miles of cedar fence upon it; and shows as fine a crop of oats, barley, coarse grains, potatoes, and about 70 acres of spring wheat, as fine as any one would wish to see. He raises about 200 tons of hay, has 20 acres of potatoes, about 60 acres of oats, and a large number of acres with a fine show of turnips. This shows what the land is capable of by proper cultivation, and there can be no doubt that proper energy and skill will, in a few years, make a splendid farming country, extending over a large area.

Prorogation of Parliament.

THE QUEEN'S SPEECH.

London, Aug. 11.—Parliament was prorogued to-day by Royal Commission. The following message from the Queen was read by the Commissioner:—

We are commanded by the Queen to dispense with your further attendance in Parliament.

Her Majesty announces to you with pleasure that she continues to receive from Foreign Powers the strongest assurances of their friendly disposition; and that her confidence in the preservation of peace has been continued and confirmed during the present year.

The negotiation in which Her Majesty was engaged with the United States of America have, by mutual consent, been suspended. Her Majesty earnestly hopes this delay may tend to maintain relations between both countries on an amicable basis of friendship.

The Queen has lively satisfaction in acknowledging the untiring zeal and assiduity with which you have prosecuted the ardous labours of the year. In the Act for putting an end to the establishment of the Irish Church, you have carefully kept in view several considerations which, at the opening of the Session, were commended to your notice. It is the hope of the Queen that this important measure may hereafter be remembered as conclusive proof of the paramount anxiety of Parliament to pay reasonable regard to legislating for each of their kingdoms to special circumstances by which it may be distinguished, and to deal on principles of impartial justice with all interests and all portions of the nation.—The Queen firmly trusts that this Act may promote the work of peace in Ireland, and help to unite all classes of its people in that fraternal concord with their English and Scottish fellow subjects which must ever form the chief source of strength in Her Majesty's extended empire. The Queen congratulates you on having brought your protracted labours on the subject of bankruptcy and imprisonment for debt to a legislative conclusion which is regarded with just satisfaction by the trading classes and the general public.

The law for the better government of the endowed schools of England will render the resources of those establishments more accessible to the community and more efficient for their important purpose.

In the removal of the duty on corn, the Queen sees evidence of your desire to extend industry and commerce, and to enlarge to the uttermost those supplies of food which our insular position in a peculiar degree requires.

The Queen trusts that the measures of the purchase and management of the telegraph system of the country by the State may be found to facilitate the great commercial and social object of rapid, easy communication, and prove no unworthy sequel to the system of cheap postage, which has passed with such advantage into so many countries of the civilized world.

We are commanded to state that the Queen thanks you for the liberal supplies which you have granted for the public service of the year, and for the measures by which you have enabled Her Majesty to liquidate the charges of the Abyssinian expedition.

STONEWALL JACKSON'S LAST FLANK MARCH.—After Stonewall Jackson's death at Chandorsville, a story became current among the Confederate legions—which the soldiers loved to repeat over the fires of their bivouac—that, on account of his extreme piety, when their famous chieftain fell, a detachment of angels left the heavenly gates to visit the battle-field and escort the hero's soul to heaven. The celestial squadron searched the corpse-strewn plain but without effect. He whom they sought could not be found, and they returned mournfully to heaven to report their want of success. But lo! behold! on arriving they found the spirit of the immortal warrior there already. Stonewall Jackson had made a flank march and got to heaven before them!

The Public Holiday.

LAYING OF THE CORNER STONE OF THE DEAF AND DUMB INSTITUTE.

The public holiday yesterday was very generally observed. Nearly all places of business were closed, and the employees and the employers generally had an opportunity of participating in the demonstrations of the day. The weather was delightful, probably a little too warm for promenading in the dusty streets, but just such weather as those who went boating and pic-nicing had wished for. At an early hour the streets were alive with a mass of moving humanity, some wending their way to the water, others to the woods, and others wandering up and down not knowing, nor apparently caring, where to go. The Fire Companies mustered at their rooms before six o'clock and proceeded to the Railway Station, where they were to receive the

OSWEGO FIREMEN.

The train was on time, and the Oswego Company, after disembarking, were appropriately welcomed by their Brethren from Belleville, and headed by the Band of the Royal Canadian Rifles, the force marched down the principle street to the Dafoe House, where breakfast was awaiting them. The Oswego Hose Company No. 7, numbered about 30 members. Their dress is very neat, consisting of a dark blue tunic with white stripes, the figure seven worked on the breast, black pants, white belts, and glazed cap. They are a lot of fine, stalwart, able-bodied young men, just such men as are wanted for the duties they have to perform. Their Hose Cart, which they brought with them, is a model, and was much admired.

TRIAL OF THE ENGINE.

About half-past ten o'clock the Firemen took out the steam engine to show their Oswego brethren how the machine worked. Headed by the Band of the Royal Canadian Rifles marched down Front street to the corner of Dundas Street, where a trial of the engine took place. After being thoroughly and satisfactorily tested, the Companies proceeded back to their rooms where they dispersed.

LAYING THE CORNER STONE OF THE DEAF AND DUMB INSTITUTION.

The Masonic body having been requested to perform the ceremony of laying the Corner Stone of the Deaf and Dumb Institution, on the Front of Sidney, a special communication of the Grand Lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, Belleville, at half-past one o'clock. The following were present as Grand Officers and acting Grand Officers :—

M. W. Bro. A. A. Stevenson, Grand Master.
R. W. Bro. J. Seymour, Deputy Grand Master.
R. W. Bro. E J. Sisson as Gd. Senior Warden.
W. Bro. A. Diamond, as Gd. Junior Warden.
Bro. Rev. G. A. Anderson, as Gd. Chaplain.
W. Bro. Donald Bain, as Grand Treasurer.
R. W. Bro. T. B. Harris, as Grand Secretary.
Bro. Robert Ramsay, as Grand Registrar.
Bro. J. B. McLean, as Grand Senior Deacon.
Bro. J. Northcott, as Grand Junior Deacon.
W. Bro. N. B. Falkiner, as Grand Supt. Works.
W. Bro. John Taylor, as Grand Dir. of Cere.
Bro. J. P. Thomas, as Grand Asst. Secretary.
Bro. S. Stephens, as Grand Asst. Dir. Cere.
Bro. R. Booth, as Grand Sword Bearer.
Bro. St. G. B. Crozier, as Grand Organist.
Bro. D. Price, as Grand Assist. Organist.
Bro. H. Stevenson, as Grand Pursuivant.
Bro. J. T. Watson, as Grand Steward.
Bro. J. B. Fralick, as Grand Steward.
Bro. Geo. D. Dickson, as Grand Steward.
Bro. W. A. Shepard, as Grand Steward.
Bro. Thomas Kelso, as Grand Steward.
Bro. U. E. Thompson, as Grand Steward.

There were present about two hundred brethren, some of them coming from Picton, Trenton, Stirling, Madoc, and from other Lodges in this District. The Grand Lodge having been opened in due form, the Grand Master explained the object for which this special Communication had been called, regretted that it had not been possible for a larger number of the Grand Officers to be present, but was highly pleased at the respectable muster the Brethren had made. The Acting Grand Director of Ceremonies was then instructed to form the procession in the order laid down in the Book of Constitution. When the procession reached Pinnacle street, it was joined by the Firemen of Belleville and Oswego, accompanied by the Band of the Royal Canadian Rifles and the Band of the 15th Battalion. Considering the short notice given, the procession was large and imposing, numbering probably about four hundred people. A large crowd accompanied the procession to the ground, and on reaching it, a much larger crowd was found to have gathered there. It was estimated that not less than 5,000 were on the ground. At the wing where the stone was to be laid, a suitable pavillion had been erected, which was decorated with the British and American flags. On arriving at the site of the new building, the procession opened out, and the Grand Officers marched through to the spot where the stone was to be laid. The Grand Master and the other Grand Officers then ascended the platform, when an ode suitable to the occasion was performed by the Band of the Royal Canadian Rifles. The Grand Master then spoke in a clear, distinct voice, as follows :—

"Men, women and children, assembled here to behold this ceremony, know all of you that we are lawful Masons, come to the laws of our country, and professing to fear God, who is the Great Architect of the Universe : to honor the Queen : to confer benefits upon our brethren : and to practice universal benevolence towards all mankind.

"We have amongst us, concealed from the eyes of all other men, secrets which may not be revealed, and which no man has discovered; but those secrets are lawful and honorable, and are placed in the custody of Masons who alone have the keeping of them to the end of time.

"We admit into our Order only such as are reported to be good men and true : of a lawful age, good morals, and sound judgement. We meet upon a level, and are constantly instructed to square our conduct by the principles of Morality and Virtue. Men of every class and rank of life, without regard to race, religion or nationality, are enrolled as members of our ancient and honorable fraternity; even monarchs, the most powerful and enlightened, have in all ages been active promoters of our art, and have not thought it derogatory from their dignity to join our assemblies and participate in our mysteries.

"The lapse of time, the ruthless hand of ignorance, and the devastations of war have laid waste and destroyed many valuable monuments of antiquity on which the utmost exertions of human genius have been employed. Even the Temple of Solomon, so spacious and magnificent, and constructed by so many celebrated artists, escaped not the unsparing ravages of barbaric force. Freemasonary, notwithstanding, still survives. The attentive ear receives the sound from the instructive tongue, and the mysteries of Masonry are safely lodged in the sacred repository of faithful breasts. Tools and implements of architecture are selected by the fraternity to imprint on the memory wise and serious truths ; and thus, through successive ages, are transmitted pure and unimpared the excellent tenets of our institution.

"The laws of Freemasonary are reason and equity ; its principles—benevolence and love ; its religion—purity and truth ; its intention—peace on earth ; and its disposition—good will toward all men.

"Unless our Craft were good, and our calling honorable, we should not have existed for so many centuries ; nor should we see to-day, as in all time past, so many distinguished and illustrious brethren throughout the civilized world sanctioning our proceedings and contributing to our prosperity.

"Ever since the building of King Solomon's Temple, our Order has rendered to the world the most signal service, in cultivating amongst its members, a taste for the liberal Arts and Sciences, and in promoting a desire for the more general diffusion of scientific knowledge. In former ages, many of the grandest monuments of architectural skill were wholly constructed by the Masonic fraternity, (then a practical operative body) and in later times our assistance is yet required for the performance of such duties as those which you have now solicited at our hands.

"It affords us peculiar pleasure to comply with your request to lay with Masonic honors the Foundation Stone of an Asylum for that unfortunate class of our fellow creatures—the Deaf and Dumb of the Province of Ontario. The humane objects of such an institution are so thoroughly in unison with the aims and purposes of our Order, that it must be a source of rejoicing to every Freemason, whether present or absent, that the Lord hath inclined the hearts of those in authority to erect this building. Within its walls, hundreds, who have by the decree of an All-wise Providence, been denied the inestimable blessings of hearing and speech, will, we fervently hope, be enabled pleasantly to pass the time of their sojourn here on earth until they reach the other side of the dark river, where every ear will be unstopped, and every tongue unloosed, to unite in the celestial song, throughout the ceaseless ages of eternity.

"The establishment of this Institution is an evidence of the advanced civilization of the present age, and the recognition of Freemasonry in connection with the proceedings of to-day, is an indication of the enlightened and liberal sentiments which actuate those gentlemen to whom has been entrusted the government of this important portion of the Dominion of Canada.

"We shall now proceed to lay the Stone in accordance with the rites of our fraternity."

The Acting Grand Chaplain, Rev. W. Bro. G. A. Anderson, then invoked a blessing from the G. A. O. T. U. upon the undertaking.

The Grand Secretary, R. W. Bro. Harris, then read the contents of the parchment to be deposited in the cavity of the stone which was as follows :

In the favor of Almighty God,
On the Twelfth day of August, A. D. 1869,
Of the Era of Freemasonry 5869,
And in the 33rd year of the reign of our beloved Sovereign VICTORIA,
Queen of Great Britain and Ireland, and of the dependencies of the British Empire in Europe and India and Australasia, &c.
The Right Honorable Sir John Young, K. C. B., etc., etc., etc., being Governor General of the Dominion of Canada.
And the Hon. William Pearce Howland, C. B., Lieutenant Governor of the the Province of Ontario.
Alexander Allan Stevenson, Esq., M. W. Grand Master,
The foundation stone of the Deaf and Dumb Asylum for the Province of Ontario was laid with Masonic ceremonies by the M. W. Grand Master, assisted by the officers of the Grand Lodge of A. F. and A. Masons of Canada and the Lodges and Brethren of Belleville and neighborhood.
Whom may God prosper.

The above, together with copies of the Grand Lodge Reports, a copy of the Report of the Hamilton Asylum of Deaf and Dumb, a copy of Dr. Ryerson's report on Deaf and Dumb, copies of the Daily and Weekly Intelligencer, Weekly Chronicle, Daily Globe and Telegraph, and the various coins of Canada, were then placed in a box, properly sealed and deposited in the cavity of the stone.

The Contractor, Mr. Kempster, then presented to the Grand Master, a very handsome silver Trowel, beautifully chased, and suitably inscribed.

On receiving which, the Grand Master replied :

"Accept my thanks for this beautiful Trowel which you have so kindly presented to me. It is one of the most useful and most highly prized implements of our Craft. I shall preserve your gift, not only as a memento of the interesting proceedings of this day, but also on account of the surpassing beauty of its workmanship, which reflects great credit upon the silversmith who made it."

After receiving the Trowel, and also a handsome Gavel made for the occasion, the Grand Master spread the cement, and the upper stone was lowered by three regular stops, solemn music being played ; after which the Grand Junior Warden applied the plumb, the Grand Senior Warden the level, and the Deputy Grand Master the square.

G. M.—Brother Grand Junior Warden, what is the proper jewel of your office ?

G. J. W.—The plumb rule.

G. M.—Have you applied the plumb rule to the edges of the stone ?

G. J. W.—I have, and the craftsmen have done their duty.

G. M.—Your opinions as to level and square, with a like response, were put to and given by the G. S. W. and D. G. Master.

G. M.—R. W. and W. Brethren : having full confidence in your skill in our royal art, it remains for me, as Grand Master, to finish the work. [Three knocks were then given with the gavel.] Well made, truly laid, well proved, true and trusty. I strew corn upon the stone as the emblem of plenty ; I pour wine on it as the emblem of cheerfulness ; and I anoint it with oil as the emblem of comfort and consolation.

"May corn, wine and oil, and all the necessaries of life, abound among men ; and may the Great Architect of the Universe, who has so kindly blessed us in the proceedings of this day, enable those engaged in the erection of this building to complete it. May He protect the workmen from accident, and long preserve the structure from ruin or decay, that it may serve for generations yet to come, the humane and benevolent purpose for which it is intended."

Response—So mote it be.

The implements and plan of the building were then handed over to the Architect, whom the Grand Master thus addressed : "MASTER ARCHITECT,—The foundation stone of this building being now laid, I present you with the implements applied to it, as also the plan, in full confidence that as a skilful and faithful workman you will use them in such a manner that the building may rise in order, harmony, and beauty ; and that when completed, it may establish your reputation as a skilful builder, and reflect credit also upon those who have selected you for this undertaking."

A piece of music was then played, coin was then placed upon the stone, for the benefit of the workmen, by the Acting Grand Treasurer, after which the G. M. addressed the Hon. M. C. Cameron, Provincial Secretary, as follows :—"HON. SIR,—Having completed our work according to the ancient usuages of our fraternity, we congratulate you as the representative of the Government of Ontario, upon the auspicious commencement of this work ; and as it has been so happily begun, may it be steadily continued, and carried on to a speedy and successful termination."

The HON. M. C. CAMERON. It affords me great pleasure indeed to address you on the deeply interesting ceremony of laying the Corner Stone of a Provincial Institution designed to ameliorate the condition of a very large class of our unfortunate fellow creatures. The credit of erecting the building is not due to the Executive Government, but to the representatives of the people in the Legislative Assembly. To their credit be it said that every member of that body felt the necessity of an Institution of the kind, the location of which in Belleville created feelings of much dissatisfaction among the citizens of Hamilton, where the instruction of the Deaf and Dumb has for some years been in operation. The Government feeling that their measures have received uniform support from the members of the Legislature representing this eastern section of the Province, decided to give you the Deaf and Dumb Institution, and thus evince their appreciation of that support accorded them in carrying their measures through the House, even those measures promotive of the public good. I shall not enter upon political subjects, well knowing that the members of the Masonic Fraternity hold diversified views, but this much I will say, and tenaciously adhere to, that our country had too long been the arena of political partyism—men not measures—and that day is numbered among the past. I thank you sincerely for the attention with which you have listened to my remarks. I deeply regret that important duties have prevented the members of the Government from being present. (Cheers.)

PROF. MCGANN, of the Hamilton Institution said :—Most Worshipful sir, Brother Masons, Ladies and Gentlemen, words of mine fail to convey the remotest idea of the feelings of delight which fill my heart and soul in witnessing the realization of my long cherished hopes—the laying of the corner stone of a Provincial Institution for the instruction of our unfortunate deaf-mutes, 850 of whom knock at its doors for entrance. Eleven years ago I opened in the city of Toronto a class of four deaf-mutes, with the view of evoking public sympathy on their behalf, and succeeded in realizing my fondest hopes, now witnessed in laying the corner stone of an Institution for the instruction of those deprived of the choicest of earthly blessings—the faculties of hearing and of speech. My feeble efforts to excite public sympathy for this class, has exceeded my most sanguine expectations. True it is that I have encountered opposition, even from those members of the the Legislative Assembly, to whom Mr. Cameron has just referred. That opposition was founded upon the belief that the number of deaf-mutes in the Province did not call for an Institution, but researches throughout Ontario proved beyond doubt that we have 850 unfortunate fellow-subjects laboring under the fearful calamity of deaf dumbness, and in consequence in a condition barely a remove from the animal of the field, and without hope, without religious faith, conscious of none but animal wants ; but when educated they become good and useful members of society, and a source of true happiness to their parents and relations. I am heartily glad that as Hamilton was not favored by the Government, that the Institution is located in this part of the Province where deaf-mute education has not yet been appreciated, as is evident from the few facts that few have availed themselves of the benefits of the Hamilton Instution. When, however, the Belleville Institution is opened and its benefits known I should hope that the deaf mutes of the Eastern section will gladly avail themselves of the privilege placed within their reach. Oh ! how happy I am to find that we have a farm containing 85 acres of land so beautifully situated here to bring up our pupils in practical and in scientific agriculture and horticulture. They will receive a first class industrial training, and return home to their afflicted parents good, useful and self-sustaining members of society, and trained in good moral principles will doubtless be models worthy of imitation for their more fortunate brethren blessed with all their faculties. Loud applause.

Three cheers were given for the Grand Master, the Ontario Government, and the Contractor, after which the Band played God Save the Queen, and the crowd dispersed.

The procession being reformed the brethren marched back to the Lodge and were briefly addressed by the Grand Master.

THE FIREMEN'S DINNER.

In the evening the Oswego Firemen were entertained to a complimentary dinner by Moira Fire Company No. 1, at the Dafoe House. The spacious dining room of the "Dafoe" was filled to its utmost capacity by the Firemen and their friends. Among those present were, A. A. Stevenson, Grand Master of the Masonic Fraternity, Prof. J. B. McGann, His Worship the Mayor P. D. Conger, Esq., A. Diamond, Esq., Thomas Kempster, Esq., Thos. Kelso, Esq., Thos. Holden, Esq., N. B. Falkiner, Esq., James Blacklock, Esq., F. H. Hambly, Esq., and a number of other gentlemen. The chair was occupied by the Mayor, who in appropriate remarks introduced the usual loyal and patriotic toasts, which were all duly received and most heartily responded to. As a ball was to follow the dinner, the proceedings were necessarily short, as the majority of those present seemed to be impatient for the dance. The dinner was got up in Mr. Chittenden's best style, and reflected great credit on "mine host," which, after the hard day's work, it is hardly necessary to say, was done ample justice to by all present.

The following are the names of the Firemen from Oswego :—

H. M. Green, Chief Engineer ; T. R. Garrity, Foreman ; R. Morris, W. Fairtill, W. Lippencott, T. Burke, J. E. Kennedy, R. T. O'Neil, J. N. Cleeker, J. R. Shibley, G. S. Hustwick, J. S. Parker, S. Fairtiler, B. Golden, W. H. Young, M. B. Place, F. Blackwood, W. Mattoon, C. A. Cleming, J. Kenney, D. M. Macaskey, E. D. Wing, N. Blackwood, S. Moore, Luischbaite, E. M. Paine, D. D. Zelluf, E. Black, G. D. Cragg, J. A. Stone, J. D. O'Brien.

THE BALL

At Ontario Hall, which was also complimentary to the "Alert Hose, No. 7, Oswego," by Moira Engine Company, No. 1, was a grand success, every thing being carried out in a most enthusiastic manner. The music for the dance was furnished by the Quadrille Band of the Royal Canadian Rifles, and added much to the evening's enjoyment. The giddy dance was kept up with great spirit until about four o'clock in the morning, when the guests of the evening, the "Alert Hose," were warned that it was time for them to prepare to go on board the steamboat, which was in waiting to convey them to Kingston.—God Save the Queen was then sung by all present, and the Ball brought to a close.—Supper was also provided at the Dafoe House for those who were participating in the dance, which, it is needless to say was also served in first-class style.

Engine Company, No. 3, also got up a Ball in Neilson's Hall, which was largely patronized, and dancing kept up until five o'clock in the morning, everything passing off in the most pleasant manner.

THE DEPARTURE.

The "Alert's" were accompanied to the wharf by "No. 1," and after a hearty shake hands, and cheers and counter cheers, the Bay of Quinte steamed away with other American friends, and a "jollier" lot of fellows it would be hard to find.

The reception accorded to the Firemen of Oswego by their brother Firemen of Belleville, was most generous and enthusiastic, and in keeping with the magnificent reception which was lately given by the citizens of Oswego to the Canadian Press Association on their visit to that city. The visit of the "Alerts" to Belleville will long be remembered by their companions of No. 1, and will no doubt cement still stronger the friendly feeling that now exists between the two countries.

BASE BALL.—There will be a special meeting of the Hastings Base Ball Club at Hambly's this evening.

PERSONAL.—Prof. John Macoun, M. A., of Albert University returned from his botanical exploring on Wednesday last, having noted 135 species of flowering plants, previously unknown to him. In all, he observed 574 species of flowering plant besides almost innumerable lichens, mosses and liverworts. He brings with him upwards of 5,000 specimens which will enrich the herbariums of our Dominion. The Professor is now prostrated by a severe attack of phlegmonous erysipelas, produced by over-anxiety and over-work.

REUNION.—The Rev. T. S. Burnell and his wife, formerly of Northampton, Mass., who have been Missionaries in India for last twenty years ; seven years on the Island of Ceylon, and thirteen years on the Madura district, returned home to Northampton in July. They were 133 days in going to India when they first went out, and but 88 in returning, so great has been the improvement in travelling facilities within the last two decades. They are now stopping with our fellow townsman M. Sawyer, Esq., who is a brother of Mrs. Burnell. They meet here their three sons from whom they have been separated for four, nine and twelve years.

LOST,

The owner attaches greater value to it on account of its being a family piece, and will pay a handsome reward to any person leaving it at the Dafoe House.

Business Notice.

Not many weeks ago a rich but childless landed proprietor breathed his last, leaving a large circle of relations to mourn his loss, and squabble over their prospects of sharing his wealth. The day for reading the will at last came ; the room was crowded with anxious expectants ; the will was opened and to the inexpressible joy of all, the rich gentleman's relations found that to each of them had been bequeathed a case of Royal Italian Bitters.

THE IRISH CHURCH.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—The 'Times,' in an article on the abolition of the Irish Church establishment, says,—" Whatever the practical result may be, the measure is the boldest and greatest act of modern legislation. One consequence of the measure has been the withdrawal by the authorities of Trinity College of the opposition to the proposal for admitting Catholics and Non-conformists to Fellowships. The Irish Bishops have shown good sense in agreeing that the laity as well as the clergy shall concur in the election of prelates in the new church. The extreme Protestants have subsided, and the Catholics accept their triumph with gratitude and moderation.

THE IRISH CHURCH CONFERENCE.

DUBLIN, August 12.—At a meeting of the Committee of the Irish Church Conference, letters were read from the Archbishops of Armagh and Dublin, announcing that the Bishops who were present at the late assembly consider it inexpedient to reassemble the General Conference, as that course is distasteful to a number of Churchmen. The Committee expressed their regret at this determination.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry.

Where this article is known it is a work of supererogation to say one word in its favor, so well it is established as an unfailing remedy for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Asthma, Diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs, as well as that most dreaded of all diseases, Consumption, which high medical authority has pronounced to be an incurable disease. Those who have used this remedy know its value; those who have not, have but to make a single trial to be satisfied that of all others it is THE REMEDY.

THE REV. JACOB SECHLER,

well known and much respected among the German population of this country, writes as follows:—

HANOVER, Pa., Feb. 16, 1859.

Messrs. S. W. Fowle & Son, Boston.

DEAR SIRS—Having realized in my family important benefits from the use of your valuable preparation—Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry—it affords me pleasure to recommend it to the public. Some eight years ago, one of my daughters appeared to be in a decline, and little the hopes of her recovery were entertained. I then procured a bottle of your excellent Balsam, and before it was taken the whole of it there was a great improvement in her health. I have, in my individual case, made frequent use of your valuable medicine, and have always been benefitted by it. I would, however, caution the public against imposition, because there is a good deal of spurious 'Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry' afloat throughout the country.

JACOB SECHLER.

Grace's Celebrated Salve.

From Mr. JAMES CURLIN, of AMESBURY, MASS.

"I was afflicted with a severe felon on one of my fingers, and tried many remedies without relief. My friends indeed me to apply your Salve. In two days it extracted the inflammation from my finger so as to enable me to resume my work. I can almost say that the Salve worked like magic, for it effected a cure without leaving a scar. I unhesitatingly pronounce 'Grace's Salve' an excellent remedy, and do not doubt it will be appreciated throughout the land." 25

NEW ALBION HOTEL,

McGILL STREET,

MONTREAL, CANADA.

THE "NEW ALBION HOTEL," the largest Hotel in Montreal, has just been opened under the most favorable auspices.

Whilst the "Old Albion" has been long noted for the strict attention paid to its numerous guests, the "New Albion" takes its position as a first class Hotel, and will really first class in every respect, except the charges, which better suit the ideas and requirements of the majority of travellers, than many of the so called, "first class Houses;" which deserve the title more through the amount of their charges than aught else.

Already the crowded state of the "New Albion" promises well for its future career; everything associated with its construction has been carried out with artistic taste and systematic correctness.

The large Hall, commodious office, spacious Reading room, convenient Dining, Coffee, Wash Room, etc., etc., on the ground floor; and the Reception Room and Suits of SPLENDIDLY FURNISHED AND THOROUGHLY VENTILATED LADIES' PARLORS, on the second floor, will form no small luxury during the hot summer season. And, as an exception to the general Rule in Hotels, the Bedrooms are all well ventilated, and lighted, there not being a dark room in the House.

Being situated on the widest and healthiest Street in Montreal, and commanding a Magnificent View of the River St. Lawrence and the Victoria Bridge on the left, and a full view of the Victoria Square with its numerous "Jets d'Eau" and Mount Royal on the right, it cannot fail to commend itself to the travelling public.

From its situation on McGill Street, the great thoroughfare and commercial centre of the City it cannot fail to be, as the "Old Albion" has always been a strong favorite with the Merchants of Canada.

Notwithstanding the very large outlay in building and furnishing the house, the old price of $1 50 per day will not be departed from.

We, therefore, bespeak for ourselves a continuance of the patronage so liberally accorded to us during the past twelve years.

The Old Story.

"The sails are set and the breeze is up,
And the brave is turned for a northern sea:
Kiss my cheek and vow me a vow
That you will ever be true to me!"

"I kiss your cheek, and kiss your lips;
Never a change this heart can know,
Whatever battle—come life, come death—
Darling, darling, I love you so!"

Oh, but the northern nights are keen! I
The sailor clings to the frozen shrouds;
A kiss burns hot through his dream of home,
And his heart goes south with the flying clouds.

The maiden laughs by the garden gate—
Dreams of love are soonest o'er!
Kisses fall on her lips and hair,
And the world goes on as it went before.

Rag Fair in London.

Many of our readers have heard of "Rag-fair," in London, that well-known mart for every description of second-hand clothing. The principal feature of this busy scene appears to be the low price of all articles sold here, illustrating, as it does, the poverty of those who buy. Persons of the upper classes, who are accustomed to buy clothes at the shops of fashionable tradesmen, can form no idea of the prices paid for articles of dress at "Rag-fair." One of the London City missionaries reports as follows :—

There is as great a variety of articles in pattern, and shape, and size, as I think could be found in any draper's shop in London. The mother may go to "Rag-fair" with the whole of her family, both boys and girls—yes, and her husband, too, and for a very few shillings deck them out from top to toe. I have no doubt that for a man and his wife, and five or six children, 1*l.* at their disposal, judiciously laid out, would purchase them all an entire change. This may appear to some an exaggeration; but I actually overheard a conversation in which two women were trying to bargain for a child's frock; the sum asked for it was 1*d.*, and the sum offered was a penny, and they parted on the difference.

The following is the copy of the bill delivered by the dealer to one of the missionaries, who was requested to supply a suit of clothes for a man and woman whom he had persuaded to get married several years after the right time :—

A full linen-fronted shirt, very elegant,	0	6
A pair of warm worsted stockings,	0	1
A pair of light-colored trowsers,	0	6
A black cloth waistcoat,	0	3
A pair of white cotton braces,	0	1
A pair of low shoes,	0	1
A black silk velvet stock,	0	1
A beaver, fly fronted, double breasted palecot coat, lined with silk, a very superior article,	1	0
A cloth cap, bound with a figured band,	0	1

The man has been educated, and could speak no fewer than five languages; by profession he was then, however, nothing but a dust-bill raker.

The bill delivered for the bride's costume was as follows :—

	s.	d.
A chemise,	0	4
A pair of stays,	0	2
A flannel petticoat,	0	4
A black Orleans ditto,	0	4
A pair of white cotton stockings,	0	1
A very good light-colored cotton gown,	0	10
A pair of single-soled slippers, with spring heels,	0	2
A double-dyed bonnet, including a neat cap,	0	2
A pair of white cotton gloves,	0	1
A lady's green silk paletot, lined with crimson silk, trimmed with black,	0	10

The goods were selected by the missionary, and at the bottom of the bills the merchant marked

P.S.—Will be very happy to supply as many as you can find at the same prices.

FIGHT BETWEEN A SHIP'S CREW AND A BABOON.—An English steamer, which arrived at Liverpool from Africa a short time since, had on board three giant chimas or baboons, two crocodiles, several monkeys, and other specimens of the natural history of the country. The baboons were very ferocious and possessed of giant strength. For their safe custody a strong den with iron bars was provided and placed near the forecastle, so that they could be constantly under the eye of the crew. All went well until the morning of the second day out, when a crash was heard, and in an instant the large chasma had wrenched several bars off, and in the next instant was on the forecastle, armed with the bars with which he had been confined. Here his majesty paused for a moment, and in a dignified manner surveyed his captors. A rope having been got, a noose was formed and cast over his head, and he struggled hard to extricate himself, but without avail. He once more attacked one of the seamen, whom he seized by the arm, and, notwithstanding that several of the men belabored him with weapons, the brute would not relinquish his hold until he had torn the flesh from above the elbow to near the wrist, and had been rendered insensible, when he was carried to his den.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,
FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Inveterate cases of scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous affections and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulous contamination until the whole body was painfully suffering, have been radically cured. Even great numbers in almost every section of this country, that the public scarcely need be informed of its virtues or uses.

As a blood purifier it is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this unseen and unfelt tenant of the organism undermines the constitution, and invites the attack of enfeebling or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to have taken root throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develop into one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part, the body. Hence the occasional use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla is all it is probable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, at length, cures from the use of this SARSAPARILLA: St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scaly or Rugged Skin, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions and visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms of disease, such as Dropsy, Heart Disease, Fits, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various affections of the mucous, glandular and nervous systems.

Syphilitic Complaints and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these obstinate forms by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the complaints. Female Weaknesses, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute Directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when arising, as they often do, from the rankling poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are languishing from Listless, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, will find in it a great invigorator for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are languishing from Listless, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, will find in it a great invigorator for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are languishing from Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,
For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably no other before in the whole history of medicine, has any thing been so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a physician against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as there are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of any here, or do more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,
For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Bismuth, Zinc, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it in no wise injures any patient. The number and importance of its cures in the ague districts, are literally legion on account, and we believe without a parallel in the history of Ague medicine. Our pride is gratified by the acknowledgments we receive of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and where other remedies had wholly failed.

Unacclimated persons, either resident in, or traveling through miasmatic localities, will be protected by taking the AGUE CURE daily.

For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy activity.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly remarkable cures, where other medicines had failed.

QUERY?

Should we employ the noble doctors to bring us our tea and coffee in bottles, at an expense of at least four times what they now cost us.

If not, why should we longer adopt that system in reference to medicine and purchase at high prices at of herbs or plants and roots, and are as readily prepared as tea and coffee?

Each package of Dr. Thompson's Botanic Medicines contains directions sufficient to enable any person to cure in any other form for four times the amount of money.

Dr. Thompson's Botanic Medicines are as unvarying as to the practicability of, as well as the benefits derived from the use of, his Thompson's Botanic Medicines, viz.

Dr. Thompson's Blood Purifier
Cures all diseases arising from an impure state of the blood, such as salt-rheum, scrofula, king's evil, white swelling, tumors, ulcers, pimples on the face, and roughness of the skin. Regulates the stomach and bowels; cleans the liver, and promotes the healthy vigor of the whole system. Strengthens the whole system.

DR. THOMPSON'S
Stomachic Bitters,
A certain and speedy cure for Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, and Indigestion. For convenience it has no equal; it is pleasant and agreeable to the taste, and may be taken by the most delicate with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves it in any climate and keeps it for any length of time. Being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera, by which they promote the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring them to a regular action to health, and by correcting wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box; for the following complaints, which these Pills readily cure :

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken a half hour before meals. They gently move the bowels, and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Fevers, Inflammation, and for every symptom, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice, Sick Stomach, Sickness, Biliousness, Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to produce the required action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change these complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often all that is necessary to restore the health when a slight derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,
For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use by all over the country and among all classes, as this mild but effectual Cathartic Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual purgative than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them, or they would not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that it never fails to cure all who take it exactly as directed. Hence no one who wants a cathartic has any excuse for not getting a remedy which will cure, and all know that it is not a mere pretension, but a medicine of the most searching power to expel the impurities of the blood, which, if allowed to remain, make sickness. Every one knows when he needs a dose of physic, and every one should take it when he needs it. It will be found the best thing to take when you know you need a cathartic, and when you do not know, it will be best to find out.

For the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, we need not publish them, viz. : Costiveness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Jaundice, Dysentery, Foul Stomach, Headache, Rheumatism, Gout, Neuralgia, Dropsy, Worms, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Eruptions of the Skin, Tumors, Scrofula, Scurvy, Erysipelas, Blotches, Boils, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Ringworm, Pimples on the Face, Blood Poisons, Pain in the Side, Liver Complaint, Dysentery, Piles, Suppression, Intoxication, Fever and Ague, Inflammation, Colic, Paralysis, Dimness of Vision, Tic Doloureux, Erysipelas, Hip Disease, Gout, Gravel, Diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder, Womb, Rheumatism, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Fits, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various affections of the mucous, glandular and nervous systems.

Syphilitic Complaints and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these obstinate forms by any medicine. Olden Memories.

From the dim, dim shores of the sorrowful past,
Comes the phantom of memory to me,
As a billow blown forth by the desolate blast
From the storm-beaten heart of the sea;
With a thought of the beautiful years long gone—
Rhose brightest, direcest of years—
It murmurs to eight,te a rhythmical tone
That melts me to sadness and tears.

It brings back the dreams of the better time,
When our hearts like the music of birds.
In the metrical flow of a melody chime,
Were wed to the sweetest of words—
When we gathered rich blossums—wore garlands of flowers—
That emblemed love's holiest vow,
As the wreath of the fame we counted as ours,
With a diadem for each brow.

Ah! 'tis sad to think of those dear old days—
The world was so beautiful then—
Ere Fancy and feeling had followed the ways
Of wicked and sinful men:
There were innocent pleasures and soulful smiles,
In the being of passionate youth—
A faith that no art of the tempter beguiles
In the sacred trust of truth.

Some ship has been wrecked on the merciless sea,
By the storm-king's merciless power,
Whence cometh this spirit of memory to me,
In the hush of this sorrowful hour?
It comes, the remainder of changes so sad,
In the memorable years now fled,
Since together we sailed with spirit so glad
As the ripples that under us sped.

Here's a spectre-like hand, in whose tenderly grasp
Beat the heart-bounding pulses of old:
In its welcoming zeal—In the warmth of its clasp,
Throbs a feeling that never grew cold:
An hour together, we fill rm over the past,
Recounting its pleasures and pals,
As the beautiful visions, too lovely to last,
Raise out of the ashes again.

Ah! oft through the joy that the lightest may know,
Some grief steals directly to the heart,
When the look that was strongest sadness of woe,
May be shaped in the congress of art,
And the smile! 'twas so bright, I never had thought,
That brow would be shad'd with gloom
In the days when first from existence we caught
The hue of its freshness and bloom.

Then a tear to the beautiful years that are gone,
The memories no sorrow can shade,
As the shadows of night that flee in the dawn,
All else from existence may fade.
Yet, with hope in the heart, and life in the eye,
And feelings that never grows cold,
The future we'll trust—but the present go by,
And cling to the memories of old.

Shaking Hands as a Means of Grace.

I maintain that shaking of hands, rightly administered, is a means of grace. You, my dear sir, are established, and every one knows you to be a solid man. There is a man beside you just fighting his battle and making his way. You know him and nod to him. Take him by the hand, my dear sir, it will do him good; and if he was cast down a little, as men will sometimes be, it may encourage him. "Our minister shook hands with me." What made that shabby fellow, too big to be a boy, too raw to be a man, announce that fact so loudly when he went home? The truth is, for sensible effect on him it was more than the sermon. John Smith has been a hard drinker, but is trying fairly to get out of it. Going down the village street, he meets Mr. Brown, who is "boss" at the works above. Mr. Brown shakes hands with "Mr. Smith," in sight of the entire village. Does that do Smith any good? I tell you it is as good to him as one of Mr. Gough's admirable lectures. It says, as plainly as if Mr. Brown had written it, "Mr. Smith, you have only to take care of yourself, and you will be a respectable man in spite of all." That makes Smith stronger; and when he goes to church next Sabbath, and looks over at Mr. Brown, he will find it easier to believe God's most loving word, "Their sins and their iniquities I will remember no more." So "shake hands and be friends"—at market, on the street, and, above all, at church. I presume the Apostle meant something when he said, "Greet all the brethren with a holy kiss." Some people quit church for want of this means of grace. Everybody looks as if just returned from the north pole, and there had not been time to thaw, and the deacon, who "runs the church," (if anything so lifeless can be said to be run) had been in command of the party. I suspect the boys sometimes say, "Well, I guess I ought to be good, but if ever I do, it won't be 'long with the deacon." They wait, poor boys, till some one comes along with a heart—getting no good in the meantime—whose genial, lifelike ways make them "feel kind o' good," and they catch the inspiration "and run with gladness in the way of God's commandments.—Dr. John Hall.

The Shepherd and the Sheep.

The shepherd that guideth the flock that is created to be slain, hath great regard to preserve it in safety. And is not a little careful how he may find the sheep when it is lost, and bring it home again; and with no less desire the sheep longeth after the shepherd; whom if it understand to be its own shepherd (as by nature it doth) feareth him not, but runneth unto him with great confidence, and being full of good hope, goeth before him; yea, as soon as ever it heareth his voice, it answereth by bleating. On the other side also, the shepherd hath great care and desire to find again the lost sheep which hath strayed from him; both he himself seeketh, and sendeth forth servants to seek, whereseever he thinketh it is strayed, neither doth he leave seeking, until, having found it, he hath brought it home; for he is not ignorant how miserable a living creature a solitary sheep is, whose life consisteth only in the help and safe-keeping of the shepherd, inasmuch as it cannot help itself, but being destitute of a shepherd, perisheth. This is that picture, resembled in this simple creature, whereby Christ shews us, what affection of mind he bears towards us, and also what we ought to promise ourselves concerning him.—Martin Luther.

Shocking Revelations.

A NUN IMPRISONED FOR 21 YEARS. A VISIT FROM THE BISHOP, AND WHAT HE DID AND SAID.

The following particulars of the condition in which a nun was discovered in the Carmelite Convent at Cracow, where she had been confined in a dark filthy room for 21 years, are extracted from the Vienna Presse:—On Tuesday, the 20th instant, an anonymous notice apparently written by a female hand, reached the Criminal Court at Cracow, to the effect that in the Convent of the Carmelite barefooted nuns one of the order, named Barbara Ubryk, had been forcibly kept in close confinement in a dark cell for a long number of years. The vice-president of the Criminal Court, Ritter von Antoniewicz, immediately laid this information before a judge of inquiry, who, in company with the public prosecutor, repaired to the Bishop von Galecki, with the request to permit them to enter the convent. Herr von Galecki granted the request in his capacity as Papal delegate, and sub-delegated the Papal prelate prelate Spital. In this company and that of his actuary, Kwiaekowski, the judicial witnesses, Stanislaus Gralewski and Theophil Paivi, the judge drove to the convent. The latter, which is one of the strictest female orders, is situated in one of the most beautiful suburbs of Cracow, the so-called Wesola, in the vicinity of the botanical garden and the observatory, and by the side of a splendid avenue, which is one of the favourite walks of the inhabitants of Cracow on a summer's evening. The convent was first entered by Father Spital, followed by the members of the judicial commission, to whom the portress attempted to refuse admittance, and she allowed their entrance only when Dr. Gebhart, with the confirmation on the part of Father Spital, referred to the permission he had received from the Bishop. The judge then informed the portress that he had come to see and speak to Nun Barbara Ubryk, which information inside a terrible impression upon the portress. She staggered a few paces backwards, asseverating that it was impossible to satisfy his demand, and at the same time endeavored to get away with another nun. The judge, however, prevented this, and ordered the two sisters to be detained, forbidding them in the name of the law to move from the spot. The commission thereupon went to the upper corridor, followed by the nuns, one of whom showed the judge the cell of Sister Barbara. This cell, which was situated at the extreme end of the corridor, between the pantry, close to the dunghole, had a walled up window and a double wooden door, in which there was a moveable grating, through which very probably food was handed in. Through a small open window aiche some rays of light could now and then penetrate into this dismal dungeon.

The cell, seven paces long by six paces wide, was opened, but it is almost impossible to describe the view this piece of inquisition of the 19th century presented. In a dark, infected hole adjoining the sewer, sat, or rather cowered, on a heap of straw, an entirely naked, totally neglected, half insane woman, who, at the unaccustomed view of light, the outer world, and human beings, clasped her hands, and pitifully implored—"I am hungry, have pity on me; give me meat, and I shall be obedient

This hole, for it could hardly be called a chamber, besides containing all kinds of dirt and filth, and a dish with rotten potatoes, was deficient of the slightest decent accommodation.

There was nothing—no stove, no bed, no table, no chair—it was neither warmed by a fire nor by the rays of the sun. This den the inhuman sisters who called themselves women, spiritual wives, the brides of heaven, had selected as a habitation for one of their own sex, and kept her therein in close confinement for 21 years—since 1848. Half human being, half animal, with a filthy body, with thin knock kneed legs, hollow cheeks, closely shorn dirty head, unwashed for years came a horrible looking being forward, such as Dante in his wildest imagination was unable to pic ure. With her deeply sunk eyes fixed on one spot knelt this victim of cruelty in her cell in the convent of the Carmelites. The judge instantly ordered the nun to be clothed, and went himself for Bishop Galecki. The bishop was deeply moved, and turning to the assembled nuns, he vehemently reproached them for their inhumanity. Is this, he said, what you call love of your neighbor? The nuns ventured to excuse their conduct, but the bishop would not hear them. 'Silence, you wretches!' he exclaimed; 'away, out of my sight, you who disgrace religion.'

The father confessor, Piantkiewiez, an old priest, who was present dared to observe that the ecclesiastical authorities were aware of this scandal; whereupon the bishop and prelate, Spital, denied his assertion, and at once suspended the father confessor, and also the superioress, who is descended from an old honourable Polish noble family. The bishop ordered Nun Barbara Ubryk to be dressed and nursed, which the lady superior obeyed very reluctantly. When the unhappy nun was led away, she asked anxiously whether she would be brought back to her grave, and when asked why she had been imprisoned, she answered: 'I have broken the vow of chastity but, pointing with a fearfully wild gesture, and in great excitement to the sisters, they are not angels.' The investigation has commenced, but its progress is much impeded by difficulties on account of the strict rules of the order of the Carmelites. Entrance into the convent can only be obtained with great difficulty, and the nuns are so thickly veiled that the judge never knows to whom he is speaking. The lady superior declared that Barbara Ubryk was kept in close confinement since 1848 by order of the physician, because of her unsound mind. But this physician died in 1848, and the present physician, Dr. Babrynski, who has been practising in the convent for the last seven years, has never seen Barbara Ubryk. Such treatment, in the opinion of the doctors, is sufficient to drive a person mad. On account of the importance of the case, the Attorney General has taken the matter in hand. The exasperation of the people knows no bounds. It is stated that the Bishop intends to dissolve the convent."

BELLEVILLE, SATURDAY, AUG. 14.

EPISCOPAL METHODIST CHURCH.—We are requested to state that Rev. Joseph Wild will preach in his Church to-morrow morning and evening.

THE MARKET.—The market to-day was crowded with farmers and gardners' waggons, chiefly supplied with meat, vegetables, dairy produce and fruit. The abundance and low prices show that it is indeed a year of plenty.

ANOTHER BRICK OF GOLD.—Messrs. Turley & Gilbert exhibited to-day another brick of gold, as the result of another clearing up at their mill in Marmora. It is a purer specimen than the last, weighs four ounces, thirteen and a half pennyweights, and is valued at $90.

IN READINESS.—The Volunteer corps throughout the Province of New Brunswick have been ordered to hold themselves in readiness for immediate service, and to be prepared for concerted action at central points. The 78th Highlanders are ordered from Halifax to St. John. The military stores prepared for shipment have been kept back.

WHAT'S UP?—The Kingston Whig of the 13th says: "Early yesterday morning 150 men of the R. C. Rifles were ordered off to Prescott from headquarters in this garrison, and are this are on their way to their destination. The sudden order has given rise to some conjecture and anxiety as to the cause of this unmistakeable urgent precaution.

DON'T WANT TO RECEIVE HIM.—The Repealers of Halifax are evidently not disposed to give the Governor General a decent reception. The public meeting at Halifax which was convened to make arrangements for the reception of the Governor General, ended in a row of the first water. The Repealers were there in force, and a resolution denouncing Confederation was proposed, though not carried, owing to the confusion. An attempt to reorganize failed, and an adjournment sine die took place.

THE KANGAROO SHIP.—A Newport correspondent says that the name of Kangaroo Ships has been given to the new motion introduced at that fashionable watering place. The creatures lap the hands, keep the arms close to the sides like a skewered chicken, and, instead of walking about modestly and decently, go skipping and jumping and bouncing, very much after the way of the famous animal after whom their new fangle has been named. You have got to be very careful how you navigate besides; the trails are of such immeasurable length.

THE WESTMINSTER REVIEW FOR JULY. The American reprint of the Westminister Review is to hand. It contents are:—Indian Railway Reform; The Four Ancient Books of Wales; Labor and Capital; Patents, Patentees and the Public; Mr. Mill's Analysis of the Mind; Prostitution in relation to the National Health; Contemporary Literature—Theology and Philosophy; Politics, Sociology; Voyages; Science; History and Biography; Belles Lettres; Art. These reprints have deservedly a very large circulation throughout Canada. The four Reviews and Blackwood are furnished at $15 a year; so low a price as to put them within the reach of nearly every one.

COMING BACK.—The Halifax Colonist of a recent date says: "Every steamer from Boston and Portland, brings back numbers of mechanics and others, who left this Province recently entertaining the delusive idea that they could better their condition in the United States. Many find to their sorrow that owing to the high price of the necessaries of life, they can barely make a living in the neighboring Republic, and those who can raise the means, lose no time in returning to this Province.

MANUFACTURER AND BUILDER.—The August number of this very excellent publication is to hand. It is a large royal quarto of 16 pages, beautifully printed on very fine paper, and elegantly illustrated with a great many well executed cuts.—Altogether, it is a magazine that we can very cordially recommend, not only to practical mechanics, but to any person having a liking for subjects of that character. It is published at No. 37 Park Row, New York, at $1 50 a year.

ST. ANDREW'S PIC NIC.—It will be seen by advertisement that the St. Andrew's Society intend having their annual Pic-nic on Thursday first, the 19th inst. The committee of management have made all the necessary arrangements for the comfort, convenience and amusement of parties patronizing the pic-nic. A Piper has been specially engaged for the occasion, also a Quadrille Band. There are no pic-nics more popular than those got up under the auspices of St. Andrew's Society, and we have no doubt this will sustain the reputation which the Society has so deservedly earned.

FIVE PERSONS DROWNED.—A telegram from Sarnia Aug. 13th says; "A sad accident occurred to-day at Port Edward. Some excursionists from London and Strathroy had been visiting Fort Gratiot, and on their return were rather careless in their conduct. Their boat, being small and unable to hold the number that attempted to cross in it, they had barely pushed out from the dock when the boat capsized, and 5 out of the nine were drowned. Boats put out to their assistance, but the current being so strong they were of little use. Two of the drowned are women. The names are Mr. Pannell, wife and child, of Strathroy, and Mr Sageman and wife, of London."

CRICKET.—The Belleville Cricketers beat the Peterboro club by four runs. The Review speaking of the game says:—"This was a closely contested match, played on Wednesday last, between the Bellevilles and the Peterborough Clubs, resulting in a victory for the former by four runs. Maybee and Dennison, for the Belleville side, were the only double figures, Maybee 8 and 20, and Dennison 1 and 10. J. Crouu, for Peterborough, made 1 and 23, including a hit over the fence for 6. The fielding was good on both sides, but the palm must be given to Walker, of Belleville, whose splendid catch at long field from Hall, was greeted by loud cheers from spectators and players.

CUBAN AFFAIRS.—The telegrams respecting the state of affairs in Cuba are about as worthless as can be. One day, the Spaniards are sweeping everything before them, the next the Cubans are in possession of all important points; sanguinary battles occur every now and then, and as many men have been reported shot as are in both armies. The latest news from that island is that in the recent engagements the Cubans were successful. A telegram says:—"The Cubans are successful in every engagement, and are now in possession of the entire territory the wealthiest and most productive on the island. This greatly increases their strength, and affords facilities for active operations, giving them full supplies for their army."

The Intercolonial Railway.

It will be observed in another column that the Commissioners have advertised to let several new sections for construction. They are the 8th, 9th, 10th and 11th.

The 8th section extends from Rimouski, the end of the 5th section to the River Metis, a length of 20½ miles.

The 9th section runs on from the 6th in the Province of New Brunswick, and will end not far from Bathurst. It will also be 20½ miles.

The 10th section is also in New Brunswick, commencing at Newcastle and ending at Bathurst.

The 11th section is in Nova Scotia. It extends from the end of the 7th section to Truro, where there is now a railway. The length of this section is 24½ miles.

Why Coal is High.

The people of the Northern States are up in arms against the coal monopoly, and just now the coal question is beyond all others, the question of the hour. Public meetings have been held in all the large cities, resolutions have been adopted, and steps have been taken by leading men to try and break up the monopoly. When it is remembered that the price of coal has nearly doubled since the close of winter, that the poor people of the great cities depend altogether upon coal for fuel, and that there is no sign of it becoming cheaper on the approach of winter, the almost universal interest manifested in the subject is not to be wondered at. It is contended that the vast coal fields of Pennsylvania, are to all practical intents and purposes, inexhaustible. They are supplied with all the needed apparatus for bringing their buried stores to the light of day. There is no lack of labour to work the mines, and yet coal is scarce, and the dearth of the article in the markets of course runs up the price. This scarcity it is alleged has been produced by artificial means, and while the responsibility has in most instances been charged to the owners of the mines, it is contended by others that the laborers in the coal regions are directly responsible for the present unreasonably high prices. The miners and their assistants have from time to time insisted on higher rates of compensation, and being in a position to enforce their advances, succeeded. To give an accurate idea of why coal is higher now than it was last spring, the following comparative extracts from the pay roles of the largest mining company in the middle coal field, are given by a Philadelphia paper.—The months selected, are April and July of the current year:

Outside labor in April	$10 50
Outside labor in July	16 50
Advance per week	$6 00
Inside labor in April	$11 50
Inside labor in July	17 75
Advance per week	$6 25
Miners wages, when working by the day in April (per week)	$14 00
Miners' wages, when working by the day in July (per week)	23 00
Advance per week	$9 00
Platform men, wages in April (per week)	10 50
Platform men, wages in July (per week)	16 50
Advance per week	$6 00
Slate-pickers (boys) in April (per week)	9 50
Slate-pickers (boys) in July (per week)	15 00
Advance per week	$5 50
Engineer's wages in April (per month)	65 00
Engineer's wages in July (per month)	102 00
Advance per month	$37 00
Firemen's wages in April (per month)	55 00
Firemen's wages in July (per month)	84 00
Advance per month	$29 00

Miners, when cutting or mining coal, received in April ninety cents per car, making from $80 to $120 per month; in July they received for the same kind car $1 50, making from $130 to $200 per month.

Not content with these advances the miners through a well organized association regulate the production of coal by restricting the owners and operators of the mines from getting out more than a certain number of cubic feet per day to a man, thus keeping down the supply in all the markets, and bringing about the scarcity.

Referring to the figures above quoted and the causes given of the present high price of gold, the Boston Traveller says: "Part of this is undoubtedly true, but we are not quite to believe that the great capitalists owning the mines have altogether lost the control of their property, leaving their business at the control of their employees. If such, however, is the fact, and they are unable to defend themselves from these exactions, they should not complain if the consumers, as a matter of self-protection, demand that the duty placed upon Nova Scotia coal for their benefit, be now taken off."

From the Sea Side.

To the Editor of the Daily Intelligencer.

UNITED STATES HOTEL,
PORTLAND, Aug. 11th,

DEAR SIR:—Fancying that the "doings" of the Excursionists to Portland might interest some of your readers, I take the liberty of sending you some particulars in the matter. Leaving Belleville on Monday morning at 11:25, we started, to the number of about 40, on our trip to the seaside. We were accompanied by the ex President of the St. George's Society, W. C. Nunn, Esq., who had made every arrangement possible for the comfort and convenience of the party on their tour. Through the indefatigable exertions of this gentleman, a very handsome and commodious sleeping car for the express use of the party, was attached to the train, and to accompany them during the entire trip, and the great advantage and comforts that we derived from this being the case, was felt by the whole party. I shall again refer to this matter during my correspondence.

Nothing particular occurred during our trip to Montreal, except the usual varied scenes of the ten hours, journey to that city. A few joined the party at the different stations between Belleville and Kingston, and each amused themselves in their own way. After leaving Montreal we soon made it a point to turn into our berths for the night, and with the exception of two or three of the party who were quite surprised that there should be a charge for sleeping car berths—as every one that travels knows that such is the case all over the continent—and had a very comfortable night's rest, while the dissatisfied ones who would not pay for their berths were compelled to go into the next car and pass the night as well as they could in a seat. Awakening about six in the morning we found ourselves approaching Island Pond and the dominions of Uncle Samuel, the usual formalities of an examination of baggage were to be gone through with, and where also (which to some was a more important matter) breakfast was to be partaken of. These matters having been satisfactorily disposed of during our stay of an hour at that place, we again started. Some little alarm was created at Island Pond by one of the G. T. R. men at the depot telling a number of the party that the sleeping car was not going any further, and that they must take out their "traps" from it. The thought of losing our very comfortable car was not a very pleasing one. Mr. Nunn, however, heard of the matter, and soon set our minds at rest by saying that the car would go through, and so it did. After leaving Island Pond behind us some miles, we began to approach the beautiful scenery of the White Mountain Range, and all were on their "tip-toe" of expectation of the coming treat, of which more in my next.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry.

Where this article is known it is a work of supererogation to say one word in its favor, so well is it established as an unfailing remedy for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Asthma, Diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs, as well as that most dreaded of all diseases, Consumption, which high medical authority has pronounced to be an incurable disease. Those who have used this remedy know its value; those who have not, have but to make a single trial to be satisfied that of all others it is the REMEDY.

THE REV. JACOB SECHLER, well known and most respected among the German population of this country, writes as follows :

HANOVER, PA., Feb. 16, 1859.

Messrs. S. W. Fowle & Son, Boston.

DEAR SIRS:—Having realized in my family important benefits from the use of your valuable preparation—Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry—it affords me pleasure to recommend it to the public. Some eight years ago, one of my daughters was taken to be in decline, and the hopes of her recovery were entertained. I then procured a bottle of your excellent Balsam, and before she had taken the whole of it there was a great improvement in her health. I have, in my individual case, made frequent use of your valuable medicine, and have always been benefitted by it. I would, however, caution the public against imposition, because there is a good deal of spurious 'Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry' afloat throughout the country.

Grace's Celebrated Salve.

From Mr. JAMES CURLIN, of AMHERST, MASS.

"I was afflicted with a severe felon on one of my fingers, and tried many remedies without relief. My friend induced me to apply your Salve. In two days it extracted the inflammation from my finger so as to enable me to resume my work. I can almost say that the Salve worked like magic, for it effected a cure without leaving a scar.—I unhesitatingly proclaim 'Grace's Salve' an excellent remedy and do not doubt it will be appreciated throughout the land." 25

Culinary Couplets.

Always have lobster sauce with salmon—
And pat what sauce your roasted lamb on.

Veal cutlets dip in egg and bread crumbs—
Fry till you see a brownish red come.

Grate Gruyere cheese on macaroni;
Make the top crisp but not too bony.

In venison gravy, currant jelly
Mix with old port—see Francatelli.

In dressing salad mind the law—
With two best yolks use one that's raw.

Roast veal, with rich stock gravy serve,
And pickled mushrooms, too, observe.

Roast pork asks apple sauce, fast thrust,
In "Hamlet" with the prince left out.

Your mutton with paper cover,
And make them a sober brown it over.

Broil light your beefsteak—to fry it
Augurs contempt of Christian diet.

Kidneys the flavor gain
By stewing them in good Champagne.

But stall fed pigeons. When you've got them,
The way to cook them is to pot them.

Woodcocks are dry when gumps have marred 'em
Before you roast 'em always lard 'em.

To roast spring chicken is to spoil 'em—
Just split 'em down the back and broil 'em.

It gives true epicures the vapors
To see boiled mutton minus capers.

But with pauper, cornands know, of course,
Is exquisite with celery sauce.

The cook deserves a hearty curling
Who serves roast lowls with tasteless stuffing.

Sunsits require eggs and biscuit-powder.
Don't put fat pork in your clam chowder.

Egg sauce—few make it right, alas—
Is good with bias fish or with bass.

Nice oyster sauce gives zest to cod
A fish, when fresh, to feast a god.

Shad stuffed and baked is most delicious—
It would have electrified Apicius.

Riveted to paste, a haunch of mutton
Might make Axeelles ply the gluten.

But one might rhyme for weeks this way,
And still have lots of things to say.

And so I'll close—for reader mine,
This is about the hour we dine.

Snake-Poison and its Antidote.

E. C. Lewis writes from Kingston, Jamaica, to the London Public Opinion:—

"An officer of the Royal Artillery, on returning here from Honduras, brought a variety of the worst species of snakes; and, handling them with impunity, a brother officer (who I hope is still living in Scotland) observed to him, 'These must be innocuous.' 'Oh no,' observed his friend on taking up one in his hand; 'if this little fellow was to bite you, you would be a dead man in a few hours.' 'Then, how, do you provide against it?' was the reply of my friends when the root of the Guaco was produced, and a piece transferred by him to me as the preventative. I have also used the Guaco successfully in snakebites; and the juice is used in South America, as also the Cedron, another valuable antidote for the bite of venomous reptiles, and an excellent substitute for quinine; and it may be remembered by many, that at a period when one of the keepers of a menagerie was bitten by a rattlesnake, it was observed that the Cedron was not at hand (as it should have been, to administer in such cases), or his life might have been spared. I have carried the Cedron about with me, and found it useful, and wish to get more, or the plant itself to introduce in this island, as, in common with our late island botanist, I consider it might be very advantageously established here; although fortunately, like Ireland, we have no venomous snakes in our "Isle of Spring" to our knowledge, though plenty of others—scorpions centipedes, &c.

"While on the subject, I trust I may be permitted to add that we have other valuable medicinal plants not sufficiently appreciated. Another Eupatorium abounds here, which the late Sir W. J. Hooker did me the honor to report on botanically, but referred me elsewhere for its properties, which have proved to be excellent in chelers, intermittent fevers, &c., and might be far superior in the preparation of ale for hot climates to the quassia, bitter-wood, or drugs which are generally used."

—Every religion is false, which has not for its leading tenet, to adore our God as the first principle in all things; and its moral system, to love one God only and supremely in all things.

—False religion is a disordered spirit which in the ardor of thirst plunges all pantlink into feted and troubled waters; it is an exile, who, in seeking the road to his native land, buries himself in frightful deserts.

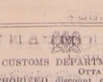

—The manifold wisdom of God is conspicuously exhibited, no less than His inexpressingly condescending love, in the variety of leadings by which men are brought to the attainment of the one great object—redemption.

—A young lady whose scholars were about to separate for a long vacation, felt anxious to say something them that might lead them to try and live good and useful lives. So she talked very earnestly to them about the future that was before them, telling them how much more valuable an upright, honourable character was to them than wealth or fame. When she thought she had deeply impressed them with the importance of the good name which Solomon says is better than good riches, she said,—"Now, boys, I want you to tell me what you most want to have when you grow to be men. Think a moment before you answer." Up went several hands, and she called on the first boy for his choice. "Whiskers!" shouted the boy with such emphasis that it put an effectual stop to any further questions.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,
FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. In exterms case of Scrofula on disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been controlled and cured by it. Scrofulous affections and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulous contamination until they were painfully afflicting, have been cured in great numbers in almost every section of the country, so that the public scarcely need to be told of its virtues or uses.

Scrofula is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, the unseen and unfelt poison of the germs undermines the constitution, and invites the attack of enfeebling or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed infection throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develops into one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or internal organs. In the latter, tubercles may be suddenly deposited in the lungs of heart, or ribbon formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the once almost universal belief that Sarsaparilla is an alterative, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, in time, a perfect cure. Do not fail to give it a trial: Tetter, Salt Rheum, Ringworm, Scaly Skin, Sores, Boils, Scurfy Eruptions, Pimples on the Face, Blotches, Erysipelas, Nettle-rash, Hives, Scald-head, Ulcers, Chronic Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Enlargement of the Spleen, as they often do, from the rankling poisons it is designed to expel. The part it will do, a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are Languishing, Ailing, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or fears, will find relief in the efficacious sympathomatic of Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,
For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Colds, Coughs, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably no remedy before in the whole history of medicine, has anything worn so widely and so deeply won the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the very worst affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most efficient remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. At a previous stage, sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to health and vigor by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the diseases of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When notice ing the good result there, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, or do more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,
For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. No one need suffer from Quinine Bloating, Pills, nor any other nauseous or poisonous substance whatever, if in the least willing to try it. The number and importance of its cures in the ague districts, are literally beyond belief, and we believe without a parallel in the history of Ague medicine. Our pride is gratified by the acknowledgments we receive of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, by all other remedies had proved worthless.

Unacclimated persons, either resident in, or travelling through miasmatic localities, will be protected by taking the AGUE CURE daily.

For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy activity.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy. Many cases of the most remarkable cures, where other medicines had failed.

QUERY?

Should we employ the noble doctors to bring us our tea and coffee in bottles at an expense of at least four times what they now cost?

If only, why should we longer adopt that system in the practice of medicine? Sarsaparilla is an herb, herbs or plants and roots, but are not readily prepared as tea and coffee?

Each package of Dr. Thompson's Botanic Medicines contains more medical properties and is more prepared in any other form for four times the amount of money.

Dr. Thompson's Sarsaparilla is unsurpassed as to the certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, and we need not publish them, every neighborhood can testify to their efficacy:

Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing no mercury or other deleterious drug; they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them in any climate, and renders them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the nervous system, to purify the blood and remove all the life healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other internal organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, where they exist, such derange ments as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to restore the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to overcome the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the whole action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Tropical Swellings they should be taken in large and repeated doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

The Liver Pill, the cure of Fevers, acts as a promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous even in robust health to take occasionally. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

Ayer's
Hair Vigor,
For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

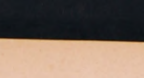

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Where the hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But any sensible person can see that for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from falling gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. It wanted merely for a

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambrics, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,
For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Attacks of Cholera, Nausea, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Jaundice, Dysentery, Flatulency, Colic, Rheumatism, Gout, Neuralgia, Dropsy, Worms, Erysipelas, Scrofula, Ulcers, Eruptions, Tumors, Salt Rheum, Ringworm, Scaly Skin, Sores, Boils, Scurfy Eruptions, Pimples on the Face, Blotches, Erysipelas, Nettle-rash, Hives, Scald-head, Ulcers, Chronic Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Enlargement of the Spleen, as they often do, from the rankling poisons it is designed to expel. The part it will do, a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are Languishing, Ailing, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or fears, will find relief in the efficacious sympathomatic of Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

The Ripening Corn.

How sweet to walk through the wheatlands brown,
When the teeming fatness of heaven drops down!
The waving crop with its bursting ears
A sea of gold on the earth appears;
No longer robed in a dress of green,
With tawny faces the fields are seen;
A sight more welcome and joyous far
Than a hundred blood-won victories are.

Beautiful custom was that of old,
When the Hebrews brought, with a joy untold,
The earliest ears of the ripening corn,
And laid them down by the altar's horn;
When the priesthood waved them before the Lord,
While the Giver of harvest all hearts adored:
What gifts more suited could man impart
To express the flow of his grateful heart?

A crowd awaits 'neath the cottage eaves,
To cut the corn and bind the sheaves;
At length is heard the expected sound—
Put in the sickle, the corn is browned;
And the reapers go forth with as blithe a soul;
As those who joined for the Olympian goal;
And gladsome hearts and voices come
To swell the shouts of the harvest home.

And there is a reaper on earth well known,
Whose deeds are traced on the burial stone;
He carries a sickle more deadly and keen
Than e'er in the harvest field was seen.
He cuts down the earliest ears in spring,
As well as the ripest that time can bring;
The tares he gathers to flames are driven,
The wheat is laid in the garner of Heaven.

A Hopeless Case.

The other evening two Irishmen, new to the country, and belonging to the better class of emigrants, arrived in Toledo late in the evening, and stopped at the Island House. They were shown to a room far up in the building, the gas lighted, and they were left alone. The weather was hot, the windows open, and the two gentlemen sat down to enjoy a chat. Soon, attracted by the light and the prospect of a square meal, a troop of the hungriest of the hungry mosquitoes bore down on the ill-fated Hibernians. They fought and bled, but the enemy constantly received reinforcements, and the travellers were in despair. The clerk was summoned, and asked agonizingly: "Is there no defense against these blood-thirsty craturs?" He told the travellers that if they would put out their gas and close their windows they would experience relief. They acted on this suggestion, and placed themselves between the sheets. Just as they began to doze a lighting bug which had strayed into the room, caught the eye of one of the travellers. He aroused his companion with a punch. "Jamie, Jamie, it's no use, here's one of the craturs sarchin' for us wid a lantern."

A Little too Sharp.

An enterprising business man of Hartford, Conn., runs two branches of trade, to wit: a grocery and a fish market—the grocery himself, the fish market by deputy, and every night the latter makes returns of the proceeds of the day's business to the proprietor. A few days since, the grocer found in his fish market returns a counterfeit five dollar bill. He did not like to lose it, and didn't quite want to take the chances of trying to pass it. So he called to an old darkey who was hanging about the premises, and said to him, 'Sam, here's a five dollar bill that is a little doubtful.—If you'll take it and pass it, I'll give you a dollar of the change.' 'Very well,' said Sam, and he took the bill and went off.—Later in the day he returned, having accomplished the feat, and handed over four dollars in good money to the grocer. That night the grocer, in counting the cash returns from his fish market, was more surprised than delighted to find the identical five in the pile. 'Look here,' said he sharply to his fish market clerk, 'here's a counterfeit bill; why did ye take it off; didn't you know it was bad?' the clerk took it and looked at it a moment, 'Oh yes,' said he, 'I remember now; I took it off Sam, the darkey. I thought it was a little doubtful, and wasn't going to take it, but he said he got it of you, so I thought it was all right.' Further explanation was unnecessary.

Ought to Have Known Him.—An individual possessing unmistakable evidence of African extraction was arraigned for larceny. The judge, as of right, was dignified, but said, with severe presence,

'Are you guilty or not?'

'Sar?'

'Did you steal these clothes?' he repeated.

'Golly, boss, 'clare never done it.'

'This man says you did.'

'He ain't nothin' but white trash.'

'And what are you?' continued the judge.

'Me!' said the darkey; 'why don't you know me? I'rid wid you in de percession. I helped to lead you home when you got tired' that night. Don't you 'member me now?'

There was the 'suddenest' non. pros. in that darkey's case that judicial annals afford an example of. So much for the advantages of good society.—American Paper.

Showmen Eloquence.

The following is the latest piece of showman eloquence:—'Gentlemen,—This is the celebrated boa constrictor; the finest, largest, strongest, and prettiest animal of its species on exhibition in this country. He was caught in South Africa (as he lay torpid after swallowing two oxen and a drove of sheep) in a wire net, his capture affording a beautiful illustration of successful wire pulling. It was supposed that the sand where he was found was hot enough to boil eggs, and that his skin was at least 'well done' there is proved by its highly-finished appearance. His colour is supposed to combine all the hues of all snakes that ever hissed or bit from the 'old serpent' to a conger eel. His size is variable, as, like most other objects in nature, he expands with heat and contracts with cold. For every rise of five degrees in the thermometer, he gets a foot of longitude. In his native sands he is a hundred and fifty feet long. The warm season of our own country stretches him twenty five feet. Last January, when the thermometer fell to sixteen degrees, he shrank into such trifling dimensions as to be invisible through a microscope. His present length you can see for yourselves. His temperance principles are of the Goughist kind. He is a dozen cold-water societies rolled into one. His drink at his present dimensions is three gallons of water per week, his food three more gallons. He has great natural talent for politics, which he shows by changing his coat four times a year. Price of admission twenty-five cents."—New Orleans Times.

Poles five feet high for Lima beans are just as good as those that are ten, and better as it is bean nature to get to the top of its post before it steadies down to the work of bearing fruit.

—A young lady who lately gave an order to a milliner for a bonnet, said. 'You are to make it plain, but at the same smart as I sit in a most conspicuous place at church.

—The latest case of absence of mind is recorded of a lady about to 'whip up' some eggs for sponge cake, who whipped the baby, and sang 'Watts' Cradle Hymn' to the eggs.

Swine.—Pen up store pigs and begin to fatten them. Feed peas, vines and all, as soon as the peas have all gained their full size, before the vines have turned too yellow, and add corn to the swill. Breeding sows lined now will farrow after the mid dle of November.

—A young man of limited intelligence who was recovering from a long fit of sickness, being told by his physician that he "might now venture on a little animal food," exclaimed: "No, you don't, Dr., I've suffered enough on your gruel and stuff, and hang me if I touch your hay and oats."

—A young Cincinnati dentist was introduced to a fashionable beauty the other evening, and gracefully opened the conversation by saying, "Miss ——, I hope I may consider that we are not entirely unacquainted, I had the pleasure of pulling a tooth for your father a short time ago."

—A doctor ordered some very powerful medicine for a sick boy, and the father, not liking the appearance of it, forced it down the cat's throat. When the doctor called again and inquired if the powder had cured the boy the father replied, "No, we did not give it to him." "Good heavens!" said the doctor, "is the child living!" "Yes but the old cat is'nt; we gave it to her." The doctor sloped.

To Destroy Lice on Cattle.—A farmer in the Rural New Yorker says: I have tried many remedies, yet I have found none which effects a cure as quickly and thoroughly as to make a strong suds of soft soap and rain water, adding a handful or so of common salt, which forms a thick paste-like substance. Apply this by rubbing it thoroughly over the animal. If using it upon colts, blanket them well to prevent them catching cold. I have known one application to entirely obliterate all traces of these pests, leaving the skin in a natural and healthy state.

—A farmer in a remote district of the Yorkshire woods met a country rector who had been two years absent on travel:

"Mr. Rector," said the farmer," you've been to the Holy Land, I hear."

"I have John, and got safe back, you see."

"Well," said John, 'I often thou't I'd like to hear about that spot. It's a fine country I lay."

"Well," said the rector, "I saw Lebanon and Jerusalem, and the twelve Palm Trees, and the wells of water in the Great Desert; and we went across the Jordan and went up Mount——"

"Excuse me interruptin' you, Mr. Rector, noo, said the farmer, "but if it be a fair question, hoo was turmet (turnips) looking out yander?"

One "Crispino" fell in love with a maid;
Each night 'neath the window he stood,
And there, with his "soft" serenade,
He wakened the whole neighborhood!
But vainly he tried to arouse
Her sleep with his strains so bewitching;
While he played in front of the house,
She slept in the little back kitchen!

LONDON SOCIETY.—Mr. Harrison has handed us the August number of this monthly. The following is a list of the contents:—Afternoons in the Park; From Remenban Island to Henly; Sketches in the House of Commons; A Harp Accompaniment; Which of the three; N. or M.; Summer Days among the White Mountains; Cross Purposes; The Archery Lesson; A run to the South after Creature-Comforts; The Matrimonial Agent; The Piccadilly Papers. The illustrations to the article on 'The Park' are very clever and amusing; the plate paper engravings are beautiful, and the London Society still maintains those characteristics which have made it a favorite.

LAUNCHED.—On Saturday the 14th inst., a party of ladies and gentlemen left Belleville by Rathbun's Tug Jessie Abbott, for Mill Point, to witness the launch of the pleasure steam yacht, the Starling. On the arrival of the party, everything was got in readiness, colors were hoisted, bottle was thrown, and as she glided into her native element she was christened by Miss Starling. The vessel is forty-five feet in length, eight feet and a half beam, and is a perfect model of beauty. She has a cabin forward capable of accommodating twenty-five persons. The sides will be enclosed by a neat net-worked railing, and she will be covered by a canvass awning. She is a credit to the builders, the Messrs. Rathbun & Son, and the owner, C. J. Starling, Esq., deserves the thanks of the public for his enterprising spirit in placing such a boat on our waters. The steamer will be brought here some day this week, when the people will have an opportunity of witnessing her.

THE OSWEGO FIREMEN.—The Kingston Daily News of the 13th inst, in speaking of the visit of the Oswego Firemen to that city says:—"The uniform of the Oswego firemen was a very neat blue jacket, tastefully braided with designs and the number of the company, black pantaloons and belt and military gold banded cloth caps. The only difference of uniform existed in the dress of the Vice President of the department, whose jacket was scarlet. A number of the men wore the glazed caps of the Belleville firemen with whom they had fraternally exchanged before leaving that place." This is not exactly correct. The cloth caps with a gold band did belong to Moira Company No. 1, Belleville, and the glazed caps mentioned in the News belong to the Oswego men. We will explain. So well satisfied were the Oswego men with the reception they received from their comrades of No 1, that, wishing to have some memento of their visit to Belleville, nearly the whole of the men in the two companies, just before the steamer left the wharf, changed their caps, and in some cases their belts also, as we noticed after their return from the wharf they wore belts with "Alert Hose, No. 7," inscribed on them. Our Chief Engineer also wore a large hat with an eagle perched on the top of it, with "Alert Hose, No. 7," inscribed on the front of the hat. We would just mention here that the Oswego men were the guests of Moira Fire Company No. 1, and that all their expenses were paid by No. 1, the Oswego men not being allowed to spend a cent while in Belleville.

COLLISION ON LAKE HURON.—A telegram from Sarnia Aug. 14th, says that the steamer Silver Spray of Goderich was run into on Friday night by the propeller Comet, bound from Buffalo for Green Bay. The accident happened at ten o'clock p. m. The Spray left Goderich at three o'clock, and was near the Canada shore. Just before entering the St. Clair river the Comet had not got out of the river, and when first seen was running as it were for the Canada shore and right in the course of the Spray. Capt. Rowan, of the Spray, whistled and then, after a minute or two, seeing that the Comet did not change her course he whistled again, but the Comet held right on and struck the Spray on the larboard side right in front of the paddle-box. The Comet's speed had been greatly slackened, but if she had not struck the Spray's boilers she would have run right through her and sunk her in an instant. Capt. Rowan and officers and men of the Spray and young Mr. Detlor, of Goderich, one of the owners, did their duty well. The boats were got out and ladies and other passengers got safely off and on board the Comet. There were about 20 passengers and eighteen of a crew, and all were got off safely. The Spray, which was gradually settling in the water, sunk in 15 minutes, a portion of her upper deck remaining out of water, a number of the passengers lost their clothing, and there was scarcely anything saved except the boats, books and papers. The Comet, which was injured on the bows by the collision, took the passengers and crew to Port Huron.

The Light House Service of Ontario.

We find in the London Free Press of the 14th inst., an exceedingly interesting article on the Light House Service of Ontario. It is too long for our columns, but we gather therefrom some figures and information which will be of value to our readers. It is known that the Light Houses of the Dominion are mostly under the charge of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, who is responsible for the placing of the lights and the continuation of the service. Every light house keeper is notified to be at his post all the year round, except when in some instances leave of absence is given. The lamps on the upper lakes are lit on the first appearance of a vessel, and suspended on the formation of the ice in November and December. Occasionally in open weather, which sometimes occurs in January or February, vessels will make a dash from port to port, and then the lamps are again lighted, only to be turned out when stormy weather again asserts its dominion.

Once a year the Government sends a steamship to every light, for the purpose of supplying the keeper with the necessary stores of oil, &c. The propeller City of London, performed the service this year, leaving Montreal on the 14th of July and completing the tour by the 4th of August. The writer in the Free Press accompanied the officials, and from the account which he furnishes of the trip we obtain this information. The list of light houses which were supplied and which were inspected by the Deputy Minister of Marine, Wm. Smith, is as follows:—

ST. LAWRENCE RIVER.	LAKE ERIE.
Lachine Canal.
Lake St. Louis, Light Vessels.	Port Colborne.
Point Clarie Shoal.	do. Range Light.
Beauharnois.	Mohawk Isle.
Grosse Point.	Port Maitland.
McGee's Point.	Port Dover.
Cherry Island.	Long Point.
Cherry Island, Light Vessel.	Port Burwell.
Lancaster Pier.	Port Stanley.
Coles' Shoal.	Point Pelee Reef.
Grenadier Island.	Pelee Island.
Lindoe Island.	ST. CLAIR RIVER.
Gananoque Island.
Jack Straw Shoal.	Sois Blanc.
Spectacle Shoal.	River Thames.
Red Horse Rock.	Thames Range Light.
Burnt Island.
Wolfe Island.	LAKE HURON.
LAKE ONTARIO.	Goderich.
Snake Island.	Point Clark.
Nine Mile Point.	Chantry Island.
False Ducks.	Isle of Corve.
Point Pleasant.	Griffith Island.
Point Peter.	Nattawassga Island.
Scotch Bonnet.	Christian Island.
Prescq'Isle (3 lights.)	Killarney Lights (2)
Gull Island.	Little Current (2.)
Gibralter Point.	Clapperton Island.
Oakville Harbour.	St. Ignace (supply sent by steamer from Collingwood).
Burlington Bay.
Burlington Range Light.
Port Dalhousie.

To supply these light houses it took 10,000 gallons of petroleum which was furnished by L. D. Vincent of the Sunlight Works, Petrolia, who has the contract for supplying the Dominion at 22½ cents per gallon. A few years since the Lower Provinces were supplied with coal oil (oil distilled from coal) while sperm or whale oil was used at many of the western light-houses, at a cost of $2.25 to $2.50 per gallon. The finest and best petroleum, the product of our own wells, is now furnished at 22½ cents per gallon! It has been found by experience that the Canadian petroleum, when properly refined, gives as brilliant a light as the best sperm, and with but little smoke.

The light-houses of the Dominion comprise about two hundred of all classes, of which Ontario has sixty-four. Of course the lights vary with the different services required. Most of the lights are of the "catoptric" order, or by metal reflectors, while the best in use are the French crystal dioptric, second order by refractoric lenses. Of this class there are six or eight in Lake Huron and the Georgian Bay. These splendid lanterns are seven feet high, and about four feet in diameter, and are made of the most brilliant cut glass, of various designs and thicknesses, refracting the light in a wonderous blaze, often to a distance of forty miles! Several of this class which were inspected cost about $10,000 each exclusive of the buildings. The total cost of the light-houses of Ontario has been about $1,000,000, and the annual expense of the lights, buoys and beacons of the Dominion is about $300,000. The fixed lights require but little attention; those lights which revolve, or flash out for a few seconds like a meteor and then subside, are managed by clockwork. The light-house towers are now almost always cylindrical, and of small diameter. On land they are surrounded by buildings intended for the keeper and his family, and at times even for farming and fishing purposes.

It is said that the Department are about to increase the service of the construction of new lighthouses at Sulphur Island (near Sault Ste. Marie), Byng Inlet, Mitchell's Point, Manitoulin Island, and Rondeau harbor. Six of the lighthouses built at different points in Georgian Bay are of a very costly though substantial character, and have been directed with a lavish hand. These six structures, erected in 1859, cost no less a sum than $322,563, without the lights or lanterns, which were imported from France at a cost of about $10,000 each.

Each light house has, as it were, its own language, in which it addresses itself to the anxious sailor. One bids him welcome to a safe harbor; another warns him against a hidden reef. This tall tower sends its light to a distance of twenty-seven miles; that small one can only be seen within a circle of five miles. One has a fixed light, and shines forever like a beautiful star; another moves mysterious, suddenly blazes forth from utter darkness casts its welcome light far into the distance, and vanishes as unexpectedly, only however, to reappear a few minutes afterward, brighter than ever, on the horizon. It is to the credit of the British American Colonies that they have not been behind the world in displaying the warning beacon, not only on the Atlantic coasts and rivers, but also on the great Western Lakes. The article closes by putting in a word for the poor light house keeper, who earns his salary hardly enough:

"A stormy night," says David Stephenson "may ruidely drift the sleet against our windows and disturb our rest; and perhaps our sympathies may be awakened for the men who patrol our dark streets as guardians of our property; but seldom in those dismal nights do our thoughts extend to the solitary outposts of our land, where, confined to the narrow cabin of a light-ship, or watching in towers perched on bleak headlands or sunken rocks, the true guardians of the country's naval greatness keep their quiet and unostentatious vigil, unthought of, because remote and unknown. Whether we consider the important position which our lighthships occupy among the tortuous channels leading to our great ports, or the calm endurance of their ever tempest-rocked inmates, they can not fail to arrest our interest, and inspire us with thankfulness that men are found ever ready to discharge the most unenviable duties in the important and humane work of protecting the lives of our seamen."

Cricket.

The Belleville Cricketers left this town on Monday, August 9th, to play the return matches at the following places, viz. Port Hope, Lindsay and Peterboro.—Through the kindness of Mr. Nunn, of the Grand Trunk, and Mr. Williams, of the Port Hope, Lindsay and Peterboro Railway, the Cricketers were able to get tickets at half price.

At Port Hope the first game was played and was one of the best games the Belleville club have had this season. The batting of Mr. J. Hall, for Port Hope, was in good style, and also the batting of Messrs. Jellett, Maybee, and Lister; the fielding of both clubs was good, Belleville winning the game by 5 wickets. In the evening the Port Hope club entertained the Belleville club at a dinner at the St. Lawrence House.

On Tuesday morning at 5 o'clock the Belleville boys left Port Hope for Lindsay, to play in the latter place that day. Arriving at 9 a. m., they were met at the station by a number of the Lindsay Cricketers, and after doing justice to a good breakfast at the Jewett House, the Belleville Cricketers were escorted to the ground by the Lindsay club. At 11:30 the game began by Jellett and Maybee taking the bat against the bowling of Sanderson and Lumsden. The batting of Messrs. Maybee, Lister, Dennison, Mills, and Benjamin for Belleville was good, as also that of Grace, Smith, McDonald and Mitchell, for Lindsay. In the first innings Belleville run 117, Lindsay 64; in the second innings Belleville 82, Lindsay 59 with three wickets down; as time was called the game was not finished. This was the first game the Belleville Club has had the pleasure of playing on the Lindsay ground, but it is to be hoped it will not be the last, for a better and finer lot of Cricketers cannot be found. After partaking of tea and having a short walk through Lindsay, the Belleville Club left by team for Peterboro, which place they reached after six hours travelling over some pretty bad roads.

On Wednesday morning at 11:30 the Belleville boys found themselves on the Peterboro ground. After a half-hour's delay the game was called, Jellett and Maybee going to the bat against the bowling of Kennedy and Rackett. In the first innings eight was the largest score obtained by any one player on the Belleville side, the first innings being only 44. Small as this may appear the Belleville Cricketers were determined that Peterboro should be less, and by hard work and the good bowling of Messrs Clark and Lumsden (the latter was kind enough to take the place of Mills, who, I forgot to say, was hurt at Lindsay, so that he was unable to play) the Peterboro Cricketers had to go out for the small score of 17, only ten of which they got off the bat, thus leaving Belleville 27 ahead on the first innings. The second innings Belleville added 62 to the score, twenty of which were made by Maybee and ten by Dennison, thus leaving Peterboro 90 runs to make to win the game. Messrs Wrighton and Purser took the bat against the bowling of Clark and Lumsden. Purser was bowled l. b. w. by Clark; first wicket down for 21. Bell following, but was soon bowled by Clark, after having added six to the score.—Two wickets down for 25 runs. The wickets fell fast to the sixth wicket, which fell for 45, when Rutherford and J. Cronn made a stand, and the last wicket fell for 85, giving Belleville the game by four runs. The fielding on both sides was good, especially that of Walker, of Belleville, whose catch at long field with one hand after running over sixty yards for it, received great applause.

—The great railway bridge at Windsor, N.S., is being rapidly constructed.

—Seven cargoes of new wheat have already passed down the Welland Canal.

—Several new telegraph lines have been constructed in Nova Scotia this summer.

—It cost $500 to make whiskey in Quebec, without consulting the board of XII, (excise.)

—Several persons were drowned by the boating accident at Sarnia on Thursday.

—Bishop Simpson is soon to come out against the doctrine of perfectibility, if report speaks right.

—A salom trout from Lake Huron, weighing 40 lbs, was sold in the Hamilton market on Saturday.

—Brigham Young gives orders to excommunicate any saint who does not contribute to the church.

—"Truth is immortal; the sword cannot pierce it, fire cannot consume it, prisons cannot incarcerate it, famine cannot starve it.

—As blossom and fruit grow only from the sound root, so too it is only from faith in Christ, and in the redemption wrought by him, that the true moral life can be developed.

—The English Presbyterians of London have again been discussing earnestly in Presbytery the question of allowing organs. It seems probable that they will soon carry the day, and two churches have already adopted them, with apparent safety.

—"How does that look, eh?" said Mr. Cramp, holding out his brawny hand. 'That,' said Amos, 'looks as is you were out of soap.'

THE VALUE OF TIME.—In the volume of the "Rambler" Dr. Johnson thus discourseth upon the loss or squandering of time, which we can do no better than to place among our "Thoughts for Thinkers," trusting the reader will peruse the following extract with the same pleasure we have. On the value of time the Doctor says:—"The story of Melancthon affords a striking lecture on the value of time, which was, that whenever he made an appointment, he expected not only the hour, but the minute to be fixed, that the day might not run out in idleness or suspense. Life is continually ravaged by invaders; one steals away an hour, and another a day; one conceals the robbery by hurrying us into business, another by lulling us with amusement. The depredation is continued through a thousand vicissitudes of tumult and tranquility, till having lost all, we can lose no more."

RUMORED SALE OF CUBA.

LONDON, Aug. 14.—The Post has an editorial to-day on the subject of the sale of Cuba to the United States, wherein the writer says: "We entertain shrewd suspicions that the best thing Spain can do is to close with America in respect to Cuba. She gains nothing by Cuba in her present state but loses a sum she cannot afford. She is not strong enough to stamp out insurrection, but is obliged by a false sentiment of honor to continue the attempt costly and unavailing. If she is able to restore tranquility, considerable time must elapse before she can reap the fruits of success, and probably before the result is attained the flames of rebellion will break out afresh. These considerations will have weight with the Government, and notwithstanding the denial of the rumored negotiation we shall not be surprised to hear that the purchase and sale of Cuba has been effected."

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry.

Where this article is known it is a work of supererogation to say one word in its favor, so well is it established as an unfailing remedy for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Asthma, Diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs, as well as that most dreaded of all diseases, Consumption, which high medical authority has pronounced to be an incurable disease. Those who have used this remedy know its value; those who have not, have but to make a single trial to be satisfied that of all others it is THE REMEDY.

THE REV. JACOB SECHLER, well known and much respected among the German population of this country, writes as follows:

HANOVER, Pa., Feb. 16, 1859.

Messrs. S. W. Fowle & Son, Boston.

DEAR SIRS,—Having realized in my family important benefits from the use of your valuable preparation—Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry—it affords me pleasure to recommend it to the public. Some eight years ago, one of my daughters appeared to be in a decline, and little hopes of her recovery were entertained. I then procured a bottle of your excellent Balsam, and before she had taken the whole of it there was a great improvement in her health. I have, in my individual case, made frequent use of your valuable medicine, and have always been benefitted by it. I would, however, caution the public against imposition, because there is a good deal of spurious 'Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry' afloat throughout the country.

Grace's Celebrated Salve.

From Mr. JAMES CURLIS, of AMESBURY, Mass.:

"I was afflicted with a severe felon on one of my fingers, and tried many remedies without relief. My friends induced me to apply your Salve. In two days it extracted the inflammation from my finger so as to enable me to resume my work. I can almost say that the Salve worked like magic, for it effected a cure without leaving a scar. I unhesitatingly pronounce 'Grace's Salve' an excellent remedy, and do not doubt it will be appreciated throughout the land." 25

Hints About Work.

(From the American Agriculturist.)

PLOWING FOR WHEAT.—The weather is so that,if we have other work for the teams, we do not like to put all the fall plowing upon them in August; yet it is necessary or best to plow for wheat at this time. Turn over a clover sod perfectly flat,plowing not over six inches deep, apply a top-dressing of slaked lime, and harrow it in. Wait three weeks, and then spread a rich, fine compost, and harrow it in thoroughly.—Shares' harrow (which is not a harrow at all) is the best tool. This will leave the land in a condition to receive the seed, which should be drilled in about the first to the middle of September.

THRASHING.—Grain is a great deal safer in the granary than in the stack or mow. Abundance of food makes vermin plenty. If grain of all kinds were to be thrashed as soon as possible, mice would not find in the barns such attractive quarters,and would remain much longer in the field exposed to many casualties. Owls, hawks, crows, snakes, cats, weasels, etc., prevent much increase. Grain should be stored until it is marketed, either in well ventilated bins, in sacks, or spread out in hot, dry, ventilated lofts. Look closely to the thrashing, that no grain is lost in the straw.

WEEDS.—When mowing land is bare, go through with a narrow hoe, old adz, or weeding spud, and cut up buttercups,daisies, dock, asters, thistles, weeds and that all may then be distinctly seen, cutting two or three inches under the crowns, and lifting them out. Many woody plants may be served the same way in the fence rows and elsewhere, and running briers, rose-bushes, etc., should have like treatment wherever found. Weeds should be mown and consigned to the pig-sty if not gone to seed, in which case let them dry and burn them.

ROOT CROPS need weeding, and probably severe thinning. Too many turnip plants are just as bad as weeds to the few that ought to occupy the ground; they grow small, and strong, and tough, when crowded. The growth of all root crops should be from the start. It is a poor plan to wait until the roots are beginning to fill out before weeding as it is to wait for the weeds to get a foot high before hoeing.—Keep all clean, and allow room to grow.

GRASS.—There may be a little late grass to cut for hay, but July should have seen the first crop of grass well out of the way, and the aftermath will hardly be fit to cut before the last of August or first of September. Manuring grass land is in season. E very day's delay is a loss, the best time to top dress grass land is the day after the hay is taken home; the poorest time, in the spring.

WORKING ANIMALS need good feed if they are put to hard labor. If possible turn them out to grass for a few weeks, to be ready for autumn work. Oxen ought to have good long "noon spells." Horses stand great heat better; a good driver will give his team drink as often as he drinks himself. Work horses will be greatly refreshed by being turned into the pasture as soon as they are cooled off and fed, and leit out over night.

SPRING GRAIN.—Harvest before the grain is dead ripe, unless it is required for seed. Oats, especially ought not to stand too long, for the straw loses in feeding value greatly, and the grain gains nothing. The rule is to cut when two-thirds of the heads have turned yellowish.

Cows will fall off rapidly in milk unless great pains are taken to keep them up.—Corn fodder should be cut and fed daily; a change of pasturage is beneficial, and when they can be turned upon a good clover aftermath they will do well enough.

STOCKS of hay or grain that are to stand long should be looked to while settling, bracing if need be, and re-topped when done settling.

Improvement in Grain.

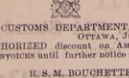

Experiments have demonstrated, and analogy has shown, that the finest and best samples of seed, continued for years, will improve the quality and quantity of the product. A better wheat is thus raised; even a variety may be established. On this principle, in farm stock, we have the short-horn, the blood horses, and the different breeds of sheep, swine,poultry, &c. Experiments have been made on the human species, but the same, no doubt, holds good there.

We plant and sow "as it comes." We take the seed of the same grain that we use in the aggregate, and sow it. Is not this the case almost always? Corn is an exception to some extent—but why do we except corn? Because it is handy to select. But why select at all? Because it is understood to be good. Analogically, then, it is good to do the same with wheat, oats, barley,&c. But this is less easily done; we therefore neglect it. How long will it take a farmer to go through his wheat and secure the finest and ripest heads sufficient to sow an acre, or half an acre, or a quarter—or even a pint of seed? This pint sowed will be sufficient to form a test stock. The best heads taken from this again, and sowed, will yield another test crop, from which should be taken as before; and so on for a number of years, say half a dozen—more still better. But three or four years will work a decided difference. But the thing should be continued from selected wheat every time. In this way grain can be improved and crops enlarged. There will be larger grains, earlier maturity and better growth.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys, is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Hysterical cases of Scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by its scrofulous affections and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulous contamination until the system was literally suffering; have been radically cured in great numbers in almost every section of the country, that the public scarcely need to be told of its virtues or uses.

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this unseen and unfelt tenant of the organism undermines the constitution, and invites the attack of enfeebling or fatal diseases, without existing a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed before birth throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develop into one or other of the hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by ulcerating the skin, or foul ulcerations on long parts of the body. Hence the good sense now of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla in all. Whether, when no active symptoms of disease appear, Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, in length, cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA. Tet-ter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Lips, and other eruptions or visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Fits, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various Uterine affections of the muscular and nervous systems.

Syphilis or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these obstinate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Leucorrhœa, Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Prolapsus or Dropsy, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating action. Minute Directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield to it; as also Liver Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, Jaundice, when arising, as they often do, from the rankling poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are Languid and Listless, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the affections symptomatic of Debility or Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything been so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of man it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protection against them. While exposed to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the most grievous affections of the throat and lungs. As a protection against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are the virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, or do more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Bismuth, Zinc, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it in nowise injures any patient. The slightest and most tender of the infants in the arms of infants, are literally beyond account, and we believe without a parallel in the history of Ague medicine. Our pride is gratified by the acknowledgments we receive of the Radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and where other remedies had wholly failed.

Unacclimated persons, either residents in, or traveling through miasmatic localities, will be protected by taking the AGUE CURE daily.

For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy activity.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly remarkable cures where other medicines had failed.

Prepared by DR. J. C. AYER & CO., Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass., and sold all around the world.

QUERY?

Should we employ the noble doctors to bring us our tea and coffee in bottles at an expense of at least four times what they now cost?

If not, why should we longer adopt that system in reference to medicines which are the simple extracts of roots and herbs, prepared as healthy prepared as tea and coffee?

Each package of Dr. Thompson's Botanic Medicines contains more medicinal properties than can be procured in any other form for four times the money.

We have in our possession numerous testimonials as to the practicability of, as well as the benefits derived from the use of Dr. Thompson's Botanic Medicines.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other which can be tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always —that is, never fails when faithful trial is made of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of its cures, many of the most remarkable character, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by any body. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action, relieving the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first cause of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor, and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore healthy action to the digestive organs.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Biliousness, Bilious Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purgative.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youthful hair. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently produce baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. It wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Vol. 3. BELLEVILLE, COUNTY OF HASTINGS, DOMINION OF CANADA, TUESDAY EVENING, AUGUST 17, 1869. No. 90

Among the Greenlanders.

Greenland women, as a rule, are excessively bad housewives. Before marriage they are clean in their persons and attire, and everything that an Arctic lover, of right constituted mind, could desire. But once married they sink into slatterns, careless of person, house and family, and negligent of the duties expected from every Greenlander's wife. There was a great seal hunter at Claushawn, called Timotheus David, known in one day to have killed twenty-three seals and one white whale. I saw him once bring some skins to trade, which were refused on account of their being half rotten. "What can I do?" the poor man replied. "She (looking cautiously around), she won't look after them." This man's wife, before marriage, was the best tailoress in the settlement. Now she is a dirty slattern, and will do nothing, not even make her husband's and children's clothes, nor even dress the skins, as every Greenland wife is expected to do. He is camped on an island just off shore, and has come for a woman to dress the skins, for which service he must of course pay her, while his lazy wife looks on. Yet the unfortunate wight cannot, as in the old time of Tournoorsoak and the heathen Augekoks send his worthless wife about her business, because the Lutheran Church, which he has adopted, does not allow of such a proceeding; and if he gives her a good caning (as she richly deserves), or even speaks crossly to her, then she will inform the protester when he comes round, and the poor man will read a long lecture upon the iniquity of his ways, and forever there will settle upon him the priestly scowl, as he is pointed out as a vicious creature, an example unto all refractory seal-catchers. Now, as the poor fellow does not care to be sent to a clerical Coventry, the wife sips her "kavii," while another woman dresses his skins. The father of this man, Matthias, was a stern Arctic parent, and brought up his children in the way they should go.

When the dreaded south west wind was driving the breakers high over the rocks at Caushawn, he would place his son in the kayak and throw him into the surf. The little fellow, with the double paddle in his hand, would watch his opportunity and right himself as he descended, and then triumphantly paddle through the boiling sea to the little haven where the canoes land. Though Claushawan is called the "shut harbor" by some jocular old Dane in times past, on the lucus a non lucendo principle—the harbor is merely an open roadstead, exposed to every wind that blows round Disco Bay. People used to say to Matthias here, "You will drown your boy," to which advice this sage hunter of seals and white whales, replied, "If the boy cannot right a kayak in a stormy sea, he cannot kill a seal, and if he cannot kill a seal he cannot live in Greenland, in which case he might just as well go to——;" the sentence being left unfinished. On the subject of morality there is little to be said for the Greenlanders; but in this respect the Danes set a very indifferent example to the natives. Half casts of the illegitimate origin abound, and the government, whatever may be said about it otherwise, really offers a premium for errors against church discipline. If a young officer of the government is adjudged to be parent presumptive of a brass-colored baby, all he has to do is to pay 36 ringsdaler—or about £4—to the Governor, and he will be troubled no further about the matter.—Murder is almost unknown in Danish Greenland; very few cases of even a suspicious nature having occurred for many years, and no provision is made for punishing it, so little is the commission of the crime calculated on. In the "good old times," if two men quarrelled, they would watch an opportunity till a harpoon driven through the back of one, while in his kayak, settled the dispute. The cardinal virtue of the Greenlander is his honesty. Theft is almost unknown in the country. Nobody, unless, indeed, he be very weak or very suspicious, ever thinks of locking his door against thieves. When he goes out he draws it to, to prevent things being meddled with, or dogs running in; but not with an idea that if he should leave his table covered with money, a shilling of it would be gone.—Cornhill Magazine.

A Boy Again.

A couple of gentlemen in Reno were, not long since, whiling an evening away by singing songs and relating anecdotes, when he asked for the song "Would I were a Boy again," at which "Old Pi Ute" (John K. Lovejoy), who was present, broke out as follows:—"A boy again? Who would be a boy again if he could? to have the measles, mumps and itch; to get licked by bigger boys and scolded by older brothers, to stub your toes, to have the bellyache from swallowing cherry stones, to have chapped hands and frozen toes, to slip on the ice, to do chores, to get your ears boxed, to get whaled by a thick headed school master, to be made to stand up as "dunce" for the amusement of the school, to have your visitors come to the school and tell you how miserably weak and stupid you were when you were born, and to ask you what would become of you at that interesting time of your life if your parents had not been so patient with and kind to (of course it was all one's fault that he was born, and his parents were in no way concerned or interested in the matter), to eat at the second table when company comes, to set cabbage plants because you are little, and consequently it won't make your back ache much, to be made to go to school when you don't want to, to get spelled down in school, to lose your marbles, to have your sled broken, to get hit in the eye with frozen apples and soggy snowballs, to cut your finger, to lose your knife, to have a hole in the rear of your only pair of pants when your pretty cousin from the city comes to see you, to be called a coward if you don't fight at school, to be whaled at home if you do fight at school, to be struck after a little girl and dare not tell her, to have a boy too big for you to lick tell you your sweetheart squints, to have your sweetheart cut you dead and affiliate with that boy John Smith, whom you hate particularly because he set your nose up the week before, to be made to go to bed, when you know you ain't sleepy, to have no fire-crackers on the Fourth of July, no skates on Christmas, to want a piece of bread and butter with honey and get your ears pulled, to be kept from the circus when it comes to town and when all the boys go, to have the canker rash and stone bruises, to be called up to kiss all the old women that visit your mother, to be scolded because you like Maggie Love better than your own dear sister, to be told of what a pinching time little boys have who tell lies and are not like George Washington, to catch your big brother kissing the pretty school ma'am on the sly and to wish you was big so you could kiss her to, and—oh bah, on being a boy again.—Crescent.

Jealousy and Bee-Stings.

A JEALOUS YOUNG LADY STANDS ON A BEE-HIVE TO WATCH HER LOVER TOYING WITH A PRETTY WIDOW—THE HIVE IS OVERTURNED, AND THE BEES—

(From the Albany Journal.)

The presence of the green eyed monster is as frequently perceived in high as in low estate. Pretty young ladies are, it is said, peculiarly liable to the queer disease. It creeps into their hearts in such insidious disguises that the artless little beauties are not aware of its existence until it crops out in such passionate excesses that it frightens them to contemplate it.

No doubt it was precisely in such a way that a young lady on Franklin Street, Albany, became amenable to its influence.—For some time past she has regarded a youth with special favor. Charlie possesses many attractive qualities. He dresses in the latest mode, wears an Alpine, and cultivates a moustache. Yet he is fickle in disposition, and while his lips are attuned to the harmony of sweet words, and a low, passionate recital of love's anguish for the fair Julia's ears, his mind is enumerating the attractions of the pretty little widow around the corner.

Now, this widow is no friend of Julia or she'd her. For her life she can't see what Charlie admires in her. Indeed, Charlie denies any special interest in the coquettish beauty, but he goes to see her none the less. The fact that Julia disapproved it had no effect in changing his practice, and longing with a woman's curiosity to know what it meant, Julia determined to find it out. She forgot her self-respect, and became a spy. The pretty Julia became an eavesdropper.

Seeing Charlie enter the front door of the cozy little cottage wherein the widow abided, she hastened to admit herself in the yard by the rear gate; and peeped in at the window. Just underneath the window, however, was a little square box, on which Julia stood to get a good look into the room. Her worst fears were realized. On a sofa just large enough for two the pretty widow and Charlie sat, with heads inclined and a low monotone issuing from the lips of either, telling as plainly as words might have done of love's confessions.

Julia stepped back, the box turned over, and innumerable angry little insects issuing, proclaiming it a bee hive. Of course they stung her. Fierce as mimic warriors the angry little demons laid hold of her shapely extremities, popping a sting into the plump little hand, another in the rounded cheek, and even the silken hose were no protection to the exquisitely fashioned ankle. She rolled on the ground and crushed ruthlessly in mud and mire, her hands, feet and body.

The house was alarmed and the inmates came rushing out to learn the cause of the uproar. Even the impudent Charlie looked over the widow's shoulders; but that night he pardoned had he not asked, sympathetically, "if the bees had stung her?" Hartshorn and camphor were called into requisition, and Julia, swathed in flannels and poisoned by the sting of the bees, consigns both Charlie and the widow to very disagreeable lives hereafter.

BELLEVILLE, TUESDAY, AUG. 17.

LECTURE THIS EVENING.—The Rev. T. S. Barnell, late Missionary in Southern India, will give a Lecture this evening at the Methodist Church, Bridge Street. Lecture to commence at 8 o'clock.

FOR THUNDER BAY.—Hon. Wm. McDougall left Ottawa yesterday, on route to Thunder Bay, to inspect the Works now under construction there, to provide communication with Fort Garry. It is said he will not visit Red River at present.

BIG LOAD OF HAY.—One of the biggest loads of hay ever brought to this or any other market, was weighed at the hay scales here to-day. The gross weight of vehicle and hay was 5,680 lbs.; net weight 4,800 lbs. It was a sight to look at. Mr. Ashly, of Thurlow, was the owner.

THE GRAIN MARKET.—No grain is arriving or likely to arrive for some little time, and prices therefore are nominal. To-day there was one small load of Barley which brought 62 cents, and one load of new Oats which sold at 55 cents. A small lot of Rye yesterday brought 52 cents. Prices of grain will not likely be established for some time.

BASE BALL.—There will be a match between the New Dominion Base Ball Club of Port Hope and the Hastings Base Ball Club of Belleville, on the cricket ground to morrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. As the New Dominion is a crack club a close and exciting game may be look-d for; plenty of seats will be provided for the ladies.

THE GOVERNOR GENERAL IN HALIFAX.—The Governor General arrived in Halifax yesterday afternoon at half-past three o'clock and was most enthusiastically received, the people turning out en masse. An address was presented to him by the Mayor, signed by a great many dignataries and about 2,000 others, to which a suitable response was made. There was no attempt at disturbance.

THE PRIVY COUNCIL.—The Ottawa Citizen of the 16th says the Privy Council on Saturday disposed of a very considerable amount of important business connected with the Finance Department. Amongst other things the system of audit, providing for for greater strictness, more thorough checks, and more close inspection of the public accounts, was we believe, under consideration and approved. The subject of the auditing of the public accounts had naturally occupied the attention of the Finance Ministers and Board of Audit, who have devised the improved system now approved of, which it, is hoped, will be more satisfactory and efficient than the former on.

WHERE IS HE ?—A great many enquiries having been made lately as to the whereabouts of George Francis Train, the New York Tribune has found him out and tells us where he is as follows: "George Francis Train is in Oregon, having, it would appear, deserted, for the present, the great cause of Female Emancipation. He is making speeches to the Oregonians remarkable, as all his speeches, are for length, breadth, depth, and thickness; for splendor of language, brilliancy of imagination, perspicacity of detail, gorgeousness of coloring, felicity of wit, and undreamed-of sesquipedality. His home is in the setting sun; his haunts are the boundless prairies; his themes are occidental progress and George Francis Train. At which end of the earth he will next make his appearance we might be puzzled to know, were we not perfectly sure that he will let us hear from him."

TO BUSINESS MEN.—A. T. Stewart says his business never was better than this year, and that he never advertised so much before. He gives his advertisements credit for keeping his trade lively in dull times; yet less successful men than he insist that "advertising don't pay." And men who lay claim to good judgment in the management of their business sit down and "wait" for the business that advertising would most certainly bring to their counters. If this isn't "penny wise and pound foolish" policy we don't know what to call it. We ask tradesmen if the opinion of A. T. Stewart is not worth attention. The most successful merchant attributes his success to advertising and by imitating his course there is no question but every unsuccessful merchant can secure a reverse of his fortune.

A Madison avenue belle writes from the White Mountains as follows: "It's awfully cold; I'm wrapped up in shawls and have a fearfully red nose. There are no eligible fellows here, and I wish myself again at Saratoga."

—Pic-nics in a town in Pennsylvania are wound up by the girls standing in a long row, while the young men go along the line and kiss them all "good night." The winding up business is always anxiously looked for by the girls.

—The Montreal Gazette understands that the securities deposited in the hands of the Secretary by the Ætna Insurance Company of Dahlia have been realized, and that the money is about to be paid into the Court of Chancery for the satisfaction of the creditors of the company. The amount is between nine and ten thousand dollars.

"A Looker-on."

Some one has taken the trouble to write to the Globe from this place, pretending to give an account of the proceedings at the laying of the Corner Stone of the Deaf and Dumb Institution. The real purpose of the writer is to have a slap at the members of the County and the Government, and he gives it in real Grit style. It is a pity that he did not stick to the truth, for then his statements might have had some weight, but there is a class of men who, politically, have india-rubber consciences, who believe that all is fair in politics, and "A Looker-on" evidently belongs to that class. In the first place it is not true that an "attempt" was made some two weeks since by a few "admirers of the Government here to get "up a grand public demonstration and "ovation to the members of the Ontario "Government, on the occasion of laying the "corner stone."

The object of the promoters of the movement was to have the occasion properly commemorated, and to express the appreciation of the people at the location of the Asylum here. Amongst the parties to be invited, it was contemplated to ask some of the members of the Government. Only this and nothing more. There was no thought of party, no thought of building this man up at the expense of another, no thought of lionizing the Government, or of plastering the County members. But there was a desire to accord honor to whom it was due; there was a disposition to show the Government and the country at large, that the people hereabouts were not the ungrateful set of wretches, such Grits as "A Looker-On" would have us believe. And had it not been for the meddlesomeness of a few men who thought the party of their peculiar political stripe was not properly represented, the demonstration would have come off as contemplated, and it would have been one worthy of the Bay of Quinte. The ember of political discord was thrown into the movement by just such men as "Looker-On," and the promoters not being desirous of engaging in a political squabble with such unsullied politicians who were long since laid upon the shelf, wisely determined to postpone the proposed celebration until the completion of the building.

The writer is jubilant at the prospect of his party becoming resuscitated. Hear him: "For your information and those of "your readers who desire to know, I will "say a great change has taken place here "in this county in respect to the present "Government, and if a general election "were to take place shortly, they would be "routed, horse, foot and artillery." With the exception of Mr. Richards, who we think will not long be that dead weight, the Ontario Ministry never stood higher than it does now. It is rich, exceedingly rich, for a party which in this county does not number a respectable corporal's guard, to talk of routing the members "horse, foot and artillery." That thing has been tried before, when there was something of a Grit party, but now to talk of even showing a respectable fight, is "enough to sicken a horse," as the Globe would have it.

The writer tries to show that proper respect was not paid to the Hon. Mr. Cameron on his arrival here, and his efforts look very much like fouling one's own nest. The fact is, no body knew that Mr. Cameron or any other member of the Government was coming. But so soon as it was known he was here, he was waited upon by many of our leading citizens, and at the Asylum buildings was supported and surrounded by a large number of our principal citizens of "position and influence," and had all the attention paid to him that was due his position as an individual and a member of the Government.

Town Council.

MONDAY Evening, Aug. 16th.

PRESENT,—His Worship the Mayor, and Messrs. Henderson, Kelso, Vair, Starling, Kennedy, Flint, Vandusen, Tannahill, Holden and Foster.

Several petitions were read and referred.

OBSTRUCTING BRIDGE STREET.

The following letter from the Solicitor respecting the obstruction of Bridge street, was read :—

"To His Worship the Mayor, and Town Council of the Town of Belleville.

"GENTLEMEN.—Having been employed by the Street Committee of the Council to investigate and report upon the title of the lot or piece of land lately enclosed by George Taylor, on the East end of Bridge street, and apparently in dispute between the said Taylor and the Corporation, I beg to state that I have examined the Registry Office and obtained further reliable information, the substance of which I herewith submit for your consideration.

"The plan in the Registry Office is a plan of part of Lot number five (being a part of the property of the Taylors) as laid out by Samuel M. Benson, purporting to be made by him for the Taylors in May 1840, but which plan (as is hereinafter explained) was not registered until June, 1850. This plan shows Bridge street closed up on a line with Ann street.

"I also find that in 1841 a deed is registered of lot number eleven, being the lot adjoining the lot in dispute, was sold by W. J. Taylor to one James T. Young, which lot is bounded on Bridge street.

"This led to further enquiry, and I found on application to Mr. Benson that the plan he originally drew in 1840 for the Taylors showed this street open for the line between lots five and six, but that in 1850 he drew a duplicate plan at the request of George Taylor, which closed up the street as before mentioned, and which is the plan now registered. The original plan was deposited in the Registry Office, but not registered.

"It appears from evidence that some years subsequent to 1840, say about 1847, George Taylor, by trade, obtained title to lot number eleven, and then for the first time conceived the idea of closing up the street. Accordingly, in 1850 he procured Mr. Benson to draw a duplicate plan with no marked difference except that Bridge street and other streets were closed up on a line with Ann street. Mr. Taylor with drew the old plan from the Registry Office and registered the new plan, not however changing dates, forgetting that he and other members of the family had by the first plan deducted this as well as other streets laid out on the original plan. This is proven by the sale of lot number eleven on the east side of John street by George Taylor, the present disputant, to one Lyman Dafoe, in November 1840, after the original plan was drawn, which lot is described in the deed according to the plan of 1840, laid out by Benson for the Taylors. This lot is now owned by N. Jones, Esq.

"There are other lots sold in the same way between 1840 and 1850 by Taylor, which shows conclusively that the plan of 1840 was adopted by them. The original plan of 1840 was in the Registry Office during Mr. Benjamin's term of office, and the Rev. John Grier was present about 1847 when George Taylor withdrew that plan from the Registry Office. At that time the street on that place was open up to the line of five and six. Mr. Wonsley afterwards saw him with the plan, and he (Taylor) told him that now he had got back number seven on Ann street in his own hands, he would close up Bridge street, and accordingly he drew a line on the plan across Bridge street in a line with Ann street, in his (Wesley's) presence.

"Thus it will be seen that the Taylors, by their mutual consent in 1840, dedicated the street known as Bridge street across lot number five to the line between five and six, and consequently one half in claim to the lot or piece of land in question. I would therefore recommend that the Street Surveyor be instructed to remove all and any obstructions placed thereon.

"Respectfully submitted,
"L. H. HENDERSON."

At a subsequent stage of the proceedings, after considerable discussion, a report from the Committee recommending the adoption of the course suggested, was adopted.

NOTICE OF MOTION.

Mr. Tannahill gave notice that at the next night of meeting he would introduce a motion for the appointment of a special Committee, to report upon the best means for assessment, so that realized wealth and real estate may be fairly considered, and taxation thereby equalized.

SCHOOL RATE.

Mr. Holden introduced a By-Law to levy a rate for School purposes. Two mills, and four-fifths of a mill is the rate. Last year it was three mills.

COLLECTOR OF TAXES.

Mr. Holden introduced a By-Law appointing Dunham Ockerman as Collector of Taxes, and defining his duties. According to this By-Law the Collector is obliged to give himself $15,000 security, and furnish two sureties of $10,000 each, and is to pay over to the Treasurer every Monday, all monies in his hands. He receives three per cent upon collections. The Treasurer is obliged to report to each meeting of the Council, the amounts paid in by the Collector.

RULES SUSPENDED.

On motion of Mr. Holden the Rules were suspended, in order that the By-Laws might be read a second time, and passed.

IN COMMITTEE.

Council went into Committee on By-Laws, Mr. Tannahill in the Chair.

The By-Law to levy a rate for Schools was read a second time,

On a motion to read the By-Law appointing Collector a second time.

Mr. Starling asked if it was contemplated to have only one Collector.

Mr. Holden—If the By-Law passed there would be only one Collector.

Mr. Vandusen moved, seconded by Mr. Flint, in amendment, That Dunham Ockerman be appointed Collector for Ketcheson and Coleman Wards, and Peter Maybee Collecter for Samson and Baldwin Wards.

Mr. Kelso moved in amendment, seconded by Mr. Vair, That the By-Law be so amended as to provide for two Collectors instead of one, and that John Kerr and Dunham Ockerman be the Collectors.

Mr. Holden said the system of having two Collectors worked badly. They were apt to get behind, and did not work well together. One man could do more work.

Mr. Kelso could not understand the consistency of the remark, that one man could do more work than two.

Mr. Holden—One man can do more work when he is disposed to do it, than two. He was satisfied that it would be to the interest of the Council and the people, if all the work was done by one man. Ockerman is a good Collector, and paid over the money he collected, which is a good recommendation.

Mr. Vandusen in supporting his amendment, said it was an advantage to have two collectors; the business was safer in the hands of two men than one. The one would spur the other up to do his duty, and he thought it highly advisable to appoint two collectors.

Mr. Kelso asked why this By-law was not considered in the Finance Committee. He thought it a high handed proceeding for one man to take it upon himself to introduce such a measure without having submitted it to the Committee. Besides he objected to the By-law as not being in order. No notice was given, and a By-law could not be pushed through at one sitting.

Mr. Holden—The objection comes too late. It should have been made before the Rules were suspended.

Mr. Kelso contended that the By-law was out of order, and called upon the Mayor to rule.

The Mayor took the chair and asked the Clerk if he had a notice on the Books with regard to the appointment of a collector.

The Clerk said notice had been given by Mr. Henderson about three months ago.

Mr. Kelso—That notice is not sufficient. It is dead.

Mr. Henderson said the Council had night after night consented to allow the notice to stand over, and the By-law was brought in to-night in accordance with that notice.

The Mayor ruled that the objection raised by Mr. Kelso was not valid, inasmuch as notice was given and the Rules were suspended to allow of the passage of the By-law.

The Chairman resumed his seat, when the first motion for the second reading of the By-law appointing Dunham Ockerman as collector, was put with the following result:—

YEAS.—Messrs. Henderson, Flint, Vandusen, Holden and Foster—5.

NAYS.—Messrs. Kelso, Vair, Kennedy, Starling and the Mayor—5.

The Chairman—It is a tie.

It was suggested by some of the members that the Chairman could vote.

Some time elapsed when the Chairman voted with the yeas, thus carrying the By-law.

The Mayor could not allow such a vote to be recorded. The Chairman after a vote had been taken, had pronounced it a tie, thus virtually disposing of the question, and yet after declaring it a tie, and after considerable delay, had his vote recorded. In his opinion it was not proper.

The Chairman said he had only voted after ascertaining that it was a tie.

The Mayor—If the Chairman votes it must be recorded when the vote is taken.

Some further discussion took place, when the motion was declared carried and the By-law read a second time. The Committee rose and reported.

On a motion to adopt the report,

Mr. Starling moved, seconded by Mr. Kennedy, that the Report be not adopted, but be sent back to the Committee for amendment.

Mr. Kennedy would like to have had a full vote upon this important question. He did not know any objection to Mr. Kerr. He was an old and faithful servant, and he would like to know the reasons for thus summarily dismissing him.

Mr. Flint said Mr. Kerr was an old acquaintance and a friend of his, and he regretted to be obliged to take the position he did. But as a member of the Court of Revision he had become acquainted with some facts, and as one member had asked for reasons he would give them. It was known that a lot of lands had been advertised for Taxes, and some of the lands so advertised belonged to persons who held receipts from Mr. Kerr that the Taxes were paid. He struck him as well as others, as a very extraordinary proceeding. Knowing these irregularities, he could not vote to sustain the course pursued by Mr. Kerr.

Mr. Kelso considered the remarks of Mr. Flint altogether uncalled for. It was quite time to prosecute a man when he was arraigned, and it was highly improper for a Councillor to stand up here and accuse a public officer of misdemeanors without an investigation. If Mr. Kerr had done wrong, there was a course open for Mr. Flint or any other member to punish him. He repeated that the remarks of Mr. Flint were altogether uncalled for. He had confidence in Mr. Kerr, that if appointed he would do his duty.

The motion to refer back the report of the Committee was then put and lost.

The report was adopted, and the By-Laws were read a third time, and passed.

On the third reading of the Collector By-Law, the yeas and nays were demanded.

YEAS.—Messrs. Holden, Henderson, Foster, Tannahill, Vandusen and Flint.—6.

NAYS.—Messrs. Kelso, Vair, Starling and Kennedy.—4.

FINANCE.

Council went into Committee on Ways and Means. Mr. Tannahill in the Chair. The Street Surveyor's Pay List, and several accounts were passed. The sum of $20 was placed to the credit of Mr. Tannahill as secret service money. Committee rose and reported. Report adopted.

Council adjourned.

THE HARVARD CREW.

LONDON, August 16.—The Harvard's were out to-day in their new boats, using for the first time the new set of oars made here. DEATH OF THE FENIAN NAGLE.

NEW YORK, Aug 16.—It is supposed that Col. Wm. J. Nagle, the noted Fenian leader, whose death was announced this morning, leaped from the attic window of his residence while temporarily out of his mind. It is believed by his friends that the sufferings which he had been compelled to endure during the past few years had affected his brain so that temporary insanity resulted; and latterly he had been kept under close guardianship from fear that he might do some rash act. Very recently his disorder led him to imagine that he was still being kept in prison by the British Government, and it is more than likely that he fancied he was escaping from a British dungeon when he committed the act which cost him his life.

TOMATO PRESERVES.—Take the round yellow variety as soon as ripe, scald and peel; then to seven pounds of tomatoes add seven pounds of white sugar; and let them stand over night; take the tomatoes out of the sugar, and boil the syrup removing the skum; put in the tomatoes, and boil gently fifteen or twenty minutes; remove the fruit again, and boil until the syrup thickens. On cooling, put the fruit into jars, and pour the syrup over it, and add a few slices of lemon to each jar, and you have something to please the taste of the most fastidious.

Business Notice.

Not many weeks ago a rich but childless landed proprietor breathed his last, leaving a large circle of relations to mourn his loss, and sundry over their prospects of sharing his wealth. The day for reading the will at last came; the room was crowded with anxious expectants; the will was opened and to the inexpressible joy of all, the rich gentleman's relations found that to each of them had been bequeathed a case of Royal Italian Bitters.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry.

Where this article is known it is a work of supererogation to say one word in its favor, so well is it established as an unfailing remedy for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Asthma, Diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs, as well as that most dreaded of all diseases, Consumption, when high medical authority has pronounced to be an incurable disease. Those who have used this remedy know its value; those who have not, have but to make a single trial to be satisfied that of all others it is the remedy.

THE REV. JACOB SECHLER,

well known and much respected among the German population of this county, writes as follows:

HANOVER, Pa., Feb. 16, 1859.

Messrs. S. W. Fowle & Son, Boston.

DEAR SIRS,—Having realized in my family important benefits from the use of your valuable preparation—Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry—it affords me pleasure to recommend it to the public. Some few years ago, one of my daughters appeared to be in a decline, and little hopes of her recovery were entertained. I then procured a bottle of your excellent Balsam, and before she had taken the whole of it there was a great improvement in her health. I have, in my individual case, made frequent use of your valuable medicine, and have always been benefitted by it. I would, however, caution the public against imposition, because there is a good deal of spurious "Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry" afloat throughout the country.

JACOB SECHLER.

Grace's Celebrated Salve.

From Mr. JAMES CURLIN, of AMESBURY, MASS.

Household Recipes.

QUINCE PRESERVES.—The orange quince is the best to preserve. Peel and core the quinces; put the peel and cores in a kettle with just water enough to cover them; let them simmer about two hours, then strain the liquor and put it back into the kettle and put in as many quinces as the liquor will cover; boil them until they are tender, take them out and put them on a flat dish to cool; put in more until they are all boiled; then put the sugar in and let it boil until it becomes a syrup; then put in as many quinces as the syrup will cover; let them boil half an hour, then put them on a flat dish to cool; and then more until they are all boiled; then boil the syrup until all the water is boiled out of it. When the quinces are all cool put them in jars and strain the syrup, while it is hot, through a fine seive on the quinces.

QUINCE JELLY.—Prepare the quinces to boil as directed, cut them into thin, small pieces, boil them one hour, strain the liquor through a fine seive, measure a pint of liquor to a pound of sugar, boil it about twenty-five minutes and strain it into the moulds.

QUINCE MARMALADE.—Take the quinces that you have boiled for jelly, and mash them with a spoon; to a pound of quences take a pound of sugar; boil them together until they are well softened, strain through a coarse seive, and put it up in small jars.

PEACHES.—Weigh to a pound of peaches a pound of sugar: put the peaches into a preserving kettle, and turn on boiling water enough to just cover them, and let them boil ten minutes. Take them out carefully on a flat dish to cool, then peel them with your fingers to keep the shape; take a little of the water that they were boiled in, add the sugar, and let it boil until it becomes a syrup. Put in a few peaches at a time, so as not to crowd them; when they are done put them on a dish to cool. Lay them carefully into a jar, boil the syrup a few minutes after the peaches are down, and strain it hot over the peaches.

ANOTHER MODE.—Peel the peaches; weigh a pound of sugar to a pound of peaches; strew half the sugar on to the peaches and let them stand over night.—Next day turn off the syrup and add the rest of the sugar; boil the syrup about fifteen minutes, put in the peaches and boil them until they are tender; take them out to cool, and then put them in jars, and strain the syrup hot into them; let them stand two or three days. If the syrup has become thin at the top of the jar turn the syrup and peaches into the preserving kettle, give them one boil and then put them into jars when cold. Put paper wet with brandy over the mouth of the jars, and then a bladder over it and tie them up.

BRANDY PEACHES.—Prepare them as before directed, excepting the sugar; take three quarters of a pound of sugar to one pound of peaches. When they are done allow a quart of white brandy to a quart of syrup; lay the peaches while they are hot into the cold brandy, then, when they are cold, put them into the jar; strain the syrup hot through a fine sieve into the brandy, and then put it on the peaches.

EGG PLUMS.—Pierce the skins of the plums with a large needle. Take a pound of sugar to a pound of plums; boil the sugar to a syrup and put the plums in while it is hot; boil it until the plums look clear; take them out to cool, and so on, until all are done. Put them up for three or four days, as above stated, &c.

DAMSON, OR ANY DARK PLUM.—Take a pound of sugar to a pound of plums; make the syrup, put in the plums, and boil them about thirty minutes. Let them cool; then put them into jars and strain the syrup on while it is boiling hot.

CRAB APPLES.—Leave the stems on; weigh a pound of sugar to a pound of the fruit; pierce the apples with a fine needle; make a syrup of the sugar; when clear put in the apples and boil them thirty or forty minutes; take them out very carefully and lay them singly on a dish to cool; when cool put them into the jars and strain the hot syrup over them.

WINE THAT WILL NOT INTOXICATE.—The juice of any sound, ripe fruit may be canned or put in jugs and sealed up air tight, while it is scalding hot, just as we put up canned fruit, and may be kept any length of time if properly put up. A small bottle of such juice may be opened at any time and mixed with water and sugar, making a pleasant drink of wine that is not intoxicating. Or better still, such juices are excellent to use over vegetables, instead of vinegar, or with bread, when fruit is scarce. Children would often prefer fruit juice, even without sugar, to molasses or milk. Much good fruit might be used in this way that is now left to rot, because it is too small to pick over. Any fruit worth gathering, if ripe and good, may be washed and pressed, or scalded, and the juice drained off; then the juice must be made boiling hot, and put into jugs or bottles and properly sealed.

Onions, one year with another, are as profitable a crop as can be raised on small places where rotted manure, clean soil, and plenty of labor can be had. Somehow the market is hardly ever well supplied with them.

—People are content to walk for life in the rut made by their predecessors long after it has become so deep that they cannot see to the right or left. This keeps them in ignorance and darkness, but it saves them the trouble of thinking and acting for themselves.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,
FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys, is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Inveterate cases of Scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous affections and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulous contamination until they were painfully afflicting, have been radically cured in such great numbers in almost every section of the country, that the public scarcely need to be informed of its virtues or uses.

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this unseen and unfelt tenant of the organism undermines the constitution, and invites the attack of enfeebling or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed infection throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develop into one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the occasional use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla is advisable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, at length, cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions or visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Fits, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various Ulcerous affections of the muscular and nervous systems.

Syphilis or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these obstinate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Leucorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute Directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when arising, as they often do, from the rankling poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are Languid and Listless, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the affections symptomatic of Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, or do more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Bismuth, Zinc, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it in nowise injures any patient. The number and importance of its cures in the ague districts, are literally beyond account, and we believe without a parallel in the history of Ague medicine. Our pride is gratified by the acknowledgments we receive of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and where other remedies had wholly failed.

Unacclimated persons, either resident in, or travelling through miasmatic localities, will be protected by taking the AGUE CURE daily.

For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy activity.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly remarkable cures, where other medicines had failed.

QUERY?

Should we employ the noble doctors to bring us our tea and coffee in bottles, at an expense of at least four times what they now cost?

If not, why should we longer adopt that system in reference to medicines which are the simple extracts of herbs or plants and roots, and are as readily prepared as tea and coffee?

Each package of Dr. Thompson's Botanic Medicines contains more medical properties than can be procured in any other form for four times the amount of money.

We have in our possession numerous testimonials as to the practicability of, as well as the benefits derived from the use of Dr. Thompson's Botanic Medicines, viz:

Dr. Thompson's Blood Purifier

Cures all diseases arising from an impure state of the blood, such as salt-rheum, scrofula, king's evil, white swellings, tendency to boils, old sores, pimples or roughness of the skin. It regulates the stomach and bowels; it tones the liver, and promotes the general vigor of the system, without reducing the strength of the patient. Sold at 60 cents per package.

DR. THOMPSON'S
Stomachic Bitters.

A certain and speedy cure for Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, and Indigestion. For costiveness it has no equal; it is a mild and safe invigorant and corroberant for delicate persons; a good alterative tonic for ordinary family purposes; a powerful recuperant after the frame has been reduced by sickness; an excellent as well as an agreeable and wholesome stimulant, for general debility, and diseases having their origin in an imperfect digestion or a deranged state of the stomach. Sold at 25 cents per package.

Dr. Thompson's No. 6.
OR COMPOSITION POWDERS

It is used with success for diseases caused by colds, such as cold chills, chills and fever, headache, pains in the joints or limbs, neuralgia, rheumatic pains—in fact it may properly be called PAIN KILLER, as it may be used for all purposes for which Pain Killers or Reliefs are used, such as cramps in the stomach, colic, diarrhœa, dysentery, summer complaints, cholera morbus, female complaints or obstructions. It may also be used with great success as a Liniment. Sold at 20 cents per package.

The proprietor has been induced to adopt the present condensed style of putting up the medicine in packages, as he is thereby enabled to supply double the amount of medicine for one-half the regular price of similar preparations.

Ayer's
Hair Vigor,
For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

Del Dottore F. P. Verri, Prof. of Chemistry in the of University Padua, Italy.

THIS Celebrated Preparation—for which a Certificate of Merit was awarded to the original preparer at the National Exposition at Torino, Italy, by whose favor Mr. Gianelli obtained the Recipe, and was also awarded a Diploma at the Provincial Exhibition of Canada, held at Montreal in September, 1865, is without exception, the most Genuine, Salubrious and agreeable Tonic ever introduced to public notice either in Europe or America.

For seventeen years it has, in Italy, been a universal favorite among the elite of society, being generally served in the Drawing Room immediately before dinner, in preference to Vermouth.

LET THERE BE HARMONY IN THINGS ESSENTIAL—LIBERALITY IN THINGS NOT ESSENTIAL—CHARITY IN ALL.

VOL. 3. BELLEVILLE, COUNTY OF HASTINGS, DOMINION OF CANADA, WEDNESDAY EVENING, AUGUST 18, 1869. No. 91.

Facts about the North West.

Notwithstanding all that has been written about the North-West Territory, very incorrect ideas exist in many quarters regarding it. To dissipate some of these erroneous impressions, we propose to make a few brief but correct statements regarding its climate productions, minerals, animals, &c., which we trust will prove interesting as well as useful.

NUMBER OF PEOPLE THERE.

Most of the inhabitants of what we may now call North-Western Canada, are located in what is known as the Red River Settlement, Fort Garry being the principal village. The number is set down at 14,000 souls, but when this season's accessions are all in and counted, the number will not be far from 15,000. Most of the population are Scotch and French, but the Canadians and Americans are steadily increasing.

CHARACTER OF THE CLIMATE.

The climate at Fort Garry is very much like that of the Province of Quebec. The winters are colder by the thermometer than in the neighborhood of Toronto, but in consequence of the aridity of the atmosphere, the cold is said not to be felt so much. The snow fall is generally less than with us. As you proceed West, towards the Rocky Mountains, the climate becomes milder and better. Near the mountains, snow seldom ever exceeds 10 inches in depth, and the winters are comparatively mild. On the Upper Saskatchewan, horses and cattle sometimes feed out all winter! Sleighing sets in about the first week of December, and the ice on the rivers breaks up about the last week of April. Spring comes in very rapidly. The farmers generally sow about the 15th of April, and the growth of the crops is exceedingly rapid. There is no fever and ague—the curse of the American prairies—and the character of the climate cannot be excelled for healthfulness.

THE FERTILE BELT.

It is calculated there are 250,000,000 of acres of magnificent farming land. The fertile belt is from 150 to 200 miles in width (north and south) and 800 in length (east and west). It is almost all prairie land, and the soil, according to a local authority, "of a rich, black, vegetable loam, with a clay subsoil." Regarding the great depth and richness of the soil, all authorities concur.

WHAT CROPS DO WELL.

This is a query in which all are interested, and one, fortunately, which can be most satisfactorily answered. Wheat, barley, oats, peas, rye, Indian corn, similiar grains, attain to great perfection. Wheat averages 65 lbs to the bushel. Flax and hemp thrives well. As an agricultural country it is certainly not excelled on this continent. Potatoes of yield 30 bushels for one planted. Almost every kind of vegetables grows luxuriantly. Such fruit as the wild plum, cherry, gooseberry, red and black currants and cranberry, are to be found in abundance. Before ten years the North West territory must be one of the largest wheat producing districts in the world. This is a flattering prediction. But it is impossible to consider the almost unequalled fertility of the soil, and the ease with which such prairies can be cultivated, and come to any other conclusion.

THE BREEDING OF STOCK.

We know no better chance to make a fortune than by going to the Red River district and commencing the raising of stock. A country abounding in natural grasses, which makes the best of hay, and in the western parts of which cattle can secure food out of doors all winter, it is a tempting field to the enterprising stock breeder. The gold mines of California or Australia do not afford so splendid an opportunity to secure wealth, as do these magnificent prairies to those who understand stock-raising, and who saw fit to enter into it on a large scale.

PRAIRIES WITH TIMBER.

One great drawback to the American prairies is the want of timber. It is almost impossible to get lumber there for houses, barns and fences. Our Canadian prairies are happily different. Along the many splendid rivers and streams with which they are watered, are to be found the pine, oak, ash, white and black spruce, the balsam, basswood, poplar, tamarack and ash-leaved maple. The timber is not probably of the best qualities, but there is quite sufficient for all the wants of the district itself.

THE TRADE IN FURS.

Will doubtless be continued by the Hudson Bay Company and by hardy pioneers for decades yet to come. In the animal kingdom, there are the buffalo, bears, wolves, moose and reindeer, lynxes, otters, foxes, minks, beavers martens, fishers, and many other species of minor importance. The pelt ries of these animals have been for centuries the only medium of exchange in the North-West, and have been a mine of wealth annually to the fur monopolists. Hereafter many hardy adventurers will no doubt take part in the fur trade, and share in the spoils of this lucrative calling. The larger animals such as bears and wolves are becoming scarce, but in the more inaccessible localities, the beaver, otter, mink, fox, &c., are still to be found in abundance.

THE MINERALS OF THE NORTH WEST.

In addition to its other attractions, the North-west possesses great mineral wealth. Gold, copper and iron are to be found in several localities, but whether in paying quantities or not has not been ascertained by actual experiment. Coal exists to almost unlimited extent, plaster of Paris, mineral paints, sulphur, asphaltum and alum have been discovered. Granite slate, lime and sandstone, are abundant. The salt springs of the territory are among the richest in the world; and in some cases they throw up natural salt of good quality.

ITS LAKES AND RIVERS.

The North West contains many magnificent lakes and rivers. The principal lakes are Winnepeg, Lake of the Woods, and Great Slave Lake. The Saskatchewan Mackenzie, Red and Assiniboine are the chief rivers, and the extent of the country may be known from the fact that some of these streams are thousands of miles long! It is calculated that there are ten thousand miles of navigable water within the territory.

SCHOOLS—CHURCHES—TRADES.

Red River district is not free from the hardships inseparable from a new settlement, but all the advantages of modern civilization are being rapidly introduced. There are two schools and a classical college for boys, and two schools for the education of girls. The Episcopalians, Presbyterians, Methodists and Roman Catholics, have each several churches. Up till recently, the wants of the community in regard to imported articles, were not very well supplied, but improvement is rapidly taking place in this respect. There are very few mechanics there yet, and a wide field is opened for carpenters, masons, shoemakers, tailors, blacksmiths, &c.—a few manufacturers—particularly those who make woollen goods and farming implements—would inevitably succeed well. In a very few years, every branch of industry will be prosecuted in the Red River district, and its inhabitants have placed within their reach all the advantages which we enjoy.

HOW TO GET THERE.

The only practicable way to Red River at present, is by way of St. Paul, Minnesota. From that city, part of the way is by stage, but mainly by carts over the plains. Hundreds of carts are constantly employed in this. Some Canadians have gone to the head of Lake Superior, and then made their way by a route formerly used by voyageurs. We would not advise any one to try this road. Next year, we hope our Canadian road will be open, and then our people will not require to pass through the United States at all. We have no doubt that as soon as our route is open to travel, a great revolution will take place in the trade of and travel to Red River, and that the people of Canada will then realize the immense value and importance of the North West in a way never yet experienced.

CONCLUSION.

The disjointed facts about our new North-western possession can be relied upon as correct, and are worthy of attentive consideration, not only by those who may think of trying their fortune in that favored land, but by every one who takes an interest in Canada's prosperity.

Doings at Long Branch.

A writer in the 'Jewish Messenger' has the following from Long Branch:

I have heard it whispered that a little evil habit is slowly and insidiously gaining a sad hold upon many women here, which I can hardly credit. On dit that some women who are admired for their intelligence and have been respected for their modesty, do occasionally resort to a cigarette to while away the dull hours. Can this be so? I do know however, that it is an old habit here for women to meet in and about the hotel bar room and drink spirituous concoctions which they would blush to hear mentioned in their city home. What is the difference? Men will turn away in disgust from a woman enjoying a mild Havana, but will encourage their sisters and wives to suck through a straw mint juleps and sweetened brandy and water. English actresses abound here, stout, rosy women, who talk in a loud, shrill voice, affect a lisp, and wear yellow hair. There is a large cottage near the depot which several of them occupy; but they are seldom "at home" during the day—the beach and the road have too strong attractions for them. They are merry, good hearted girls, no doubt. Their ringing laugh seems honest; but it were a blessing for Long Branch if "Ivy Cottage" should be torn down and the blondes return to Yorkshire or Dublin.

—'Pretty girl, Amanda is.' 'Ah! is she blonde or brunette?' 'Oh, she has her days of both.'

BELLEVILLE, WEDNESDAY, AUG. 18.

CANADA BARLEY.—The Oswego Times of the 16th says :—We saw on 'Change to-day a beautiful sample of new barley, which was exhibited by Irwin & Sloan. It came from the Bay of Quinte. The berry is white and heavy. So far as color is concerned it is the best sample we have seen this season.

BASE BALL.—A game of Base Ball was played on the Cricket ground here to-day, between the Port Hope Base Ball Club, and Hastings Base Ball Club, of Belleville. At the time of going to press, the Port Hope Club had scored 25, and the Belleville Club 8. The fielding on the part of the Belleville Club was not up to the mark. The Belleville Club will entertain the Port Hope boys to a dinner at the Dafoe House to-night.

ST. ANDREW'S PIC-NIC.—Our readers are again reminded of this Pic-Nic, which takes place to-morrow, 19th instant. It will be observed that there will be three boats leave during the day : the "Prince Edward" at 9.30 a. m. and 1.30 p. m.; and the "John Greenway" at 3.30 p. m., thus enabling parties to go late in the afternoon. The managing committee have made every arrangement for the comfort and convenience of the party and we have no doubt but there will be large turnout.

HOW THEY LIKED IT.—The Firemen of Oswego were so well satisfied with their trip to Canada and their reception here, that they, while on board the steamer on their way over, they adopted the following resolutions : "Resolved, That our heartfelt thanks are due and hereby tendered to the Mayor and Council, the Officers of the Fire Brigade, and citizens generally of Belleville, and to the Mayor, City Officers and Fire Brigade of Kingston, for the cordial, generous and hospitable reception given us; and hope at no distant day to have an opportunity to return those favors in kind. "Resolved, That we also tender our thanks to Mr. H. B. Chittenden, proprietor of the Dafoe House, Belleville, to Mr. Alex. Graham, clerk of the house; to Mr. Hyssop, conductor of the Grand Trunk Railway; Capt. Comer, of the Bay of Quinte, and to Capt. Morley, of the Athenian, for generous kindness shown us during our visit."

THE FISHERIES.—A correspondent of the Montreal Gazette at Gaspe says the salmon fishery is nearly to a close, after one of the best seasons ever known here. The cod fishery—good on the coast; some mackerel have struck in; during last week one boat caught upwards of 1,200 in one day, but of poor quality. The different rivers are now deserted by the anglers, with the exception of two, in the river Dartmouth, and all have gone away well satisfied with their catch. The different rivers abound with salmon, and there is no doubt it is owing to the protection afforded by the Department of Marine and Fisheries. The river Dartmouth, this year, has a great quantity of salmon in it whereas last season at this period scarcely a salmon could be seen in it. The Department of Marine and Fisheries keep a watchman there this season.

AFFRAY AT MILL POINT.—The Kingston Whig of this morning says :—"On Monday the Chief of Police received two telegrams briefly telling of a desperate affair which occurred at Mill Point in a Blacksmith's shop. The first was to arrest a man whose name for prudential reasons we cannot furnish, on a charge of assault with an attempt to rob. He was stated to have taken passage on the Bay of Quinte for this city, but a search of the steamer on her arrival failed to disclose the presence of the man sought for. A second telegram was received to arrest John Stewart, a shipcarpenter of Kingston, who was also on board the steamer. The telegram made not a very lucid reference to "a dangerous attack with a sheath knife." The telegram was too late to be of service in spotting the man before landing, being two or three hours behind the steamer. But Detective McAulay and policeman Hoyle proceeded to Stewart's house, and found he had gone off to the moonlight excursion. No course was left but to patiently await his return, and on his approaching the house he was arrested and lodged in the police station. More will be known of the affair to-day."

SPECIAL TELEGRAMS.

FATHER POINT, Aug. 18.—The steamship 'St. Patrick,' passed inwards at 4 a. m., with eight cabin and eighty-three steerage passengers.

QUEBEC, Aug. 18.—The steamship 'Her Majesty,' from Toronto to Halifax, passed here to-day.

—The Picton 'Gazette' of the 13th inst., says : "At a meeting of the Picton Fire Brigade, on Wednesday evening, it was resolved that the annual Excursion and Pic-Nic take place towards the latter part of the month, and that Massassaga Point, nearly opposite Belleville, be the place. This spot is a most delightful one, and a better selection could not have been made. The Belleville Firemen will be invited to join in the Pic-Nic.

Whither are we Drifting?

This question has been frequently asked in Canada, and no time in our history has it had more significance than now. It is but two years since we fondly hoped the Confederation of the Provinces into the Dominion of Canada, had so cemented the whole into one structure that our future course was tolerably clear. We thought the bond that united us was so strong, clear and well defined, that it could not be broken, stretched or tampered with. We thought that the united wisdom which forged it, had with it enunciated the principle that it should be held sacred by all. We thought that every Province, every statesman, and every individual, had eagerly accepteded as the one thing which was to be left untouched and untouchable, as the sacred cord which alone could give peace harmony, security and contentment to all. But the masters of the situation have so played the cards that this grateful confidence is disturbed, and the public mind is again feeling anxious. They have committed several cardinal blunders in this short time; each one disturbing more and more. Amongst them are extravagance, subsidy to Nova Scotia, winding off the Great Western Railway debt, the policy to the Fenians, and departmental carelessness as illustrated by the Reiffenstien business. On each one of these questions, as a public journal supporting the Government, we have spoken freely in the accents of friendly public dissent from the policy pursued, and we now deem it our duty to warn the Government that they have raised this feeling of uneasiness mainly by their policy on the questions indicated. What the Dominion wants—above almost all other wants—is economy in the administration of its finances; indeed, we may say above all other wants, for we think that if the administration were economical they would be all else required. We do not ask for the same closeness found in the counting or banking room. We recognise that it is almost impossible to manage the business of a nation as economically as an individual or company can manage his or its. But making all the allowances possible, the charge of gross carelessness on the part of some of the Departments is not wholly without foundation; the last and most notable illustration of which is seen in the Reiffenstien affair, about which in a previous number we expressed our views. We but repeat that to our minds the "suppressio veri" is more damaging than could be the fullest investigation. Enough has been proved to show that more than $10,000 has been lost to the Dominion by this one man, and the manner in which the affairs have been managed since his arrest, and the manner of his escape, tend to increase public uneasiness and dissatisfaction. [illegible] as the most dangerous disturber of all. We believe it was unconstitutional, and know that it was in the highest degree impolitic. It told the country that the bond of alliance could be altered to suit the requirements of section, party or statesmen, and we in Ontario had been taught, and breathed freely after learning (as we supposed) that we knew exactly how much we had to pay to the general government, and that no combination of other representatives could make us pay more. This one act disturbs all this fancied security, and instils into men's minds vague fears that this is but a beginning.

In reference to the Fenian troubles, the leniency shown and forgiveness extended, are most hurtful. It seems as if our statesmen have failed to comprehend Fenianism. No intelligent man supposes that Fenianism could exist if it were not encouraged, patted on the back and fondled by the public men and parties of the United States—the truth being that their public men of all stripes and all parties encourage them. Fenianism is with the Americans deliberately encouraged and kept in existence as one of the means used to coerce us into annexation. Our history tell us that there is always something from the other side threatening us, disturbing our reputation for security, having a tendency to keep capital, ready for investment, away from us, and to keep our people in a state of ferment. So that, for peace sake, it will some day be expected of us that we will beg Uncle Sam to take us in. On this national ground, therefore, Fenianism should have been, and should be strongly dealt with. In itself it is blood-thirsty and treasonable, and should be punished as such crimes deserve. We cannot understand the blindness of those who counsel gentleness in dealing with this foul pest. Its short history proves that to so treat it is to foster it. Can it be doubted that the leniency extended the Fenian conspirators in Ireland has had any other effect than that of making them bolder? No later ago than last Friday we read of a most furious assault in Ireland by a crowd, three of whom were pardoned Fenians.—Can it be doubted that if Father McMahon and his fellow criminals had been hanged, after the impartial trial given them, we would not now be threatened with another raid? We have expressed our views upon the release of this man at length, and will not now repeat them. The act was a great blunder.

We are a Conservative journal—and a firm believer in party Government, party allegiance, and party discipline. Conservatism with us means something more than blindly following party. We hold Conservatism and patriotism to be political synonymes. By this we mean, not that our political opponents are less patriotic than we, but that Conservative principles are the best by which to govern the country—And we sincerely hope that Ministers will not forget the great principles of Government embodied in Conservatism, and that they will so administer the affairs of the country as to remove the uneasiness which the ill-advised acts referred to have created, and that their future policy will be such as not only to strengthen their position, but to secure to the country lasting peace, contentment and prosperity.

To the Editor of the Daily Intelligencer.

SIR,—Would you be kind enough to inform the tax payers of Grove street, how it is that the side walk has been allowed to remain in a condition, endangering the limbs of the unfortunate pedestrians who are compelled to go on that street, and also another fault we have to find with the Street Committee, or Town Surveyor is, that there are two wells on the street that should either be closed up or cleaned, as they are of no use to the ratepayers, except that by breeding a pestilence, it might be the means of sending some of them to an untimely end, with whole and unbruised limbs.

Yours, &c.,

Forty Years Ago.

MR EDITOR.—Forty years ago there was but one School House in Belleville, and such a house; many of our cow stables are far superior both as to comfort or cleanliness, compared to that old school house.

It was a very low building in a most dilapidated state, one side (outside) nearly torn off, windows broken, and every thing to betoken it more fit for a pig stye than a school house for teaching the "young idea how to shoot," but such as it was, a school was kept or pretended to be kept in it. It was situated on Pinnacle street, a little north of the present brick school house, on an open lot, with a few large mud holes in front. Such was the school house accommodation of forty years ago. What a change since that time.

Thirty-nine years ago I was requested by a person, not living in Belleville, to rent a suitable house, fit it up, and hire a teacher to teach a free school; he gave me $200 for that purpose, the balance I paid myself. I rented the house on the hill near the residence of Walter Roes, Esq., put in seats and desks, hired a teacher, and set him to work. A Free School at that time, and the idea of free education was looked upon as a piece of folly by many, and they at once set it down with pauperism. The school was opened with but five scholars, but it continued to increase throughout the year, until forty-six scholars were in attendance. Some who scouted the idea of a Free School, asked permission to send their children, and offered to pay their tuition, but this was not allowed. At the end of the year the school was stopped, as the party offered to grant another $200, and I did not feel it my duty to continue the school, and pay all expenses. So ended the first Free School in Belleville. Let the grumblers of the day contrast the past with the present. I think we have great reason to feel proud of the high position our schools have taken since 1829, and our school houses, except the old Hospital are as palaces compared to a pig stye, when contrasted with the old one of forty years ago.—Still there is room for improvement.

Forty years ago I soon learned the names of all the inhabitants of Belleville; how many have gone since. Last week Mrs. F. gave a small party to some of the members of the Wesleyan Church. Ten were invited, four of whom resided in Belleville, two in Sidney and one in Thurlow when we landed here. Two others we became acquainted with the year following, and one other after that time; our number being twelve; our combined age reached the round number of 900 years, the oldest of the party being 93, and her birth-day.

It was a pleasure for Mrs. F. and myself, to converse with these old people, and over a cup of tea to ramble the past, and contrast it with the present. Forty years has made great changes with the twelve.

Out of the members of the then Methodist Church, residing in Belleville, there are only six living in town who were here when I first came in 1829. What a change has forty years made; a few more years at most, and the twelve will be gone also.

Yours, &c., &c.

Grand Trunk--Improved Prospects.

WHAT THE "LONDON TIMES" SAYS OF THEM.

The latest accounts from Canada with regard to the affairs of the Grand Trunk Railway appear satisfactory. It is said that the track is in better condition than at any previous time, that the 25 new engines are all at work, and that the rolling stock generally is improved both in quality and quantity. Thus the company are now better prepared generally to take advantage of the various elements of development of progress throughout the Dominion, and at the same time their relations with the American lines are good. The last traffic returns show an increase of 4,496£ for the week ended the 10th of July, and the opinion was that this increase is likely to be maintained. In consequence of the running of the new adjustable gauge cars' which continue to work admirably, competing lines found their business out of Boston considerably interfered with, and in order to retain their traffic they put their rates down to a very low point. Since the the 8th of July last all lines have agreed to a uniform rate, 30, or 40 per cent. higher than before the adjustable gauge cars were constaucted. It is proposed that the new narrow gauge lines northward shall run into the Grand Trunk Railway ten miles east of Toronto, which will be the means of bringing extra traffic to the Grand Trunk system at the expense of the new company. Lastly, it is said that renewed negotiations have been set on foot under which additional rolling stock and other necessary appliances will be provided by Canadian capital on favorable terms, and that thus for the first time the pecuniary success of the Grand Trunk Company will become a matter of interest to the people of the Dominion.

—A boa constrictor, at a side show to a circus in Chicago, on the 30th ult., became enraged, and rolling itself round the arm of the exhibitor squeezed the limb, severely. It required the WINE ROLL.—Soak a penny French roll in rasin wine till it will hold no more, put it in the dish, and pour round it a custard of cream, sugar, and lemon juice. Just before it is served sprinkle over it some nonpariel comfits, or stick a few blanched slit almonds into it. Sponge biscuit may be used if preferred.

A Paris rogue while chaffering in a store abstracted a pair of silk stockings. The clerk perceived it, and when he was going out complaining of the high prices, called out, "I cannot let you have those stockings so cheap." The thief calmly laid them on the counter, saying, "Very well, I cannot take them at a higher price," and quickly departed.

—Two New York ladies stopped their carriage on a crossing. One went into a store and the other remained in the carriage. Two gentlemen wishing to cross the street ordered the coachman to move on. The lady in the carriage told him not to stir. On this one of the gentlemen opened the coach door, and with his boots and spurs stepped through the carriage. He was followed by his companion, to the extreme discomposure of the lady within as well as the lady without. To complete the jest, a party of sailors coming up, and relishing the joke, scrambled through the carriage.

—A French agriculturist proposes that the vessels occupied during the Summer in cod fishing, should in other seasons be employed in collecting and transporting to the Azores the seaweed which is to be found in large quantities west of those islands. This seaweed, it is asserted, covers in dense masses a space seven times larger than all Germany. Analysis has discovered that these weeds possess the same fertilizing qualities as the weeds employed for manure on the coasts of France. The vessels, it is proposed shall convey these marine plants to the Azores, where they could be pressed and dried, and the potash and other salts extracted. These floating meadows, it is estimated will produce every year sufficient matter to manure over 1,350,000,000 acres.

The following anecdote is told of the late J. F. Herring, the animal painter. A dozen years ago he painted a small picture for one of our best known dealers, and received a cheque in payment. The cheque was written on a slip of paper, "Pay Mr. J. F. Herring," and duly signed, but without the insertion of the words "bearer," or "to order." The clerk of the Union Bank looked very doubtfully, first at it, and then at the person presenting it. The artist noticed the hesitation, and demanded what was wrong. The clerk explained. "Don't you see it's payable to J. F. Herring?" "I do," said the clerk. "Well, I am he." "How do I know that?" said the clerk. "Do you know who J. F. Herring is?" "Rather," said he, clerk, "I've got Three Members of the Temperance Society at home." Herring was delighted. He seized a pen, and, on a sheet of blotting-paper lying on the counter, dashed off a sketch of the horse's heads drinking from a trough, which composes the picture. "What do you think of that?" said he, handing it across. The clerk paid him at once.

On a motion to vacate their position restraining the receiver from paying over the funds in his possession to any person, except by order of the Court; and also to set aside the order appointing a receiver on behalf of O'Mahony, it was urged that the Fenian organization is in a more flourishing condition than ever, and that their leaders are ready and willing to pay principal and interest six months after the recognition of the Irish Republic. The chief point relied upon by O'Mahony was that the bonds were issued for a legal purpose, and that the bondholders had no standing in Court. Decision reserved.

A DILEMMA.—A gentleman asked a clergyman the use of his pulpit for a young divine, a relation of his. "I really do not know," said the clergyman, "how to refuse you if the young man can preach better than I can my congregation would be dissatisfied afterwards; and if he should preach worse, I don't think he's fit to preach at all."

Business Notice.

Not many weeks ago a rich but childless landed proprietor breathed his last, leaving a large circle of relations to mourn his loss, and squabble over their prospects of sharing his wealth. The day for reading the will at last came; the room was crowded with anxious expectants; the will was opened and to their inexpressible joy of all, the rich gentleman's relations found that to each of them had been bequeathed a case of Royal Italian Bitters.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry.

Where this article is known it is a work of supererogation to say one word in its favor, so well it is established as an unfailing remedy for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Asthma, Diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs, as well as that most dreaded of all diseases, Consumption, which high medical authority has pronounced to be an incurable disease. Those who have used this remedy know its value; those who have not, have but to make a single trial to be satisfied that of all others it is THE REMEDY.

THE REV. JACOB SECHLER,

well known and much respected among the German population of this country, writes as follows:

HANOVER, Pa., Feb. 16, 1869.

MESSRS. S. W. FOWLE & SON, Boston.

DEAR SIRS,—Having realized in my family important benefits from the use of your valuable preparation—Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry—it affords me pleasure to recommend it to the public. Some eight years ago, one of my daughters appeared to be in a decline, and little hopes of her recovery were entertained. I then procured a bottle of your excellent Balsam, and before she had taken the whole of it there was a great improvement in her health. I have, in my individual case, made frequent use of your valuable medicine, and have always been benefitted by its. I would, however, caution the public against imposition, because there is a good deal of spurious 'Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry' afloat throughout the country.

JACOB SECHLER.

Grace's Celebrated Salve.

From Mr. JAMES CURLIN, OF AMESBURY, MASS.

"I was afflicted with a severe felon on one of my fingers, and tried many remedies without relief. My friends induced me to apply your Salve. In two days it extracted the inflammation from my finger so as to enable me to resume my work. I can almost say that the Salve worked like magic, for it effected a cure without leaving a scar. I unhesitatingly pronounce 'Grace's Salve' an excellent remedy, and do not doubt it will be appreciated throughout the land." 25

That is, she were, but she ain't no more, for she's got another feller.
'Twas a week ago last Sunday—I invited her mother and sister,
'Cause I asked the old woman for to let Bell go, and she said, "I guess not Mister!"
Chorus—'Twas my luck—I always get stuck, &c.
I'm a poor unfortunate barber;
But it was rough, you bet, enough,
That Sunday down the harbor.

I bought three quarts of peaches, and all the literary papers,
And we sailed along though the wind was strong, and the sea kicked up his capers;
The boat she pitched, and then she twitched, and I felt a getting yeller;
The old woman, too, began to get blue, and so did Arabella.
Chorus—'Twas my luck—I always got stuck, &c.

I leaned across the rail—and, of course, I didn't want to do it—
Some fellows laughed and others chaffed, and told me to throw, and I threw it,
The wind was high and it went to my eye, and some went up my smeller;
And again I threw and away it blew, and it plastered my Arabella.
Chorus—'Twas just my luck—I always get stuck, &c.

I humbly begged her pardon, and tried to explain it to her mother;
But it wasn't no good—she gave me no show—she went and loved another.
My heart it's broken—I ain't got no Arabella;
She let me drop for that nice young chap, a buzzing her behind his umbrella.
Chorus—'Twas just my luck—I always get stuck, &c.

Varieties.

Never tell your secrets in a corn-field, for it has a thousand ears.

Mystery is useful only for the purpose of concealing ignorance.

A young woman's conundrum. Who is our favorite Roman hero? Martius.

Why are all wheat-players like monkeys? Because they have odd tricks.

The attempt to start an asylum for useless young men failed, as no building could be constructed large enough.

An aged bachelor being asked if he ever witnessed a public execution, replied: "No, but I once saw a marriage."

In the language of flowers, if you wish for "heart's-ease," never look to "marigold."

Josh Billings says he don't care how much a man may talk, if he will only say it in a few words.

On a child being told that he must be broken of a bad habit, he naively replied: "Papa, had n't I better be mended?"

Several New York churches have the contribution boxes pass around by handsome young ladies, and it pays handsomely.

Why is a country editor like an obscuration of the sun? We have forgotten the answer, but it's something like "he-clips."

A little boy, returning from the Sunday School said to his mother: "Ma, ain't there a kitten-chism for little boys? The catechism is too hard!"

Sidney Smith said to the canons of St. Paul's when they wrote to him urging the advisability of a wood pavement around the church-yard:—"Let them lay their heads together and it will be done."

"Father, why don't we ever see any faces at the windows?" asked a son of his parent, as they were passing an insane asylum. "Because their heads are turned," was the affectionate father's reply.

The following is Aunt Betsy's description of her milkman: "He is the meanest man in the world,' she exclaimed. 'He skims his milk on the top, then turns it over and skims the bottom.'

'Any seats in the next car?' asked a passenger in a crowded car of a waggish conductor. 'Plenty of 'em,' was the reply; 'but' (as the passenger gathered up his effects preparatory to emigrating) 'they are all full.'

A Scottish nobleman, who saw Descartes enjoying himself at the table, having expressed surprised that a philosopher should exhibit such fondness for good cheer, got this answer for his pains: "And pray my lord but you think that good things were only made for fools?"

A country girl rode into New Albany, Ind., to do some shopping. When the clerk asked if there was anything else he could do for her, he was amazed by the reply. "Oh, no, sir, unless you will be kind enough to go out and milk the old mare, for I rode from home without the colt."

Recently, a rector of a parish in Toledo, Ohio, in catechizing the children of his school asked:—"Where did the wise men come from?" Without a moment's hesitation, one of the smart little urchins replied:—"From Boston!"—The father and mother of the catechumen are natives of the Bay State.

RHYME AND REASON.—An exchange gets off the following:—"Breathes there a man with soul so dead, who never to himself hath said, "I will the local paper take, both for myself and family's sake?" If such there be, let him repent, and have the paper to him sent; and if he'd pass a happy winter, he in advance should pay the printer."

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,
FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Inveterate cases of Scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous affections and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulous contamination until they were painfully afflicting, have been rapidly cured in great numbers in almost every section of this country, that the public scarcely need to be informed of its virtues or uses.

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this unseen and unfelt tenant of the organism undermines the constitution, and it matters but little what form of disease, or fatal disease, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it expends its force throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develops into one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the occasional use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla in addition to what is required for the cure of present disease, is sometimes of the utmost importance to persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, in the end, cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: Tetter, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions of visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Fits, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and internal Ulcers; affections of the muscular and nervous systems.

Syphilis or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these obstinate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Leucorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute Directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield to this remedy. It as also Liver Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when arising, as they often do, from the resulting poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are Languid, Listless, Hopeless, Dependent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the affections symptomatic of Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,
For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Colds, Coughs, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has been higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they seldom withstand a single trial.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, or do more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,
For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Mercury, Zinc, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it is perfectly harmless in any quantity. The number and importance of its cures in the broken districts, are literally beyond thought, and we believe without a parallel in the history of the medicine. Our pride is gratified by the acknowledgments we receive of the cures effected by it in obstinate cases, and where other remedies had wholly failed. Unassisted nature, either resident in, or traveling through miasmatic localities, will be protected by taking this AGUE CURE daily. As a Liver Complaint, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it has no equal. Generally, stimulation of the Liver into healthy activity.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly remarkable cures where other medicines had failed.

QUERY?

Should we employ the noble doctors to bring us our tea and coffee in bottles, at an expense of at least four times what they now cost?

If not, why should we longer adopt that system in reference to medicines, when the simple extracts of herbs or plants and roots, and are as readily prepared as tea and coffee?

Each package of Dr. Thompson's Botanic Medicines contains more medical properties than can be procured in any other form for four times the amount of money.

Any person in our possession disputes testimonials as to the practicability of, as well as the benefits derived from the use of Dr. Thompson's Botanic Medicines, viz:

Dr. Thompson's Blood Purifier

Cures all diseases arising from an impure state of the blood, such as salt-rheum, scrofula, king's evil, white swellings, tendency to boils, old sores, pimples or roughness of the skin. Invigorates the stomach and bowels; it tones the liver, and promotes the general vigor of the system, without reducing the strength of the patient. Sold at 80 cents per package.

DR. THOMPSON'S
Stomachic Bitters.

A certain and speedy cure for Dyspepsia. Liver Complaint, and Indigestion. For convenience it has no equal; it is a mild and safe invigorant and corroberant for delicate persons; a good alterative tonic for ordinary family purposes; a powerful recuperant after the frame has been reduced by sickness, an excellent as well as an agreeable stimulant for sundays. It supplies the need with great success as a Liniment. Sold at 20 cents per package.

The proprietor has been induced to adopt the present condensed style of putting up the medicine in packages, as he can keep enclosed in words about the amount of medicine for one-half the regular price of similar preparations.

Ayer's
Hair Vigor,
For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,
For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor has ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and perfect cathartic than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cures them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it once does it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its compounds. We have thus come upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates, containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take. Purging is a vegetable disease, and all know that when once it does start, it rarely fails to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Lossgour and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Bilious Colic, Bilious Fever, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fever, they cannot be too judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the disorder which causes it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it immediately relieves by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve distress from the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

A Race with Fire.

AN ENGINEER CHASED BY FIRE AT SEVENTY MILES AN HOUR—THRILLING NARRATIVE.

(Correspondence Grand Rapids Eagle.)

* * * To make it an intelligible matter to the reader, let me say, that the Buffalo, Corry and Pittsburg road intersects the Lake Shore road at this place. The station at the junction is named Brocton. Now let it be understood that from this point to Mayville, at the head of Chautauqua Lake, (a distance only of about ten miles), a train is carried over an elevation of 700 feet. From the station to the summit the grade is about 80 feet to the mile, with curves which increase the distance by four miles. It is over this road that the immense quantities of petroleum are brought.

On Tuesday evening about 9 o'clock a train consisting of six oil cars and two passenger cars reached the summit on its way to the junction. Here, by some cause as yet unexplained, one of the oil tanks took fire. The passenger cars were at once detached, and the brakes stopped them.—Next the oil cars were cut off, and the locomotive, tender and a box car, containing two valuable horses and two men, passed down the road, the engineer supposing that the brakemen on the oil cars would arrest the course of those, but what was his horror on looking back, to see the six cars in pursuit of him down the grade, enveloped in flames. They not only pursued, but overtook him, striking the box car with inconceivable force, knocking the horses and men flat upon the floor, and yet almost miraculously not throwing the engine from the track.

It was now with the engineer a race for life, and he gave the engine every ounce of steam. Looking south from the place of my residence at that terrible juncture, I saw one of the most magnificent spectacles that a man sees in a life-time. A sheet of intensely bright flame 60 feet high was seen coming down that southern slope apparently with the speed of a meteor and really very nearly the speed of a hurricane, (80 miles an hour); for pursued and pursuer flew over the course or rather down it, and around the curves, at the rate of 70 miles an hour, as the engineer declares, and as every body can believe who witnessed the spectacle. The whole heavens were illuminated, and the landscape was lit up as by the noon-day light. Onward and downward flew the engine, and behind it flew and thundered the huge fiery demon. Twice its prodigious weight was driven against the fugitive, as if instinct with a purpose to drive it from the track. It seemed as if to the heroic engineer and fireman there was a perfect environment of peril. The speed of the engine was such that it ceased to pump, then again the Cincinnati express was due at the junction at this time. The engineer of the oil train whistled "open switch" and shaking hands with the fireman they bade each other farewell, knowing that their lives depended on the opening of the Lake Shore switch by their friends below and this was to imperil the express train coming from the west with its human freight. The engineer on this train saw the fire when it first broke out at the summit, and supposing he could clear the junction before the flaming terror reached it, he too put his engine to the utmost speed on a level grade. A mile short of the junction he saw that the effort was a vain one, for the flying conflagration had rushed out upon the Lake Shore track and was roaring onward in the direction of Dundirk. He checked the headlong rush of his own train and brought it to a stand still. It did not proceed until three o'clock in the morning.

The case took in another danger, and it was imminent. A heavy freight train was coming up the Lake Shore road. All I will say of the escape of this is that it did escape to the side track, and only escaped by the last minute of possibility.

Running on to safe distance from the depot, the engineer of the oil train detached his engine and left the six cars to consume. He says his situation was fully realized by him. He expected to lose his life. At every moment he expected the engine to leave the track. He saw he was going at a perilous rate of speed; but there was no help for it. The demon was behind him, and he declares that it looked like a demon. With that fondness, or rather pride, of his engine, which these men display, he said, "I thought everything of my engine, and was determined to stay by it to the last." The fireman made one attempt to escape by jumping from the tender, but the engineer restrained him. Altogether the occurrence was a remarkable one, and in part remarkable for this, that no lives were lost. The brakemen on the oil cars had gone back to the passenger cars, when the oil cars started. It was well they did. Unless these rear cars had been detached and stopped, their inmates would have been burned to death inevitable.

"Harry, you ought not to throw away nice bread like that; you may want it some day." "Well, mother, would I stand any better chance of getting it then if I should eat it now?"

Letter from Reiffenstein.

OTTAWA, August 17th.

The following singular letter from G. C. Reiffenstein is published here to-day:

To the Editor of the Times.

U. S., 12th August, 1869.

SIR,—The baseless rumors which are promulgated, together with various newspaper publications condemning me in toto unheard, they having only an imperfect version of a one sided evidence given with a view to a committal, induce me to address you a few words, in some degree explanatory of a few points in this wretched affair. No doubt it is a good opportunity to whip the Government over my shoulders, by the opposition papers, in the progress of which operation I am the recipient of many a good lashing, in I think, a most unfair and ungenerous manner; but a person in such a position, the papers, I suppose, consider it fair game. As to complicity on the part of the Government the course they took clearly shows there was nothing of the kind. Previous to my arrest, or to my having the slightest idea of such a course being taken, I was informed that double payment of certain Municipalities funds had been discovered, and that some of these amounts had been placed to my credit. I told Mr. Harrington, Deputy Receiver General, that on Monday morning I would go to the Bank, look into the affair and have matters all made square. When I found it was my business to do so, as an earnest of that intention, I that morning, the Saturday after having first spoken on the subject, placed nearly $5,600 to the credit of the Receiver General, and had not the Government taken the unnecessarily harsh measure of arresting me, the Monday morning following would have seen Mr. Harrington and myself at the Bank with the object of my making all square, as understood between us as late as Saturday evening. I deny having used Government money with criminal intent. On being arrested on Saturday evening, I was expecting to be released on bail, but was peremptorily refused; and since that time I have not been permitted the slightest opportunity of examining into matters, with a view of explaining them, and defending myself against the charges brought against me. I may also say that I have applied for certain information which might clear up some points, and it has been refused me. I further desired a copy of the charges, and they are refused. After my giving the bail, which was eventually granted, and all due forms having been gone through with, I considered my liberty was again in danger, and that alone prompted me to leave and seek quiet where I could not be molested, I considered that my long and faithful services of twenty years, having been twenty-two years in the service, and my position in the Department merited some other kind of treatment—such as a departmental investigation, where an opportunity of explanation and defence would have been offered me before the hasty and ill-advised step of the Saturday night had been taken. I now reiterate what I before referred to with regard to arrangements or settlement and that is, that if the Government will withdraw their Writ of Extent—which is only a means of annoyance to those who should not be annoyed—and guarantee me from molestation I will return immediately. I am willing to submit the matter to the arbitration of three independent businessmen, two chosen by the Government, and myself the third, and allow their finding to be submitted to a jury; or, if I can procure a list of the claims with a view to settlement, I am willing to make every effort in that direction, but I can get nothing. The various ridiculous remarks I see published relative to extravagance and entertaining Ministers of the Crown at my house are scarcely worth denial. I, however, may as well add that they are simply untrue.

As to my carrying large sums of money with me, as reported, I also deny that in toto. I borrowed money to carry me to a place of rest, and I left everything behind me, what little was my own, and what little I had the usufruct of either in money or chattels.

"I trust I have not trespassed too much on your space, and that you will kindly insert this.

Yours truly,

GEO. C. REIFFENSTEIN."

Why is a Ship Feminine.

Notes from a Lady's Log Book.—Packet ship D——, Mid Atlantic,—Sat on deck several hours to day, seeing the sailors mend sails and learning why a ship is called 'she.' The mate has given me lessons. She has a 'waist,' and wears 'stays,' 'aprons,' 'caps,' 'bonnets,' and if you examine her closely you may discover in different parts of her dress 'whalebones,' 'hooks' and 'eyes,' 'pins' and 'needles.' She is coquetish, too, and fond of dress, and one may catch her almost any hour of the day making a new toilet, tightening her 'stay-laces,' 'reefing her petticoats,' or what is worse, is the day fine, 'painting her pretty face,' and 'lying on her side' to admire herself in the clear mirror of the waves. She has her 'husband' in her 'agent,' a lazy 'lubber,' in some home or foreign port, who keeps her busy tripping it over the water, spring and fall, summer and winter. He seldom fails, however, to meet her when the voyage is over; and a fairer sight you would not wish to see than this ocean lady, as she sails expectant into port, her white robes unfurled, the ribbons flying, and a gay flag for a top knot tossing in the breeze!

BELLEVILLE, THURSDAY, AUG. 19.

CROPS IN QUEBEC.—The Quebec Chronicle of the 17th says :—"The news received daily from the country parishes in the vicinity of Quebec, respecting the condition of the crops, is very discouraging. Potatoes are rotting fast in the ground, and, as for the hay crop, farmers are obliged to dispose of it almost immediately after being cut, so as to prevent it from rotting."

FROM HALIFAX.—A telegram from Halifax of the 18th says :—" The Governor General, Lieut.-Governor, and a large party left the city this morning to be present at the opening of the Windsor and Annapolis Railway. The banquet to the Governor General to-morrow night promises to be a grand affair. Tickets $10 each.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN.—Mr. Yarker, of Toronto, has completed his report on the position of the Royal Canadian Bank, and states there is a balance of unimpaired capital of $936,443 90c, or nearly 79 cents in the dollar, supposing the assets to be realized as estimated. The books are reported to have been properly kept, but it seems that $10,000 was abstracted from the vaults of the head office in Toronto in an unaccountable manner. Who got this $10,000 ? It is said the Bank will re-commence business in a few days.

STABBING AFFRAY.—Yesterday afternoon a fight occurred in William's bar-room, during which James Cummings was stabbed in the side by Patrick Lawlor. The knife used was what is called a shoemaker's knife, and the wound was about four inches in length, and one in depth. Lawlor was with considerable difficulty arrested, and conveyed to the Lock-up. The investigation took place to-day before F. McAnanny, Esq., Mr. Diamond, the Police Magistrate being out of town. After hearing some evidence the case was adjourned until to-morrow. We will give a synopsis of the evidence in to-morrow's issue.

A NEW CONSTITUTION.—The people across the lines are everlastingly tinkering at their Constitution. Nearly all the States have made more or less changes since their establishment, and it is pretty evident a good many more will require to be made before they are perfect. New York State will vote this Fall for a new Constitution, which amongst other things provides that the Legislature shall consist of 139 Assemblymen, chosen by counties, instead of 128 chosen by districts, and 32 Senators chosen by counties instead of the same number chosen as they now are, by districts. The term of office of Assemblymen is not changed, but that of Senators is increased from two years to four. It is significant that nearly all the proposed changes are conservative in their tendency.

Philip Phillips "The Singing Pilgrim."

As one of the most attractive features of the Sixth Provincial Sabbath School Convention, which will this year honour our town with its presence, will be the attendance of that prince of sacred song singers," Mr. Phillips. Once only has he visited our Dominion, and those who then heard him at the Montreal Convention in 1866, can never forget the holy influences attendant on the man and his song. Mr. Phillips was prevented from being at St. Catherines last year, owing to his visit to England being prolonged longer than he had anticipated, whilst we were lamenting his much missed voice, he was enthralling London (England) audiences.

The British Workman thus refers to him. "We have just had amongst us a gifted singer, Philip Phillips,who, treading in the footsteps of the great and good who have gone before, hopes and endeavours to carry out the work appointed him to do. God has gifted him with the power of song,and as Moses touched the rock with his staff,so our new singer touched the hearts of the people of England with the pathos and power of his melody. He has been appropriately named the "Singing Pilgrim." May his pilgrimage be blessed."

The Local Secretary has just been informed of Mr. Phillips' intention to be present, so that our music loving community may expect a rich treat.

What's the Matter?

What has so soured the Hamilton Times as to cause it to display such ill-will and ill-temper towards Belleville ? What has Belleville done to Hamilton or to the Times, that it should call us such ugly names ? If Hamilton has lost the Asylum and we have got it, does that justify the wholesale abuse to which the people of Belleville are subjected ? Surely the Times will not admit that it has taken the loss of that Institution so deeply to heart, as one would be led to suspect from the tone of its articles. We don't believe the Times was in earnest when it accused the people of Belleville as being " illiberal, ungenerous and parsimonious." We are almost inclined to believe that it was only poking fun, when it said " Belleville is the dullest, stupidest, stingiest and meanest village in the Dominion." If it was in earnest, it was exceedingly stupid for the Times to say it. There may be some stupid men here, some stingy men and probably a few mean men ; but we fancy there are no more of that class here than will be found even in Hamilton in proportion to the population. We fancy that a large number of Hamiltonians, long since came to the conclusion that it was a very stupid thing for them to send a man to the Ontario Legislature who voted against the interests of that city, and we are of the opinion that if they had the opportunity to-morrow, they would not commit the same blunder. A great many have admitted their stupidity in this respect, but then they don't get into a passion as has our friend of the Times. They take it coolly and philosphically, and promise to atone for their folly when a new election takes place.

The Times falls into a few errors in its articles, which we have no doubt it will willingly correct. Neither the Town nor County Council were asked to assist in getting up a demonstration, and consequently had no opportunity of refusing to vote money for that purpose. A public meeting was held which was numerously and influentially attended, and at which the question was fully discussed. An adjournment took place without, however, anything being accomplished, and at a subsequent meeting, it was deemed advisable to give up the idea of an imposing demonstration until the completion of the building. But we can promise the Times when the Institution is finished, that there will be a celebration here on a scale of magnificence which will prove that Belleville is the liveliest, smartest, most liberal and prosperous Town in the Dominion, and not the " dull, stupid, mean village" the Times would have the country believe ; and we hope the Times will be here to participate in it.

We have heard a good deal about the purchase of our County Members with this Asylum sop, and we have had long homilies from the Times and Globe about the corruption of the Government in connection therewith. Did it never occur to these paragons of political honesty, that long before an Asylum was thought of or dreamed of, our Members gave a cordial support to the Government ? Did they not know that on the hustings our Members promised to give the Administration an independent support, and that ever since they extended to them that support, whether they believed their measures were such as to justify them in doing so ? When the Asylum was talked of an effort was made to secure its location here, and that effort was successful. Apart from the consideration that the Government received from this section of the country a very large support, and were consequently justified in recognizing the claims of their supporters, there were other and weighty reasons why such an Institution should be established in Central Canada, and the Government, no doubt, were governed in their decision by these combined reasons. But because the Ontario Ministry have located the Asylum here, it does not follow that our Members are to give it a blind and slavish support. We fancy in their future conduct in the Legislature they will, as in the past, give a careful and intelligent consideration to the measures introduced, and if those measures are for the good of their constituents and the country, they will vote for them—it not they will oppose them.—The time for driving men up like sheep to vote for a Government is past in Canada, and no man understands this better than Sandfield McDonald, and no man, we believe, is more willing to consult the views and interests of his constituents than Mr. McDonald.

—More incendiary fires have occurred in Montreal. A person has been arrested whom it is thought is the incendiary.

—The few sparrows imported to the New York parks in 1866 have increased to several thousands, and are of great service in clearing the trees of caterpillars and other vermin.

—Mr. Ogle R. Gowan, License Inspector for the City of Toronto, has been convicted on four charges of selling tavern licenses without certificates, as by law provided, having been presented to him. The fine in each case is $60.

—A gentleman, observing a servant who was left-handed, placing the knives and forks on the dinner-table in the same awkward position, remarked to her that she was laying them left-handed. 'Oh, indade,' says she 'so I have ! Be plased, sir, to help me turn the table round.'

—The Oswego 'Advertiser' in speaking of the visit of the Oswego Fireman to Belleville says ; " The boys are enthusiastic over their trip and reception at Belleville and Kingston. At the former place it seemed as though their waterteiners could not do enough for their comfort and pleasure, and they were perfectly lavish in their entertainment. The members of the Alert speak in the highest terms of the trip and everything connected with it.

Base Ball.

PORT HOPE vs. BELLEVILLE.

The game of Base Ball played yesterday between the Dominion Club of Port Hope and the Hastings Base Ball Club of Belleville, resulted in favor of the Port Hope Club by a score of 56 to 35. Not being on the ground throughout the game, we are unable to give a synopsis of the playing. Had the Belleville Club done as well in the beginning of the game as they did at the close, we might have had a different story to tell. The following is the score :—

SCORERS—F. Flynn, Belleville ; G. T. Stott, Port Hope.

In the evening the Port Hope Club were entertained at a dinner at the Dafoe House. Mr. Frank Flynn, President of the Hastings Base Ball Club, occupied the chair, the vice chair being filled by Mr. E. R. Benjamin. The Mayor, Mr. P. D. Conger, and a number of other prominent gentlemen in town were present. After the good things of the table, so bountifully supplied by Mr. Chittenden. had been fully " discussed," and the " inner man" satisfied, speeches and songs followed for a couple of hours, when all separated, highly pleased with the day's sport. When we take into consideration that the Port Hope Club has been in existence for about four years, and the Belleville Club only about three months, the Belleville boys must not be discouraged, but " try, try again."

From the Seaside.

UNITED STATES HOTEL,
PORTLAND, Aug. 13th.

As the traveller on the Grand Trunk Railway nears Gorham, he cannot but feel delighted with the grandeur of the scene, that presents itself. The White Mountains in all their stupendous heights offer to the lovers of nature most delightful and attractive views. The members of our party expressed in the most extravagant terms their appreciation of the many beautiful and ever changing scenes that were presented to their optics during the time our train occupied in passing through the range, and the assertion that it alone was worth the price of the trip, was made by a number of them. Our train continues to travel, however, and we rapidly leave the White Mountains in the distance, as we speed onward to Portland, where we arrived on time, to a minute, 3:40 p. m., after a journey of about 28 hours, which was not by any means, as some might fancy, a tiresome one, but enjoyed heartily by all who participated therein.

Upon our arrival in this city the first thing was to get located at some hotel, and as one of the crowd was posted a little in regard to the city he took the lead, and the result was that the majority of us went with him to the United States Hotel where we found very comfortable quarters. The proprietor, Mr. E. Cram, was kind enough to make a reduction from his usual rates, which was by no means unappreciated. The kind attentions of Mr. Cram, and his clerk, Mr. M. S. Gibson, during our stay at the hotel will ensure them a return visit from any of our party who ever re-visit Portland. The next day, Wednesday, we were up betimes, and the programme for the day was actively discussed. Some made up their minds to go to Orchard Beach, to spend the remainder of their trip, others for Ocean House, Cape Elizabeth, Peaks Island, and other desirable places of resort at the seaside, while a few who had no particular place in view, but were willing to take what good things the fates offered, came to the conclusion to take a trip around the Harbor, and perchance stop at one of the Islands for dinner. Among those who thought "thusly" was your correspondent. Taking our places on board one of the ferry steamers, called the Gazelle, (although it can hardly be said that she resembled that animal very much in the speed) we started for our trip in Portland Harbor. The little steamer was pretty well crowded with Portlanders, (principally ladies and children,) well provided with lunch baskets, making their way for the beach, to enjoy the cool and invigorating breezes of " Old ocean" during the heat of the day.

After a short but very enjoyable trip we reached Peak's Island, where a goodly number of our passengers landed, then for Cushing's Island and the rest of us disembarked. After rambling over a good deal of the Island, and enjoying its many fine views, we took our first dip in the sea, which we longed for so much from the time we left Belleville. Our refreshing bath over, it was not necessary to look at watches to tell that it was getting near dinner time. Our appetites sharpened somewhat by the effects of the water and sea breeze, gently reminded us of their longings, and we felt particularly disposed to satisfy them. Proceeding to the 'Ottawa House' we made for the dining hall as soon after the bell rang as is consistent with Canadian manners, and before we were seated—I will say an hour—considerable inroad had been made in the bountiful repast that Mr. Davis had provided for the wants of his guests. We found a very jolly crowd at the 'Ottawa, and, of course, a large number of Canadians, as it is a popular resort for our people. After spending a short time in chatting with some old acquaintances we were so fortunate as to find there, we saw our little steamer making for the wharf, and we were compelled to leave—for that time at least. On board again, and we found the same crowd (with some exceptions, perhaps) that went over in the forenoon,lunch baskets lighter however, and cheeks rosier. A happy crowd they seemed to be, laughing heartily and chatting like a lot of magpies. At Portland again, and we take a look around the city. Vast improvements have been made since the writer's last visit to the place. Buildings of handsome proportions have gone up, and are going up in every direction, activity prevails, and the city is progressive. Returning to the hotel we again meet in solemn conclave, and a number of us decide to take that evening's boat for Boston. Particulars of which in my next. W.

The L'Amable School, Dungannon, Hastings Road.

To the Editor of the Daily Intelligencer.

MR. EDITOR.—You will much oblige by giving the report of the examination of our day school in your valuable paper :—

DEAR SIR,—The examination of the above named School took place on Friday, the 23rd day of July, in the presence of J. Cleak, J. P., the managers of the School, and a large number of the parents of the children. The day was fine and not too hot ; the children were all in their respective seats in the spacious school house before 9 o'clock, a. m., and went through their lessons of reading, spelling, arithmetic, grammar and geography, in a masterly way, to the satisfaction of all present. The examination concluded about noon, when the children all filed two and two and marched to a spacious field kindly granted for the occasion by H. Jarmon, Esq., where there had been a commodious booth erected, decorated with green boughs, &c., where the ladies had spread a large table and loaded it with all the good eatables the bush could afford. Upwards of fifty children sat down to regale themselves. After they had done justice to good things provided, about an equal number of adults, consisting of parents and friends, partook of a bountiful repast.—Dinner being over, all, both old and young, joined in innocent amusements, such as swinging, ball playing, &c. After enjoying themselves to their heart's content, without one single accident, they all gathered round the booth, from which could be seen waving the beautiful fields of grain, which no county in the Province can boast of finer ; on the west of us lay the beautiful little L'Amable Lake, so much famed for its salmon trout. Mrs. Cleak distributed among the children a lot of raisins and candies. Towards evening both young and old, after a pleasant day's enjoyment, wended their way to their respective homes, and long will be remembered the picnic of Friday, the 23rd July, 1869.

Your obedient servant,
JOHN WILSON.

Colonel Elphinstone has received full instructions from the Queen as to Her Majesty's wishes with respect to the manner of receiving His Royal Highness in the Dominion.

A lady was urged by her friends to marry a widower, and as an argument they spoke of his two beautiful children.—' Children,' replied the lady, ' are like tooth picks—a person wants her own.'

—Dr. Tyng met an emigrant family going West. On one of the waggons there hung a jug with the bottom knocked out. " What, is that ?" asked the Doctor. " Why, it is my Taylor jug," said the man. " And what is a Taylor jug ?" asked the Doctor again. " I had a son in Gen. Taylor's army in Mexico, and the General always told him to carry his whiskey jug with a hole in the bottom, and that's it. It is the best invention I ever met with for hard drinkers."

OUTRAGE ON TOM THUMB.—A recent attempt was made in Chicago to rob the General of his jewels, of which he has a large and costly collection, the burglars broke into the dressing room attached to where he was performing, and ransacked everything they could lay their hands on, and among the articles stolen was a lot of the "Canadian Pain Destroyer," with which the General had supplied himself for the cure of coughs, colds, cramps in the stomach, lame back and sides, &c. Sold by all Medicine Dealers at 25 cts. per bottle.

DIED.

In Kingston, on the 15th August, Mr. Thomas Cheevers, of Gananoque, aged 31 years.

The late Mr. Cheevers was an old and respected inhabitant of Gananoque, having resided there for upwards of the past twenty six years. From 1849 to 1864 he filled the situation of Clerk to the Municipal Council, and from that time up to his death he discharged the duties of Treasurer. In both capacities his sterling honesty and trustworthy character were well known. He also kept for several years the 'Provincial House,' well known as one of the best hotels in the Province.

Mr. Cheevers was a kind father, a sterling friend, and a good honest citizen. His death at the early age of 51 from an enlargement of the heart, will be deeply regretted by a large circle of friends.

Business Notice.

Not many weeks ago a rich but childless landed proprietor breathed his last, leaving a large circle of relations to mourn his loss, and squalde over their prospects of sharing his wealth. The day for reading the will at last came; the room was crowded with anxious expectants; the will was opened and to the inexpressible joy of all, the rich gentleman's relations found that to each of them had been bequeathed a case of Royal Italian Bitters.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry.

Where this article is known it is a work of supercrogation to say one word in its favor, so well is it established as an unfailing remedy for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Asthma, Diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs, as well as that most dreaded of all diseases, Consumption, which high medical authority has pronounced to be an incurable disease. Those who have used this remedy know its value; those who have not, have but to make a single trial to be satisfied that of all others it is THE REMEDY.

THE REV. JACOB SECHLER,

well known and much respected among the German population of this country, writes as follows:

HANOVER, PA., Feb. 16, 1859.

MESSRS. S. W. FOWLE & SON, Boston.

DEAR SIRS,—Having realized in my family important benefits from the use of your valuable preparation—Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry—it affords me pleasure to recommend it to the public. Some eight years ago, one of my daughters appeared to be in a decline, and little hopes of her recovery were entertained. I then procured a bottle of your excellent Balsam, and before she had taken the whole of it there was a great improvement in her health. I have, in my individual care, made frequent use of your valuable medicine, and have always been benefitted by it. I would, however, caution the public against imposition, because there is a good deal of counterfeit 'Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry' afloat throughout the country.

Grace's Celebrated Salve.

From Mr. JAMES CURLEY, of AUBBURY, MASS.

"I was afflicted with a severe felon on one of my fingers, and tried many remedies without relief. My friends induced me to apply your Salve. In two days it extracted the inflammation from my finger so as to enable me to resume my work. I can almost say that the Salve worked like magic, for it effected a cure without leaving a scar. I unhesitatingly pronounce 'Grace's Salve' an excellent remedy, and do not doubt it will be appreciated throughout the land." 25

Rather Sensational.

THE PLANT BY WHICH THE EMPRESS CARLOTTA BECAME INSANE—GEN. LESCA ALSO POISONED.

By telegraphic despatches it appears that Gen. Lesca has been poisoned. It is uncertain whether the deed was perpetrated by some one of the insurgents or by some Spaniard who feared that Lesca was using too much clemency toward the Cuban forces. Certain it is that Lesca has been poisoned, and that his mind has become sadly injured. The probability is that he will live, but become insane. The decoction by which he has been put in this sad plight, it is certain, was the same by which the interesting widow of the unfortunate Emperor Maximilian was thrown from the domain of reason into the depths of lunacy.

To us this unfortunate widow has always appeared like Shakespeare's Ophelia, who, with darkened mind, strewed flowers on the stream.

The poison, which maddens without bringing death to its victim is derived from an herb which grows in Cuba, South America, and a few places in Mexico. The plant is one of the most wonderful of nature's productions. It resembles the century plant in many of its features. Like the century plant, it is a member of the cactus family; still further it blooms once in many years and at regular intervals.—The bud is large, and resembles that of a horse-chestnut in the peculiar gluten surrounding it. From this the natives derive the poison.

The flower is of a gigantic size, and contains a purple centre, surrounded by blue and white cuticles. The perfume is delicious, but deadly, and the natives shun approach as the sailors do all the ranges of the sirens.

To inhale is sweet, but to remain is death. The sorcerers, or medicine men, take the buds of this singular plant, and, first roasting, place them in a pot with sweet oil over a fire, and dance around with strange ceremonies till the oil and the juice of the herb mingle, when they cease their strange incantations, and pour the decoction, then resembling honey, into shallow places, from which, after the lapse of a few days, it is again taken out and kept in miniature jars. The poison, when taken in sufficient quantity, first places the brain in a delightful delirium, resembling that produced by fusil oil; this is succeeded in a few days by an uncontrollable apathy, which at last culminates in insanity, in which the patient is at times strangely rational, then wildly insane, and again rational, but greatly exhilarated. The poison is not destroyed by being mingled in victuals before being subjected to heat, but its immediate effects are somewhat deadened. They are sure to appear, however, in the lapse of time. This is the manner in which the poison is generally administered.

When the victim is of no great influence, and it is improbable that he can turn upon his prisoner, the decoction is administered in a glass of wine or a cup of cocoa. The poison manifests itself shortly, and in the course of a week all the various phases of the delirium appear. The sad fate of the Empress Carlotta is known to all, but this description of the poison, from what it is derived, and how it acts, may aid in forming a more correct appreciation of the horrible troubles to which she is subject. Gen. Lesca has been poisoned by the same herb, and is now subject to the same freaks of insanity as the Empress Carlotta.

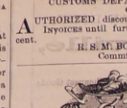

Rigor for Young Life.

How much the fond friend of young folks need this home word from Dr. Bellows: Life is an earnest battle. It is no trifle to have a nature fearfully and wonderfully made—strong desires that must be regulated, enormous proclivities that must be resisted and overcome. And therefore it is that we so much need that early training, that early discipline which it is hard to see whether parents and governors are more slow to apply or children and youth more reluctant to receive. Let the fault lie where it will, it is a fatal fault. Success, usefulness, virtue, happiness, peace, salvation, heaven—all depend upon our entering life fitly armed in suitable moral harness; with proper convictions as to what the exposures, dangers and temptations of body and soul are, and with such settled rules, habits and principles, such a trained conscience, such an established reverence for God and duty, as must deprive the world of all its power to deceive and betray. Those of us who are parents should remember that it is we who put the harness on our children. They don't gird themselves. It is we who are mainly responsible for its want of strength, its loose ill-fitting character.—In our tenderness we refuse to draw the buckles where they will hold, and if the shoulder chafes or reddens ever so little with the chafing we are quick to remove it. We are sorry to think that the young bosom must contract its inspirations beneath so sturdy a coat. We lift the sandals and plead for the feet that are to press their rough seams; but where are our recollections that we do not think of the sharpness of the spear that the heavy corslet is to resist, the weight of the battle-axe that leathern head-piece is to annul, the roughness of the road those stout shoes are to make smooth? It is not because of the tenderness of the flesh that we bend our leathern mail, and are we to dread our armor more than our enemy? That is the miscalculation of life; the sacrifice of our life-long safety to our immediate convenience; of our whole usefulness and honor and triumph as men and women to our short season of careless, self-indulgent, negligent, happiness, and freedom from self-imposed restraint as boys and girls, as young men and maidens.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,
FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys, is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Invterate cases of Scrofulous disease, wherein the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous affections and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulous contamination until they were painfully afflicting, have been radically cured in such great numbers in almost every neighborhood in the country, that the public scarcely need to be informed of its virtues or uses.

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this unseen and unjustly-blamed agent is the original cause of the most terrible disease, and yet when the taint is hereditary, it seems to be almost beyond the reach of medicine. Indeed, it is the fatal obstruction of this subtle poison that baffles the skill of the best physicians, and renders their efforts unavailing in so many cases of confirmed Consumption, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Tumors, Erysipelas, Neuralgia, and the various ulcerous affections of the mucous and nervous systems.

Syphilis or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these obstinate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Leucorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver; and Jaundice, when arising as they often do, from the morbific poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the shattered nervous system. Those who are Languid and Listless, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the affections symptomatic of Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,
For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has ranged, it has ever had higher and higher estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against, and antidote for, the more insidious diseases that lead to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous exhaustion of the last stages. As a physician against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are liable to sudden colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. No complaint is its master over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates we have, or do more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,
For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Quinine, Bismuth, Zinc, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it is wholly harmless in any patient. The number and importance of its cures in the ague-stricken districts are literally beyond account, and we believe without a parallel in the history of Ague medicine. Our power is attested by the acknowledgments we receive of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and in where other remedies had wholly failed.

Unacclimated persons, either residents of or travelling through miasmatic localities, will be protected by taking the AGUE CURE daily.

For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, this remedy is generally successful in the Liver into healthy activity.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly remarkable cures where other remedies had failed.

QUERY?

Should we employ the noble doctors to bring us our tea and coffee in bottles, at an expense of at least four times what they now cost us?

If not, why should we longer adopt that system in medicine, to medicines which are the simple extracts at herbs or plants and roots, and are as readily prepared as tea and coffee?

Each package of Dr. Thompson's Botanic Medicines contains more medicinal properties than are prepared in any other form for four times the amount of money.

We have in our possession numerous testimonials as to the practicability of it, which will be furnished us from the use of Dr. Thompson's Botanic Medicines, viz:

Dr. Thompson's Blood Purifier

Cures all diseases arising from an impure state of the blood, such as salt-rheum, scrofula, king's evil, white swellings, tumors, ulcers, old sores, erysipelas, scald head, sore eyes, and all diseases originating from an impure state of the blood.

It regulates the stomach and bowels, cleanses the system, and arouses the general vigor of the system, without reducing the strength of the patient. Sold at 50 cents per package.

DR. THOMPSON'S
Stomachic Bitters.

A certain and speedy cure for Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, and Indigestion. For costiveness it has no equal; it is a mild and safe aperient and cathartic for the delicate persons; a good alterative tonic for ordinary family purposes; a powerful recuperant after the fevers has been reduced by sickness; an excellent as well as an agreeable and wholesome stimulant. For debility, and diseases having their origin in an imperfect digestion or a deranged state of the stomach. Sold at 25 cents per package.

Dr. Thompson's No. 6.
OR COMPOSITION POWDERS

is used with success for diseases caused by colds, such as cold chills, chills and fever, headache, pains in the joints or limbs, neuralgia, rheumatic pains—in fact it may properly be called PAIN KILLER, as it may be used for all purposes for which Pain Killers or Reliefs are used, such as cramps in the stomach, colic, diarrhœa, dysentery, summer complaints, cholera morbus, female complaints or obstructions. Many have been cured in a great measure by this medicine. Sold at 25 cents per package.

The proprietor has been induced to adopt the present condensed style of putting up the medicine in packages, as he is thereby enabled to couple the amount of medicine for one-half the regular price of similar preparations.

Ayer's
Hair Vigor,
For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

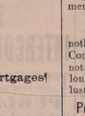

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effecting, for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such cases even do not defy the beneficence by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those pernicious properties which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,
For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally lauded into use. Everybody needs, in every country and among all classes, a dose of pills, but efficient purgative pills. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effective remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them, and they also know, that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what you know it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its own. Hence, we have the abundant proof, thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates, containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while purely vegetable they are entirely free from their use in any quantity.

They operate to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, where it exists, and thus expel disease from the system. Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore the healthy tone.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it promptly produces the effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve flatulence.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, thereby purifying the blood and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists, to take Pills to prevent disease. Many think a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

For seventeen years it has, in Italy, been a universal favorite among the elite of society, being generally served in the Drawing Room immediately before dinner, in preference to Vermouth.

Scandal in High Life.

"A CHIP OF THE OLD BLOCK"—THE MARQUIS OF WATERFORD IN A DIVORCE SUIT—THE VIVIAN CAUSE CELEBRE.

The 'Times' of the 6th inst, contains the following report of the celebrated case of Vivian vs Vivian and the Marquis of Waterford.

The petitioner, John Cranch Vivian, prayed for a dissolution of his marriage with Florence Grosvenor Vivian, on the ground of her adultery with the Marquis of Waterford. The respondent and co-respondent have filed answers traversing the allegations in the petition.

The Solicitor General, Mr. Prentice, Q. C., and Dr. Swabey, appeared for the petitioner; Dr. Spinks, Q. C., for the respondent; and Sir J. B. Karslake, Q. C., and Dr. Tristram for the co-respondent.

Mr. Prentice opened the case in the absence of the Solicitor-General. He stated that the petitioner was the Hon. Mr. Vivian, M. P. for Truro, and a Lord of the Treasury. In June, 1861, he married the respondent, who was the daughter of Major Rowley, of the East India Company's service. They lived very happily together after the marriage, and up to the autumn of last year they generally resided with Lady Kinnoul, in Belgrave Square. In 1863 Captain Vivian became acquainted with the Marquis of Waterford, and they were subsequently on very friendly terms together. The Marquis was a young man of 25 or 26 years of age. Captain and Mrs. Vivian sometimes visited him at his seat in Curraghmore, in Ireland, and a letter written by the Marquis to Captain Vivian would show the friendly feeling subsisting between them. In this letter, which commenced, "My dear Johnny," the Marquis said he was very sorry to hear from Mrs. Vivian that Captain Vivian, after all he had done for his party, was not to have office. He went on to say, that he looked on Captain Vivian as one of his oldest and best friends, and he expressed his regret at some insult which had been offered to Captain Vivian while he was staying at his house. He added that if he had known how Captain Vivian would have been treated he would rather have cut out his tongue than have asked him to his house, and he concluded by hoping that Captain Vivian would go into office as soon as any change occurred. The first intimation that Captain Vivian ever received of his wife's infidelity was on the 4th of March, 1869, when two letters were forwarded to him, one in the handwriting of his wife and the other in the handwriting of the Marquis. The learned Council was about to read these letters, but Sir J. Karslake and Dr. Spinks objected to their being read until it had been shown that they were admissible in evidence.

Mr. Prentice yielded to the objection, and proceeded with his statement without reading them. Immediately after the discovery of these letters the Marquis and Mrs. Vivian went off together. Captain Vivian was then residing at 16, Lowndes street. He employed a detective to ascertain whither they had gone, and they were traced to Calais, and thence to Paris, where they were staying at the Hotel Westminster. Captain Vivian, accompanied by Mrs. Knight, a sister of Mrs. Vivian, immediately went to the Grand Hotel of Paris. Mrs. Knight had an interview with Mrs. Vivian at the Hotel Westminster, and tried to induce her to leave the Marquis and return to England for the sake of the children, there being three of the marriage. Mrs. Vivian declined. Mrs. Vivian then had an interview with Captain Vivian at the Grand Hotel, but what passed at that interview could not be proved, as the parties could not be examined. But immediately after the interview Mrs. Vivian wrote this letter for her husband :—

"5 o'clock.—I cannot go. I have tried and tried to give him up, and, against his own urgent advice, I shall stay. For God's sake, don't think too harshly of me, and don't let any one come near me or I shall do myself some harm. I am going to my ruin, I know, but it is impossible for me to come back. Try and forgive me in your heart. I could not look at those poor children after what I have done, and do not send for me, for heaven's sake."

Her sister, Mrs. Knight again saw her, and she then confessed her guilt. She continued to live with the Marquis at the Westminster, and they were served there with the citation in the suit.

The following witnesses were called :—

The Dowager Countess Kinnoul.—I have known Captain and Mrs. Vivian for several years, and was present at their marriage, at St. Paul's, Knightsbridge. They lived with me until last summer or autumn, and they had three children. They lived on most affectionate terms. The Marquis of Waterford visited them. I saw nothing to lead me to suppose that there was anything wrong between Mrs. Vivian and the Marquis. Last year Captain and Mrs. Vivian went to live at 16, Lowndes street.

Henry Smith.—I am a retired sergeant of detectives. On Friday, the 5th of March, 1869, I traced the Marquis of Waterford and Mrs. Vivian to Calais. I went to Calais with Captain Vivian and Mrs. Knight, and we found they had gone to Paris, and we followed them. I found them at the Hotel Westminster.

Mr. Poley, a brother-in-law of Captain Vivian, proved that Captain Vivian was very much distressed when Mrs. Vivian left her home.

Mrs. Knight, the sister of Mrs. Vivian, who accompanied Captain Vivian to Paris, said,—I saw my sister at the Hôtel Westminster, and told her I had come to fetch her back. She said she would not go back. After a while I told her that Captain Vivian was in Paris, and she said she would see him. She went to the Grand Hotel; she sent him a letter. I saw her again the next day at the Hotel Westminster. I asked her to come back to her children, but she refused to leave the Marquis. She has never since returned to England.

The service of the citation on the respondent and co-respondent was proved by the clerk to the petitioner's solicitors, and a witness was called to prove the handwriting of the Marquis Waterford's letters.

The two letters found by Captain Vivian before the elopment were tendered and objected to, and no question being raised as to the fact that it was the Marquis who was with Mrs. Vivian at the Hotel Westminster the letters were withdrawn.

Lord Penzance.—The adultery is plainly proved. I pronounce a decree nisi with costs against the co-respondent.

Ritualism and Madness.

At the annual meeting of the Medico-Psychological Association, held recently at York, under the Presidency of Prosessor Laycock, of Edinburgh, Dr. Sebben Stoke Newington, read a somewhat remarkable paper on Ritualism with reference to its influence on the human mind. He said the daily spreading influence of Ritualism, and its injurious effects on Society, called for some observations, which he felt sure they would not be out of place at this meeting. Ritualism at the present time was evidently one of the most prominent causes of insanity in the middle ranks of life. Within the last two years he had had under his care several cases of mental derangement caused by it, and he had selected the most important for the purpose of bringing before the members.—From his own observation, and so far as he had been able to ascertain it appears that the young were more attracted by it than those of mature age. In a church he attended a few days ago, among a congregation of about 500, chiefly consisting of boys and girls, and only one grey head was to be seen. The places of worship had also so largely increased in numbers in some parts of London they were to be found within a stone's throw of each other, rendering both choice and position agreeable to its followers. It was not his intention to enter upon what would approach a philosophical discussion on the religious bearings of Ritualism, but simply to confine himself to its morbid influence, as shown in the cases which had been brought under his notice.

From these cases he was led to make the following remarks, viz., that ritualism appeared so entirely to engross the attention of the individual that there was little or no desire to dwell upon matters beyond the bounds of its own bearing; the train of thought was naturally unaltered, laying the first stone towards disease; the length and manner of conducting the services, and the time spent in public and private prayer (occupying, in some cases, nearly the whole day,) combined with the most rigid rules for fasting, could scarcely fail to destroy the strongest constitution both physically and mentally; and that it was the younger of society, their intellects being the most sensitive to impressions, who became its victims. Where there was an hereditary tendency to insanity, or where mental deficiency existed, the individual was sure to fall a prey. He asked whether it was not possible for some steps to be taken to prevent the increasing evil of ritualism, and to save others from its sad consequences!

A discussion ensued, and whilst it was admitted that, especially as related to persons who had a predisposition to insanity, any exaggerated religious sentiment, whether ritualism or any other ism, was like to produce an injurious effect on the mind, one or two of the speakers protested against its going forth that it was the opinion of the association that ritualism was the cause of insanity.

—The crop of Malaga raisins last year was the greatest ever realized, amounting in the aggregate to 1,950,000 boxes. The yield the present season did not promise so well at last accounts, and it was thought that it would be one-third less than that of 1868. All of the old crop had been shipped from Spain except about 20,000 boxes, which would soon find a market. This fine fruit is shipped to all parts of the world, and generally obtains a ready market wherever introduced.

BELLEVILLE, FRIDAY, AUG. 20.

EXCURSION.—We learn that there will be an excursion by the steamer Bay of Quinte to the Thousand Islands on Thursday next, of which particulars will be given in a future number.

RAILWAY OPENING.—A telegram from St. JohnN. B., Aug. 19th, says :—The Windsor and Annapolis Railway was opened yesterday from Grand Prarie to Annapolis —about 70 miles. The Governor-General, Sir Hastings Doyle, Sir George Cartier, Bishop Connolly, and a large party from Halifax were present. Luncheon was served in the car shed at Kentville.

IS IT TRUE?—It has been a current rumor in Town that a prominent and well-known Fenian has been in this place for some days. What his business is no one knows, but there are those who say they saw this same party carry a Fenian flag in a Fenian procession in a certain city across the line not long ago, and who has repeatedly avowed himself as a member of this blood-thirsty gang. Are these rumors true? Will any one give us the desired information?

DEATH OF DR. BURNS.—Rev. Dr. Burns, one of the most widely known and most highly valued clergyman in Canada, died at his residence in Toronto, on the 19th inst., in the 81st year of age. Dr. Burns was born in Bo'ness, Scotland, Feb. 1789, and was ordained Minister in 1811. Was Pastor of the Paisely Church for 34 years. Came to this country in 1845. Was Pastor of Knox Church, Toronto, 11 years, and at the time of his death was Professor of Church History in Knox College. He was a man of more than ordinary ability, and was highly respected.

THE KINGSTON REGATTA.—The Kingston Regatta yesterday, was very successful. For the first race, prize $150, there were four entries; it was won by the Ida, of Lachine. For the second class, prize $75, there were five entries. Go Softly, of Ogdensburg, won the race. There were six entries for the third race, prize $50, which was won by the Ramsay of Gananoque.—For the fourth and last race, there were three entries. The Arrow of Kingston was the winner. In the rowing races, the single scull race was won by the Emma of Toronto, and the four-oared race by the same crew.

ST. ANDREW'S PIC-NIC.—Considering the many Excursions and Pic-Nics this season, the Annual Pic Nic of St. Andrew's Society to Massassaga Point, was in every respect successful. There is no more beautiful spot in Canada for a pic nic party than the Point, and when the St. Andrew's people take it in hand they always add so many attractions that they draw a large crowd. The pic-nic yesterday was no exception to the general success which attends those got up by the St. Andrew's Society. The weather was delightful, the company large, the associations agreeable, the sports enjoyable, and the whole under the indefatigable and wholesouled President, Mr. D. B. Robertson, is it any wonder that it was, as we said in the outset, in every respect successful?

IMPORTANT DECISION.—A decision of some importance has just been rendered by Judge Nelson of the U. S. Circuit Court. A quantity of barley purchased in Canada was sunk in 1864 by a collision in the Hudson river. The owners libelled the vessels which caused the collision, and it was held that they were entitled to recover the value af the barley. But then came the question, what was that value? The barley had cost 74 cents per bushel in Canada, and at at the time of the loss $1 Canada money was equal to $2.16 in greenbacks. The lower Court decided that no notice could be taken of this difference, and made a decree for the payment of damages calculated at 74 cents per bushel in U. S. currency. On appeal, Judge Nelson has reversed this decision, and directed that the damages shall be paid at the rate of $2.16 for $1 of the cost of the barley in Canada money. This is so obviously common sense, that it is well for popular respect for the Courts that it is held to be law also.

REIFFENSTEIN AGAIN.—A telegram from Ottawa of the 19th, says :—"Reiffenstein has addressed a memorial to the Governor-General deyaing having stolen or made away with any money of the Dominion of Canada with criminal intent. He asserts his innocence of any wrong intention, and desires an opportunity of exonerating himself. The states he is prepared to submit the whole case to a commission of three independent business men, one of whom shall be chosen by himself, a second by the Government, and these two choose a third before which commission he shall be eligible as a witness, and shall be at liberty to produce books, and papers, and documents in his defence; that his object in leaving the country immediately upon obtaining bail was to avoid re-arrest, and that he cannot return as long as the writ of extent is in force against him, and prays that the commission may be granted and the writ of extent withdrawn."

Now or Never.

The Fenians on the other side of the lines think that now or never is their opportunity to conquer Canada. We trust they will come at once if they intend coming, so that an end of this accursed organization will be made. A correspondent of the Hamilton Times who has been on a tour through the States says :—"I have just returned after a lengthened sojourn in the States, and although there is not so much brag and bluster, it is an undoubted fact that the Fenian organization is stronger at the present time than at any previous period. I would also remark that, since the withdrawal of the troops from Canada, the scoundrels have been busily engaged making preparations for another raid on a larger scale than the fiasco of 1866. They have learnt something by that affair, and have seen the fallacy of blazoning their intentions to the world, and the present movement is being conducted in such a quiet manner that outsiders are apt to think the thing played out. It is my earnest wish that in case of another raid, that every Fenian caught in the country will be instantly shot. It is the only cure for Fenianism, or any other kind of filibustering. From what I could learn it is the plan of the leaders to attempt the crossing at three different points,—Sarnia, Buffalo, and a point near Malone. They are perfectly posted as to the number and distribution of both regulars and volunteers throughout the Province, and seem to think that now or never is their opportunity—the removal of the troops and the fact the crops being so far advanced that they will be enabled to live on the country, being to their advantage."

Personalities.

Occasionally we have had to lament the extent to which some of our newspapers indulge in personal vituperation and abuse, but we can't hold a candle to the papers across the lines. Take the following precious specimen on the defeated candidate for the Governorship of Tennessee.—It is from the New York Democrat :—

"Stokes, the perjured traitor, has met his political doom, and now he can rot in the stench of his infamous record.

"First an instigator of rebellion and an inciter to treason—for a long time an enemy to the Government, which once protected the people, for a price paid, and a position given by Brownlow, the concentrated fever of hell's most rotten selfishness, he betrayed those who thought him honest, and like the serpent who was a God compared to him, stung the ones who had warmed his rottenness to political life.

"He basked in the smiles of an infamous power. He lived on and by wanton robberies of rights. He fastened himself like a wen of nastiness to the rump of Brownlow, whose cheap tool of a cheap master he was—he dived deep into infamy, tyranny, injustice, corruption, extravagance and wrong, and now floats on the dead black pool of Tennessee's damned and dishonored politics, an ebonyintinted cowardly mass of political infamy and corruption it were a compliment to dignify with the name of dog.

Farewell Stokes.

All hail Tennessee."

The Stabbing Affray.

The following is a synopsis of the evidence taken yesterday in the stabbing case :

THOMAS DOWNS, Constable, was the first witness. His evidence was as follows : I was told that Patrick Lawlor struck Langley ; he, Langley, said he did ; another man named Crawford said he struck him. I went to arrest Lawlor ; he backed up into L. Williams' gangway ; he said he would not come. I called to James Cummings to assist me ; we took hold of him ; Cummings knew me to be a Constable ; I took hold of one hand, and Cummings with the other ; he struck twice or three times at Cummings with a knife ; afterwards he struck once at me with a knife ; he had it in his hand all the time ; Cummings went to see Dr. Lister ; I went for more assistance and took Lawlor to gaol. Cummings used no violence that I saw.

Cross-examined—I was in Williams' bar-room ; Cummings called me there ; I called upon Cummings to assist before I arrested Lawlor ; Cummings said that Lawlor was fighting at Williams' ; that he had struck a man and wanted me to arrest him ; he might have offered to assist me or he might not ; I told Lawlor that I wanted him ; he said he would not be taken ; I do not think Cummings and Lawlor are good friends ; cannot say whether Cummings was drunk or not ; Lawlor knew I was a Constable ; Cummings and I took hold of him together ; I think Cummings caught him by the throat or breast ; Lawlor pulled out the knife ; I saw the blade of it ; I do not know where he got it ; he got loose with one hand ; put it back and struck Cummings with a knife ; he struck under his right arm the second or third blow ; I do not know whether it was a pen knife ; it was a blade he had ; I let go when Lawlor stabbed at me ; I think it was only twice he struck Cummings.

Dr. JAS. LISTER, sworn—I was called to Mr. Cummings. I found a wound under his right arm across the side, about six inches long, inflicted by some sharp cutting instrument. If the knife had been plunged into the side, instead of drawn across, I have no doubt it would have been fatal.—It is not a dangerous wound, merely a flesh wound.

On cross-examination, the Dr. said it could not have been inflicted by any but a sharp instrument. It will be well in a few days.

MICHAEL LANGLEY, sworn—I reside in the Township of Elzevir ; I went to L. William's ; I asked for Cummings ; the prisoner said he was not Cummings ; I said he was not the man I wanted ; he said his name was Mike Cummings ; I asked him to have a glass of beer ; he swore he would kick my guts out ; he struck me twice, and kicked me once ; I was directed there by Mr. Northgraves ; James Cummings and him had a conversation about his name ; I did not see Cummings strike him.

Cross-Examined—I met James Cummings on the street ; I told him I had seen Mike Cummings ; James Cummings said it could not be as he had left ; I saw nothing that took place between the prisoner, the Constable and Cummings ; I told the Constable Lawlor had struck me ; I did not order the Constable to arrest him.

JAMES CUMMINGS, sworn—I was in L. William's yesterday ; on the bridge Michael Langley said that is your brother ; I said "that is Paddy Lawlor ;" Langley called him up to drink ; afterwards he touched my nose and asked me if I wanted any more ; I then went out and called the police ; he Lawlor took a knife and cut me ; there are eight cuts made with the knife in my coat ; I gave him no provocation ; when I was going to the Doctor, he came at me again ; I am wounded by one of the blows struck by Lawlor.

Cross examined—The night before I went to bed at half-past eight o'clock ; I saw a knife with the prisoner ; I heard a man halloo in the bar and went to the door and called the constable and told him some one was struck by Lawlor ; the only reason I had for taking hold of Lawlor was because the constable called me.

The case was then adjourned until to-morrow. Mr. W. J. Diamond appeared for the prisoner, and Mr. S. B. Burdett for the prosecution.

SECOND DAY.

FRIDAY, Aug. 20th, 1869.

The case was resumed this forenoon before Francis McAnnany, Esq., J. P. The hall was filled with about as motley a looking crowd as was ever seen in the Belleville Police Court.

THOS. DOWNS, re-called.—When I saw Cummings first he told me there was a fight in Williams' ; there was no fight when I was going in ; do not know whether there was any quarrel between Langly and Lawlor ; the quarrel was over and both were in the bar-room ; on Monday night the policeman tried to arrest Lawlor for trying to rescue Kehoe ; we did not try to arrest him on Tuesday or Wednesday ; saw him on each day.

Cross Examined.—After Cummings let Lawlor go, he struck at him two or three times. Lawlor was in a fighting position when I went into the bar-room.

To the Court.—I could not tell exactly what position he was in ; could not tell what position his arms were in, but should say he was in a position to fight if any one came up to touch him.

Mr. Dickson, who appeared for the prisoner, asked leave at this stage to have a remand until to-morrow, to enable him to present to the Court the evidence for the prisoner in proper shape.

Mr. Burdett understood that yesterday the case was laid over until to-day in order that the Defendant's Counsel's might have an opportunity of furnishing evidence. Still, if the Court decided, he would have no objection to have the case adjourned.

The Magistrate decided that although the Statute did not give the prisoner the right to call evidence, yet the invariable practice had been to do so, and such practice he had heard Judges of Assizes advise and recommend, and in order to have all the evidence laid before the prosecuting Attorney, he had no objection to adjourn, and the case was accordingly adjourned until to-morrow morning at eleven o'clock.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

SIR,—I have been so much surprised at the variations of time as indicated by the Sun-dial lately, that I will be obliged if you will insert this notice of it in your paper, in the hope that some of your astronomical or philosophical correspondents may be able and think it worth while, to give some explanation of it.

For the last two or three months, (I had not taken notice of it previously,) the time by the dial has on several days when I have noticed it, and always either in the morning or evening, varied from the correct time as shown at noon, from 5 to 8 minutes, and on the evening of the eclipse, the 7th inst., just before the sun was obscured, the rays suddenly showed a variation of 5 minutes (behind the correct time.) This of course can only be caused by refraction of light, and may possibly be connected with the cause of the cold and wet weather we have had this season.

I may mention that my dial was made by Mr. P. Lynch, of Belleville, and is as correct and complete an instrument as could be constructed.

Yours truly,

ARCH. DUNLOP

Frankford, Aug. 16, 1869.

Criticisms upon Shakspeare.

The London Daily News contains the following :—

"There is a remarkable article in the new number of the Edinburgh Review, which shows how much remains to be done in the elucidation of Shakspeare. Shakspearian literature is in itself a vast library. After all that has been written on the subject, and is every day pouring forth from the press, one would imagine that the subject has become threadbare, and that nothing remains to be said. But a ripe scholar comes forward, and in a masterly article shows that the most learned Shakspearian commentators are ignorant of the meaning of some of the most common phrases used by the poet. What does Ophelia mean when she says to the Queen : 'You may were your rue with a difference ?' What was the precise significance of the crants laid upon Ophelia's bier ? What does Benedick mean when he says that if a lady is not virtuous he will never 'chepen' her ? What does Lear mean when he describes Regan as being of a 'tender-hearted nature?' What does Pistol mean in the much quoted saying—'Under which King bezonian skeak or die ?' What is the exact meaning of the phrase used by Tranio, to 'bald logic ?' What is a hilding ? What is a zany ?

"These are some of the questions which the critic in the Review propounds to his readers, which he declares that the Shakspearian commentators are unable to answer, which in some cases they do not even see the necessity of raising, and which he illustrates with not a little skill and curious erudition. It is impossible for us here to discuss any of these questions in detail ; but weary as we are with the common-place and fumbling criticisms of which our great poet is the victim—every little scribe having it in his head to bestow all his tediousness upon him—it gives us pleasure to hear some one who has something fresh, and important to say, and who says it well."

THE SPANISH GUNBOATS.—Eight of the twelve Spanish gunboats lying at Delamater's have received their machinery, and one of them will be ready for sea in a fortnight. It is described as a tidy looking craft with a shining black smoke stack, raking masts and lies very low. It has accommodation forward for fifteen or twenty men, and aft for nine or ten. The sides are about 11 inches thick of white oak plank. The vessels are visited nearly every day by two officers of the Spanish navy ; one of whom is said to be an admiral. Cubans, also, lounge about the docks of an evening, much to the discomfiture of the watchmen, who are afraid that some daring incendiary might set fire to the vessels. A tug boat hes ready with steam up to tow them in the stream in case of any accident by fire occurring. The boats receive occasional visits from the United States Navy authorities, who take notes of the progress made. Of the 15 gunboats at Mystic, six are launched, and all will be ready within three or four weeks to receive their machinery, when they will be towed to Delemater's shipyard. One of these at Poillon's, Brooklyn, will be launched to-day, and the other two at the end of the week. Mr. Delamater says he feels no anxiety as to the vessels. He spares no expense in their construction, and the work goes on rapidly.

An ill-natured Frenchman has invented a toy which he calls the grimacitscope.—You place the carte de visite of a lady friend in the apparatus, and she appears distorted to a thousand hideous ways, the innumerable combinations of the kaleidoscope being successfully applied to the art of making ugly one's fellow creatures.

THE INTERNATIONAL BOAT RACE.

LONDON, August 19.—The 'Times' of to-day has an editorial on the forthcoming International boat race. It says the Harvards show signs of hard work, as the time was not so good as last night, nor so good as formerly, and the men seemed much more fatigued than on former occasions. The Harvard's rowed over the course at speed. They made a good start, but a flanking wind impeded their progress when they reached Hammersmith Bridge. The Oxford boat going over the same course previous to-day, made faster time; but they had a fair wind, and the tide was more in their favor. 2 to 4 is offered on Oxford, with no takers.

The Harvards practised to-day in a new boat built by Jewett. She measures 45 feet 6 inches in length, and 19 inches across at the widest part. The Oxfords went over the course to-day, taking from 39 to 41 strokes per minute.

A LITTLE TROUBLE WITH PRUSSIA BREWING.

VIENNA, Aug. 18.—Baron Von Buest has replied to the recent note of Herr Von Thiele, the acting Prussian Minister of Foreign Affairs. He asserts that he thought a verbal explanation sufficient to remove the misunderstanding between the two Governments, and desired to avoid useless correspondence. The Prime Minister insists that what he said in committee was of a private character. The transactions of a Parliamentary Committee are not within the control of Foreign Governments. He declines to enter into a discussion of what was said there; but will not withhold his opinion on questions caused by inaccurate newspaper statements. Referring to the interpretation by the Vienna Cabinet of the military treaties between Prussia and the South German States, he says that in the conciliatory dispatch sent to the Austrian Minister at Berlin in March, 1867.—Nothing was said as to whether the treaty of Prague prevented the Southern States from concluding treaties with the other States of Germany; but it was stated that certain well-known agreements preceding the signature of the treaty were concerned, making it impossible to decide whether the cause relating to the international independence of the Southern States was omitted as a matter of no importance, or because its importance was so great that it should have been otherwise worded. Baron Von Buest does not admit that he should be called to account for words which the newspapers allege were uttered by him, yet he is willing in order to soften and remove any existing unpleasantness, to enter into correspondence in regard to the conciliatory endeavors made on either side during the past year, which have possibly been misconstrued. The circumstance that there had been no intercourse between the Count Von Wimpffin, the Austrian ambassador at Berlin, and the Count Von Bismarck, for sometime, is alluded to in the despatch, explains that this was owing to the alternate absence of both gentlemen from Berlin, from the spring of 1868 until the close of that year. After the return of Bismarck, certain well-known continuous and violent attacks in the public press on Austria gave the Austrian Government cause to recommend that the Count Von Wimpffin should abstain from visiting Bismarck. The Austrian Premier concludes by declaring that the reproach that Austria intended to prolong her attitude of reserve cannot be better disposed of than by referring to the uninterrupted intercourse between himself and the Baron Von Weather, the Prussian Minister at Vienna.

THE CARLISTS—A BIG MOVE PROMISED.

MADRID, August 18.—Fifty-nine Carlists have been brought prisoners into Valentia. Several Carlist bands have dispersed by the troops within the past few days.

PARIS, August 18.—The Patrie to-day asserts that parties of Carlists on Spanish soil are increasing, and that in some cases they have met with success. It is claimed that they have captured 9 officers and 40 privates of the Spanish army. The Patrie hints that within a month a great military event, of which it gives no particulars, will happen in Spain, after which Don Carlos will publish a manifesto.

MADRID, Aug. 18.—The Government is taking extraordinary precautions to prevent the assembling of Carlists at La Mancha.

QUEENSTOWN, Aug. 20.—The steamships 'Russia' and 'Denmark,' from New York, have arrived.

Business Notice.

Not many weeks ago a rich but childless landed proprietor breathed his last, leaving a large circle of relations to mourn his loss, and squabble over their prospects of sharing his wealth. The day for reading the will at last came; the room was crowded with anxious expectants; the will was opened and to the inexpressible joy of all, the rich gentleman's relations found that to each of them had been bequeathed a case of Royal Italian Bitters.

NEW ALBION HOTEL,
McGILL STREET,
MONTREAL, CANADA.

THE "NEW ALBION HOTEL," the largest Hotel in Montreal, has just been opened under the most favorable auspices.

Whilst the "Old Albion" has been long noted for the strict attention paid to its numerous guests, the "New Albion" takes its position as a first class Hotel, and is really, first class in every respect, except the charges, which better suit the ideas and requirements of the majority of travellers, than many of the so called, "first class Houses;" which deserve the title more through the amount of their charges than aught else.

Already the crowded state of the "New Albion" promises well for its future career; everything associated with its construction has been carried out with artistic taste and systematic correctness.

The large Hall, commodious office, spacious Reading room, convenient Dining, Coffee, Wash Room, etc., etc., on the ground floor; and the Reception Room and Suits of SPLENDIDLY FURNISHED and THOROUGHLY VENTILATED LADIES' PARLORS, on the second floor, will form no small luxury during the hot summer season. And, what is an exception to the general Rule in Hotels, the Bedrooms are all well ventilated and lighted, there not being a dark room in the House.

Being situated on the widest and healthiest Street in Montreal, commanding a Magnificent View of the River St. Lawrence and the Victoria Bridge on the left, and a full view of the Victoria Square with its numerous 'Vets d'Eau' and Mount Royal on the right, it cannot fail to commend itself to the travelling public.

From its situation on McGill Street, the great thoroughfare and commercial centre of the City it cannot fail to be, as the "Old Albion" always been a strong favorite with the Merchants of Canada.

Notwithstanding the very large outlay in building and furnishing the house, the old price of $1 50 per day will not be departed from.

We, therefore, bespeak for ourselves a continuance of the patronage so liberally accorded to us during the past twelve years.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry.

Where this article is known it is a work of supererogation to say one word in its favor, so well is it established as an unfailing remedy for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croupy Whooping Cough, Asthma, Diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs, as well as that most dreaded of all diseases, Consumption, which high medical authority has pronounced to be an incurable disease. Those who have used this remedy know its value; those who have not, have but to make a single trial to be satisfied that of all others it is THE REMEDY.

THE REV. JACOB SECHLER, well known and much respected among the German population of this country, writes as follows:

HANOVER, PA., Feb. 16. 1859.

MESSRS. S. W. Fowle & Son, Boston.

DEAR SONS,—Having realized in my family important benefits from the use of your valuable preparation—Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry—it affords me pleasure to recommend it to the public. Some eight years ago, one of my daughters appeared to be in a decline, and little hopes of her recovery were entertained. I then procured a bottle of your excellent Balsam, and before she had taken the whole of it there was a great improvement in her health. I have, in my individual case, made frequent use of your valuable medicine, and have always been benefited by it. I would, however, caution the public against imposition, because there is a good deal of counterfeit "Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry" afloat throughout the country.

JACOB SECHLER.

Grace's Celebrated Salve.

From Mr. JAMES CURLIN, of AMESBURY, MASS.

"I was afflicted with a severe felon on one of my fingers, and tried many remedies without relief. My friends induced me to apply your Salve. In two days it extracted the inflammation from my finger so as to enable me to resume my work. I can almost say that the Salve worked like magic, for it effected a cure without leaving a scar. I unhesitatingly pronounce 'Grace's Salve' an excellent remedy, and do not doubt it will be appreciated throughout the land."

FOR cheap printing go to "The Intelligencer" Office, Belleville.

Hon. Senator Murphy Earned Fifty Cents.

Senator Murphy, who is a fine-looking, jovial, whole-souled, intellectual fellow, went down on the beach to bathe, and, while in the costume of the bathers was addressed by a lady of distinction, who had come down alone to bathe:—"You can come and bathe me!" The Senator jumped at the opportunity, and taking the fair lady by the hand led her out into the water, protecting her from the under-currents and sometimes dangerous waves, at the same time listening to her joyous exclamations, such as, "Oh how delightful!" "It is, indeed, delicious!"

After getting through with bathing, and paying the Senator the fifty cents, which is the regular price charged by the bathingmen, one of whom she supposed the Senator was, she said to him:—"Well, sir, I wish you to bathe me every day at eleven o'clock; what name shall I call you when I want you?" "You, madam; I will wait on you with pleasure." Soon afterwards the lady met the Senator in the parlour. She saw her mistake, and blushingly left the room. Tom Murphy, however, met her at the breakfast table, and removed her embarrassment by saying, in his winning way, "I'm nobody but Tom, madam, and hope you will call for me at eleven o'clock."

A Fashionable Call.

These calls, airy nothings, a poor mixture of folly and hypocrisy, an attempt at deceit which parties fully understand. It is always a mystery how sensible women can stoop to the custom, but where fashion rules, there is no limit to its sway; all must bend to it or be broken in the resistance. Conversation at these calls is usually after this model, which some accurate observer has printed for reference and instruction to the unimitated:

How do you do, my dear?
Putty well, thank you, [they kiss.]
How have you been this age?
Putty well, how have you been?
Very well, thank you.
Pleasant to-day.
Yes, very bright—but we had a shower yesterday.
Are all your people well?
Quite well, thank you; how are yours?
Very well, I'm obliged to you.
Have you seen Mary B——lately?
No, but I've seen Susan C——
You don't say so! Is she well?
Very well, I believe [rising].
Must you go?
Yes, indeed; I've seven calls to make.
Do call again soon.
Thank you; but you don't call on me once in an age.
Oh, you should not say so; I'm sure I'm very good.
Good bye.

THE DARKIES IN GLORY.—A Southern friend, who is curious in his observations as to the effect of freedom on the ordinary field-hand freedman, says that in no way does Sambo "feel the oats" of liberty more than in his devotions; and in support of his assertion sends the following, which he says is in many quarters a favorite hymn in public religious services:

We's nearer to de Lord
Dan de white folks, and dey knows it:
See de glory gate unbarred;
Walk up darkeys, pass de guard;
Bet a dollar he don't close it.

Walk up, darkeys, froo de gate;
Hark! the colored angels holler,
Go away, white folks! you's to late!
We's de winning colour; wait
Till the trumpet sounds to follow.

Hallelujah! t'anks an' praise!
Long enuff we've borne our crosses;
Now we's de sooperior race;
We' gwine to hebben afore de bosses!

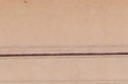

CHEEK.—The persistence, not to say "cheek," of some charitable solicitors is astonishing. A sanctimonious looking person made his appearance at the residence of a clergyman near Hartford, Conn., and stated the object of his visit, which was to secure funds in aid of a Western college. After some conversation, the agent said: "What I want is this, that you will direct me to people of wealth who are in the last stages of consumption, or are hereditarily disposed to apoplexy. I find this class of persons are more easily reached than those who possess means and are in the possession of perfect health. In one Western town I found a gentleman who had received apoplectic strokes, and he put our college in his will for $15,000. Neither is dead yet, but you see the importance of getting such people on the right side." The clergyman, after listening to this "argument," said that the members of his church were, as far as he knew, in the enjoyment of good healty, and it would be impossible to select any one who gave promise of early death. The agent, upon looking about the town further, ascertained that the general health of the community was too good for speculation with death, and decided to leave at once for some other locality.

DIDN'T WANT TO BE INSULTED.—A few years ago a recently married couple from the country—not Colborne—spent a portion of that romantic season denominated the 'honey moon,' in our burg, and, of course, put up and enjoyed the hospitalities of the Pauwels house. During dinner, the young lady was observed to turn red and pale by turns, but this was laid to her new position as wife. But Scroggs, who has a sharp ear, heard her ask her husband: 'Is my face dirty?' 'Dirty! No, why do you ask?' 'Because that insulting waiter insists on putting a towel beside my plate. I've thrown three under the table, and yet every time he comes around he puts another before me.'—Cobourg Star.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,
FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Inveterate cases of Scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous affections and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulous contamination until the face was painfully affected, have been radically cured by it. In great numbers in almost every section of the country that have been carefully used to be known of its virtues or uses.

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this unseen and unfelt tenant of the organism undermines the constitution, and invites the attack of enfeebling or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed infection throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develops into one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be suddenly deposited in the lungs of heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence in corruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the necessity of the use of this Sarsaparilla in all its visible, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, at length, cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter, or Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions or visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Pains, Fits, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various Uterous affections of the muscular and nervous systems.

Syphilis or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these obstinate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Leucorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved, and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute Directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaints, Jaundice, Obstruction or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when arising, as they often do, from the existing poisons in the blood. The SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are Languid, Listless, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, any of the affections symptomatic of Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,
For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the nations of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its healing character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for confirmed consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family. Indeed such are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else can relieve them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish certificates of them here, to do more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,
For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marshy, or miasmatic poisons.

As the name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Bismuth, Zinc, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it in nowise injures any patient. The number and importance of its cures in the ague districts, are literally beyond account, and we believe without a parallel in the history of Ague medicine. So pure is it found by the action of its component parts of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, that no one need fear being salted falsely.

Unacclimated persons, either resident in, or travelling through miasmatic localities, will be protected by taking the AGUE CURE daily.

For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy activity.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly remarkable cures, where other medicines had failed.

QUERY?

Should we employ the noble doctors to bring us our tea and coffee in bottles, at an expense of at least four times what they now cost?

If not, why should we longer adopt that system in reference to medicines which are the simple extracts of herbs, roots and barks? Why not have them prepared as tea and coffee?

Each package of Dr. Thompson's Botanic Medicines contains more medical properties than can be procured in any other form for four times the amount of money.

We have in our possession numerous testimonials as to the practicability of, as well as the benefits derived from the use of the following medicines, viz:

Dr. Thompson's Blood Purifier

Cures all diseases arising from an impure state of the blood, such as scrofulous, erysipelas, ringworm, white swellings, tendency to boils, old sores, pimples or roughness of the skin. It regulates the stomach and bowels; it tones the liver, and promotes the general vigor of the system, without reducing the strength of the patient. Sold at 50 cents per package.

DR. THOMPSON'S

Stomachic Bitters,

A certain and speedy cure for Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Indigestion, or costiveness (it has no equal); it is a mild but safe invigorant and corrobrant for delicate persons; a good alterative tonic for ordinary family purposes; a powerful recuperant after the fraine has been reduced by sickness; an excellent as well as an agreeable and wholesome stimulant, for general debility, and diseases arising from a torpid liver, imperfect digestion or a deranged state of the stomach. Sold at 25 cents per package.

Dr. Thompson's No. 6.
OR COMPOSITION POWDERS.

It is used with great success in breaking up colds, such as fevers, chills and fever, headache, pains in the joints of limbs, neuralgia, rheumatism, pains—in fact it may properly be called PAIN KILLER, as it may be used for all purposes for which Pain Killer and Relief are used, such as cramps in the stomach, colic, diarrhœa, dysentery, summer complaints, cholera morbus, female complaints or obstructions; it may also be used with great success as a Liniment. Sold at 25 cents per package.

The proprietor has been induced to adopt the present condensed style of putting up these medicines in packages, as he is thereby enabled to supply double the amount of medicine for one-half the regular price of similar preparations.

ROYAL ITALIAN BITTERS
OR TONICO REALE.

Del Dottore F. P. Verri, Prof. of Chemistry, in the of University Padua, Italy.

THIS Celebrated Preparation—for which a Certificate of Merit was awarded to the original preparer at the National Exposition at Torino, Italy, by whose favor Mr. Gianelli obtained the Recipe, and was also awarded a Diploma at the Provincial Exhibition of Canada, held at Montreal in September, 1865, is without exception, the most delicious, salubrious and agreeable Tonic ever introduced to public notice either in Europe or America.

For seventeen years it has, in Italy, been a universal favorite among the elite of society, being generally served in the Drawing Room immediately before dinner, in preference to Vermouth.

☞ The ingredients of its composition have been imparted to the leading Physicians of Montreal, and have received their unqualified approval on every account.

The Proprietor has no idea of parading or puffing it before the public, but merely asks a sound and unprejudiced trial.

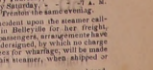

Kept by the principal Wine Merchants, Druggists, and Grocers in Canada.

Prepared and sold wholesale by the Proprietor,

The Daily Intelligencer.

Let there be Harmony in things Essential—Liberality in things not Essential—Charity in all.

Vol. 3. BELLEVILLE, COUNTY OF HASTINGS, DOMINION OF CANADA, SATURDAY EVENING, AUGUST 21, 1869. No. 94.

The Difference.

MAN.

If he wears a good coat,
Lift him up, lift him up;
Though he be but a bloat,
Lift him up.
If he has got common sense,
And boasts of a few pence,
Lift him up.

If his face shows no shame,
Lift him up, lift him up;
Though crime is his name,
Lift him up.
Though disgrace be his sport,
Let your daughters him court—
Lift him up.

WOMAN.

If woman once errs,
Kick her down, kick her down;
If misfortune is hers,
Kick her down.
Though her tears fall like rain,
And she never smiles again,
Kick her down.

If a man breaks her heart,
Kick her down, kick her down;
Redouble the smart—
Kick her down.
And if in low condition,
On, on to perdition,
Kick her down!

Beauty.

Beautiful faces, they that wear
The light of a pleasant spirit there,
It matters little if dark or fair.

Beautiful hands are they that do
The work of the noble, good and true,
Busy for them the long day through.

Beautiful feet are they that go
Swiftly to lighten another's woe, [snow.
Through summer's heat or the winter's

Beautiful children, of rich or poor,
Who walk the pathways sweet and pure,
That leads to the mansions strong and sure.

Fruits of Obedience.

"Charles, come in.—I want you," said a sweet womanly voice to a little boy who was playing marbles on the sidewalk in front of a nice brick house.

Now Charles was very busy, and in the midst of a delightful game. He was as happy as could be. To quit his play then was like quitting the table when half through dinner. Would he obey? We looked with interest to see what he would do. What would you have done?

Charlie replied, "Yes, mother," and picking up his marbles started off with a smiling face and a bounding step up the side yard and in at the end door of the house. A fine boy that, I thought, as I looked after him. I wonder who he is? What a beautiful thing it must be to have a little boy, or girl that will mind at once, and with a happy, loving heart! I wondered what would become of that boy, and wished to see more of him and learn his history.

I used to walk past that house every week, and always thought of that blue-eyed, light haired boy. The thought of him made me happy. I saw a great many naughty children. Once I spent two or three days in trying to find a naughty boy who ran away from his home and overwhelmed his parents with grief; and when I found him, some one had stolen his coat and hat, and bundle of clothes, and all the money he had. Once I chased after a truant boy and girl for several hours, and at last, late at night, found them in the woods, wet through, cold, and frightened almost to death. They had disobeyed their mother, and gone to play instead of going to school, and both of them were sick for several weeks in consequence of their folly and exposure. A boy that minds—he is a jewel.

I had been in business a year or two, and in that time had had several boys; but it was next to impossible to find one that would mind. At last I was quite out of patience, and determined I would have no one who could not bring the best recommendations and stand the closest test. Several applied for the place, but no one suited us. At last came a blue-eyed, flaxen haired youth of twelve years, with a bright, honest face.—There was something engaging in his aspect. Had I seen him before? What is your name?

'Charlie Warren, sir. I live in Franklin street. My father is a carpenter, but is lame now, and cannot work, and I have got mother's consent to go into a store, if I can find a place.'

It was the very little Charlies whom I had seen playing at marbles. I remembered the circumstance, and knew that he would mind. I did not need a recommendation for him, but gave him the place, and twice as much pay as I had promised to give.

Charlie came to work on Monday morning. It seemed hard for him the first week of work, but he behaved like a man. The boys in the next store came in and made his acquaintance. One morning I heard two of them trying to persuade Charlie to go off with them down to the wharves in the forenoon and see a boat race that was to come off. 'No,' said Charlie, 'mother told me to mind my business, and I am paid for staying here, and don't think it right to go off without my employers knowing it.'

That was a brave word, and I thought more of Charlie than ever.

That was ten years ago. He has been with me ever since, and has proved to be the best clerk I ever had. Yesterday we put up a new sign, and on it, in large gilt letters, was Charlie's full name. The store is his own own. He is now a prosperous, promising young man, and if he lives, will be a rich, honored man. And all this because one bright morning he minded his mother when she called him. From such little things do great results come. Always mind, and it will always be well with you.—Ladies' Repository.

Temperance.

Says the World: "Once in a while a pensive man may be heard to say: 'I wish I had all the money back that I have spent in drinks for the past ten years.' Not one man in twenty who, retrospectively gazing, gives utterance to that wish has in his mind an approximating estimate of the amount which a person of moderate bibulous propensities may spend upon drink in the space of ten years. Leaving wines and expensive liquors quite out of the question, let us see what a plain cocktailist or modest imbiber of old rye is likely to disburse on his favorite refreshments in the course of a year. Take a very moderate man as a sample. Assume that he drinks every day one glass of ale, at ten cts., and four glasses of whiskey, at fifteen. That amounts to seventy cents a day, which makes four dollars and ninety cents a week. Multiply by four and you have nineteen dollars and sixty cents a month; which comes we know, to one hundred and thirty-five dollars and sixty cents a year. Thus, if the man who had carried on at this rate for ten years had all his liquor-money back, his pockets would be inflated to the tune of thirteen hundred and fifty two dollars. This is only a small beer calculation; but think of the men who spend five times this amount on liquors, and remember that their name is legion."

Bismarck.

HIS COURTSHIP AND MARRIAGE.

At the house of his friend and neighbor, Maurice Von Blankenburg, in Pomerania, young Bismarck had frequently seen a fair friend of the noble lady of the house who had made a deep impression on his heart, but he did not get intimately acquainted with M'lle Johanna until both of them accompanied the Blankenburg family on a journey to Ruegan. The course of true love did not run very smooth in this instance. After ascertaining that the young lady reciprocated his love, he had a great many obstacles to overcome before he was able to make her his wife.

There was a decided commotion in the staid and truly pious family of Puttkammer of Reinfeld, when a letter arrived from Bismarck, boldly asking the old Baron to bestow his daughter's hand on him.—"What!" exclaimed the old nobleman, in utter amazement, "that madcap Bismarck has the courage to apply for the hand of my dear, gentle Johanna!" But his astonishment and, we might almost say his grief knew no bounds when his daughter told him blushingly and timidly, but with inflexible firmness, that she loved Bismarck and was determined to marry him.

"I felt as though somebody had knocked me on the head with a hatchet," said M. von Puttkammer, very frequently, in alluding to his story of his daughter's courtship. Even the old saying that the wolf always devours the gentlest lambs did not comfort him. However, he was not averse to playing the tyrannous father, and finally gave his consent with much reluctance—a step which he was afterward often said he never had any reason to regret. His wife the Baroness, was more obdurate, and, it was not until Bismarck came to Reinfeld in person and in her presence passionately pressed his sweetheart to his breast that he relented, and with streaming eyes blessed the union of her daughter with the young man whose faithful friend and advisers she became from that time forward. On the same day Bismarck announced the happy event to his sister in a letter headed "all right."

STOPPED HIS PAPER.—The following anecdote of the late Mr. Swain, from the Philadelphia Press, is not without its moral in other latitudes than Pennsylvania:

"Many years ago, Mr. Swain, then editor of the Public Ledger, was hailed at the corner of Eighteenth and Chestnut streets by a very excited individual, who informed him in the most emphatic terms, 'I have stopped your paper, sir,' and proceeded to explain the why and wherefore, all the time gesticulating wildly. 'My precious, sir, you don't say so. Come with me to the office and let us see if we cannot remedy the matter. It grieves me that any one should stop my paper. Down Chestnut street to Third the two proceeded. Arriving at the office, Mr. Swain said, 'Why, my dear sir, everything seems to be going on here as usual. I thought you had stopped my paper.' Then and there the excited gentleman, whom the long walk had partly cooled, by the way, said he had stopped taking the one copy of the Ledger. Mr. Swain was profuse in his apologies for having misunderstood the meaning of his late subscriber's words, and regretted that he had given him the tramp from Eighteenth street to Third, down Chestnut. The gentleman took his way home, a wiser if not a better man, marvelling at the stupidity of editors in general, and Mr. Swain in particular. Before he left, however he ordered the Ledger to be still sent to his address."

EMIGRATION.—The emigration from Liverpool to the St. Lawrence during the month of July comprised seven ships with 2,901 passengers, of whom 1,353 were English, 2 Scotch, 35 Irish, and 1,510 foreigners.

COUNTERFEITS.—The London Advertiser says :—" Notwithstanding the repeated warnings through the public prints, counterfeit Provincial 4's, altered from 1's, and the more recent alteration of 1's to 10's on the Bank of Commerce, continue to be imposed upon the public. Remember that there are no Provincial notes of the denomination of $4, and Bank of Commerce tens are marked $10, and not an X, as shown on the counterfeit."

GODEY'S LADY'S BOOK.—Godey, for September, has been received. It is an entertaining number, and one that the ladies must appreciate. In addition to the sterling tales and general literary matter, in which its pages abound, we have some of the finest executed illustrations on fashions, &c. The engravings in this number are nearly seventy including the steel frontispiece, a beautiful subject ; the colored fashion plate, of six figures, and a brace of humorous tinted sketches. Godey continues to maintain its pre-eminence as the best fashion book published in America.

RUMORED DISMISSAL.—The Toronto Globe says :—" Mr. Russell, Assistant-Commissioner of Crown Lands, who has been forty-one years in the public service—a man of the most upright character—and who, so far as we know, has always discharged his duty faithfully and efficiently, was informed to his astonishment last week by Mr. Richards that his services were no longer wanted in the office. He remonstrated, and sought to know the cause of so summary a proceeding, but received no satisfaction. He was asked to resign—but refused to do so ; and it was rumored last night that his dismissal is to appear in the Government Gazette to-day, and that fifteen months' salary are to be paid him as compensation." It is rather singular that neither of the other Toronto Dailies has any reference to this rumored dismissal.

Y. M. C. A.

To a traveller the letters Y. M. C. A. are very familiar ones. Almost the first thing that attracts the eye of the stranger in visiting our cities and large towns is a card hung in a conspicuous place at depots, hotels, halls and churches, informing you that there is within that city or town a Y. M. C. A. or Young Men's Christian Association, giving you the hour of meeting, and extending a cordial invitation to their rooms, where there is generally a "free reading room" replete with the leading newspapers, monthlies and quartilies. The rapid growth of these honored associations is wonderful. Ten years ago almost unknown on this continent, now one of the most mighty agencies of the church. At the recent International Convention held in Portland, five thousand conversions were reported as the result of the year's labors, and it is estimated that the membership is over half a million. The power for good that these associations are, is incalculable ; their first great object being the conversion of every young man, they employ every means to this end. The officers are generally men with large hearts, filled with love to Christ, men of affable manners, who will talk and introduce to their rooms, and to their own homes young men who are strangers. Their rooms are always attractive places, light, airy, well furnished, just such a place as a young man would like to spend his evenings, their meetings are no stiff, formal ones, but full of life and vigor. The exercises, whether of prayer, praise, or reading, are short ; they try to give every one something to do, one band visits our jails, holds Bible classes there, another visits the hospitals, giving spiritual advice and comfort to the afflicted ones. Some two or three other bands hold cottage prayer meetings, and in many other ways, too, they strive to keep their own hearts right, and lead others to seek the Saviour whom they have found.

Now our good town sadly lacks such an Association. We have large numbers of young men who, were there such an Association here, would gladly avail themselves of the privilege of spending the leisure hours there. We want a "free reading room." It is a disgrace that one of the most prosperous towns of Canada has not a reading room. It speaks badly for the community ; we doubt not were a Young Men's Christian Association formed, and a free reading room opened, it would be well sustained and patronized, and then the "fields are white" for such labours in Christ's vineyard ; there are plenty of places in town where crime and wretchedness reign supreme, where our churches with all their honoured agencies do not reach, and in a hundred other ways are there openings for the labours of consecrated young men. We are sorry a former attempt at organizing or at least of working such an association failed. Who will again try ? If they are earnest men they will succeed. Then let an Association at once be formed, men put into office, not because they are so and so, but because they have the higher, the true qualifications for such an office, an earnest yearning for the souls of young men, and with God's blessing they will succeed.

Sale of the Richardson Mine.

The property of the Richardson Gold Mining Company was put up for sale this day at noon, according to adjournment of the 14th inst. The first bid was $5,000, which run up by a spirited competition to $12,700. After the lapse of a few minutes $13,000 was bid and immediately advanced to $13,100. The last bidder, however, not being provided with the cash for prompt payment, and the next lower withdrawing his bid, the sale was again postponed till 3 o'clock this afternoon, when the property was set up at $12,700 ; after standing for some time a further advance of $10 was offered, making $12,710, at which sum it was knocked down, the purchaser being James Brown, Esq., M. P.

The Crops.

Now that the bulk of the harvest has been gathered or is cut down, we may with some degree of safety speak of the result. Hereabouts we have had little to complain about. The hay which came first, was heavier than has been known for many years, and although the weather was somewhat unfavorable for gathering it, from all we can learn the crop generally was housed in fair condition, and will be considerably above the average. Of Fall Wheat, there has not been much sown in this vicinity for several years, owing to the ravages of the insect. This year, however, a larger quantity was sown than usual, and although we have had some accounts of damage by the weevil, the injury done has been inconsiderable, and the yield per acre will be above the average. The Rye crop, which has pretty much been harvested, will also prove more than an average crop. Of Spring Wheat and Barley, we do not believe the County of Hastings ever produced more abundant crops. The berry of the wheat is plump and of average size ; that of the Barley is also plump, but the color of that we have seen is hardly as bright as in the best seasons. Of Oats and Peas, the crop may be set down as something extraordinary, and we do not believe more abundant crops of these cereals have ever been harvested in this section of the country. A good deal of this grain is standing yet, but it is sufficiently far advanced to warrant the statement we have made. The potato crop is far above the average ; on low lands the rot has made its appearance in some localities, and in the back Townships we understand, considerable injury will be done to the crop from this cause ; on high lands the yield will be great. Of all other descriptions of root crops the prospect is that there will be an abundance. The fruit crop also promises well ; scarcely ever has there been such a supply of cherries and berries, and although the supply of apples, pears and plums, does not promise to be as large as in the early part of the season we were led to expect, still the crop will be considerably above the average.

Altogether, taking the harvest as a whole, we have abundant cause for congratulation, and thankfulness to the Giver of every good gift. Our barns and storehouses are full and running over, and the prospect of good times was never better. Let us not forget in the day of our prosperity, to whom we are indebted for all these mercies, which have been so bountifully bestowed upon us.

The Stabbing Affray.

SATURDAY, Aug. 21st, 1869.

The case was resumed this forenoon at 11 o'clock, before F. McAnnany, Esq., J. P.

Mr. Dickson in opening the case for the prisoner, said the defence would be that the prisoner had committed no offence.

THOS. DOWNS, recalled : I heard that a party consisting of Mike Cummings, James Cummings and others, had organized to search for and beat Lawlor ; I was told this the day after the row with Kehoe ; I saw some of them together about half-past seven on Thursday evening coming out of L. Williams' ; saw them going down toward the Club House ; Mike Cummings was amongst them ; Massey told me that they were going down for the purpose of having a row ; I told Scholes and Moore that I heard there was to be a row ; Mike Cummings and Barney Gollagher were with the party ; the information I received as a Constable put me on my guard ; saw Lawlor go down on the opposite side of the street, and behind him were walking James Cummings and a man, I think named Eustice ; could not positively say it was Eustice ; saw the same man in the crowd spoken off afterwards ; later in the evening I saw Mike Cummings and another person near the market ; can't positively say who it was, but think it was McLaughlin or Quinn ; McLaughlin and Quinn formed part of the crowd to which I refer ; think I told McCrudden, one of the constables, that a crowd was organized to thrash Lawlor ; after arresting Kehoe on Monday evening returned down street, and saw both James and Michael Cummings ; never heard Mike Cummings or James Cummings threaten Lawlor ; was not in James Cummings' store on Tuesday ; since Mike Cummings came to town I heard James Cummings say that his brother, Mike Cummings, would thrash Lawlor before he went home ; this is since Mike Cummings came to town ; when we tried to arrest Lawlor first only James Cummings and myself assisted.

Cross-examined.—Saw first three and five persons coming out of Williams'. It is not uncommon to see three or five persons come in or go out of Cronn's or Williams'. Heard the next day that Lawlor was round with a hatchet ; was in Cronn's : don't know for what purpose. Never heard Lawlor make any threats. Have seen Lawlor with some of the parties composing the crowd spoken of. Gollagher told me there was going to be a fuss down street.

JAMES CUMMINGS, re-called, said, I have no recollection of offering Paddy Lawlor $10 or any sum of money if he would stand before my brother for five minutes. Paddy Lawlor and my brother had some words on Tuesday afternoon ; saw them and went down to prevent any row. I made some remark to Lawlor, but don't know what it was. I did not see Lawlor first and then tell my brother Lawlor was coming. I did not go into Williams' and tell my brother Lawlor was coming up street. Don't recollect of telling any person that I offered Lawlor $10 if he would stand before my brother five minutes. Did not tell Massey so.

Mr. Burdett objected to this kind of evidence.

The Magistrate said he supposed the only object was that the Counsel for the defence was trying to show that the prisoner was acting on the defensive.

Mr. Dickson said he had no disposition to trifle with the Court, but he was prepared to show that the prisoner was justified in the course he took.

The Magistrate said if the prisoner was apprehensive that his life was to be taken, the prisoner might be justified. But it was a question whether he had any right to try the case. He was, however, prepared to hear the evidence, and if a conspiracy existed let it be brought out.

JAMES CUMMINGS' examination, continued —Perhaps in the excitement of the moment I may have made some such statement as that mentioned. Lawlor followed me, and told me to get my big brother ; never said in the Club House that I would give $100 to any person who would thrash Lawlor ; this is the fourth time Lawlor has attacked me ; up to Tuesday I was good friends with Lawlor ; have taken the clothes off my back and given them to him, and given him money ; I was not out of my own house after half-past eight on Tuesday evening ; my brother Michael was out ; don't know what time he came home ; don't know what he was out for ; before I went into the house my brother was in company with David Bradford ; never heard him say he would lick Lawlor ; have no reason to believe that it was his intention.

Cross-examined—Don't know what caused the words between my brother and Lawlor ; I went down to prevent a row ; Lawlor told me he could lick me and my big brother ; after he stabbed me Lawlor came over to me as I was going to the Dr., and said he would cut my g—ts out ; I cut across the corner to get out of his way ; he then had the knife in his hand ; I saw the knife in his hand ; I did not swear to this the other day ; I was not in a conspiracy to beat Lawlor ; I have went out of my way to get rid of these affrays ; between the time Lawlor struck Langley, and when the Constable got into the room, was not more than a minute.

Re-examined.—On Tuesday some one about the Club House told me that Lawlor was looking for me with a hatchet ; think it was the bar tender. I did not state in my previous examination that I did not see the knife after I was stabbed.

At this stage of the proceedings the case adjourned until three o'clock this afternoon. The evidence will be continued on Monday.

Keeping One's Eyes Open.

Nobody is more like an honest man than a thorough rogue. When you see a man with a great deal of religion displayed in his shop window, you may depend upon it he keeps a very small stock within. Do not choose your friends by his looks ; handsome shoes often pinch the feet. Don't be fond of compliments, remember. "Thank you, pussy, and thank you, pussy," killed the cat. Don't believe in the man who talks most for mowing eats are very seldom good mousers. By no means put yourself in another person's power ; if you put your thumb between grinders, they are very apt to bite. Drink nothing without reading it, and make sure that it means no more than it says. Don't go to law unless you have nothing to lose ; lawyer's houses are built of fools' heads. In any business, never wade into water where you cannot see the bottom. Put no dependence upon the lable of a bag ; and count money after your own kin. See the sack opened before you buy what is in it ; for he who trades in the dark asks to be cheated. Keep clear of the man who does not value his own character. Beware of every one who swears ; he who would blaspheme his Maker would make no bones of lying or stealing. Beware of no man more than yourself ; we carry our worst enemies within us. When a new opinion or doctrine comes before you, do not bite until you know whether it is bread or a stone ; and do not be sure that the gingerbread is good because of the gilt on it. Never shout halloa ! till you are quite out of the wood ; and don't cry fried fish till they are caught in the net. There's always time enough to boast—wait a little longer. Don't throw away dirty water till you have got clean ; keep on at scraping the roads till you can get better work ; for the poorest pay is better than none ; and the humblest office is better than being out of employment. Always give up the road to bulls and madmen ; and never fight with a coal-heaver, or contend with a base character, for they will be sure to blacken you.

Neither trust nor contend,
Nor lay wagers, nor lend,
And you may depend
You'll have peace to your end.

Rev. C. H. Spurgeon's John Ploughman's Talk.

'Tommy, my son, fetch in a stick of wood.' 'Ah ! my dear mother,' responded the youth, 'the gramatical portion of your education has been sadly neglected.' You should have said, 'Thomas, Thomas, my son, transport from that recumbent collection of combustible material upon the threshold of this edifice one of the curtailed excresences of a defunct log.'

—One of the best fly killers is said to be a tumbler of whiskey, sugar and water. They will gather about it in swarms, drink it very greedily, get drunk instantly tumble in head over heels immediately after, and die in a jiffy. Those who have tried it say that it will kill the pests ten times quicker than the lighting fly killer and ten times more of them than the old fashionable cup of molasses and water. It won't cost much to do it, and there are lots of flies to experiment on now.

WEEDS.—If you plow down your weeds before they go to seed they will prove a benefit to your land instead of a curse. If they are allowed to go to seed they will be a source of endless trouble. Plowed under they will be worth as much as a dressing of manure. Beside enriching the soil they tend to keep it loose. If you add from twenty-five to fifty bushels of lime per acre to the ground, and harrow it in, it will convert your weeds into planthood.

THE HARVARD BOAT RACE.

LONDON, Aug. 20.—Both the Harvard and Oxford crews were out again for practice last evening. The Harvards at the start made 38 strokes per minute, which was increased to 40. The pace was good and well sustained throughout.

The Harvard crew went over the course to-day, from Putney to Mortlake in 22m. 20s. Their time from the aqueduct to Hammersmith bridge was 9m. 25s. The Oxonians rowed only from the aqueduct to Hammersmith bridge, making the distance in 9m. 20s. The wind was not so favorable for them as for the Harvards, but they had a better tide.

IRISH SYNODS.

DUBLIN, August 20.—The Archbishops of Armagh and Dublin have issued an address to the Clergy and Laity, announcing a speedy meeting of Provincial Synods, and requesting the Laity to make preparations for sending representatives to the Synods. The Archbishops offer no suggestions, but invite freedom of action on the part of the Laity, and express their readiness to make use of the parochial system of diocesian conferences, if desired. The Dublin Synod will meet at St. Patrick's Cathedral on the 15th September.

BELFAST, August 20.—A meeting of the clergy of this diocese was held here to-day, the Bishop presiding. It was resolved that the Diocese Synod be convened to consist of equal numbers of clergy and laymen.

FRANCE.

LONDON, Aug. 20.—The Times in an article on the Liberal changes in the French Government says:—"The Emperor Napoleon, after presiding over the destinies of France for seventeen years, and after doing much to make amends for the loss of the liberties of France, will do well, if by restoring those liberties, he proves that he considers the reasonable part of his reign a prelude to that of his son. There will be no lack of opportunities for the French to accustom themselves to regard the son as the natural lieutenant of the father."

THE CONSPIRACY AGAINST JUAREZ.

PARIS, Aug. 20.—Information has been received from the City of Mexico that two Frenchmen and a Belgian, all partisans of the late Emperor Maximillian, have been arrested as implicated in the conspiracy against the life of President Juarez. It is stated that the American Minister at Mexico refused to intercede for them.

THE ŒCUMENICAL COUNCIL.

BERLIN, Aug. 20.—A correspondent of the Cross Gazette at Rome, asserts that the late Syllabus of the Pope will form the chief subject of deliberation of the Œcumenical Council. The paragraphs concerning the relations of Church and State will be modified, and generally intensified. The dogmas of the infallibility of the Pope and the spiritual and corporeal assumption of the Virgin Mary will be promulgated. The Holy Father has expressed his regret that no schismatic or Protestant Bishop has offered to take part in the Council.

EXECUTION OF CARLISTS.

MADRID, Aug. 20.—Two Carlists have been shot at Tenlente without trial. Casalla, the officer who recently shot nine Carlist prisoners, has written a self-exculpatory letter in which he says that in executing his prisoners he merely complied with the orders of the Government. The Government declares that the orders only applied to highwaymen.

THE PRESS ON AMERICAN ACQUISITION OF CUBA.

LONDON, Aug. 20.—This morning's Star has an editorial on the subject of the acquisition of Cuba by the United States, wherein it says, "As a naval and military position in the Gulf of Mexico, Cuba is of no great value. Troops and a squadron would be required there, but the people of America will whom the acquisition of Cuba is so popular, would offer no objection to such an outlay. There is no reason for Great Britain to grudge their possession. England's possession in those seas are so exposed to attack at present that the danger cannot be augmented. In the interests of commerce, it is desirable that Cuba be prosperous, and her prosperity is much more probable under the American Government than as a distressed colony or a Spanish Republican.

Most of the Carlist bands have been dispersed. It is rumored that a conspiracy in favor of the Prince of Austrias have been discovered by the Spanish authorities.

Business Notice.

Not many weeks ago a rich but childless landed proprietor breathed his last, leaving a large circle of relations to mourn his loss, and squabble over their prospects of sharing his wealth. The day for reading the will at last came; the room was crowded with anxious expectants; the will was opened and to the inexpressible joy of all, the rich gentleman's relations found that to each of them had been bequeathed a case of Royal Italian Bitters.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry.

Where this article is known it is a work of supererogation to say one word in its favor, so well is it established as an unfailing remedy for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Asthma, Diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs, as well as that most dreaded of all diseases, Consumption, which high medical authority has pronounced to be an incurable disease. Those who have used this remedy know its value; those who have not, have but to make a single trial to be satisfied that of all others it is THE REMEDY.

THE REV. JACOB SECHLER,

well known and much respected among the German population of this country, writes as follows:

HANOVER, Pa., Feb. 16, 1859.

MESSRS. S. W. FOWLE & SON, Boston.

DEAR SIRS,—Having realized in my family important benefits from the use of your valuable preparation—Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry—it affords me pleasure to recommend it to the public. Some eight years ago, one of my daughters appeared to be in a decline, and little hopes of her recovery were entertained. I then procured a bottle of your excellent Balsam, and before she had taken the whole of it there was a great improvement in her health. I have, in my individual case, made frequent use of your valuable medicine, and have always been benefitted by it. I would, however, caution the public against imposition, because there is a good deal of spurious 'Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry' afloat throughout the country.

Grace's Celebrated Salve.

From MR. JAMES CUBLIN, OF AMESBURY, MASS.

"I was afflicted with a severe felon on one of my fingers, and tried many remedies without relief. My friends induced me to apply your Salve. In two days it attracted the inflammation from my finger so as to enable me to resume my work. I can almost say that the Salve worked like magic, for it effected a cure without leaving a scar. I unhesitatingly pronounce 'Grace's Salve' an excellent remedy, and do not doubt it will be appreciated throughout the land." 25

Wimbledon Sweetmeats.—Bull's-eyes.

An old lady, hearing somebody say the mails were very irregular, said: 'It was just so in my young days—no trusting any of 'em.'

'I say, Pete, when my little boy gets his hair cut, why ort dat to be regarded as a great phenomena?' 'I don't know, Bill.' 'Coz it am de 'clipse of de sun.'

'Mammy!' said a precocious little boy, who against his will was made to rock the cradle of his baby brother, 'if the Lord has any more babies to give away, don't you take 'em.'

A drunken man walking along the street at night with his hands thrown back, looking at the moon with sovereign contempt, was heard to exclaim: 'You needn't be so proud, Madam moon. You are full once a month, and me every night.'

At a party, while a young lady was playing with peculiar brilliancy of touch, a bystander bachelor exclaimed, 'I'd give the world for those fingers.' 'Perhaps you might get the whole hand by asking,' said the young lady's observant mamma.

In replying to the toast of the 'Tenants' Wives' at Inverarie, Mr. Maitland, farmer, Ballhagardy, is reported to have said, amid cheers and laughter, 'that he hoped they might a' dee afore their wives, as he didna think they could get on ava without them.'

A clergyman who was lately consoling a young widow on the death of her husband, spoke in a very serious tone, remarking that he was 'one of the few. Such a jewel of a christian!' 'You cannot find his equal, as you well know.' To which the sobbing fair one replied, with an almost broken heart, 'I'll bet I will!'

'Miss,' said Smike to a young lady, 'what a pity you are not a mirror!' 'Why so?' 'Because you are such a good looking lass.'

'Dostsicks,' describing a New York boarding house, says you can always tell when they get a new kitchen girl, by the color of the hair in the biscuit.

During an examination, a medical student being asked the question, 'When does mortification ensue?' He replied, 'When you pop the question and are answered no.'

Miss Anthony, writes her speeches in bed, and the Chicago Post naughtily says, this is a sure proof that they are her own composition.'

A New Orleans paper says that a young widow in that city, who writes well, is training herself for an editor. We hope that we are not the editor she is training herself for.

Clara, (looking at the bonnets, &c.); 'Don't you think they are very handsome? Amy (whose thoughts are on the other side of the street) 'Very,' specially the one with the black moustache.'

A Rocky Mountain editor says,—'Among all the female wants of the present day, female suffrage, female rights, &c., an important one is overlooked—female women.'

WESTERN ORATORY.—Specimens of western oratory are rather stale; but here is a bit, related by a trustworthy authority as authentic, which has not been in print before:—Where is Europe compared with America? Nowhar! Where is England? Nowhar! They call England the mistress of the sea; but what makes the sea? The Mississippi River makes it. And all we've got to do is to turn the Mississippi into the Mammoth Cave, and the English navy will be floundering in the mud.

A clergyman at Saratoga wrote home a very funny estimate of the value of a certain lady's dress, which he plaintively remarked was valued "at my salary for two years." But when the reverend gatherer of statistics came to the lady's diamonds, he was still more particular. "They are equal to value," he said to the cost of a comfortable mission church, with infant room attached, gas fixtures and cabinet organ included." We wonder if the gentleman, when at home, is in the habit of taking sights at the ladies of his congregation in the same financial way.

Josh Billings on the Black Man.

The Black man emigratid tew this free and plus kuntry about two hundred years formerly, in the lower story of a vessel; he was kindly furnished with a free ride, and some rice and water for vitties.

Immediately upon his arrival he commenced business for other folks on our eastern coast, and had plenty tew do.

He was very ekonomical in his habits ov clothes, wearing but fu, and those seldom made out of cassimers.

He okasionally changed his lokation, moving into an adjoining State, but in these journeys he was always kindly furnished with a guide, so that there was no danger ov his getting lost.

In these trips he seldom took his family with him; they were either tew remain at hum or make excursions in search ov work, to other States under the guidance ov experienced guides.

Once in a while the Black Man would stray away far to the cold and bitter North and get cruelly lost.

His guides would mourn for him then, and search for him, but his family soon got reconciled tew the loss.

Everybody ned, where he lived, that he was the happiest critter that had ever been diskovered yet, with nothing to do but work, and a kind guide to watch over him awl the time, and mourn for him when he got lost.

But the Black Man iz a verry phoolish critter.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys, is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Inveterate cases of Scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous affections and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulous contamination until the whole system painfully suffering, have been radically cured in numbers in almost every section of the country, that the public scarcely need to be informed of its virtues or cures.

Scrofula is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this unseen and unfelt tenant of the organism undermines the constitution, and invites the attack of enfeebling or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed infection throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develops into sore or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the overwhelming necessity of this Sarsaparilla to aid vivacious action of these active functions of disease upon it. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief and, at length, cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Itch, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, sore Ears, and other eruptions of the skin forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Tic, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various Ulcerous affections of the muscular and nervous systems.

Syphilis or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these obstinate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of the medicine will cure the complaint. Leucorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute Directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaints, Dyspepsia or Indigestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when arising as they often do, from the same cause—poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great remedy for the cure of the various forms of the system. Those who are Languid and Listless, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the affections symptomatic of Nervous weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonic complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in the estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the throat and lungs have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against sudden attack of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, it should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although called Consumption in thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of these yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, or do more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from miasmatic, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Bismuth, Zinc, nor any mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it in no wise injures any patient. The number of permanent cures in the ague districts, sometimes of second accounts, and we believe of third, is truly wonderful. The history of Ague in this country is gratifying, for the acknowledgments we receive of the perfect cures effected in obstinate cases, and where other remedies had wholly failed.

Unacclimated persons, either residents, or travelling through miasmatic localities, will be protected by taking the AGUE CURE daily.

For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy activity.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly remarkable cures, where other remedies had failed.

Prepared by DR. J. C. AYER & Co., Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass., and sold all round the world.

QUERY?

Should we employ the noble doctors to bring us our tea and coffee in bottles, at an expense of at least four times what they now cost?

If not, why should we longer adopt that system in reference to medicines, which are but simple extracts of roots, herbs and roots, and are as readily prepared as tea and coffee?

Each package of Dr. Thompson's Botanic Medicines contains more medical properties than can be procured in any other form for four times the amount of money.

We have in our possession numerous testimonials as to the practicability of as well as the benefits derived from the use of Dr. Thompson's Botanic Medicines, for sale by

THIS Celebrated Preparation—for which a Certificate of Merit was awarded to the original preparers at the National Exposition at Torino, Italy, by whose favor Mr. Gianelli obtained the Recipe, and was awarded a Diploma at the Provincial Exhibition of Canada, held at Montreal in September, 1865, is without exception, the most Genuine, Salubrious and agreeable Tonic ever introduced to public notice either in Europe or America.

For seventeen years it has, in Italy, been a universal favorite among the elite of society, being generally served in the Drawing Room immediately before dinner, in preference to Vermouth.

Vol. 3. BELLEVILLE, COUNTY OF HASTINGS, DOMINION OF CANADA, MONDAY EVENING, AUGUST 23, 1869. No. 95.

The Stabbing Affray.

IMPORTANT EVIDENCE.

SATURDAY, 3 o'clock, p. m.

The case was resumed before Francis McAnnany, Esq., at 3 o'clock, p. m.

DAVID BRENNAN sworn.—Was present in Williams' bar-room at the time of the affray. Went in with Langley. Lawlor was standing at the window. Think Langley spoke first to Lawlor about Mike Cummings. Could not swear positively whether any one asked Lawlor to drink or not. We three, Cummings, myself and Langley had one drink, and Lawlor still stood at the window. Lawlor made an advance towards us; there were some words between Cummings and Lawlor, and some words between Langley and Lawlor. Lawlor got angry as soon as he was twitted of being called Mike Cummings. Should say there must have been some angry feeling before that time. Heard both Cummings and Lawlor use hard words towards each other. Heard the words "d—m son of a b—h." Won't say whether Lawlor told Langley to stop away or he would kick him. When Lawlor was arrested Cummings and Downs both rushed upon him. The first thing that Downs and Cummings did when they came in was to rush upon Lawlor. Don't think that Downs told Lawlor he was going to arrest him. Don't recollect seeing any girl around, there might have been. Lawlor was pushed into a small room and thrown over the table. I saw the long cut under the arm. I don't recollect seeing more than two cuts in Cummings' coat. Cummings had hold of Lawlor by the the throat; was swearing at Lawlor, and was very angry. Both Lawlor and Cummings were angry. On the night of the School meeting—Monday—David Holden and I met Jim and Mike Cummings with two or three others, on the street. I can't swear which of the party used the language "son of a b—h." The row was quiet when the Policeman came into the room; Langley and Lawlor were parted at the time; they were parted not more than half a minute; I was not near Lawlor when he was caught hold of. I don't think Lawlor wanted to touch Langley again; It seemed the row was caused by Lawlor representing himself as Cummings' brother; did not see Lawlor slap Cummings' face before Cummings went out for the Policeman; I think they were both sparring at each other; I considered that Downs and Cummings came in to arrest Lawlor; Downs had his stick up shaking it at Lawlor, and Cummings seized him, at the same time shoved him on the table and got him down; they did not go to Langley first, but went immediately to Lawlor; Lawlor was standing in the middle of the floor when arrested.

JAMES MCCARTHY, sworn.—I am bartender in Williams' saloon, where the row took place; I saw the first of the row; Cummings had been in often during the day; Lawlor was in the house all the day, and every time Cummings came in; Lawlor was stopping in all the day; no one was in the bar-room when Cummings and Langley came except Lawlor and myself; Lawlor was standing looking out of the window all the time, and could have seen them when they came; Lawlor did not turn his head, or look at them; Langley looked around the door, the door being pushed back; and called out to Lawlor, and says, "come on Mike Cummings, and have something to drink;" Lawlor got mad at him, and told him not to give him any of his lip, or he would kick the paunch out of him; Cummings spoke up and says, "no you don't Lawlor;" Lawlor came towards the middle of the floor, and Cummings went up to him; they were abusing each other; Langley got then from behind the door, and said something to Lawlor, and then Langley "got the boots;" Cummings went out for the police; the row was commenced by Langley calling Lawlor Mike Cummings, and no disturbance would have taken place, had it not been for this, as Lawlor was standing at the window paying no attention to them; Lawlor was quite sober; he refused several during the day to drink, as he said he wanted to keep sober; remember Dalton and Taugher asking him to drink, and he refused; after Dalton went out Lawlor said that he was one of the "gang," and wanted to make him drink; Lawlor told me the next morning after the "Kehoe row" that Cummings was looking for him; I gave Lawlor that night a large coat to disguise him; I was in the sitting room when the policeman and Cummings came in to arrest Lawlor; Lawlor was at this time standing in the hall; I did not see what occurred in the bar-room; when I come out I heard Cummings hallooing out that he was stabbed, and Downs' was running out the door at a 2:40 rate; when the policeman came in all was quiet; I did'nt see a blow struck; I know that Lawlor told Langley to keep away or he would kick him; If Cummings and the policeman had kept away, there would have been no more row; I did not hear Downs ask Langley who struck him; Downs went right to Lawlor; he did not wait to ask him; Lawlor came into the bar-room before Cummings came into the sitting-room; it was an hour afterwards.

Cross-examined.—Did not hear Lawlor threaten Cummings; Lawlor put his fingers up at Cummings' nose and asked him if he wanted any more; he then kicked Langley and Cummings went after the police; did not hear Langley cry murder; when Downs came back the row was all over.

SARAH SMITH, sworn.—Live with Mr. Williams; I remember the time of the row referred to; I was ironing in the kitchen and I heard James Cummings say several times "I dare you;" I have no doubt it was him used the words; don't know whom he was speaking to; heard considerable confusion; while I was going through the hall to get into the sitting room Cummings, Downs, and some other person pushed Lawlor against me; I saw I could not get out that way and then went back and stood in the door; I saw James Cummings have Lawlor by the coat, near the throat, with both hands shoving him into the sitting-room; Downs was then standing by; he had not hold of Lawlor; Cummings was very angry and told Lawlor that he would be arrested and offered to assist in arresting him; Lawlor said he would not be arrested; it was then that Cummings told the Constable he would assist him, at the same time Cummings had Lawlor jammed up against the door; Lawlor was resisting; Cummings and the policeman then shoved Lawlor into the sitting room, and he would have fallen on the floor if it had not been for a bench and table which were in the way; Cummings shoved Lawlor on the table; Cummings and the Policeman held Lawlor on the table; Cummings still kept hold of Lawlor and asked the Policeman for his stick, saying that he would lay him (Lawlor) out; the Policeman would not give it to him, and Cummings tried to get it away from him; but the stick witness thinks, was fastened on his arm; Cummings further said if he could get the stick he would have satisfaction then; he said he would lay him out so that he could be arrested; Lawlor said he would not lay there to be murdered; Lawlor then drew a knife and struck Cummings; he got the knife out of his pocket; he was then lying on his back with Cummings over him; Downs was not in the room when the blow was struck; he left just after Cummings asked for the stick; Lawlor struck twice at Cummings but only struck him the first time; Lawlor did not strike after he got on to his feet; he might have struck him afterward; Cummings went out just as Lawlor rose from the table; I was quite near to both parties at the time.

Cross-examined.—Can't say positively whether Lawlor was present when Cummings said, 'I dare you,' I know Cummings' voice well; and know positively that he used the words; I saw the three push Lawlor; when Cummings had hold of Lawlor by the throat, the policeman did not have hold of him; from the position they were in the hall no other person could have hold of Lawlor; I could see through Lawlor and Cummings, and saw that the policeman did not have hold of Lawlor; Cummings had hold of Lawlor alone on the table, and tried to take the stick from the policeman; Lawlor was lying on his back on the table; the policeman then left; Cummings said if he had the stick he would lay him out; Lawlor said he would not lay there to be murdered; suppose he would have been murdered if he laid there; Cummings raised his hand to strike Lawlor, and struck him with his fist, and hit him on the breast; then Lawlor used the words that "he was not going to lay there to be murdered," and then struck Cummings with a knife; this other man had hold of Lawlor helping Cummings before e Lawlor struck him.

Re examined.—What I meant by saying I could see through Lawlor and Cummings was that I could see between them and under Cummings' arms.

The case was then adjourned until Monday morning at 11 o'clock.

A GERMAN CUSTOM.—A letter from Weimar says they have two very pretty customs there connected with the erection of houses. One is that a young child always drives the first nail into one of the timbers, and an inscription is made upon the wood bearing the name and age of the child, date of erection, &c. Then, when the house is raised, a few planks are laid for flooring in an upper story, when the master builder, his workmen and all well disposed friends assemble to sing a song of praise to God for the safe accomplishment thus far of their undertaking. Then a band of music plays, numerous bottles of wine are drunk, and there are speeches, toasts and huzzas from stentorian German throats.

BELLEVILLE, MONDAY, AUG. 23.

INWARDS.—The steamer "Pervnian" passed Father Point, inwards, at four o'clock yesterday afternoon, with 88 cabin and 428 steerage passengers.

BRIGADE ENCAMPMENT.—The Kingston Whig says —"On the 13th prox. the Frontenac Battalion of Volunteer Militia, (47th) under Col. Herchmer; one Battalion of Lennox and Addington, (48) under Col. Fowler; three troops of Volunteer Cavalry, under Col. Sweetman, Majors Wood and Duff, and one Company of Garrison Artillery (that at Napanee) will be brigaded and encamped near Kingston for two weeks.

GOVERNOR MCDOUGALL.—The Toronto Leader says —"We believe we are correct in stating that it is Mr. McDougall's intention to go to the Red River Territory in his gubernatorial capacity some time in the month of October. He is already casting about for a suitable residence, and will lose no time after the Queen's proclamation of transfer has been received in entering upon the discharge of his duties in the new territories."

THE STORM AT MONTREAL.—The storm at Montreal on Thursday night is described as the most remarkable on record. The Gazette says: "According to Dr. Smallwood's observation, a little over three inches and three quarters of rain fell in one shower (3.762 inches.) This is a fall without any precedent in Canada, and is equal to some of the tropical down-pours. The rain commenced to fall about half past 10, and continued till shortly before morning. At times there was no wind; at others fitful and severe gusts. The village of St. Laurent and the low lands in the vicinity seemed to be a sheet of water in the morning. Some fine apple trees behind the Mountain were struck down we believe, by the lightning. One gentleman who had to go to his home on the Cote St. Catherine road, at about 1 o'clock, reports to us that the scene was fearfully grand. The night was pitch dark, the road being lit up by the lightning, the rain falling as if a water spout had burst. He found torrents descending from the slope of the Mountain in various places, at his own grounds almost stopping the entrance. Gravel and considerable sized boulders were washed before these torrents as if they were sawdust."

The Water Question.

Probably there is no local question of more importance than the water supply.—Every year the demand is increasing, and every year the supply is decreasing. The Tanks at different points on the principal streets, not many years ago, furnished an abundance of the best spring water, but now some of them are altogether empty, and from others can only be obtained a very small quantity. He is a lucky man who gets first to the tank in the morning, and those who are obliged to go during the the day have either to wait a long time, be content with barely sufficient to quench the thirst, or come away without it; or adopt the only other alternative, of travelling a mile or so to some friendly old-fashioned well which seems never to give out. This method of obtaining a water supply, however, cannot long be continued, and from whence we are to obtain a supply, has already become a very serious question with more than half the population of Belleville. All those who live in the business portion of the town, and on the plains in Sampson Ward and in West Belleville, are dependent nearly altogether upon the water furnished by the Tanks. That this supply is wofully deficient has long been known—that a great deal of hardship and suffering are occasioned by this deficiency is patent to every one—and that still greater suffering and disease and death must be the result, unless the people are furnished with good, wholesome water, will be conceded by every one who knows the situation. We would like, for instance, to be obliged to drink the water which runs sluggishly along the Moira at this season of the year, mixed, as it is, with the filth from a hundred privies and drains? And yet we are told there are those who do drink it, some knowingly, and others unwittingly. Who would like, for instance, to eat the bread in the manufacture of which this filthy, putrid, diseased water is used? And yet it is a common rumor on the street, that this water is used in the manufacture of bread and other articles of consumption. We do not know that it is so; indeed the very probability of such a thing is too repulsive to believe. Still it is within the bounds of probability, and to those who stand aghast at the idea of eating bread or biscuits so manufactured, or of drinking tea in which this water is used, let us ask, what are the bakers to do for water, if they cannot get it from the tanks? They use large quantities. After the tanks are emptied, and after they have exhausted the wells of those who give water willingly and ungrudgingly, what are they to do? What is the poor woman to do for water for her husband's tea when he comes home from his day's labor, or for her poor children when they wake up in the night feverish and thirsty? What will hotels and boarding houses do? What will the five thousand people do who are dependent upon the scanty supply which is obtained from the tanks, and which it is calculated is not more than half sufficient to supply the demand?

These are questions which are being asked every day, and which it is time the Town authorities took into their earnest consideration. The people may get along the remainder of this season; how they get along on half rations may be understood from the suggestions thrown out, but this system will not answer much longer. Preliminary steps ought to be taken at once, so that by next summer a temporary supply of wholesome water can be obtained. The want is so great—the results of this scarcity come home to every one of us, and are of such a serious character, that it will not do to put the question off any longer. Various plans have been suggested, amongst others, that of building a reservoir in some central locality, digging several wells on the side of the hill, and utilizing the water thus obtained. An artesian well has been spoken of, and we understand a practical engineer has given it as his opinion, that an abundant supply can be obtained by this means at an expense not exceeding $5,000. However, it will be for the authorities to take such steps as may be deemed advisable, after consulting with engineers and practical men, and it is earnestly to be hoped that these steps may be taken without delay.

I forgot the flowers.'"

The Stabbing Affray.

FOURTH DAY.

MONDAY, Aug. 23rd, 1869.

The case was resumed this forenoon at 11 o'clock, before F. McAnnany, Esq., J. P.

DAVID BRADFORD, Jr., sworn—I know the parties concerned in this case; I was with Mike Cummings on Tuesday last, a little after six o'clock; was with him two or three hours; did not go with him to Lawlor's house; went as far as Wallbridge's, corner of Dundas street; I was not looking for Lawlor; did not hear Lawlor's name mentioned that night; did not use the words "I could get away with such a man as Lawlor any day"; don't recollect of ever using those words; neither Simon Sheehan nor John Quinn was with the crowd; Mc-Laughlin, Nick Mann and Mick Cummings were there; it was on Tuesday night; did not hear any one say "go over to Paddy Lawlor's house and tell him his vessel was loose"; never heard Mike Cummings threaten to whip Lawlor; did not see Lawlor go into Perkins' shoe shop; did not hear any one say that Lawlor had gone in there; I saw Paddy Lawlor walk down the sidewalk opposite the Club House; I heard Mike Cummings say "there goes Paddy Lawlor down the sidewalk"; no one was with Lawlor at that time; some one joined him afterwards, but don't know who it was; when we were standing in front of Cronn's James Cummings and I walked down as far as the market and came right back; Jas. Cummings then went up to his house where I left him at his house; Mike Cummings and others came up and we were invited down to Cronn's to have some oysters; was not on board the Bay of Quinte that night; I went home about half-past ten; Did not hear any one say that we should go and find Paddy Lawlor, and did not say "if any one was wanted I would help."

Cross examined.—When I left James Cummings he gave me the key of his house, and told him to go after his brother Mike and bring him home.

Re-examined—I was in the Street on Wednesday after Lawlor was arrested; Jas. Cummings did not tell me to go for any person; I went up to the Foundry from my own place and told McLachlan Cummings was stabbed: Downs told me that Cummings was stabbed; I had my team put up and was just coming out of the gate; Downs told me Lawlor had stabbed Cummings; I then went over to the Foundry and told McLachlan; did not ask him to go with me; it was then a few minutes to six; McLachlan came over with me.

At this stage of the proceedings Mr. Jellett asked what ground there was for going on and trying this case. Was there not evidence to send Lawlor to trial for stabbing?

Mr. Dickson said the defence was endeavoring to show that there was a conspiracy to thrash Lawlor, and the Court had already decided to hear the evidence and find the bottom of it.

Mr. Jellet said there was no evidence to show a conspiracy. The facts were, a constable was called upon to arrest a prisoner for assault; Cummings was asked to assist; while he was assisting he was stabbed by the prisoner; this is clearly proved and I do not see that the Magistrate has any right to try the case.

The Magistrate said the evidence was all right if he was to try the case in a summary manner. But I have no such right. But I do not know what line of defence the prisoner's Counsel may set up, and cannot until I hear it. That evidence might cause an extenuation of my decision. The Magistrate is not to try the case; he cannot say the stabbing was justifiable.

Mr. Dickson and Mr. Jellett at some length argued their respective positions.

The Magistrate read a clause in the Statute which gave power to any Magistrate to remand any prisoner to the Recorder's Court or Police Magistrate. The Police Magistrate has discretionary power to try the case, fine $100, or send the prisoner six months' to prison. I would further say to Mr. Jellett that I allowed this case to go on because I wanted the public to know whether there was any conspiracy or antagonism existing between parties in this community, and if such conspiracy existed the Magistrates should know it, so that it might be dealt with.

Mr. Dickson believed that the Magistrate might now send the case to the Police Magistrate for further hearing.

Mr. Jellett said the Magistrate could not send the case to the Police Magistrate without a request from the complainant, and referred to the Statute in support of his position.

Mr. Dickson said the case mentioned by Mr. Jellett did not apply to the powers and jurisdiction of Magistrates in towns and cities.

The Magistrate said if he remanded the prisoner the Police Magistrate could take up the case anew, or commence where we leave off.

Mr. Dickson asked who were the complainants.

Mr. Burdett said there were four, James Cummings, the Crown, Downs and Langley.

Mr. Dickson asked Downs if he was a complainant.

Mr. Downs said he had nothing to do with it.

Mr. Diamond said Langley told him he would have nothing to do with the case.

After some further argument on the part of both Counsel, the Magistrate said when the Police Magistrate left, he desired him to act in his place, in any case; he had done so, and believes he would only be doing his duty by sending the case to him.

The prisoner then through his Counsel asked for bail.

Mr. Burdett objected.

Mr. Dickson asked Mr. Burdett if he was acting for the Crown.

The Magistrate understood Mr. Burdett to say on Saturday that he was acting for Mr. Coleman.

Mr. Diamond said Mr. Simpson told him he never authorized Mr. Burdett to act.

Mr. Burdett said he was simply acting for Mr. Cummings.

Mr. Dickson said the prisoner, from information he had received, wanted James Cummings bound over to keep the peace.

Mr. Cummings said he would give security to keep the peace, and find bail if it is necessary, to the amount of $10,000.

The Magistrate then administered the oath to Cummings.

The prisoner was then admitted to bail, himself in the sum of $300, and two sureties each in the sum of $400.

From the Seaside.

BOSTON, Aug. 16th.

Leaving Portland on Wednesday evening by the steamer "John Brooks," we enjoyed a very pleasant trip to this city. The "John Brooks" is a large and very handsome steamer, and seems well adapted for the route. It is lit up with gas, manufactured on board. As we left Portland, and steamed through the harbor, a splendid view of the channels, islands and the city behind us, was obtained. Passing the Cape Elizabeth lights, a salute was given and returned by the ringing of the fog bells. Gradually, however, the different objects receded in the distance, and we were fairly "out to sea." The night was gloriously fine, just sufficient breeze to make it pleasant, and not enough to make one feel uncomfortable about the destination of the hearty supper that had been partaken off previous to leaving Portland. We sat on the forward deck for an hour or so enjoying the scene. The new moon sinking in the west, threw its rays across the waters, and they danced merrily along the waves. Time, however, and the promptings of the 'Growly god,' warned us to seek our staterooms, and we were not very loth to comply. We found the staterooms very comfortable, and had not long to woo before being received in the arms of Morpheus, who, on this occasion, was by no means coy. Upon awakening from our slumbers we found it, upon inspection of our chronometers, to be about 7 o'clock a. m., and our good steamer safely secured alongside the India dock.

Since last revisiting this very fine and—for this continent—ancient city, I was much surprised at the many and great improvements which had taken place within the short space of one year, and to learn of others and greater ones that are either in progress or contemplation. Brick buildings have been taken down, and handsome structures of marble and granite occupy their places. Private residences are changed into stores and the increasing wants of the trade. Since the annexation of Roxbury and Dorchester to Boston, thereby greatly increasing the extent of the place, and breaking away the barriers of a limited capacity, the city (and Boston is an American) began to "spread itself," and the acquisition of Charlestown, Cambridge, Watertown, and other suburban places, is only a question of time, and will add still greater facilities for the growth and expansion of this fine city in every direction. Since Roxbury and Dorchester "joined," the increase in the value of property at the South end of this city has been remarkable, and is still going up. A number of very fine blocks, and several very large hotels of granite and marble have been erected in that part, and as the streets are much wider and straighter than in the older portion of the city, it promises to become, and is very distant day, the handsomest portion of Boston. Improvement is the order of the day also at the the North end. The old tashioned, narrow and crooked streets are being gradually widened and extended, the authorities expecting—I believe—about two million dollars this year on street improvements alone, will make a vast difference in the appearance of that portion of the city.—On Washington street, near Cornhill, a magnificent structure of marble, called the Sears' block, and costing half a million dollars, has just been completed. This block, I was told, is about to let under a rental of $250,000 per annum. Rather a good paying investment. This valuable possession is the property of young Sears, the boy millionaire of whom the most of your readers probably have heard. This youth is about 14 years of age, the sole heir to the Sears' estate, said to be worth between two and three millions. It is in charge of Trustees, having power to invest, for the latter benefit, who arriving at man's estate, will, if the property is rightly managed, come in for a "nice little pile." Tremont street, from the corner of Boylston street, running south, is being widened some twenty feet. A large five story granite building on the corner of the latter street, and known as the Hotel Pelham, is rapidly being prepared for removal to the required distance, which is expected to be accomplished without in any way disturbing the inmates or interrupting the business usually carried on there. It looks like a very formidable undertaking to remove a building of such immense size and weight, the distance of twenty feet, especially under the conditions as above stated. The Bostonians are determined, however, to allow nothing to stand in the way of their cherished plans of city improvement, and in the language of one of the "hubbites" "they are bound to have as nice a city as any that's going." W.

THE CHAMPION FARMER.—John T. Alexander, of Michigan county, Illinois, is described as a plain, homespun farmer—tall, good looking, free and easy in manners, without the least particle of show in words or acts. His farm now comprises about 30,000 acres mostly under improvement. This is about one township and a half, about nine miles square, and all good land. He has now 5,000 acres of growing corn, and from 1,500 to 2,000 acres of grass. He is now feeding 10,000 head of cattle, and buys and ships East from Chicago from 1,000 to 2,000 head each week. He has risen to this great prominence by his own talent, energy and integrity. His business each and every year amounts to millions of dollars, and is entirely legitimate, adding to his own wealth and common welfare of the State.

ENGLAND AND CANADA.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—The 'Morning Standard' to-day has an editorial on Canadian matters. The writer says, 'There are probabilities of a change in the relations between Canada and Great Britain which would be distasteful to the majority of the inhabitants of the Dominion if they were consulted. If there is any dissatisfaction with the existing state of affairs it is only by feelings that we can safely make intelligible to those south of the frontier. All that can be done under the present government is to repudiate the notion that a withdrawal of the troops implies a desire to shuffle out of the responsibilities cast on Great Britain by the presence of a flag in colonial territory which means military administration. England is now in the hands of those who fail to appreciate the Canadian question."

EXAMINATION OF FORGERS.

Harwood and Hatcher, who were arrested at New York and taken to England for trial on a charge of forgery, were brought up at the Mansion House to-day for preliminary examination. At the close Hatcher was discharged and Harwood remanded for trial.

THE HARVARD AND OXFORD CREWS.

The Oxfords were out again to-day; they made a good race with 38 to 39 strokes per minute, well pulled. The Harvards also, were out with Jewett's boat. The boatswain's seat has been lowered, which increases the steadiness; they got away briskly at nearly 40 strokes per minute. Their rowing is regarded as very satisfactory. Good judges think that the Harvards are likely to take the lead in the race. At the special desire of the Harvards, Thomas Hughes, ex-Member of Parliament for Oxford, has been appointed referee. Simmons, of Harvard, is slightly indisposed to-day. Betting is 7 to 4 on Oxford.

At the scull race to-day, Kelley beat Sidler for the championship of the Thames.

THE CARLIST MOVEMENT.

MADRID, Aug. 22.—The Volunteers have petitioned the Government to spare the life of Polo, who was captured at the head of the Carlists, and the Perfect of Perpijan was arrested at Fristany with ten other Carlists, who were about to cross the frontier. The troops are still pursuing the fugitive Carlists, and have taken many prisoners.

The wife of Polo, the Carlist leader, who was captured at Almagto, has interceded with Prim for the life of her husband.

Dissensions have arisen in the Cabinet in regard to the manner in which the Government should proceed against those Bishops who have refused to obey the late decree of the Regent.

THANKFULNESS.—If one should give me a dish of sand and tell me there were particles of iron in it, I might look for them with my eyes, and search for them with my clumsy fingers, and be unable to detect them, but let me take a magnet and sweep through it, and it would draw to itself the most inevitable particles, by mere power of attraction. The unthankful heart, like my finger in the sand discovers no mercies; but let the thankful heart sweep through the day, and, as the magnet finds the iron, so it will find, in every hour, some heavenly blessing only the iron in God's sand is gold.—O. W. Holmes.

Business Notice.

Not many weeks ago a rich but childless landed proprietor breathed his last, leaving a large circle of relations to mourn his loss, and squable over their prospects of sharing his wealth. The day for reading the will at last came; the room was crowded with anxious expectants; the will was opened and to the inexpressible joy of all, the rich gentleman's relations found that to each of them had been bequeathed a case of Royal Italian Bitters.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry.

Where this article is known it is a work of supererogation to say one word in its favor, so well is it established as an unfailing remedy for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Asthma, Diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs, as well as that most dreaded of all diseases, Consumption, which high medical authority has pronounced to be an incurable disease. Those who have used this remedy know its value; those who have not, have but to make a single trial to be satisfied that of all others it is THE REMEDY.

THE REV. JACOB SECHLER,

well known and much respected among the German population of this country, writes as follows:

HANOVER, PA., Feb. 16, 1859.

Messrs. S. W. Fowle & Son, Boston:

DEAR SIRS,—Having realized in my family important benefits from the use of your valuable preparation—Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry—it affords me pleasure to recommend it to the public. Eight or nine years ago, one of my daughters appeared to be in a decline, and little hopes of her recovery were entertained. I then procured a bottle of your excellent Balsam, and before she had taken the whole of it there was a great improvement in her health. I have, in my individual case, made frequent use of your valuable medicine, and have always been benefited by it. Would, however, caution the public against imposition, because there is a good deal of spurious 'Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry' afloat throughout the country.

JACOB SECHLER.

Grace's Celebrated Salve.

From Mr. JAMES CURLIN, of AMESBURY, MASS.

"I was afflicted with a severe felon on one of my fingers, and tried many remedies without relief. My friends induced me to apply your Salve. In two days it extracted the inflammation from my finger so as to enable me to resume my work. I can almost say that the Salve worked like magic, for it effected a cure without leaving a scar. I unhesitatingly pronounce 'Grace's Salve' an excellent remedy, and do not doubt it will be appreciated throughout the land." 25

The Little Boy's Rebuke.

There was once a very old man who lived in the house of his son. The old man was deaf, his eyes dim, and his legs weak and thin. When he was at the table he could hardly hold his spoon, so much did his hand shake; and at times he would spill his soup on the tablecloth.

All this vexed his son and his son's wife; and they made the old man sit in the corner behind the stove. There he ate his food with an earthenware dish; and he had not always too much to eat, as you may guess. Well, one day, his trembling hands could not hold the dish; it fell on the floor, and broke. At this his son and his son's wife were vexed that they spoke harshly to the poor old man. His only answer was a deep sigh. They then brought him a bowl made of wood; out of which he had to eat his food. Not long after this, his grandson, a boy of about four years of age, was seen at work with a chisel and hammer hollowing a log of wood. His parents could not guess what he was trying to do. The little boy said nothing to any one, but kept at work on the log, and looked very grave, as if he had some great work on hand. "What are you doing there?" asked the father. The little boy did not want to tell. Then his mother asked, "What are you doing there my son?" "Oh!" said he, "I am only making a little trough, such as our pigs eat out of." "But what are you making it for, my son?" "I am making it for you and father to eat out of when I am a man." The parents looked at one another, and burst into tears. From that time forth they treated the old man well. He had the best place at the table, a nice dish, and plenty of food.

—Sir Henry Rawlinson, the eminent Oriental scholar, claims to have discovered the original records from which the Book of Genesis was composed, and illustrates his position by details of the most striking kind. He said the progress now reached in the collection and arrangement of the Nineveh inscribed fragments made it beyond a doubt that they would be able to derive the whole of the history given in the Book of Genesis, from the time of Abraham, from the original documents; and it was not too much to expect that almost the same facts and descriptions would be found in the Babylonian documents as in the Bible. He hoped very soon to have ready a paper on the Garden of Eden (Paradise), in which he would show that was the natural name of Babylonia. The rivers bore the very same names, and the Babylonian documents gave an exact geographical account of the Garden of Eden. The Flood and the Tower of Babel would be found to be most amply illustrated in the Babylonian documents.—Biblical scholars will look with interest for further revelations from Sir Henry.

Twenty years experience in using Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers have proved them to be the most effectual remedy for coughs, and irritation of the throat, caused by cold, or unusual exertion of the vocal organs; public speakers and singers will find them most beneficial. The entire freedom from all deletrious ingredients renders Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers, or Cough and Voice Lozenges, a safe remedy for the most delicate person, and has caused them to be held in high esteem by all who have used them. Sold by medicine dealers at 25cts. per box.

Stock Market.

The Montreal Gazette of the 20th quotes Stocks as follows:—

The stock market has been more steady during the past week than for some time previous. The demand for nearly all descriptions has been active, and in most cases higher prices are now procurable.

BANK OF MONTREAL.—After declining to 157, has again advanced, and is now asked for at 160.

BANK OF BRITISH NORTH AMERICA.—Has been largely dealt in at 105¾ to 105¾, closing firm with very little stock in market.

CITY BANK.—Very little offering, and holders now ask 102. The latest sales were at 101¾.

MOLSON'S BANK.—The only sales reported were at 109¾, at which price the stock is still procurable.

MERCHANTS' BANK.—Has steadily advanced, with large sales at 105, 105¼, 105¾, and 105¾, but the market closes rather weaker with more sellers than buyers.

MECHANICS' BANK.—Remains unchanged at 92½ to 94.

BANQUE DU PEUPLE.—Books closed for payment of a dividend of five per cent. on the 1st proximo.

BANQUE JACQUES CARTIER.—Was sold to some extent at 108¾ to 108¾, closing firm with buyers at 108¾ and sellers at 108¾.

QUEBEC BANK.—Is in demand at 100½ to 101, but there is none offering.

BANK NATIONALE.—There are buyers but no sellers at quotations.

UNION BANK.—Is asked for at 105, sellers asking 105¾ to 105½.

EASTERN TOWNSHIPS BANK.—Continue in demand, but there is no stock offering.

ONTARIO BANK.—There have been considerable transactions in this stock at 95¾ and 95¾.

BANK OF TORONTO.—Firm and in demand at 123.

GORE BANK.—Is now held for 50, buyers offering 45 to 46.

ROYAL CANADIAN BANK.—None in market under 97½. On the publication of Mr. Young's report, higher prices were looked for and holders are asking more, but buyers will not advance. An early resumption of specie payments is now confidently looked for.

CANADIAN BANK OF COMMERCE.—Has advanced to 104¾, at which price there are are buyers. No stock in market.

MONTREAL TELEGRAPH COMPANY.—Has been sold as high as 134, and there are now no sellers under 135.

CANADIAN NAVIGATION COMPANY.—Was largely dealt in at 100. There were to-day no buyers over 99.

RICHELIEU NAVIGATION COMPANY.—Sellers ask 125, but there are no buyers over 120.

CANADA DEBENTURES.—Are rather heavier, but there are very few offering. Dominion stock has been sold at 106 to 107, and is still offering at the latter rate.

MONTGAGES.—Have been negociated at seven per cent., and are still in demand at that rate.

EXCHANGE.—Has steadily declined, in sympathy with the New York market, and it is today offering at 9¾, with no buyers over 9¼.

MONEY.—There has been rather more demand for money during the past week, but there is still more offering than can find profitable use, and the reduction of the rate in England to 2½ will tend to make the supply even more abundant.

Ayer's
Hair Vigor,
For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

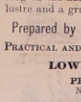

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,
For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cures them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it always does—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for such case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, a mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change these complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence a dose to as-sagacious where no serious derangement exists. Those who feels themselves ailing, often find that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and removing effect on the digestive apparatus.

The Byrons.

CURIOUS REVELATION.

The exact cause of the quarrel between Lord Byron and his wife has been one of the literary and social difficulties of the Century. That Lord Byron was a man of wayward and violent temper, not very strict in his morals, and deeply in debt is what every one knew; that lady Byron was a woman who added a somewhat unusually strict idea of religious duty, t beauty, accomplishments, and wealth, was also known; that two persons thus constituted were not likely to live together without very great suffering on one side, and possibly equally great annoyance and mortification on the other was evident enough. Lady Byron must have been scandalized as well as wounded by the necessary incidents of the household to which she had come, and the extreme pain of her position must have been aggravated in proportion to the extent of her surviving love for her husband. That she, who, as she is described in her own language, in a paper to which we are about to refer, was to him the "impersonation of conscience," and being so, was a constant source of uneasiness and self reproach, almost of terror, is also easily to be imagined. If these incompatibilities had led to a separation of the ordinary character no one would have wondered, and the affair would probably have been remembered longer than similar domestic catastrophes, only because the parties themselves were more conspicuous. But there was something in the immediate circumstances of the separation, which created the natural suspicion that a sudden grief had come to aggravate the chronic and habitual discomfort, which were easily supposed to prevail between the two—some special outrage real or supposed, which had filled up the measure of his Lordship's offences in the eyes of his lady, or else some new discovery of atrocious vice, which made it impossible for a Christian woman to share the home without, in some sense participating in the sin of her husband. We believe that this latter supposition was very general, especially among the more strait-laced of the public at the time when this celebrated domestic breach took place; and now after more than fifty years, this opinion is partly justified, but curiously contradicted in an important particular, by revelations, singular to say, made by an American lady—Mrs. Harriett Beecher Stowe. Mrs. Stowe has been stimulated to make public the facts by the recent appearance of the reminiscences of Byron by the once Countess of Guiccioli.—As was to be expected, the Countess, whose notions of morality did not at any rate come up to the average English standard, and who must have learned all that she knew from Byron himself, laid all the blame of the separation of the spouses upon the wife. We observe that this view has been partly approved in a periodical, which, during Byron's lifetime, assailed him very fiercely—we mean Blackwood's Magazine, in a recent criticism upon the Countess' book. The Reviewer, indeed, is far from blaming the character, hardly ever the temper of Lady Byron, still less from denying that she might have had much cause for dissatisfaction with her married life; but he closes his notice with the words which the great Dramatist puts into the mouth of the royal spectator at the death bed of Cardinal Beaufort, "She dies and makes no sign. Oh, God forgive her!" The offence of making no sign consisted in this—that whereas Byron had publicly avowed that she was all a wife ought to be, and had over and over again asserted that he, and not she, was to blame for what happened, he had nevertheless appealed to her and to her friends to say what was the particular cause of her final departure from him, in order that he might justify himself if there were misconception on her part, or that in an case the publication of the truth might relieve him from the darker suspicions of which he was the object. The last effort known to the world at large to have made in this direction, was the placing of his autobiographical notes in the hands of Moore for publication after his death, with an expressed desire that they should be communicated to Lady Byron, in order that if they contained anything which she desired to controvert she might have the opportunity of doing so. Lady Byron refused to look at the manuscript, and stated in the short note in which she did so, that any explanations on the subject of their quarrel would be injurious to their daughter, but if he provoked such explanations he must be responsible for the consequences. There was in these facts certainly something which warrants the view taken in Blackwood, that this undoubtedly good woman, from some improper sense of pride, or other mistaken motive, had left her husband's memory exposed to very foul reproaches, when it rested with her to show that while he had given her ample cause to leave him, his sins were still not of unexampled blackness. We are not sure that Mrs. Stowe's revelations would gain implicit credit upon any less satisfactory authority than that upon which they are made, as there is something which must still be cleared up in order to make the main fact consistent with the other points of this family history. That alleged fact, however, is that Byron lived before and after his marriage in incestuous intercourse with a sister. It is further shown that Lady Byron knew this early in her short period of cohabitation, because he endeavored to obtain her connivance, and in order to do so attempted, of course in vain, to shake her Christian principles. Her refusal is said to have been the occasion of many brutalities at the period of her confinement, and a strange account is given of the last interview which the two ever had. She left his house, as is well known, at his desire, and on going down to the carriage which was to take her into the country, she saw his favorite spaniel lying on the mat at the door of his apartment. She confessed afterwards that she would willingly have changed places with the dog, if she could have thus stayed to watch over him; but she entered the apartment, and found him in company with the companion of his sin. Strange to say, she did not retire, nor apparently show any sense of anger nor even extraordinary emotion. Holding out her hands, she said, "Byron, say good bye," upon which her lord, putting his hands behind him, retired backwards to the fire place, and made the insulting quotation—"When shall we three meet again?" The injury to her daughter of the publication of facts which cast so dark a stain upon her mother's character, is said to have been the reason why Lady Byron declined to make known the truth, which, we gather from Mrs. Stowe's statement, she concealed even from her parents. The two ladies became acquainted, apparently in consequence of Lady Byron's anti-slavery sympathies, when Mrs. Stowe first visited England. On the second visit of the latter, Lady Byron, then knowing that she was near her end, desired to see Mrs. Stowe on very important business. A cheap and popular edition of the poet's works was about to be published, which, for sale, it was thought, would be stimulated by a biographical notice, conceived in a spirit of injustice to Lady Byron. Her friends had, therefore, urged her before it was too late, to put her own defence on record. She accordingly communicated the unhappy history of her married life to a friend, and left it to her to use the information as she pleased; the immediate question to be solved being, whether it should be given to the world then. Upon the whole, Mrs. Stowe decided that it should not, and she gives it now only as a refutation of the Guiccioli statements. We have intimated that in spite of the authority of a narrative thus supported, it is not without some incongruity with facts otherwise well established. One can hardly understand the possibility of a woman of Lady Byron's character consenting to reside in a house frequented not only by the paramour, but the incestuous partner of her husband. One can hardly comprehend her offering him not only a friendly but a comparatively calm alliance, such as Mrs. Stowe represents, in the very presence of this person. But that is not all. After she left town letters passed between her friends on one side and her husband on her other. In these Lord Byron was treated by her parents as a not unworthy son-in-law, and was invited to spend some time with Lady Byron at her country seat. Up to her last letter it was, by her own account, like others of her letters, of which Byron was so proud that he showed them to his friends "friendly, playful, and cheerful." A few days after writing it, without any other explanation, Lord Byron received a note from her father announcing that he would never see her more. Mrs. Stowe does not mention these facts, and what one would like to know is how she reconciles them with her narrative. That such a woman as Lady Byron, leaving her husband in a scene which must have filled her with sorrow, could have so concealed the true state of her feelings from her parents, as to admit of the sort of letters that her father addressed to her husband; that she could, under the same circumstances, write to him in the tone rather of womanly complaint nor of pious exhortation; but a letter at once "friendly, cheerful and playful," must certainly excite very great astonishment. The offence which she related to Mrs. Stowe seemed to her, during all her life afterwards, as they will probably seem to most other persons, to impose the necessity of the step she took. Yet this conviction, obvious as it was, seems to have come upon her in the most sudden manner, and in the midst of written testimony of wife-like affection and duty. We may add that, though Mrs. Stowe says that the history communicated in a circumstantial manner to her, has been generally known in some circles in England, so late a writer as the Blackwood Reviewer, in the midst of the renewed excitement on the subject, created by the reminiscences, declared his opinion that the mystery would never be cleared up. There are some crimes so horrible and unusual that it requires more than usual evidences to make us believe them. Possibly, if the charge had been made public during Byron's life, he would have refuted it, as he always declared he wished to have an opportunity of doing with any charge that he did not admit. As it was not allowed to see the light when he could have dealt with it, nor during the time when Lady Byron had a personal interest in the fact being known, we think Mrs. Stowe would have shown more discretion and better taste to have suppressed it entirely.

The Alkali Plains of Nevada.

The Humboldt Valley is from 10 to 20 miles wide, probably the latter, as the pure atmosphere enables one to see at great distances, and deceives the eye of the inexperienced. All is sublimity, desolation and grandeur. With the single exception of a few rods from either bank of the Humboldt, there is no earthly sign or token of vegetation. All the Mountain sides are bare, covered with stones, as if just thrown out of volcanoes; not a tree, not a shrub, save the sage grass; not a bird, not a living animal; not a sound save the rattling of the coach. All is silence, desolation. Mighty mountains basking in a burning sun, and a plain covered with a ribbon of bright green, lying in the center, while its broad edges are deep yellow or dusty brown. The soil is simply pulverized alkali, and the dust, in clouds, covers the sage, blankets the horses, chokes and blinds and stifles those inside, while we of the outside, shielded by green veils and seated high up, escape in some measure its suffocating and blinding power. We leave Elcho at 10 o'clock, lying 3,000 feet above the sea, and are doomed for 22 hours to follow the Humboldt until we climb gradually along up and up to 12,000 feet above it, where I now write, and even here I look up Treasure Hill, 1,200 feet higher. I do not exaggerate at all when I say that this one day's journey, for positive discomfort, exceeds any other of the earth, unless it be in the center of Africa. The silence and desolation that everywhere met the eye impress all men, and they grow moody and finally sink into utter dumbness. The mist thickens and clouds like a dark curtain, a tropical thunder storm on the carriage and its inmates. The horses snort and cough, as it fills their lungs; it permeates the nose and eyes and ears of the passengers, it makes them blind, and deaf, and dumb; it permeates the clothes, creeps under your under-clothing, thickens around the eyes, makes them red like a drunkard's; you eat it, drink it, breath it, snuff it; it clothes you, covers you, fills all the pores and interstices of the body, and each body, and each man and woman is a living, moving mass of alkaline dust. The horses, lost to sight, dash on, up hill and down hill, at the rate of seven miles per hour, though the dust crumbles beneath their feet at least 10 inches in depth, and they are actually blanketed with alkali. Here and there the Humboldt crosses the road, and with its bright laughing waters, gurgles along, making the dust, and thrust more stifling by contrast. The horses snort as we stop to give them drink, and the passengers climb down and rush to the water like the camel of the desert. A refreshing moment, and away again we go, higher, yet higher, and still enshrouded in the same dusty cloud. The sun pours down into the couch, and as it rises to its meridian height, it scorches and burns; and with the alkali our passengers are soon like deviled ham, a dirty red, until all identity is gone. Men's whiskers, mustaches, and hair are all stiffened with alkali, and the very highest point of discomfort and misery is reached. As we dash along, no bird sounds a note to soothe us; not a living, moving thing is seen, save now and then, at long intervals, an Indian fishing for trout in the Humboldt; not a house, nor sheep, not an antelope; not a house or barn or field or fence meets the eye, as we drive onward.—Letter in Chicago Post.

BRIGHAM YOUNG.

Brigham Young has just two hundred wives. Just think of that. Oblige me by thinking of that. That is, he has eighty actual wives, and he is spiritually married to one hundred and twenty more. So we may say he has two hundred wives. He loves not wisely, but two hundred well. He is dreadfully married. He is the most married man I ever saw in my life. I saw his mother-in-law while I was there. I can't exactly tell how many there is of her, but it's a good deal. It strikes me that one mother-in-law is enough to have in one family—unless you're fond of excitement.

THE PICTURE OF THE GREAT DESERT.

This picture is a great work of of art. It is an oil painting done in petroleum. It is by the old masters. It was the last thing they did before dying. They did this, and then they expired.

The most celebrated artists in London are so delighted with this picture that they come to the hall every day to gaze at it. I wish you were nearer to it—so you could see it better. I wish I could take it to your residences and let you see it by daylight, with lanterns, to look at it. They say they never saw anything like it before—and they hope they never shall again.

When I first showed this picture in New York, the audience were so enthusastic in their admiration of this picture that they called for the artist—and when he appeared they threw brickbats at him.

HIS MUSICAL IDEAS.

I like music. I can't sing. As a singist I am not a success. I am saddest when I sing. So are those who hear me. They are sadder even than I am.

The other night, some silly-voiced young man came under my window and sang "Come where my love lies dreaming." I didn't do it. I didn't think it would be correct.

I found music very soothing when I lay ill with fever in Utah; and I was very ill; I was fearfully wasted. My face was hewn down to nothing, and my nose was so sharp that I didn't dare to stick it into other people's businesses—for fear it would stay there and I should never get it again. In those dismal days a Mormon lady—she was married, though not so much so as her husband—he had fifteen other wives—she used to sing a ballad commencing, "Sweet bird, do not fly away," and I told her I wouldn't. She played the accordeon divinely—accordeonly I praised her.

BELLEVILLE, TUESDAY, AUG. 24.

RIFLE ASSOCIATION.—The Dominion of Canada Rifle Association Prize Meeting commences at Toronto on Tuesday, the 6th of September. We believe this county will be represented.

FOR PRACTICE.—We understand the members of the Hastings Rifle Association will meet for practice in a day or two. The targets have been put in readiness on the old ground, near the line of the Railway.

FENIAN RUMORS.—A telegram from Ottawa says that information has been received by the Militia Department that a Fenian invasion is contemplated, and that Ogdensburg and Malone are the points where the Fenians will congregate.

SOUTH SHORE HARBORS.—The Oswego Times says: The harbors on the south shore of Lake Erie are all to be put in good repairs and condition, so that in future, vessels caught out in bad weather may find a refuge and not be obliged to run the entire length of the lake before finding shelter. For many years past a vast amount of property and life have been sacrificed solely for the want of good and convenient harbors.

EXCURSION TO THE THOUSAND ISLANDS.—The steamer Bay of Quinte has advertised an excursion to the Thousand Isle's for Tuesday next, which promises to be a grand affair. The route advertised is a good one. The rates are very low, arranged to suit families both large and small. Lovers and bachelors, we have no doubt of its being a success, and advise all to go. The splendid Band of the 16th Battalion will accompany the excursion. See advertisement.

COLLISION.—A telegram from Port Colborne, 23rd Aug. says:—The tug M. P. Parsons, owned by O. McMahon, of Port Dalhousie, and the tug S. R. Norcross, owned by C. H. Carter of this place, in running for a vessel yesterday forenoon, came into collision about five miles out in the lake, sinking the Norcross in about fifty feet water, and leaving several of her crew in the water, who were picked up by the Parsons.

NEW HEAD DRESS.—The newspapers are continually hitting at the follies of fashionable women, but it we are to believe the announcement of one of the fashion organs the men will come in for a share of deserved abuse. It is said a new style of head dress for gentlemen is to come in fashion for fall and winter. It was introduced here the other day by a young fop who has got more hair than brains, but fortunately for the good name of Belleville he was only a passing visitor. The fashion will harmonise with the following verse of an old song:

There was a young man his name was Brown,
And he wore two dangling curls,
And the hair of his head was pasted down,
And hung down his back like a girl's.

FLAX CULTURE.—The Hamilton Spectator in a brief article on flax culture says:—"According to a letter from Mr. Donaldson, who is much interested in this subject, the quantity of fibre this year, when scutched and prepared for market, may safely be calculated to yield from 200 to 300 pounds to the acre, and from 10 to 13 bushels of seed—showing a handsome margin to the manufacturer as well as the grower. It is reported that a company from Europe will shortly settle in Canada, with the intention of growing and manufacturing flax upon a very large scale. We are sure there is every facility for this, and if the enterprise be prosecuted with vigor, it cannot be otherwise than successful. This is one of the many advantages which Canada has to offer to its emigrants; and thus is one of the fields in which they may find useful labor.

Hastings Rifle Association.

This Association was formed by some gentlemen about two months ago, and after a good deal of energy succeeded in getting as fine a range as any in the country, and numbers in its ranks a good many "crack" shots. It has succeeded in getting a range up to 900 yards, a better one is not in the country, and 1,000 yards can be had by crossing one highway. The new marking butt is of stone, and is very spacious; the embankment in rear of the target is 50 feet long, and 30 feet high; at each range there is a raised platform of earth thrown up and nicely sodded.

The annual subscription is one dollar for Officers of Volunteers and civilians, and fifty cents for non-commissioned officers and men of Volunteer Corps. It is arranged to have several good matches take place this fall. There will be a meeting of the Association on Wednesday evening next, the 25th inst., at Hambly's, for the purpose of enrolling new members, and making arrangements for opening the range with appropriate ceremony.

The following gentlemen comprise the officers of the Association, viz:—Lt-Col. A. A. Campbell, 15th Batt., President; Lt-Col. James Brown, 49th Batt., 1st Vice President; Capt. Nunn, G. T. R., 2nd Vice President; Capt. Hambly, 49th Batt., Treasurer; Capt. Bogart, 15th Batt., Secretary.

What is the Point?

The Globe is laboring hard to make capital for its almost defunct party. But the times are too dull, the themes are too threadbare, the old horses have all been rode to death, and the people have been so sated with politics, that all its efforts are vanity of vanities. It is exceedingly amusing, however, to watch the frantic attempts it is making to destroy Sandfield McDonald and M. C. Cameron. These two gentlemen it has specially taken in hand, and they come in for more than the usual share of its abuse. The ground work of its abuse is the location of the Deaf and Dumb Institution in Belleville, instead of at Hamilton, and in this act it sees all manner of corruption, unblushing bribery, &c. Never expecting any fairness from that journal we are not at all surprised that it should make an article from the Intelligencer and quote a few sentences to suit its purpose.—When the Globe made its quotation, and based upon that quotation its false assumption that the location of the Deaf and Dumb Institution here was a price of our representatives' independence, why did it not quote still further, and give its readers the benefit of our statement, that even before the Institution was thought of the representatives from this district supported the Government, and consequently the charge that the members were purchased by the Asylum was groundless. But this would not answer its purpose, and we repeat, it is no matter of surprise to us that it should use any means, however unfair, to make its point.

But what is this point after all? Why, that the party which supports a Government is entitled to considerations which their opponents have no right to claim.—That is all. The Bay of Quinte district supported the Government, and if there were any public offices to be filled, or if there were any public institutions to be established, everything else being equal, who had a better right to claim these situations or these establishments, than the representatives of this district? What balderdash, it is therefore, to talk about the corruption of the Government, or of the venality of members, in connection with the location of this institution? Does any one suppose that the Grits would adopt any different policy from that pursued by Sandfield McDonald, were they in power? Let the record of their brief occupancy of the Treasury Benches answer. When they were in power was there a vacant office in the country that was not immediately filled? Was there a crumb of comfort that was not at once given to the hungry hunter after ministerial favors? What did this great purist, Mr. Brown, do, and what was he prepared to do when he held office? Let the following extract from a letter from Mr. Brown to a supporter, who was a Conservative, answer. The Woodstock Times publishes it:—

"House of Assembly, Quebec, 9th Sept., 186—.

* * * * *

"I cannot recommend a political opponent to my first vacant office; and if I did the Government would not sanction it. We have been ten years out of power, and it is full time our friends had some of the good things."

What right has the Globe in view of that letter, in view of its past record, in view of the action of its party, to accuse the Ontario Government with corruption in the location of the Deaf and Dumb Institution? In the well-known language of its great chief, "it is enough to sicken a horse" to hear that journal prate about corruption.

Put the Law in Force.

We observe that in Ottawa, Chatham, and other places, the authorities are putting in force the Vagrant Act. The consequence is a number of idle, dissolute persons who hang about bar-rooms, street corners and other public places, have been put in limbo. Will not our authorities follow this example? There are a lot of good-for-nothing fellows lounging about the streets, and idling about bar-rooms, having no apparent occupation, but who manage in some way to obtain a living.—That it is not a legitimate living is evident from the fact that they are never seen engaged in any legitimate business. The Vagrant Act meets their case, and it is the duty of policemen to have these vagrants brought before the Magistrate so that they may give an account of their manner of living. The law has been in force for some time, but so far as this town is concerned it has as yet remained a dead letter. Let it be put in practical operation.

Forty Years Ago.

To the Editor of the Daily Intelligencer.

MR. EDITOR,—In this I will give you a description of some of the roads leading into Belleville 40 years ago.

The road leading from Belleville to Hungerford via Canniff's Mills, was a hard road to travel, more especially in the fall and spring. From this to Canniff's Mills, and thence to Read's Mill, (now Corby's) the roads were about as bad as bad could be.

Two loads of flour per day, and only six barrels per load, was all that a team could well bring into town from Canniff's or Read's, and complaints at that, while the barrels were bepastered with mud. Distance from Canniff's, three miles, from Read's, four, and one-eighth miles. My old flour books will show two loads per day, only when a waggon broke down, which was often; one load for that team would be all. Then the flour barrels, they had neither shape nor size alike; some would hold 196 lbs. without packing, some it was hard work, tightly packed, to hold the complement; some were six and even eight inches longer than others, and no regularity in proportion.

Mr. Corby's team brings in now, one span of horses and heavy waggon, 20 barrels of flour, and in the spring and fall, 16 barrels, and can make four loads per day, or 64 to 80 barrels at the present time, against 12 barrels in 1829.

Take the lumber teams, they draw now from 1,500 to 2,000 feet of lumber per load, and other teams freight as high as three to four tons per load, while in 1829, 1,000 to 1,200 was considered a heavy load. It is 28 years last spring when it took me, with a good span of horses and double waggon, 11 hours to travel 21 miles, from Caton's Bridge to Belleville, now the same distance can be travelled in two and a-half to three hours.

On leaving Mr. Caton's in the morning I filled up my empty waggon box with pea straw, covered over with horse blankets and buffaloes, ; wrapped myself up in my cloak, laid down with lines in hand, and worked my passage as best I could; stopping once to water and feed my team, and only for thirty minutes; while the team was feeding the landlady called in her son and daughter, (both quite young,) to show me how well they could dance, the boy played on the violin, and both danced together an Irish jig, &c., the mother laughing and spatting her hands at the performance; and don't she thought I was highly delighted. It was no use to tell her I was not.

Forty years ago and the present, what a contrast. It took me the greater part of two days to go to Cobourg, and two days to go to Kingston with a one-horse gig in the fall of the year; now about six hours to Kingston and five to Cobourg, or by rail in two hours; and yet people complain of the slowness of the cars when going at the rate of twenty-five miles an hour, and others of our gravel and other roads, if a hole or rut shows itself.

Two weeks ago I went with a gentleman from Montreal for a drive; we went to the Asylum building, thence on the Front Road of Sidney some six miles, then back to the side road running north to the 2nd concession, then up the concession to near Trenton, then home by 2nd concession road to Belleville, stopping several times, and making thirty miles travel, all within four hours and fifteen minutes. He expressed himself highly delighted with the country, the road and his ride. Such a journey over the same road forty years ago would have taken a hard day's drive from morning till night, if not longer.

Forty years ago buggies were few and scarce. The old lumber waggon and ox cart were the principal means of transport for freight and passengers, but now the old waggons, except for heavy freight, are giving way to the neat flashy buggy, and the fine spring democrat waggon. Will there be as great changes in forty years to come? I have not a doubt of it.

In my next I will give you some idea of the River Moira, Mills, &c., of forty years ago.

I notice that the Globe, Montreal Herald, Gazette, and other papers, have been pleased to copy my communications, for which I thank them, not expecting when I wrote them, that they would be noticed beyond our own county.

Yours &c., &c.
BILLA FLINT.

Belleville, Aug. 23, 1869.

—There seems to be a growing desire to immigrate to the new land of promise in the North West. Not a week passes without one or more parties leaving, and most of them carrying stock and implements. One party left Mitchell last week, for Red River—taking six fine horses, three carriages, waggon, a mower, ploughs, harness, &c, and a large quantity of dry goods.

—A large lynx was killed near Lindsay, a few days ago. It measured five feet in length and stood 29 inches high.

BREAKFAST.—EPP'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—The very agreeable character of this preparation has rendered it a general favourite. THE CIVIL SERVICE GAZETTE remarks: "The particular attention which Mr. Epps has attained by his homœpathic preparation of cocoa has never been surpassed by any experimentalist. By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may have us many heavy doctors' bills." Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold by the Trade only in ¼lb., ½lb., and lb. tin lined packets, labelled—JAMES EPPS & CO., Homœopathic Chemist, London, England. 91—6m123

Business Notice.

Not many weeks ago a rich but childless landed proprietor breathed his last, leaving a large circle of relations to mourn his loss, and equable over their prospects of sharing his wealth. The day for reading the will at last came; the room was crowded with anxious expectants; the will was opened and to the inexpressible joy of all, the rich gentleman's relations found that to each of them had been bequeathed a case of Royal Italian Bitters.

FENIAN SYMPATHISERS.

DROGHEDA, Aug. 23.—An open air meeting, attended by 20,000 persons, was held here to-day in favor of granting an amnesty to the Fenians. Bands played popular Fenian airs, and enthusiastic speeches were made. The resolutions adopted declare that further condemnation of Fenian prisoners is unwise, unpolitic and unjust.

RESIGNATION OF THE BISHOP OF WINCHESTER.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—The Bishop of Winchester has resigned.

SPAIN AND CUBA.

PARIS, Aug. 23.—'La. France' says :—"How ever painful it may be for Spain to accept the suggested solution of the Cuban difficulty, there is no other plan possible ; it is the only way for Spain to save some fragments of the wreck.—The value and duration of Cuban independence under the protection of America is another question. The desire to absorb, which is the character of the Americans, qualifies them very badly to perform the part of a protector. It is very probable that behind the compromises they are trying to bring about a second edition of the history of Texas."

THE LATEST.

THE COMING RACE.

LONDON, Aug. 23rd.—The Harvard and Oxford crews were out on the Thames to-day.—The banks of the river were crowded with spectators, and the American and English crews were heartily cheered. The Oxonians rowed for the first time in a new boat built by Elliot ; she measures 61 feet in length and 21½ inches at the widest place. The Harvard men desire that contradiction be made of rumors that they have adopted the English style of rowing. They maintain that the match is to be a contest of styles as well as men ; they express themselves well pleased with all arrangements that have been made for them, and are satisfied with the result of their practice. The Americans propose to invite the Prince of Wales and Mr. Motley to accompany the crews on the day of the race, and for that purpose the launch of the Harvard crew will be tendered them.

Walter Brown has made a match with Renforth, for the championship of the Thames.

THE 'TIMES' ON THE RACE.

The 'Times' has a lengthy editorial on the coming International Boat Race, wherein it says there is no danger that anything but an accident will prevent the race from being fairly rowed. We are glad to see that the most stringent precautions to prevent accident have been adopted.

COAL OWNERS YIELD.

Private despatches from Lehigh coal operators, received yesterday, state that the owners of the Beaver Meadow mines have yielded to the demands of the miners for increased basis of wages for the month of August. This will probably be followed by similar action throughout Lehigh basin.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry.

Where this article is known it is a work of supererogation to say one word in its favor, so well is it established as an unfailing remedy for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Asthma, Diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs, as well as that most dreaded of all diseases, Consumption, which high medical authority has pronounced to be an incurable disease. Those who have used this remedy know its value ; those who have not, have but to make a single trial to be satisfied that of all others it is THE REMEDY.

THE REV. JACOB SECHLER,

well known and much respected among the German population of this country, writes as follows :

HANOVER, Pa., Feb. 16, 1859.

MESSRS. S. W. Fowle & Son, Boston.

DEAR SIRS,—Having realized in my family important benefits from the use of your valuable preparation—Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry—it affords me pleasure to recommend it to the public. Some eight years ago, one of my daughters appeared to be in a decline, and little hope of her recovery were entertained. I then procured a bottle of your excellent Balsam, and before she had taken the whole of it there was a great improvement in her health. I have, in my individual case, made frequent use of your valuable medicine, and have always been benefitted by it. I would, however, caution the public against imposition, because there is a good deal of spurious 'Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry' afloat throughout the country.

Grace's Celebrated Salve.

From Mr. JAMES CURLIN, of AMESBURY, MASS.

"I was afflicted with a severe felon on one of my fingers, and tried many remedies without relief. My friends induced me to apply your Salve. In two days it extracted the inflammation from my finger so as to enable me to resume my work. I am almost say that the Salve worked like magic, for it effected a cure without leaving a scar. I unhesitatingly pronounce Grace's Salve' an excellent remedy and do not doubt it will be appreciated throughout the land." 25

The Crops in the States.

EFFECTS OF THE DROUGHT—PROSPECTS OF THE CORN CROP.

In Tennessee no rain has fallen during the past week, which has had a very bad effect upon the corn crop.

A Richmond, Va, dispatch says, that no rain has fallen there for over two weeks, and the yield of corn will be light.

Reports from Iowa are meagre. The weather is rainy and the crop will fall far short of that of either Wisconsin or Minnesota.

Late intelligence from Maine shows that the potato crop has been seriously injured by drought, and that the crop will be light.

Reports from Minnesota state that the weather is warm and very favorable for corn, though the continued rains in June and July were very injurious.

In South Carolina the weather during the past week was dry and hot, until Monday, when a fine rain fell. A full average crop of corn is anticipated.

The corn crop in the northern part of Ohio is very poor, but in the southern it is better. It is thought the whole State will not average more than half a crop.

The weather in Indiana for the past week has been dry. A little rain has fallen during the last three days, which has had a good effect on the corn crop.

In Texas it has rained three days and been clear four days during the past seven. The corn crop is abundant all over the State, and the rains cannot injure it.

Reports from different parts of Wisconsin show that the late rains have done much to improve the corn crop, and with a continuance of warm weather there will be a fair yield.

In Mississippi the weather during the past week has been dry and fine, but yesterday rain fell. There will be about half a crop of corn, but the cotton crop promises to be a fair one.

In Illinois, during the past week, there has been alternate showers and sunshine every day. The corn crop is most promising. It will be one of the largest ever harvested in Central Illinois.

In Indiana the weather during the past week has been rainy at night, and warm during the day. This has had a beneficial effect on the corn crop, and the farmers anticipate more than an average yield.

There was no rain in Kentucky last week but very heavy rains on Monday and yesterday. The corn crop is late and light in some sections of the State on account of the wet weather in June.

Information from all parts of South Carolina leaves but little doubt that the corn and cotton crops have been materially injured by the drought which has prevailed for a month past. The corn crop is almost beyond redemption.

Albany Lumber Market.

REVIEW FOR THE WEEK ENDING AUG. 18.

The receipts of lumber have been fair for the week, but the shipments have kept pace with them, and there is little, if any, accumulation. Prices of lake and canal freights have advanced, thus adding to the cost of lumber.

There has been a good attendance of buyers during the week, and a fair trade has been realized. Holders have advanced prices 50c. each, and other lumber may be quoted at former prices with a tendency towards an advance, as a good fall trade is anticipated. The retail yards are generally but lightly stocked, and it will require a large amount to give them even an average quantity.

Freights on the river to the East and South remain unchanged.

The receipts at Albany by the Erie and Champlain canals for the second week in August, were:

Year.	Boards and Scantling, ft. M.	Shingles, M.	Timber, Staves c. ft.	lbs.
1868	14,447,175	482	69,000	2,944,164

1849	19,000,556	590		540,000

Of the boards and scantling received, 14,954,-125 feet were by the Erie, and 4,046,431 by the Champlain canals.

Ayer's
Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened; falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. It wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as the mild but effectual, purgative Pill. The obvious reason is that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cures them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that such a pill is what is always wanted—it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of its remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal organs to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and thus expelling disease, wherever they may lurk. Derangements are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these pills rapidly cure:

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the disordered action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continued in proper doses for some time, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change these complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it promotes the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and thus invigorates the system. Hence in many cases of disease where no serious derangement exists, they who have tasted fully realize the benefit that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from the prompt cleansing and removing effect on the digestive apparatus.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys, is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. In the worst cases of Scrofula or disease, where the system seems to be saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous affections and disorders which were aggravated by the scrofulous contaminations and they were positively suffering, have been radically cured by its powerful and more searching action of the country, that the public scarcely need to be informed of its virtues or cures.

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often hidden and unfelt in one of the organism undermines the constitution, and incites the germs of enfeebling or fatal diseases, hitherto evidently harmless in the latter, tubercles may be and truly deposited in the lungs or heart, we cannot foretell in that form, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on any part of the body. Hence the occasional use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla is advisable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, at length, cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: St. Anthony's Fire, Tetter or Erysipelas, Tetter or Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions or visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms of Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Fits, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various Uterine affections of the muscular and nervous systems.

Syphilitic or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it though a long time is required to subdue these obstinate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this compound will cure the complaint. Leucorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases are more commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis to our agents. Costiveness often caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the bowels, is also overcome by its use. Liver Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion, and Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when arising, as they often do, from the foul corruptions in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the shattered nervous system of the Invalid. Those who are Languid and Listless, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with nervous Apprehensions of Fears, or any of the affections peculiar to females, will find renewed health, experience and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Croup, Asthma, Influenza, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of the people as a remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and amid the fluctuations of the press of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given to the adult, when the system is under the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a protection against the early stages of these disorders, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be supplied with the antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is too deeply ingrained in the system to admit of cure when the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the lungs and throat, that even the most obstinate of these yield to it. When nothing else could reach the case, this will prove effectual they subside and disappear.

Bronchitis is generally relieved and great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Neuralgia is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known, that we need not publish the certificates of them here, or do more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed the whole class of diseases which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Bismuth, or any other mineral nor poisonous substance, it is, whatever, it in nowise injures any patient. The number of radical cures it has effected in the districts, are literally beyond account, and we believe every section of the country has those publicly who Our pride is gratified by the acknowledgments we receive from all quarters of the cures it has made in these cases, and where other remedies had wholly failed.

Even when every remedy has been resorted to, or travelling through miasmatic localities, will be protected by taking the AGUE CURE daily.

For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy activity.

For Bilious disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy; producing many truly remarkable cures, where other medicines had failed.

ROYAL ITALIAN BITTERS
OR TONICO REALE.

Del Dottore F. P. Verri, Prof. of Chemistry, in the of University Padua, Italy.

THIS Celebrated Preparation—for which a Certificate of Merit was awarded to the original preparer at the National Exposition at Torino, Italy, by whose favor Mr. Gianelli obtained the Recipe, and was also awarded a Diploma at the Provincial Exhibition of Canada, held at Kingston in September, 1868, is without exception, the most Genuine, Salubrious and agreeable Tonic ever introduced to public notice either in Europe or America.

For seventeen years it has been in Italy, been a universal favorite among the elite of society, being generally served in the Dining Room immediately before dinner, in preference to Vermouth.

☞ The ingredients of its composition have been imparted to the leading Physicians of Montreal, and have received their unqualified approval on every account.

The Proprietor has no idea of parading or puffing it before the public, but merely asks a sound and unprejudiced trial.

The Great Coal Question.

NOVA SCOTIA vs. PENNSYLVANIA. THE WANT OF THE HOUR. WEALTH AND HONOUR IN THE DISTANCE.

A stove which will burn bituminous coal with cleanliness and safety; consume all the gases and smoke, and enable Nova Scotia to replace Lehigh or Lackawanna in the household, as well as in the grate, locomotive, and factory, is sadly needed.

There is a fortune for the inventor, if it can be evolved, and the man who produces it will immediately rank as a public benefactor. The system has succeeded on a large scale in the United States and Great Britain, where manufacturers are compelled to consume the gases and smoke emitted by their factories. Who will try it, adapted to household purposes, and introduce it into Canada?

Wood is steadily rising, year by year; the Pennsylvania coal owners have such a complete monopoly of the Anthracite coal, that relief cannot be looked for in that direction,—we must, perforce, fall back on the British and Nova Scotian "cheap coal" mines, and utilise their products in the parlour, the hall, and the kitchen, winter and summer, all the year round.

That stove is, however, the key of the situation. Who will produce it, we again ask, from the realms of invention, and enable the poor to utilize home raised coal at four or five dollars the long ton?—Montreal Gazette.

A London Congregation.

THE EXPERIENCE OF A WORSHIPPER IN A LONDON CHURCH.

BY CHARLES DICKENS.

As a congregation we are fourteen strong, not to count an exhausted charity school in the gallery, which has dwindled away into four boys and two girls. In the porch is a benefaction of loaves of bread, which there would seem to be nobody left in the congregation to claim, and which I saw an exhausted beadle, long faded out of uniform, eating with his eyes for himself and family as I passed in. There is also an exhausted clerk in a brown wig, and two or three exhausted doors and windows have been bricked up, and the service books are musty, and the public cushions are thread-bare, and the whole of the church furniture is in a very advanced stage of exhaustion.

We are three old women, habitual, two young lovers, accidental, two tradesmen, one with a wife and one alone, an aunt and a nephew, again two girls—these two girls dressed out for church, with everything about them limp that should be stiff, and vice versâ, are an invariable experience, and three sniggering boys. The clergyman is, perhaps, the chaplain of a civic company; he has the moist and vinous look, and eke the bulbous boots, of one acquainted with twenty port and claret vintages.

We are so quiet in our dulness that the three sniggering boys, who have got away into a corner by the altar railing, give us a start like crackers whenever they laugh.—The aunt and nephew in this city church are much disturbed by the sniggering boys. The nephew is himself a boy, and the snigger boys tempt him to secular thoughts of marbles and strings, by secretly offering such commodities to his distant contemplation. The young St. Anthony for a while resists, but presently becomes a backslider, and in dumb show defies the sniggers to "heave a marble or two in his direction."

Herein he is detected by the Aunt (a rigorous reduced gentlewoman who has charge of the offices), and I perceive that worthy relative to poke him in the side with the corrugated handle of an ancient umbrella. The nephew revenges himself for this by holding his breath, and terrifying his kinswoman with the dread belief that he has made up his mind to burst.—Regardless of whispers and shakes he swells and becomes discoloured, until the aunt can bear it no longer, and leads him out with no visible neck, and with eyes going before him like a pæan's.

This causes the sniggerers to regard flight as an eligible move, and I know which will go out first, because of the over devout attention that he suddenly concentrates on the clergyman, and with a face generally expressive of having till now forgot religious appointment elsewhere.—In a little while this hypocrite, with an elaborate demonstration of hushing his footsteps is gone. Number two gets out in the same way, but rather quicker. Number three getting safely to the door, there turns recklessly, and banging it open flies forth with a whoop that vibrates to the top of the tower above us.

The clergyman, who is of a pradial presence and muffled voice, may be scant of breath, but he only glanced at us as having an idea that somebody has said amen in a wrong place, and continues his steady jog trot, like a farmer's wife going to market. He does all he has to do in the same easy way, and gives us a concise sermon, still like the jig trot of a farmer's wife on a level road. Its drowsy cadence soon lulls the three old women to sleep, and the unmarried tradesman sits looking at the windows, the married one is looking at his wife's bonnet, and the lovers sit looking at one another, so superlatively happy that I mind when I, turned eighteen, went with any Angelica to a city church on account of a shower, by the special coincidence that it was in Huggin lane, and when I said to my Angelica, "Let the blessed event, Angelica, occur at no altar but this!" and when Angelica consented that it should occur at no other—which it certainly never did, for it never occurred anywhere. And O, Angelica, what has become of you this present Sunday morning, when I can't attend the sermon; and more difficult question than that, what has become of me, as I was when I sat at your side?

But we received the signal to make the unanimous dive which surely is a little conventional—like the strange rustlings and settlings and clearings of throats and noses, which are never dispensed with at certain points of the service, and are never to be held necessary under other circumstances. In a minute more it is all over, and the organ expresses itself to be as glad of it as it can be of anything in its rheumatic state, and in another minute we are all of us out of the Church, and Whitey Brown has locked it.

A Monster of Crime.

OBSTRUCTING A RAILWAY TRACK.

A cold-blooded villian named John Bowen, who misplaced the track of the Erie Railway several times in the Spring of 1868, whereby several lives were lost and fifty or sixty passengers were wounded, has been caught and makes full confession of his horrible crimes. The American papers publish the following confession which he has made, properly attested by witnessing magistrates :—

"I reside in Orange County. I have read the Bible, and prayed lately, and hope to get some of my sins pardoned. I may not live long, and don't like to die with so much on my conscience. I wish to lighten it a little.

"About between Summer and Fall, three years ago, on the Erie Railway, between the Delaware Bridge, at Saw Mill Rift and Kennedy's Cut, I was going along (I was not working for the company) one day, and I kicked a stone from the middle of the road to the edge of the track against the chair ; there it lodged. I didn't think it would do any damage, but it did ; it started two or three cars off the track.—Some time in February, one year ago, there was a crooked rail at Rosa's switch, near the chair.

"I took a piece of iron and pushed the roll out of the chair, and raised it up and put a spike under it at the bended place on a second quarter tie ; I shoved it back into the chair, but it wouldn't go in without something heavy to force it in ; I left it at that, and along came a freight train and broke it off, and the train ran off down the bank. About the 15th, a year ago last March, (April) at 3 o'clock in the morning, I came down the track (I left my place early) at Lackawaxen ; I went to see about a silver mine I had burning out there. I dropped a stone on my foot, which hurt me, so I walked slowly down the track until I came to Carr's Rock, a freight train passed there (going west), I stepped aside till it passed ; I saw (on the river side) a rail (crooked) which was working up and down as the train passed.

"I took a piece of the cap of a rail and tried to fix it as well as I could. I shoved the rail out of the chair and put a block under it to raise it ; I put a spike under the quarter tie in order to make it come to its place again. I didn't think it was going to do any damage at all. I travelled on from half a mile to three quarters down the track, then I heard a great noise. I thought it was the stones slipped down into the water ; instead of the stones it was a train going east, and in two or three days I heard it was the train instead of stones.

"That was the Carr's Rock calamity ! I felt very sorry from that time to this ; since I have been here I don't sleep nights. I was not then in the employ of the Erie company ; before any of the occurrences I had been employed by the Erie company, and had been discharged by the company, and sent to jail by the company under a charge of forgery. I knew when I put the spike under that rail if a heavy train came upon that rail afterward it would break that rail, but if a train had come from the east it would have drove it down. I didn't know from which way the next train was coming.

"JOHN BOWEN."

Cotton Supply in India.

A report by Mr. H. Rivett, Cotton Commissioner for the Central Provinces and the Berars, on the operations of his department for the year 1867, has just been published, and contains a great quantity of highly important matter. Many of our readers recollect the story of a company of Lancashire operatives in prayer-meeting assembled, during the American famine, who to their petitions that Providence would send a speedy supply of the raw material of their labor, spontaneously added, "And, O Lord, not Surat !" More authentic, perhaps, is the incident recorded in the document before us, that a Lancashire brewer not many years ago brought an action against a Liverpool man for calling his beer "Surats," that being, according to the evidence, the vernacular for everything particularly bad. Now, however, "the Hingunghat and Gomarotee cottons are classed as nearly equal to ordinary American," and what is perhaps more remarkable a Liverpool merchant may now order the supply he needs by telegraph direct to the cotton districts, and receive it within six weeks. Several causes have combined to give an impetus to the traffic. The extension of the railway and telegraph system, together with the demand arising out of the American war, caused in the price of cotton to rise (for example), in the Wurdah district from 23 rupees a bhoja to 140 rupees, and the operation of the land revenue settlement gave the cultivator what he never had before—a direct interest in sending his cotton to market in the best possible condition. The ryots, we are informed, are no longer the slaves of the money lender, but are able to deal on fair terms with the representatives of European houses. They may not, indeed, have very clear notions about the fluctuations of the market, and we are told that some of them attributed a rise in prices to the quantity of garments distributed by the Queen as presents on the occasion of the Prince of Wales's marriage. Still, as a body, they have quite shrewdness enough to recognise their own interests in cultivating the best kinds of cotton, and cleaning it in the most effectual manner. The Jubblepore exhibition did much to show what can be done in India, and it only remains to make more widely known among the cultivators the results of experience which have already been gathered. At any rate, Mr. Rivett-Carnac is well entitled to say that "literally, as well as metaphorically, the seed of improvement has been sown."

BELLEVILLE, WEDNESDAY, AUG. 25.

CRICKET.—The Belleville Cricket Club will meet for practice to-morrow afternoon.

LAUNCH AT MILL POINT.—One of the finest schooners ever built upon the Bay of Quinte, will be launched from the ship yard of Messrs. H. B. Rathbun & Son, at Mill Point, on Saturday next, 28th inst., at four o'clock, p. m. She has been built of the very best material, by that excellent builder Yeomans—is 106 foot keel, 26 foot beam, 8 feet hold, and some 200 tons register. Parties wishing to witness the launch, and enjoy a free trip on the new vessel from the ways into the Bay, can go down on the steamer Bay of Quinte on Saturday morning, and return by her the same evening, and witness the launch in the mean time.

PIC NIC.—The Pic Nic of the Sunday School of the Methodist Episcopal Church, (Rev. Mr. Wild's), took place yesterday to Massassaga Point, per steamer Prince Edward. The attendance of the members and of the friends of the church was good, about 400 being present. The Sabbath School of Canifton also joined in the Pic Nic, and assisted in making the whole affair very successful. The day was exceedingly fine, in fact, it was the most beautiful day for pic-nicing that we have had this summer, and had it not been for the annoyance caused by one or two rowdies who went down in small boats in the afternoon, the day would have been very profitably and pleasantly spent.

THE CANADIAN LOAN.—The following is from the London Times' money article :—"The bill for guaranteeing a Canadian Loan of £300,000 for the purchase of Rupert's Land from the Hudson's Bay Company stipulates that the rate of interest must not exceed 4 per cent., and that a sinking fund shall be constituted of 1 per cent. The Government of Canada are to undertake to remit the 5 per cent. per annum which will thus be required to four trustees, two to be named by the Treasury and two by Canada, and the investment of the sinking fund is to be made in such manner as the Treasury and the Canadian Government may from time to time agree upon. The loan is to rank immediately after the Canadian Fortification Loan of last year."

Destructive Fire.

LOSS $34,000.

We regret to record a very destructive fire which occurred about midnight last night, by which from $20,000 to $25,000 worth of property was destroyed. The fire broke out in the south-west corner of the Sewing Machine Factory of Mr. C. E. Irwin, close to the engine room, and from the facts that no fire had been used in the engine room for months past, and that no fire had been used in any part of the building since two o'clock the previous afternoon, there are strong suspicions that the building was set on fire. When first discovered the corner of the building was in flames, and before the engine could be got to the ground the fire had made such headway that all efforts to save that and the adjoining Woolen Factory of Mr. S. Ostrom, were fruitless. Owing, we understand, to some injury sustained by the Steam Fire Engine, while trying some new hose the evening previous, that engine was disabled, and the work of subduing the fire fell wholly upon the hand engine. The firemen worked well, and succeeded in saving the adjoining buildings.

The loss sustained by Mr. Irwin is a serious one, and it is to be the more regretted from the fact that he has but a slight insurance. He had lately added some new and valuable machinery, and his establishment was one of the most complete in the Province. The value of his machinery and tools was from $8,000 to $10,000, and the value of the Sewing Machines he had in stock, was from $12,000 to $14,000. Everything was lost. Not a piece of machinery, nor a fraction of a sewing machine was saved. He was only insured for $3,000 in the London and Liverpool. By this calamitous fire, some twenty-five men are thrown out of employment, and one of our most flourishing manufactories stopped. We trust Mr. Irwin will see his way clear to re-establish his factory without delay.

Mr. Ostrom succeeded in saving one or two machines, somewhat injured by removing. He lost two double carders, a picking machine, press, pulling mill, shafting, gearing, &c., and his steam engine is so much damaged as to be almost worthless. He is also a heavy loser, sustaining a loss of probably not less than $2,000, besides injury sustained by being thrown out of business.—He was insured in the London and Liverpool for $1,500.

The building was owned by Mr. William Bleeker, and was insured for $200 in the Commercial Union.

—Mrs. A. K. Bailey, editress of the Decorah Iowa, "Republican," apologizes for the detention of her paper, "because of the late arrival of an extra male."

Personal Malignity.

The malignity of the Globe towards its political opponents is unparalleled in modern history. Take the following paragraph as a specimen of its political, if not personal, malice :—

"Look, too, at the personal position of the Administration—how it has crumbled to pieces since its formation two years ago. Mr. Archibald, of Nova Scotia, went first, and one of the best of the thirteen was lost when he resigned. Mr. Fergusen-Blair soon followed. Mr. Howland's little later got his pound of flesh. Mr. McDougall next retires from the evil to come to the cool shades of Rupert's Land.—And, lastly, Mr. Finance Minister Rose, frightened by the monetary troubles before him and the incompetency of his colleagues, throws up his office and accepts a situation in a New York Banking firm."

The Ottawa Times administers the following deserved rebuke to the scribe who follows his victim to the grave :—"Mr. Fergusson Blair soon followed !" Yes ! And the day will soon come when the Hon. George Brown will have to follow in the unknown, but certain journey through the portals of death ; and we trust that no one will be left on earth, mean enough to treat his 'taking off' either as a crime against his political associates, or a triumph to his foes." The best thing he can do for the latter is to live to 'wax his party.'—The brutality of the Globe's allusion to the late Hon. Ferguson-Blair is only equalled by the venom of its remarks concerning the Hon. Mr. Rose, the injustice of which may, however, fairly be left over for future discussion."

Water a Cholera Creator.

"It has been long known to intelligent persons that foul water is one of the surest agents for the diffusion of disease, but even these will be astonished to be assured, as Sir William Jenner positively assured the late meeting of the British Medical Association at Leeds, that two of the most fearful diseases, cholera and typhoid fever, are mainly, if not entirely propagated by the drinking of contaminated water. No individuals can take too much care to keep their drinking water free from impurity, and it is of the highest importance that large communities should be supplied with water uncontaminated by any refuse or sewerage. At any rate, for this is not done, there ought to be an end of the impertinence of ascribing diseases to the "mysterious dispensations of Providence !"—Exchange.

What do the people of Belleville suppose will be the consequence if they are to be dependent upon the "contaminated water" of the River Moira ? The river being higher this year than usual and the current consequently more rapid, a large amount of filth is carried away, but it is almost a miracle that deaths are not occurring every day from the use of the river water. Since writing the article upon the water question, we have been informed that the river water is used more generally than would be inferred from reading that article. It is used for cooking and manufacturing purposes, and however unpalatable the thought may be, it is drank by a considerable number, simply because they cannot get any better. Is it not time that some steps were taken to procure a supply of wholesome water ? If an epidemic should break out in this town, the death list would be appalling.

The Provincial Exhibition.

The London Advertiser says it is gratifying to know that the entries in horses, cattle, sheep, swine and poultry, for the coming Exhibition at London are considerably in excess of last year's. Entries of grain, field roots and other farm products, machinery, and manufactures generally, must be made on or before Saturday, 28th inst. Entries of horticultural products, ladies' work, the fine arts, &c., must be made on or before Saturday, September 11th. Prize lists and blank forms for entries may be obtained of the secretaries of all Agricultural Societies. Every indication favors the belief that the London Exhibition will be the best ever held in Canada.

Official Appointments.

The Ontario Gazette contains the following appointments :

Mr. T. H. Johnson has been appointed Assistant Commissioner of Crown Lands in the room of Mr. Russell, resigned.

Mr. John Doran, of Perth, has been appointed Stipendiary Magistrate and Registrar for the District of Nipissing, in the place of Mr. Johnson, resigned.

Mr. Andrew Russell has been appointed Resident Agent for the sale of Public Lands in the County of Wellington.

A Deadly Weapon.

To the Editor of the Daily Intelligencer.

SIR,—Having been called upon to witness the trial of a most formidable and destructive weapon, invented by David Dafoe, of the Township of Sidney, I proceeded to the place of appointment ; here I met with Capt. B. H. Vandervoort, of the 49th Battalion, and several other gentlemen. After a short discussion, relative to the merits, utility and effectiveness of its being enlarged and converted into an instrument of warfare, the inventor proceeded to test its merits. All that is discernible are four gun or rifle barrels, the mouths slightly protuding from a box one foot long and about ten inches in height and breadth. There is at the breech of these barrels some compact and hidden machinery in still a smaller box, worked by a crank. The firing or discharges from this weapon was at the rate of ninety per minute, (timed). The singularity of the invention is that the cartridges are placed in a hopper, it feeds itself, and cleans itself of the discharged cartridge. It was the intention of the inventor to have used the Snider ammunition, but the Gunsmith in boring the barrels made the cavity too large, therefore cartridge had to be made for it. I saw a target that had been shot at with shotted cartridge at a distance of over forty rods, with but a slight perceptible variation, shooting through two one inch boards, pine, and burying the ball deep in a dry ash post. (Remember the barrels are only one foot long.) Being fully satisfied regarding the efficacy of this small weapon, if enlarged to an Armstrong barrel, which is the inventor's intention to do if he can procure requisite assistance, we can, as a Dominion Government, defy all raiders and armies. It is proposed to have it exhibited and tested as soon as practicable before the following gentlemen :—Col. Gzowski, Brown, M. P., Col. A. A. Campbell, Lt.-Col. E. Ketcheson, Major Bowell, M. P., Hon. B. Flint, M. L. C., Hon R. Read, M. P., K. Graham, M. P. P., and H. Corby, M. P. P., whom I hope will be fully satisfied with it as regards a weapon, either offensive and defensive, and memoralize the Dominion of the utility of retaining the invention for our own defences.

Yours,
A. TAYLOR KETCHESON.

—On Monday, while a daughter of John Hillingtou, Uxbridge, was accompanying her brother, who was firing stumps in a field, her clothes caught fire and she was burned to death.

—The Chicago Post wants to know, among other things "why it is that fires are so frequent and destructive on a falling market for merchandise, when it is so difficult for dealers to pay their notes."

—The New York Board of Health reports that the summer in that city is closing with unusual promise of healthiness, and that the death rate has been diminishing each week for the last month.

—It is stated that the Bank of Commerce has made an offer to buy up the Gore Bank, which has been accepted by the directors of the latter institution, and only remains to be confirmed by the shareholders of both banks.

—A shabby-genteel young man entered a tradesman's store the other day with his hands crammed in his pockets, as if they were flush with rhino. 'Mr. J.' said he, 'I believe I am indebted to you sixty-two and a-half cents, cash, borrowed somewhere about a year ago.' 'Yes, sir,' replied the tradesman smacking his lips and holding out his hands to receive the ready cash. 'I am glad you have come, for I had almost forgotten it myself.' O ! I never forget these things,' said the fellow ; 'I like to have all things square ; so I want you to lend me thirty-seven and a-half cents more, which will make it even money.'

A youngster, who had been detected by his father in the act of stealing some fruit stored for winter consumption, was angrily bidden to "go into the next room and prepare himself for a severe flogging." Having donned the work which he had in hand, the inexorable parent armed himself with a stout horsewhip, and went in quest of the culprit, whom he found ornamented with a hump at which Quasimodo himself would have shuddered. "What on earth have you got on your back?" asked the wondering sire. "A leather apron," replied John, "three double." "I've told me to prepare myself for a severe flogging, and I guess I've done the best I could."

—The Agricultural Gazette in referring to the recent meeting of the Royal Agricultural Society at Manchester, observes that in the department of Seeds and Roots the selection was very fine on all the stands. Taking exhibitors in their order, Sutton & Sons, of the Royal Seed Establishment, Reading, Berks, England, seedsmen to her Majesty, never had a better or more attractive show. Their stand occupied a conspicuous ground on the right hand as the show yard is entered, and they had done ample justice to their position by the tasteful and ornamental style in which they exhibited some 200 dried specimens of the natural Grasses, and 100 varieties growing in pots, including their "New Prairie Grass" (Bromus Schraderi), and "New California Oat-Grass" (Bromus odoratus). Nothing requires to be said about their home-grown seeds, the produce of their own farms at Reading, which are so favorable for raising which they better understand than anything which we could say in their favour. Their Paris Universal Exhibition prize collection, in glass cases, was also on view, with drawings and embellishments.

PACIFIC SQUADRON.

LONDON, Aug. 24.—Rear Admiral Henry Chads has been appointed to the command of the Pacific squadron, vice Admiral George F. Hastings.

ENGLISH CROPS.

It is the general impression that the continuance of the late dry and cool weather has been of immense service to the crops. Much corn has already been gathered. Another fortnight like the past and the crisis of harvesting will be over. The copious rains which fell some time ago did not really damage the corn. The favorable change in the weather has stopped the advance in the price of all sorts of corn; but great fluctuations are still expected as the crops throughout Europe, with the exception of those in the interior of Russia, promise to be light.

CUBA.

The Morning Telegraph (Liberal), says if Cuba severed her connection with Spain, it would only be to form a new bond with the United States—England could feel no jealousy at the aggrandisement which would complete the abolition of slavery as an institution. The loss of Cuba to Spain would be an unquestionable gain to the mother country, the colony and the cause of mankind.

AMERICAN MINISTER IN PARAQUAY AND BUENOS AYRES.

PARIS, Aug. 24.—The late American Ministers in South America, McMahon, from Paraquay, and Worthington, from Buenos Ayres, are expected here on their way to the United States. It is reported that when Minister McMahon approached the line of the allies on his return from Lopez's head-quarters, he was badly received by the Brazilians; his escort, bearing a white flag, was attacked by some cavalry, although Count d'Eu had notified the army of the expected arrival of the Minister.

The reported pillaging of the American Legation at Asuncion is confirmed.

THE HARVARD AND OXFORD CREWS.

LONDON, Aug. 24.—The Harvard and Oxford crews were out this evening on the river for a final trial over the course previous to the race. The Harvard crew made the distance, 4¼ miles, in 23 minutes 6 seconds, the Oxford time as reported was 30 seconds less, but the Harvards started from the barge, while the Oxfords took a flying start commencing their pulling 300 or 400 yards below the barge so as to get a good speed stroke on before reaching the starting point, the tide was also more in their favor.—The betting on the result is nominally 6 to 4, but at present their exists no apparent inclination to give odds. It is now definitely settled that the Harvards will row in the boat built by Elliott, the American builder. They have adhered persistently to their own style of rowing, refusing all English coaxing or advice, the race will then be purely American against English, but with every disputed point yielded in favor of England. A large number of Americans are arriving in order to witness the race, and rooms in good situations along the line of the river are now being rented at from 12 to 30 pounds sterling for the race day. The advocates for the London style of rowing are already very badly demoralized in consequence of the news of a defeat which the London men sustained in yesterday's regatta, at the hands of the Newcastle men.

LATER.—THE BOAT RACE.

LONDON, Aug. 25.—The 'Times' to-day says, 'Good judges assert that the Harvard crew show signs of over training. The river watermen, however, favor the idea that they must win the race. Boating men generally are divided, the majority being in favor of Oxford.'

QUEENSTOWN, Aug. 25.—The steamship 'City of Antwerp,' from New York, has arrived.

Business Notice.

Not many weeks ago a rich but childless landed proprietor breathed his last, leaving a large circle of relations to mourn his loss, and squabble over their prospects of sharing his wealth. The day for reading the will at last came; the room was crowded with anxious expectants; the will was opened and to the inexpressible joy of all, the rich gentleman's relations found that to each of them had been bequeathed a case of Royal Italian Bitters.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry.

Where this article is known it is a work of supererogation to say one word in its favor, so well is it established as an unfailing remedy for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Asthma, Diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs, as well as that most dreaded of all diseases, Consumption, which high medical authority has pronounced to be an incurable disease. Those who have used this remedy know its value; those who have not, have but to make a single trial to be satisfied that of all others it is THE REMEDY.

THE REV. JACOB SECHLER,

well known and much respected among the German population of this country, writes as follows:

HANOVER, Pa., Feb. 16, 1869.

Messrs. S. W. Fowle & Son, Boston.

DEAR SIRS,—Having realized in my family important benefits from the use of your valuable preparation—Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry—it affords me pleasure to recommend it to the public. Some eight years ago, one of my daughters appeared to be in a decline, and little hopes of her recovery were entertained. I then procured a bottle of your excellent Balsam, and before she had taken the whole of it there was a great improvement in her health. I have, in my professional calls, made frequent use of your valuable medicine, and have always been benefitted by it. I would, however, caution the public against base imposition, because there is a good deal of spurious 'Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry' afloat throughout the country.

JACOB SECHLER.

Grace's Celebrated Salve.

From Mr. JAMES CURLIN, of AMESBURY, MASS.

"I was afflicted with a severe felon on one of my fingers, and tried many remedies without relief. My friends induced me to apply your Salve. In two days it extracted the inflammation from my finger so as to enable me to resume work. I can almost say that the Salve worked like magic, for it effected a cure without leaving a scar. I unhesitatingly pronounce 'Grace's Salve' an excellent remedy, and do not doubt it will be appreciated throughout the land." 25

Lost his Reckoning.

A curious instance of Sabbath-breaking occurred in the parish of Hampton, in Parson Mosely's time. A certain jolly farmer, who lived several miles from the meeting house, was astonished to observe one Sunday morning his near neighbor, a pious deacon, hard to work in his hay-field, with his sons and his 'hired men.' But the truth was soon divined; the deacon, who took no daily paper and owned no almanac, had mistaken the day of the week, and his well-ordered family had adopted his error. I am sorry to add that, being more of a wag than a saint, our farmer declined to enlighten the innocent Sabbath-breaker; but drove on, chuckling, toward the sanctuary. The deacon looked after him, and, pausing in the midst of the broad swath he was cutting, exclaimed; 'If there ain't Neighbor Doolittle, and Mis' Doolittle and all the children dressed up and going a visitin' Saturday mornin' in the midst of hayin' time! That beats all!'

The next morning the deacon and the deacon's wife, his sons and daughters, his hired man, the hired girl, and the 'bound boy,' all arrayed in their Sunday best, set out for meeting in good time, and in good order—the eldest son on horseback, with the eldest daughter mounted behind him on a pillion; the deacon, with the rest of the family, in the big farm waggon, drawn by a pair of stout roans, who jogged soberly along with their meekest Sunday look on. The family delusion extended even to the yellow dog, who trotted in the rear of the decorous turnout, without a secular frisk or gambol.

On the way to the village, the deacon was surprised and shocked to see several of his fellow townsmen at work in their fields. He invariably stopped to reprove and admonish them; but the jokes of his own Sunday work had spread through the neighborhood, and was so much relished that no one cared to antiecevie him. Each farmer's excuse for his impiety was the necessity of getting in his hay before a shower which he pretended was imminent, though the sky was cloudless. Expostulations and replies were something of this sort:

'Why, Uncle Zebulon! this here is a fine day, with no appearance of rain.'

'Jes' so, Deacon; but the wind's a leetle unstiddy; and I believe in takin' time by forelock.'

'But, Uncle, it's the Lord's time.'

'Yes, Deacon; but I intend to send a load of this here hay to Parson Mosely, and that'll make it all square, I guess.'

'Why, neighbor Burlow, where under the canopy do you find signs of rain today?'

"In my arms, Deacon. When they begin to shoot I look out for a damp spell; and it always comes sooner or latter."

"Why, Ephraim Pettingill; I am beat! You hotsehoeing on Sunday!"

"Why, you know, Deacon, a' merciful man is merciful to his beast.'"

After each spacious response the deacon shook his head mournfully and drove on. He reached the village, drove up to the meeting house steps, where he and his hired man handed out the women folks" children—his son and daughter had already dismounted at the horse-block—and together they marvelled much at the closed meeting house doors and the vacant wagon-shed. There several loungers from the village store gathered round them, laughing and quizzing, and a terrible small boy called out, "what are you doin' here Monday mornin'? Did you sleep over Sunday, or did you forget to put your beans into the oven Saturday night?"

Upon that hint they went riding and driving homeward at quite a festive rate of speed, albeit in a deeply mortified and penitential state of mind.—Grace Greenwood in the Independent.

Business Notice.

Not many weeks ago a rich but childless landed proprietor breathed his last, leaving a large circle of relations to mourn his loss, and equally over their prospects of sharing his wealth. The day for reading the will at last came; the room was crowded with anxious expectants; the will was opened and to the inexpressible joy of all, the rich gentleman's relations found that to each of them had been bequeathed a case of Royal Italian Bitters.

Ayer's
Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cures the disease they take it for; and all know that when it does cure it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its compositions. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, which cases are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally sufficient.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous when no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Inveterate cases of Scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous affections and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulous contamination until they were painfully afflicting, have been radically cured in such great numbers in almost every section of the country that the public scarcely need to be informed of its virtues or uses.

Scrofula is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this unseen and unfelt tenant of the system undermines the constitution, and invites the attack of enfeebling or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to lurk inflicting torment throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develop into one or other of the loathsome forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be suddenly deposited in the lungs of heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the occasional use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla is advisable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, at length, cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions of visible forms of Scrofulous Disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Fits, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various Diseases arising from a disordered liver and nervous system.

Syphilis or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these obstinate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Leucorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute Directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, will also yield to it as also Liver Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when arising, as they often do, from the rankling poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are languishing under the influence of Debility, Dependent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Sinkings of the Spirits, or other symptomatic of Weakness, will find immediate relief, and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Influenza, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine has anything been used with such unbounded confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men that have inhabited the earth, its virtues action, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to control the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most powerful remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. Asa protection against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, it should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured by it and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. In many parts of this country over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates here, or to more than assure the public that its qualities are fully sustained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

It is a perfect antidote to all the malarious poisons of tritels, are literally buried beneath the ravages of Ague and Fever, and the system saturated with them. Our pride is gratified by the success which attends the use of this powerful counteractive of disease. It counteracts and expels the wholly foiled cases, and where other remedies have failed. Disenthralled persons, either resident in, or travelling through miasmatic localities, will be protected by taking the AGUE CURE daily.

For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy activity.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly remarkable cures, where other medicines had failed.

Chance.

Thou Atheist, and Doubters all,
Of God, of One, of Three in One,
Assemble at my muse's call,
And gaze upon yon blazing sun,
As, coursing down the western sky,
His splendid beams so widely fly.

Self-feeding Flame, that ever burns,
And lights a system with its glare;
'Round which each rolling planet turns.
Thou Atheist; who placed him there?
Or who ignited that great mass
At first? A chance; then let it pass.

Perhaps it is the only sun.
The only lamp in boundless space;
E'en this is probable, and more,
Though hooted by this living race;
Perhaps each system has its sun,
And this may be the smallest one.

How'er this be it matters not,
But know we this and all accord
That all of light and heat we have
Is solar—given by yon orb.
Suppose by chance yon flame went out,
Where would'st thou be, thou thing of doubt?

If Chance sowed heaven with those globes,
That wander o'er Creation's brow;
If Chance gave Mors her golden robes,
To Ji'en her silver ones; then how
In them doth Chance no change bring,
Since chance is such a changeful thing?

For chance at most is ceaseless change,
It could not be aught more than this.
And had it e'er such daring range
Of might, that o'er the starry lists
Have 'chanced' to be just as they are?
Why are there not more changes there?

The hunter's path is trodden still
By bold Orion, and the bear
Still prowls around the Arctic pole,
And is it Chance that keeps them there;
Is gravitation then a force
That 'chanced' to keep the planets' course?

Thou Atheist and Doubter—one,
The same; why vainly task your brain
To solve solutions? you great sun,
And all that planetary train,
Have more than 'chanced' (poor creature) far,
To be just what and where they are.

I lay no store by luck or chance,
For such things are not—never were;
We name them only when (poor fools)
We misconstrue Almighty care.
The leadet falling from the branch
Is watched by God, then why need Chance?

And more, thou Doubter, every deed
Of thine denies thy every word,
Since Chance doth constitute thy creed,
Thy doleful, daring, doubtful herd,
In very truth and candor, should Give Chance the credit for their food.
(Since Chance gives life), trust Chance for food.

Chinese Music.

TROUBLES OF A SAN FRANCISCO LANDLADY.

A legal protest has been made in San Francisco against the barbarous music of the Chinese bands. Those who heard the musical performance of the Japanese performing troupe in New York will remember the horrid discord. The Chinese orchestras in the streets of San Francisco, produce similar noises, and not long ago an ordinance was passed by the Common Council prohibiting such performances. The first prosecution under this ordinance took place a fortnight ago, and the Bulletin gives the following account of the proceedings:

The complaining witness was a lady of respectable appearance, who has tried to keep a lodging house on Washington street, in the neighborhood of the Chinese Theatre, but so far she has failed to find lodgers who had nerves strong enough to remain more than a few nights only at a time, and go away looking anxious and mentally demoralized. So she had one of the musicians, a gong-beater, arrested.

She said the noise of the "band" is like nothing in the heavens above or the earth below. To call it barbarous is not to describe it adequately. It is worse than savage. She cannot sleep; cannot hear her bell's ring; cannot hear people talk when that "band" is performing. The only safe place in her house is the front part, where, if the doors and windows are closed, the clamor cannot reach. She said she was not actuated by national prejudice in the prosecution; she would have prosecuted the highest dignitary in the land if he should pound a Chinese gong near her house till her lodgers were driven away and herself driven to distraction.

Her witnesses testified that they had heard the band; heard the gongs, shouts, and yells, loud enough to disturb any neighborhood in the world. The yelling was not as bad as the gongs. The cymbals are bad, and the squeaking fiddles worse. One old gentlemen said he could stand a cymbal played in English, but in Chinese it is terrific; worse for the combination of shouts and banging gongs. He is willing to accommodate a good landlady, but if she lives near a Chinese theatre he cannot obey his generous impulses at the expense of his nerves and possibly his reason.

Another witness had discovered that the 'music' is the most dismal ever heard on the earth. He has borne it stoically about eight months, but his health is ruined by it, absolutely ruined, and his temper was hurt too, for he said he would like to see the place blown up. He is a hair dresser, and stays only because business absolutely obliges him to remain.

The case was continued to enable the defendants to find some witnesses in the block whose health had not been destroyed by the "noises," and who may testify that they rather like Chinese music.

The Roman Catholic Church in America.

IS IT INCREASING OR DECREASING?

Though the Roman Catholic Church in this country is increasing in numbers and in wealth, its increase is not relatively so great as that of other churches, and is in fact mainly owing to immigration. And even the supply from that source is rapidly falling off, for as statistics show, the Protestant immigration into this country far outnumbers the Catholic. The Universe, the leading Romanist organ, admits, this fact in the following article:—

"It is, perhaps, quite legitimate to boast with self-satisfaction of the growth of the church in America. But for our part we doubt it. They would doubt it in Rome if they knew the real figures. The church in America is, in truth, a sad church. It is, as a priest said in our last number, a section from the bleeding side of Ireland, and it is not able to retain what it gets. Look! in one city alone it loses, at a single stroke twenty thousand souls! Who, in presence of such a dreadful truth, can say that the church here gains more than it loses—that it ever preserves its natural integrity? For the twenty thousand in one city alone, does it gain twenty thousand throughout the whole remainder of the country? Ah, no! no! no! Had the poor parents of these twenty thousand children remained at home in Ireland, there had been no loss to the faith, because they they had died early, leaving nothing to their children, vagrancy in Ireland does not entail the loss of faith. Such is the holy character of that country, that the fire of faith is always aglow in it, and New York is not the only via crucis the church has in America. Philadelphia is not much less populous than New York. How many children are lost to the faith in this honest Quaker City every year? Count up our great cities. There are New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Baltimore, New Orleans, Cincinnati, Chicago, Pittsburg, Charlestown, Washington, etc., and to these may be added an immense number of very populous minor places. Taking the figures of New York to be correct, and the authority that gives them is reliable, it is a certain fact that not less than two hundred thousand baptised Irish Catholic children are lost every year to the faith in America. How true the great Archbishop Kendrick was when he maintained that the church here is constantly losing more than it gains! What does it gain? Emigrants, nothing but emigrants. What does it lose? It loses every year two hundred thousand of the children of these same poor emigrants. What can be more unfortunate or degenerate than that? Two hundred thousand Irish children—the best Catholic stock in the world—lost every year. Talk of your converts, your growth of liberty toward Catholics! Well may the American Protestants be liberal to the Catholic Church, when the latter loses every year, for their advantage, two hundred thousand (these figures are much too low) of the best Catholic stock that ever received baptism. Nothing is more out of place, more unnatural or more heartless than the loud boast made by the Catholic Church here."

CRIME IN IRELAND.—The official criminal statistics of Great Britain show that for several years past crime has steadily decreased in Ireland. Thus, in 1856 the number of committals was 7,009, while last year it was only 4,127; the convictions in 1856 were 4,024 and 1868 2,264. The English statisticians, puzzling over this, attribute the decrease in crime to emigration; and it is a fact that the population of Ireland has decreased 4,929,566 in the past thirteen years. But emigration is hardly a sufficient cause for the decrease in crime, for, as a rule, the emigrants are not from the class who are prone to become criminals, but are industrious, thrifty persons, who have saved money enough to pay their passage abroad, and who leave home to find a better field for their labor and better opportunities to earn the honest living which they strive for.

TIME'S TEACHING.—Time has a wonderful power in taking the conceit out of persons. When a young man first emerges from school and enters upon the career of of life, it is painfully amusing to witness his self sufficiency. He would have all the world to know that he has 'learned out'—that he is master of all knowledge and can unravel all mysteries. But as he grows older he grows wiser, he learns that he knows a great deal less than he supposed he did; and by the time he reaches three-score years is prepared to adopt as his own the sentiment of John Wesley. 'When I was young I was sure of everything; in a few years, having been mistaken a thousand times, I was not half as sure of most things as I was before. At present I am hardly sure of anything but what God has revealed to man.'

BELLEVILLE, THURSDAY, AUG. 26.

INDIA.—The Rev. Mr. Burnell will Lecture on India, in the John street Presbyterian Church, this evening at 8 o'clock. Mr. Burnell has been laboring as a Missionary in India over twenty years.

FALL WHEAT.—Mr. Isaac Frost, of Canifton exhibited to day a few stalks of Fall Wheat grown by him, which measured six feet two inches in length. It is the Johnson Midge proof variety, and is a fine plump kernel and will yield about 40 bushels per acre.

RAILWAY PIC-NIC.—The Employees of the Grand Trunk Railway at Belleville, intend having their annual Pic-Nic to Massassaga Point, on Saturday, August 28th inst. Those pic-nics of the Railway men are invariably attractive, and we have no doubt this will be as successful as any which have preceded it.

CHEESE SOLD.—A cable telegram was received here a few days ago, from K. Graham, Esq., M. P. P., who is in England, announcing that he has sold 2,000 boxes of cheese, for 11 cents per pound, delivered at Belleville. This is a better price we understand than could have been obtained in Montreal.

SABBEVOIS CHURCH MISSION.—A sermon will be preached on behalf of the above truly Protestant institution, (D.V.) in Christ Church, West Belleville, on Sunday next, the 29th, at 7.30 p. m., by the Rev. Mr. Lewis, one of the deputation from Lower Canada. A public meeting will be held in the same place on Monday evening, the 30th inst.

NEW DOMINION MAGAZINE.—This favorite Canadian monthly, for September, has been received. Its contents are well selected, and embrace a variety of choice original articles, suited to the general reader. The present number completes the second year of the publication of the "Dominion," and also commences a new volume. All who desire to sustain a first class literary home production should lend their assistance in the circulation of the magazine.

NOVA SCOTIA GOLD MINES.—The Halifax Express of the 18th says :—" On the 7th inst., the editor of the Yarmouth Tribune was shewn by S. M. Rywerant, Esq., President of the "Yarmouth Gold Mining and Quartz Crushing Company,' an ingot of gold weighing 41 oz. 10 dwt., being the result of the operations of the Company for the month ending July 31st. The ingot shown is worth $830, and is the net yield of 66 tons of quartz. It is said the mines are paying handsomely.

NEW MUSIC.—We have received from the author, Mr. Stanley S. Howell, of Cobourg, a couple of pieces of new music, entitled, "When my Love's and Heart is Aching," and "That's what's the matter with Hannah." The words and music are both by Mr. Howell, who is well known in musical circles as a clever composer. The music is for sale by Harrison, and all booksellers in Ontario. We have also received from Mr. Harrison a piece of music entitled, "Am I then remembered in Erin," words by Hon. T. D. McGee ; music by Ella McConkey. It is very highly spoken of in musical circles. Harrison has it for sale.

BARLEY.—The London Free Press referring to the caution given to farmers, to withhold their barley crop from market till a price approximating to $1 a bushel is reached calls to mind that there is a large crop of barley in the States. In New York State especially, large breadths were sown, and the yield has been of an unprecedented kind. It is true that Canadian barley may be wanted on the other side, but it has no idea that it can be worked off at one dollar a bushel. Any one, who would refuse 65 to 75 cents will have cause to regret his delay. But it has not reached that figure even yet, and may not.

A NEW TELEGRAPH LINE.—The Ottawa Times says : "The "People's Telegraph Line" opened for business yesterday from Montreal to Ottawa. Its local office is at Mr. G. P. Drummond's, Sparks st. The line is being rapidly extended East and West, and will soon give the public the advantage of a healthy competition. The rates and the public will be largely benefitted by this new telegraphic enterprise. Monopolies are not generally to the public advantage, and though several attempts have been made in Canada to break down that of telegraphing, they have not heretofore been successful. We have good reason for believing that the "People's Line" Company is a strong one, and determined to win its way to a share of public patronage. We wish it every success, and do not doubt but that as it extends its line its business will be proportionately swelled. We believe it is the intention of the company to push forward to Toronto without delay, where a connection will be formed with American lines.

—James Bezom, a pedestrian, is to attempt the feat of walking backward from Portland to Boston, a distance of 110 miles, in eight days, on a wager of $1,000. He proposes to start on the 26th of August.

—Paul Schoeppe has been denied a new trial and sentenced to be hanged at Carlisle, Penn. He made a statement denying his guilt. William Gould, court-crier, an old man, dropped dead as the sentence of Schoeppe was pronounced.

"It is Curious."

"It is curious how much dissatisfaction the release of that poor priest (McMahon) has given in a certain section of the great Conservative party."—Globe, Aug. 24.

"It is curious" how studiously the Globe has avoided any reference to the liberation of the Fenian Priest, McMahon. Not a word, approving or disapproving of his release, has that journal uttered, save and except the few words we have quoted above. "It is curious" to know what secret agency has produced such a wonderful change in the conduct of the Globe with respect to this Fenian business ; and a great many of its staunchest supporters here have been "curious" enough to ask again and again, why their pet paper has neglected to give expression to its views upon the important questions involved in the liberation of this "poor priest." If they can take any comfort from the above brief quotation, they are easily satisfied. "It is curious" enough, however, to find a journal so influential as the Globe, so long totally ignoring the facts and circumstances connected with the release of McMahon, and at this late day dismissing the matter so summarily. "Poor Priest !" Poor Globe !

What the Governor Said.

The speech of the Governor General at Quebec having been so variously commented upon, and so much misconception having been caused by it, and so much comfort taken by Independents and Annexationists from some expressions made, that His Excellency deemed it advisable at Halifax to make allusion to it. While he said he did not withdraw one word of his Quebec speech, he said there had been one great mistake in respect to one word of that speech. When he spoke of "any other alliance," he meant with the mother country. The word "alliance" had been published in some paper as "allegiance," and then he was made to say what he did not. And he further said : "Should the Parliament of Canada propose a change of "allegiance' it would be a grave question "for the consideration of Great Britain.—"He never imagined such a thing as a "change of allegiance was possible." Of course this will be rather cold comfort for those journals which had built high expectations upon the Quebec speech, as they understood it, and who imagined all they had to do to obtain independence, was to throw up their hat. The speech of the Governor could hardly have been misconstrued to mean what these advocates of independence desired ; there was nothing in it that threatened separation or favored independence. On the subject of the relation between the mother country and her Colonies, he merely advanced the idea, which, after all was no new idea, that so long as this Dominion remained in connection with Great Britain, we would continue to enjoy the protection of that country, and if we desired a separate existence it was not likely that the Imperial Government would interpose any obstacle. But the time for a separate existence has not come, and we trust it will be many years before the people of Canada will consent to dissolving the connection between the two countries.

That our readers may better understand what the Governor General did say upon this subject at Halifax, we copy a portion of his remarks. Referring to his speech at Quebec, he said :—

"I hold in my hand a correct copy of the speech, and what I said on the public platform has been so much canvassed was this, that the connection of England, warred by the events of the last century, and enlightened by the truer theories of modern Colonial policy, had acceded to the wishes of the inhabitants of the Dominion of Canada, and had accorded to them in full measure the rights and franchises which they claimed ; and which, in my opinion, they properly claimed. I then said, at this moment you possess free representative institutions. Your destinies are in your own hands, you are free to choose and follow out your own views. The statesmen and people of England are not more free in the management of their own local affairs or in adopting a line of policy which they think conducive to their own interests than are the statesmen and people of the Dominion of Canada. I added, that I believed, generally speaking, the people throughout the Dominion were well satisfied with the loose union under which they lived. (Applause.) I further said that England was in no way indifferent to the position of the Dominion ; that she viewed it with pride and confidence, and looking at the question in this light, I said that Canadian statesmen and people were the best judges of their own interest, and that if the people of Canada decided on some change I was confident that the proposition would receive from the statesmen of England a generous and friendly consideration. I argued from what had taken place to what might take place ; I assumed, at every stage, that Canada should remain for all time to come a firm friend and faithful ally of England. There is no man of clear conceptions who does not know that it is impossible to conduct an agreement unless the parties are clearly defined ; there is no one accustomed to calculation, even to the performance of a very simple problem in algebra, who does not know that if the premises are not stated with extreme accuracy, a confused jumble of figures and inextricable confusion will be the result. That was the case in the instance to which I am alluding. I have not one word to retract or qualify in what I said at Quebec ; but some one or other wishing to prove that I had said that the Dominion of Canada was not highly esteemed by the people of England, or that England had some desire to get rid of the Dominion—substituted one word for another in the report of my speech.—And on that word I wish to make my observation. I referred to the possibility of Canada wishing for some other form of alliance and every one must see from the context that I was dealing with the mother country (great applause, the whole company rising to their feet.) For the word alliance the word allegiance was substituted—a word which I never uttered, and which does not occur in any part of my speech. The phrase "Change of Allegiance" was added to the speech as if it was possible that any Governor General would speak before the people of the Dominion about a change of allegiance, or suggest that it could be looked upon with complacency by the people of England. I said also that the statesmen of Eng- and looked to the statesmen and people of Canada for guidance, and this too has been misconstrued. I did not mean that they would be guided by the opinions of every person who did not find his position as agreeable as he could wish—of any barrister, for instance, whose abilities did not correspond with his aspirations, or of any storekeeper whose circumstances were not as pleasant as he desired. Individuals are apt in such matters to be guided by their personal feelings and interests. A particular interest may be depressed for the moment—it may be so depressed that they might be induced to adopt the most violent means to obtain relief for a trifling and temporary suffering. But those are not the modes by which statesmen and countries decide on their policy. What the mother country, or any other nation, would look to is the central government. Any change proposed by the statesmen and parliament of the Dominion will be carefully considered by the mother country. If the Parliament and the Dominion of Canada decide on a change in the form of alliance, it will be a matter of grave consideration for the people of England. The thought of the transfer of allegiance never crossed my mind.—(Loud applause.)

The Progress of Canada.

The Woodstock Times says of Canadian progress :—

"We have few records that enable a comparison of the past and present in respect to the whole country ; but what holds good in respect to a section, typifies the country at large. For instance, the township of Zora, that embraced what forms now two townships—East and West Zora—in 1822 could only boast of 145 acres of cleared land, with but 44 oxen and 84 cows ; and these belonged to the 56 householders scattered over that extensive section. At present there is not a concession in either township that could not produce a resident whose clearance and property in stock would far surpass the whole of the cleared land and chattels of the date given. What a nabob old Mr. Alex. McGregor must have felt himself to be when his log dwelling was the only residence upon which taxes were paid. The luxury of a horse was known to but few in that early day, as the return only gives 14 ; not quite one to every three farms ; and with the oxen would only make one to each farmer ; while it is given as a marvel of wealth that one man was the owner of two horses. In those early days neighborly accord was an essential to all ; what a pity that in our prosperity we have put aside the old friendship that made roughing it in the bush not devoid of excitement, and gave to it some thing of a charm. The agricultural statistics of the early days are not devoid of interest. In West Oxford, one of the earliest settlements of the country, in 1848, wheat is averaged at 9½ bushels to the acre, increasing in 1852 to 21½ bushels.—Oats are classed as 28½ bushels ; peas 13½ ; barley 21 ; while potatoes seem not, in the early days, to have gone much over 100 bushels to the acre. It is in sheep and the wool crops that we have the advance ; two pounds per sheep seems to have been a large average. The taxes levied in the whole country in 1820, were only 235*l.* 2*s.*, not more than was spent last year in the town of Woodstock, in repairs to the streets, and but one-tenth of what, according to the official statement of the County Council, is the defalcations of the late County Treasurer.

FENIAN CONGRESS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—The Fenian Congress commenced its secret session to-day, with a small attendance. Rumour says that Savage will resign the Presidency and be succeeded by a younger man. James W. Fitzgerald, of Cincinnati, has obtained a temporary injunction restraining holders of Fenian funds from any further disposition thereof. He claims, as a contributor, $5,000 of the money, for the recovery of which he has commenced suit.

DANGEROUS PLEASURES.—I have sat upon the sea shore and waited for its gradual approaches, and have seen its dancing waves and white surf, and admired he who measured it with his hand and had given it such life and motion ; and I have lingered till its gentle waters grew into mighty billows, and had well nigh swept me from my firmest footing. So have I seen a heedless youth gazing with a curious spirit upon the sweet motions and gentle approaches of inviting pleasure, till it has destroyed his eye and imprisoned his feet, and swells upon his soul, and swept him to a swift destruction.

A HAIR-DRESSING.—Those hideous deformities which young women attach to their "back hair," and then called chignons, are fertile sources of disgusting inconveniences. Not long ago, attention was called to the fact that they are nests of all species of worms and insects. This is bad enough, but it is not all. It is well known that large quantities of the hair used in making chignons are torn by harpies from the hospitals and tombs of the East, and this without any discrimination as to the disease of the plundered dead. The result is that the hideous diseases of the East are transmitted to the West. But a few weeks ago, according to the Newcastle (Delaware) Journal, a young lady of that neighborhood died of a loathsome leprosy, the origin of which could be traced to her chignon alone. Let this be a "caveat" to chignon wearers !

FRUIT.—It it pays to bring fruit from California, New Orleans thinks that by railway connections and refrigerating cars the whole west might be supplied with even the most delicious southern fruits, such as the fig and the strawberry. Grapes, pears, peaches and other fruits ripen much earlier in Louisiana than in California, and the distance from New Orleans to Chicago is not one-third the distance from San Francisco. Here is what the west might get from the South :—Oranges from October to May ; strawberries from December to June ; figs, peaches, pears and melons in June ; early peas, corn, tomatoes and potatoes quite as early as we get these things from the Carolinas ; and New Orleans hopes to monopolize the trade in tropical fruits from the West Indies for the Mississippi valley.

Business Notice.

Not many weeks ago a rich but childless landed proprietor breathed his last, leaving a large circle of relations to mourn his loss, and squabble over their prospects of sharing his wealth. The day for reading the will at last came ; the room was crowded with anxious expectants ; the will was opened and to the inexpressible joy of all, the rich gentleman's relations found that to each of them had been bequeathed a case of Royal Italian Bitters.

GRAIN PROSPECTS.

LONDON, August 25.—The Times to-day has an editorial on the prospects and prices of grain, wherein it says:—"We may look for a year of sufficiency, if not of abundance. The harvest is within 30 per cent of the average, and with continuance of the present favorable weather, it may still improve. All the crops except wheat are luxuriant. With good corn imported and sold under fifty shillings per quarter, we can easily afford to lose a little home grown wheat for the sake of a plentiful stock of food and better pasture."

ANOTHER ATLANTIC CABLE PROJECTED.

A new telegraphic cable on the Verlels principle, is projected from Ireland to America.

LIVERPOOL, evening, August 25.—Cotton a shade easier; uplands 12¾; Orleans 13¾; sales 80,000, including 1,000 for speculation and export. Others unchanged.

THE SENATUS CONSULTUM.

PARIS, August 25.—In the Senate to day, the report of the committee on the Senatus Consultum was read. The principal modifications made by the committee are as follows:—"The Senate may reject a law without giving a reason. The Government on demanding that Orders du Jour, Motives, Votes of Confidence or Want of Confidence be referred to the Bureaux, may appoint a commissioner to report on the same. A decree will establish regulations rendered necessary by the Senatus Consultum and will define the constitutional relations of the great powers of the State.

HEALTH OF THE EMPEROR.

The Emperor has nearly recovered from his recent indisposition.

THE BURLINGHAME TREATY.

HONG KONG, Aug 3, via London 25.—The Pekin Government refuses to ratify the convention concluded by Mr. Burlingame and the Chinese Embassy with the United States. Mr. J. Ross Browne, late American Minister to China, in reply to the address of the British and American residents in Shanghai, denounced Mr. Burlingame's policy, and said he considered it an evidence of the Chinese disinclination for progress. He declared the establishment of foreign relations with China on a basis of equality impossible at present, and thought the yielding attitude of the Foreign Powers would tend to produce war, as revelations lately made proved the mistaken nature of the British policy. The Chinese text of Mr. Burlingame's credentials differs from the foreign version. In the former he is appointed Envoy of China to tributary nations.

THE LATEST.

HARVARD AND OXFORD CREWS.

LONDON, Aug. 25.—Harvard and Oxford were out to-day, but only made short trips up and down the river. The Harvards to-day have been practicing starts; they have decided to use Elliot's boat for the race. Walter Brown, who recently arrived here with Tyler, will assist at the start.

Kelly confidently asserts that Harvard must win, and thinks that the race will be virtually finished before the boats reach Hammersmith Bridge.

Brown also declares his belief that the Americans will come in first to-night. Betting 2 to 1 on Oxford.

Arrangements for preserving order on and about the river are all that could be desired. The Commissioners of Police have detailed 800 men to guard the river banks during the race.

Arrangements for the match between Brown and Renforth have not yet been completed—Brown declines to row on the Tyne, finding that river unsuitable, but has no objection to the Thames. Redforth will probably accept Brown's challenge to row on the latter river.

HARVARD CREW AGAIN.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—The Tribune's special correspondent telegraphs from London that the style of the Oxford crew is unquestionably the better of the two. Their crew is heavier and their pace extraordinary. The Harvard's however, is in superb condition and perfectly confident. It is not at all unlikely that the race will be a very close one. There seems to have been a little trouble about referee and Oxford wanted to change but the Harvards very properly stuck to Thomas Hughes. In consequence of which Mr. Chitty refuses to act as Umpire, not being willing to serve under Hughes. The probability is that there will be no Umpire at all, but Hughes will be selected as sole referee.

YORK RACES.

LONDON, Aug 25.—Joseph Dawson's "B. F. Hester," won the Prince of Wales stakes at the York races yesterday; "Vanuska," had a walk over for the Ebor St. Leger, and the handicap was won by McGregory's "Fortuna," Her Majesty's plate was won by "C. A. Aster."

LIFE INSURANCE.

The Pall Mall Gazette referring to the difficulties of the Albert Life Insurance Company says: It is idle to ask whether Englishmen or Americans are best situated with respect to Life Insurance of; all guarantees and precautions exacted in the state of New York, hardly one is contemplated by English Laws.

THE CHINESE TREATY.

The same paper in an article on recent treaties with China says it was the habit of foreigners to lecture the Chinese on internal improvements. By the American treaty such interference is abandoned. China left free would learn to feel secure, and so come out of her shell and bear a part in the commerce of the world. It is quite intelligible to us that the American residents in China should dislike the treaty, but why should the Pekin Government dislike it. Have the Chinese discovered some underhand design to filch concessions under the pretence of modifying former ones, or is this refusal to imply an accession of hostilities against foreigners which prompt the Chinese to reject negotiations for their benefit.

BELLEVILLE MARKETS

INTELLIGENCER OFFICE,
Belleville, Aug. 26, 1869.

There have been only a few loads of grain sold on the market during the past week, and what has been purchased, has only been for present demand, so that the rates paid cannot be considered as an indication of what prices are to be.

Wheat—there is none offering. $1 would be paid for good samples. Two loads of Rye sold to-day for 60 cts. During the week a few loads of Barley have been stored at 60 cts. A few loads of Oats found purchasers at 50 cts. Of Peas there is none coming in; would bring 60 cts.

The supply of Butter does not much exceed the demand for home consumption, except that brought in tubs from country stores, which is being shipped to the Montreal market. Roll butter sold to-day for 17 cents; has averaged during the week 15. Tub for shipment, has rated at from 14 to 15 cents, according to quality.

Cheese has been in pretty good demand.—Some of our Factories have realized 11 cents, delivered here on recent sales. Farmer's cheese retails on the market from 9¼ to 10½ cents.

The supply of all kinds of vegetables continues to be abundant. Potatoes vary from 40 to 50 cents. Cabbages from 3 to 5 cents per head. Cauliflowers 10 to 15 cents. Carrots, Beets, Turnips, &c., in any quantity at very low rates.

Of fruit, the market continues to be well supplied. Large quantities of Huckleberries are offered at 4 to 5 cents per quart. A few lots of the long blackberry have been sold at 10 cents per quart. Other berries have pretty much run out. Apples are coming in pretty freely at 50 cts, to $1 per bushel. The supply of Tomatoes is as yet very limited, and gardeners still ask 10 cents per lb. The fine weather we are now obtaining will fast ripen this delicious fruit, and will materially reduce the price.

The supply of meat continues good at quotations. Spring chickens are becoming more plentiful, and can be had at 30 to 40 cents per pair.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry.

Where this article is known it is a work of supererogation to put one word in its favor, so well is it established as an unfailing remedy for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Asthma, Diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs, as well as that most dreaded of all diseases, Consumption, which high medical authority has pronounced to be an incurable disease. Those who have used this remedy know its value; those who have not, have but to make a single trial to be satisfied that of all others it is THE REMEDY.

THE REV. JACOB SECHLER,

well known and much respected among the German population of this country, writes as follows:

HANOVER, Pa., Feb. 16, 1859.

MESSRS. S. W. Fowle & Son, Boston.

DEAR SIRS,—Having realized in my family important benefits from the use of your valuable preparation—Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry—it affords me pleasure to recommend it to the public. Some eight years ago, one of my daughters appeared to be in a decline, and little hopes of her recovery were entertained. I then procured a bottle of your excellent Balsam, and before she had taken the whole of it there was a great improvement in her health. I have, in my individual case, made frequent use of your valuable medicine, and have always been benefitted by it. I would, however, caution the public against imposition, because there is a good deal of spurious "Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry" afloat throughout the country.

Grace's Celebrated Salve.

From Mr. JAMES CURLIN, of AMESBURY, MASS.

"I was afflicted with a severe felon on one of my fingers, and tried many remedies without relief. My friends induced me to apply your Salve. In two days it extracted the inflammation from my finger so as to enable me to resume my work. I can almost say that the Salve worked like magic, for it effected a cure without leaving a scar. I unhesitatingly pronounce 'Grace's Salve' an excellent remedy, and do not doubt it will be appreciated throughout the land." 25

A Wife's Blast Against Tobacco.

He sits in a corner from morning to night—
'Tis smoke, chew, smoke!
He rises at dawn his pipe to light,
Goes puffing and chewing with all his might
Till the hour of sleep. 'Tis his delight
To smoke, chew, smoke.

The quid goes in when the pipe goes out—
'Tis chew, chew, chew;
Now a cloud of smoke goes up from his throat,
Then his mouth sends a constant stream afloat,
'Tis chew, chew, chew.

He sits all day in a smoke or fog—
'Tis puff, puff, puff;
He growls at his wife, the cat and dog,
He covers with filth the carpet and rug,
And his only answer, when I give him a jog,
Is puff, puff, puff.

The house all o'er from end to end
Is smoke, smoke, smoke;
In whatever room my way I wend,
If I take his clothes to patch and mend,
Ungrateful perfumes all ever ascend,
Of smoke, smoke, smoke.

At home or abroad, afar or near
'Tis smoke, smoke, smoke;
His mouth is stuffed from ear to ear,
Or puffing the stump of a pipe so dear;
And his days will end, I verily fear,
In smoke, smoke, smoke.

The Byron Mystery.

THE "SISTER"—WHO WAS SHE?

Mrs. Stowe says that Byron "fell into the depths of a secret adulterous intrigue with a blood relation so near in consanguinity that discovery must have been utter ruin and expulsion from civilized society."—There is but one person to whom this description will apply. That person is Augusta Mary, the half sister of Byron, and at the time when the intrigue is said to have taken place the wife of Colonel George Leigh.

This woman was the daughter of John Byron, the father of the poet, and was the child of an intrigue between him and the Marchioness of Carmarthen. The guilty pair eloped to the Continent, and the Marquis having obtained a divorce, Byron and the Marchioness were married. She died within a few years, leaving this daughter, Augusta, the date of whose birth we find now here stated; but she must have been several years, probably from five to ten, older than her half-brother. She was brought up by her maternal relatives; and there is no intimation that Byron ever saw her until after he entered upon man's estate. In none of the publications of that day do we find any aspersion of her character; although we are told by persons now living, who moved in London society at that time, that among the charges against Byron—some of them very heinous—was this one here brought forward.

* * * * * * *

Until Mrs. Stowe shall present some positive proof, we think the following explanation must be accepted. The disputes between Byron and his wife reached a great height soon after their marriage.—She had every reason to believe him an unfaithful husband, and was eagerly suspicious of every woman. His character stood by him during all these bitter quarrels with his wife and the world, and lady Byron took up an almost insane jealousy against her, which must have been aggravated by his strange will. To a jealous woman trifles as light as air become confirmation strong as proofs of holy writ. And from a thousand things which were no trifles, Lady Byron's morbid imagination framed the horrid story, a story for which, as yet appears, no real evidence was produced; for it must be noted that Dr. Lushington does not say that he had before him any proof of the crime alleged by Lady Byron, but merely if the allegations were true, then the conclusions to which she came was unavoidable. It is also curious that this story was not made public until after the death of Dr. Lushington and Sir John Cam Hobhouse (Lord Broughton) had removed the last witnesses who could be expected to speak with any positive knowledge upon the subject.

The latest name for matrimony is "commit. ting twoicide."

A friend at a Pinch—One who shares his snuff box with you.

A fact for Naturalists—The genuine bookworm is not to be found in Grub street.

The man to prevent the exhaustion of our coal fields—One who can make his shaving-kettle boil with rage.

"Marriage," said an unfortunate husband "is the churchyard of love." "And you men are the gravediggers," replied his wife.

A tallow chandler said he didn't mean any disparagement to the sun, when he said that his candles were the best lights ever invented.

Madame de Montespans was continually saying she was thirty years of age. "It must be true," said Talleyrand; "I have heard it these twenty years."

"Leave you my friend," said a tipsy fellow, clinging to a lamp-post on a dark night, "leave you in a condition not to take care of yourself; (hic) never."

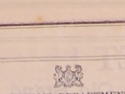

Two former French schoolmates met after an absence of years. "So you are married, Victorine?" "Yes." "Happy?" Oh! yes, perfectly happy." "You have children of course?" "No; you know our lodgings are so small!"

AN ALTERNATIVE.—'My son,' said a veteran at the foot of the stairs, 'arise and see the newly risen luminary of the day, and hear the sweet birds singing their matin song of praise to their creator; come while the dew is on the grass, and the tender lambs are bleating on the hill-side—come, I say, or I'll be there with a switch and give you the worst licking you ever had."

Ayer's
Hair Vigor,
For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. It wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,
For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is more reliable and far more effectual than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cures the disease who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always —that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements are the first origin of disease.

Full directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the disease action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, only a moderate dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it often cures disastrous illness when no serious derangement exists. One who feels lowish will often find such a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,
FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this extract medicine enjoys is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. In virtue of its power to cleanse, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous affections and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulous contamination until they were painfully afflicting, have been radically cured in such great numbers in almost every section of the country, that the publicity need not be informed of its virtues or source.

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this unseen and subtle tenant of the organism undermines the constitution, and invites the attack of fatal diseases, when, perhaps, without existing a suspicion of its presence. Again, it rests to breed in action through the body, and, often, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develop into one or other of its hideous forms, and bring on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by ruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the occasional use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla is advisable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with any of the foregoing complaints generally find immediate relief, and, at length cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA. St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions or visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Scrofulous, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Fits, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various painful affections of the muscular and nervous systems.

Syphilis or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these obstinate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Leucorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute Directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice—when arising as they often do, from the rankling poisons in the blood. The SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are Languid and Listless, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears—are under the influence of symptomatic of Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Colds, Coughs, Whooping Cough, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything been found to equal the hold upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. During a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has come to be known, and higher, than estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power over the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While relieving the sufferer, it imparts confidence and to young children, it is milder forms of these complaints, it is often given for incipient consumptions, and the most dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against the attacks of croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds, no one should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although acting on consumptions as thoroughly as possible, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled in the lungs, have completely yielded, and the sufferer restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. Every trial confirms its power over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most confirmed have yielded to it. No one having else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they become safe and certain.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small doses frequently repeated.

No remedy for the various kinds known as colds, has ever received the unbounded confidence and general use that this has obtained. While relieving the patient, it gives confidence to the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical Headache, Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither arsenic, quinine, or any mineral product, no mercurial or poisonous substance is given to the system. While it will cure as surely as whatever, it is nowise like the cures in the name destructive and unscientific practice. Its cures are permanent, are literally protections against future attacks, and without a particle of injury to the system. Our pride is gratified by the numerous and radical cures it effects of the obstinate cases, and where other remedies fail, and the sufferer, in despair, believes himself incurable, will be protracted through miasmatic localities, will be protected by taking the AGUE CURE daily.

For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy action.

For Bilious Disorders and Bilious Fevers, it is an excellent remedy. Many other medicines had failed, and the sufferers, in despair, gave up. Then, this remedy was given, and a cure followed.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass., and sold all round the world.

Vol. 3. BELLEVILLE, COUNTY OF HASTINGS, DOMINION OF CANADA, FRIDAY EVENING, AUGUST 27, 1869. No. 99.

The Press--A Beacon.

We remember to have read in some "old volume of forgotten lore" the following parable:

The night said to the lighthouse:—Of what use are you? Behold! the sea is calm; no danger threatens the ship. The pilot is asleep." And the lighthouse answered:—"The pilot is free to sleep or to wake; but my duty is to point out for him at every hour, the rocks and the breakers at the entrance of the harbour." Thus does truth shine on in eternal splendor above our heads. If we close our eyes to it, and go astray, let us blame ourselves. So is it the great transcendent duty, as it is the privilege of the public press, to shine on with the steady light of truth, no matter what else may be betide, whether there be darkness and storm, or a deep sky and an open port. It is in this comprehension of its high destiny, and in this alone, that it can survive the tide of corruption and intimidation that threatens to invade all our other institutions. Let it be the grand mission of the Press, when the Bench, the Bar, the Legislative Hall, nay, even the Sanctuary and the Executive control of nations are menaced or wheedled by the power of evil coalitions, to interpose its voice between the people and their despoilers. For, after all the strength of wicked combinations is but temporary; and those who share in them or succumb to them must, at last partake their doom. In history, time is but an incident, and the fame of warriors and mere accumulators of wealth and power but a dream. Man, institutions and forms of government are continually swept aside and continually replaced; only the old landmarks which rest upon the eternal rock survive. Such a monument of our civilization may the Press become, if true to its sacred and solemn charge.

The Byron Scandal.

Mrs. Stowe's Byronian scandal is the sensation of the day. While some give partial credence to its others loudly enough denounce it either as a well got up fiction, or the exhumation of "a mad diseased," the belief being that Lady Byron could not be in her right senses if she ever communicated the alleged facts. The New York World made short work of this "true and correct history." It says the other day: "Mrs. Stowe herself happily gives us the best possible reason for believing this whole horrible story to have been the morbid concoction of Lady Byron's own decaying faculties, wrought upon by pestilentially 'sympathising' friends. She assures us that Lady Byron told her that she lived with her husband for two years after the discovery of their guilty secret." Now this is simply impossible. It is impossible morally; for the discovery of such a thing would have made life in its accursed atmosphere unendurable by any pure and high minded woman whatever. It is impossible materially; for Lady Byron's wedded life lasted but a single year." As Byron had only one blood relation, it follows that his half sister, the wife of Col. Leigh, was the partner in guilt alluded to.

The New York Express says:—"There is a feeling prevalent, revived by the attack of Mrs. Stowe, that Lord Byron's assailed sister was the object of a most unnatural jealousy on the part of Lord Byron's wife. The sister stood by the brother before he was married, and long after. She was devoted in his service and to his memory, when absent, and Byron was not slow to acknowledge and encourage this love, which in its way, is as pure and holy as that of the truest husband to the most sainted wife. It is true Lord Byron wrote to his sister the most impassioned letters, and two or three affectionate poems. Here are three stanzas to his sister Augusta, but who —except a woman against a woman—would dare suggest an unlawful thought or desire even in these warm words? Mrs. Stowe has many amiable and excellent brothers, no doubt devoted to her, but who would venture to associate any but the truest love from them to her?

BYRON TO HIS SISTER.

Though the day of my destiny's over,
And the star of my fate hath declined,
Thy soft heart refused to discover
The faults which so many could find;
Though thy soul with my grief was acquainted,
It shrank not to share it with me,
And the love which my spirit had painted
It never hath found but in thee.

Though woman, thou didst not deceive me;
Though woman, thou didst not forsake;
Though loved, thou forborest to grieve me;
Though slandered, thou never could'st shake,
Though trusted, thou didst not discla im me;
Though parted, it was not to fly,
Though watchful, 'twas not to defame me;
Nor mute, that the world might belie.

From the wreck of the past which hath perished,
Thus much at least I may recall,
It hath taught me that what I most cherished
Deserved to be dearest of all.
In the desert a fountain is springing,
In the wild waste there is still a tree,
And a bird in the solitude singing,
Which speaks to my spirit of thee.

Dr. R. Shelton MacKenzie writes a severe criticism on Mrs. Stowe's Byron article.—He takes no stock in the slander. From his review in the Philadelphia Press we quote a paragraph:

"Augusta Byron, the poet's only sister, was born in 1783, married to Colonel George Leigh in 1807, and was 31 years old in 1814, when lady Byron declares, she had an incestuous connection with her brother, who was then aged 26. The attachment of Lord Byron and his half-sister was tender and lasting. Until now, no breath of suspicion of slander, ever floated across Mrs. Leigh's character. She moved all her life in the choicest circles in London; and not until after her death did Lady Byron—"the moral Clytemestra of her lord," venture to utter against her this positive accusation of a terrible crime. Believe it who may, and some will,

"For Folly loves the martyrdom of Fame."

we will utterly discredit and repudiate it, England, proud of her poet, whose writings

"Equal all but Shakespeare's fame below."

will not believe this new and terrible slander.

Snubbed!

THE GOVERNOR AND THE ANTIS. SIR JOHN YOUNG ON HIS METTLE.

A correspondent of the St. John (N.B.) Morning News relates the following incident of the opening of the Windsor and Annapolis Railway:—

At ten o'clock a special train decked with flags arrived from Halifax, having on board His Excellency the Governor General the Lieut. Governor of Nova Scotia, Sir G. E Cartier, Dr. Tupper, the Chief Justice of Nova Scotia, and other Judges, and a large number of the leading men of Halifax together with many officers of the army and navy, the whole party numbering about a hundred. Immediately on arriving important despatches were handed to Sir John Young, who spent some minutes on their perusal before leaving the train. Wall, Provincial Secretary, and Mr. Troop, a member of the Executive, were among the party, and we learned that although these gentlemen had refused to attend the Levee on the Governor General held in Halifax, they were now anxious for an introduction, and desired Governor Doyle to present them, but this the Governor positively refused to do—a just punishment for their want of courtesy and respect to a stranger and a gentleman of high Imperial position visiting their Province.

More about the Imprisoned Nun.

The sister of the imprisoned nun, Barbara Ubryk, who is still living at Waraw, has communicated to a Polish paper (The Daily Courier) some further particulars of her history. It appears from her statements that her parents were small landed proprietors, and that they died young, leaving four daughters. Of these Anna, afterwards named Barbara, was brought up by her aunt, and afterwards sent to the school of the Order of the Visitation,—Here she became ill, upon which she was taken by the Countess Dzlowanowski into her house. As soon as her health began to improve, she again begged to be taken to the Convent of the Visitation, but she was refused admission. She then obtained an introduction to the Carmelite Convent at Cracrow, and since then her family heard nothing more of her, except that she had become insane and was well treated. In one of the letters sent to Eleanor Ubryke (Barbara's sister) by the Abbess of the Convent, that lady thus expressed herself: "The news which you received about the illness of your sister is correct. She has been suffering from a severe mental disorder for the last three years, and is subject to very violent fits. If you lament her unfortunate position, we do so even more.—We have to pay a great deal for her medical treatment, and are in constant fear of her. It is very painful to us that, as the physicians say, she must have suffered from that illness before, and we were never told of it; for if we had known it she would not have been admitted to our convent.—You may be quite at ease as to the treatment of your sister; we do her no harm, and she would be unhappy if she were anywhere else. The convent is a great protection to her, though God has made her a great and heavy cross to us." This letter is dated Aug. 11, 1803.

A theoretically benevolent man, on being asked by a friend to lend him a dollar, answered briskly, "With pleasure;" but suddenly added, "Dear me, how unfortunate, I've only one lending dollar and that is out."

A young enthusiast was talking with his intended, upon her speedy marriage, and a start to spend the honeymoon in California. "I tell you," said he, his face glowing with enthusiasm, "California is the paradise of this earth. There's no use talking!" "No use talking!" exclaimed the lady with a look of surprise. "No use of talking!" he replied. "Well, if there's no use talking," said the lady, "what in the name of common sense do you want of women there for? I don't go!"

Restlessness and Activity.

Eugene Benson cites Henry J. Raymond and George Francis Train as illustrations of the "active man," and the "restless man." "Train," says he "does nothing but blow his own trumpet; Raymond never blew his own trumpet applying himself exclusively to well directed unremitting work. They were about of an age and not unlike in genius, but wholly unlike in character. The one was a sincere man, the other a charlatan." Benson's description is certainly a good one. Success is the staadard. The world is full of discontented, restless men having just genius enough to make their failure conspicuous. The men of purpose and action are rare; but they always succeed. They do not cajole themselves with imaginary success. They do not waste their time striving to cajole the public into the belief that they are successful or that they are going to be successful. But they work; they work constantly and patiently, and they know very well that their work will tell the tale for them better than they can tell it. The restless man is the Arab, brilliant, fickle and versatile, and under his foot the grass does not grow. The Active man is as a mill, which stands in one spot, but is ever going, producing something every year.

—As an illustration of the prevalence of insanity on the Pacific coast a correspondent states that on the 2nd inst., no less than four men were sent to a lunatic asylum, and adds: "Californians live constantly in a perfect whirl of feverish excitement, enduring an amount of wear and tear of body and brains not equalled in Wall st. itself. There are few old Californians to be found who have not been rich and poor again at least half a dozen times, and most of them are poor now."

A Father's Blessing.—A couple ran off to get married, and came back to the bride's house, where she humbly sued for the forgiveness of her father, kneeling at his feet, all tears. 'Forgive, forgive me, dearest father!' sobbed the lovely suppliant. 'Forgive you,' exclaimed the old gentleman; 'why I am only to glad to get rid of you. Your ill-temper and idleness have been the plague of my life, and make your marriage no loss to me, my dear child. So, take her, added the old gentleman, generously, addressing the happy man, 'and may you be happy.'

—As might be expected, the mortality among Mormon children is frightful. The polygamists are like the old woman who lived in a shoe, and do not know what to do with their many children; at any rate they do not properly care for them. Of sixty deaths in Salt Lake City in a month forty four were children. Heber Kimball is reported to have buried forty-eight children out of sixty three in his collection; one bishop had lost twenty children; another, twenty eight; another, seventeen. Joseph Smith had six wives, but left only two sons. The death rate among Mormons of all ages is said to be greater than that of New Orleans, and more than twice as great as that of Oregon.

Errors of Childhood.—If you find an error in a child's mind follow it up until he is rid of it. Repeat and fix attention on the exact error, until it can never be committed again. One clear and distinct idea is worth a world of misty ones. Time is of no consequence in comparison to the object. Give the child possession of one clear, distinct truth and it becomes to him a centre of light. In all your teaching, no matter what time it takes, never leave your pupil till you know he has in his mind your exact thought. In all explanations to your child, (and you will find innumerable explanations to be called for) be patient and considerate, and leave no sense of vagueness behind, neither a repressive influence.

Stoning a Priest.—The martyrdom of St. Stephen has been repeated in Ireland. On the 12th of July, the Orange anniversary, a Roman Catholic priest was "stoned" by the Protestants of his district. He is expected to live—in fact, he is rather lively than otherwise—after the unusual experience. Father Mulready is the priest of a poor parish in Donegal, North of Ireland. His parishioners assembled, by previous arrangement, to draw stones for the building of his new schoolhouse. The Protestants of the neighborhood heard of the plan, and they offered to assist. The offer was accepted, and then a fierce contest commenced. Protestant and Catholic strove who should draw most stones to the site, and the day was spent in determined rivalry. The fact is, that in matters of political strife we hear a great deal about the mischief on both sides, but very little come to our knowledge about the thousands of Catholics and Protestants willing to live peaceably together side by side.

Fidelity.—Never forsake a friend. When enemies gather around—when sickness falls on the heart—when the world is dark and cheerless—is the time to try true friendship. They who turn from the scene of distress betray their hypocrisy, and prove that interest only moves them. If you have a friend who loves you—who has studied your interest and happiness—be sure you sustain him in adversity. Let him feel that his former kindness is appreciated and that his love was not thrown away. Real fidelity may be rare—but it exists—in the heart. Who has not seen and felt its power! They only deny its worth who have never loved a friend or laboured to make one happy. The good and the kind, the affectionate and the virtuous see and feel the heavenly principle. They would sacrifice wealth and honor to promote the happiness of others, and, in return they receive the reward of their love by sympathising hearts and countless favors, when they have been brought low by disease and adversity.

The Great International Race.—A cable telegram this afternoon, informs us that the Oxford crew won the great International Boat Race by three lengths, the Harvards' coming in only six seconds behind time.

Trout.—Mr. Smith Stephens and Mr. A. Dulmage went out to a brook beyond Stirling, Wednesday, and in six hours caught 210 Trout, some of which were of large size. There is good sport in the Trout streams this year.

The Latest Sensation.

Ten thousand people went to Niagara Falls on Wednesday, to see a man named Jenkins ride over the chasm on a Velocipede. He performed the feat successfully, much to the disappointment of the crowd who went to witness the fool hardy attempt at suicide. Having been successful this time in cheating Death of his victim, it is altogether probable he will give the Adversary another chance, which will likely put an end to his sporting propensities this side the dark river. The reporter of the London Free Press was present, and from his account of the proceedings we gather a few facts. This Jenkins is a resident of Canada, has been suffering funamiulism for some time, and his finances being low, determined upon replenishing his exhausted treasury by crossing Niagara River on a velocipede. The performance was well advertised, and ten thousand people flocked from far and near to witness it. The rope was stretched across the gulf, about 300 yards below Suspension Bridge. There were no guys to steady it, which made the attempt to cross it seem like sheer madness. The bicycle which was attached, is thus described by the reporter:

"In the common meaning of the word, it is not a velocipede at all. The wheels are about two inches wide, and deeply grooved, to fit the rope. The fore Wheel is cogged, and controlled in its motion by a smaller cog wheel, to which is attached two handles revolving in a circumference of about ten inches. Connected with the axles and passing around the rope are two clamps made of iron rods about half an inch in diameter. Below is a circular platform, also of iron, and passing through it an iron balancing pole, tipped with heavy iron balls. The whole part, as described, weighs from 70 to 80 pounds, and affords a complete balance of the machine, without its rider. There is in fact no possibility of its falling off, except by a breakage in the rope, which under any circumstance is to upset, the clamps would still hold it up, and it would require no exertion or skill on the part of the rider to recover a safe position. This could be seen at a glance, and in the minds of the present fully accounted for the free and easy manner with which the 'prof.' set about arranging the preliminaries."

How he got over is thus told by the same writer:—

"He sat upon a narrow piece of leather, which could be suspended at will between the wheels, and this rested near the rope. In reality, he merely stood with one foot on each side of the circular platform, supporting himself by turning the cranks with his hands. He progressed very rapidly and steadily down the Canadian grade, and when about two hundred feet out stopped and waved his hat to the people on the bridge. His signal was answered by the waving of hundreds of pocket handkerchiefs. In the middle he again stopped, and while standing on his bicycle, and giving it a swinging motion, which had well-nigh upset it. But by a sudden and firm movement of the feet, Jenkins succeeded in keeping his balance, and stopped until the swaying had subsided.— The ascent seemed to be a work of no little difficulty, for, whether obliged or not, he took three rests in the accomplishment. The whole time occupied was nine minutes."

If Jenkins had fallen off the bicycle and been engulphed in the whirlpool below, a shudder would have gone through the crowd not unlike the shudder which is felt when the hangman lets fall the trap door, and when the awful "thud" is heard which snap the thread asunder. The same morbid curiosity which actuated thousands to witness a public execution, attracts thousands to attend such performances as above described. More than half of those who went to the Falls expected to see Jenkins break his neck, and were greatly disappointed because he had made a groove in the bicycle, so as to the lessen his chances of death. The more fool-hardy and madly-adventurous the performances, the better satisfied are they who patronize them,—and however degrading the thought, it is true that a large number go away feeling that their agonizing sense of danger was not sufficiently realized—that, in short, the poor man had not tumbled-on to the jagged rocks or into the yawning chasm below—if he had then there would have been a relief to the suspense, a realization of the agony.

It is to be regretted that the public execution of criminals is not abolished; the same argument against such exhibitions might very properly be advanced against such unseemly, disgusting and demoralizing exhibitions as that given by Jenkins. The authorities should not allow them.

—The water in Philadelphia is entirely out, at last, and consequently the great Baptist revival has been reduced to the necessity of giving its note at thirty days to new converts.

—Gen. Washington's body servant is dead again. He was a she this time, colored, and of the name of Mrs. Thurman, and died in Kentucky at the age of a hundred and nineteen years. Adieu, once more, immortal fraud.

The Emigration Commissioner.

Mr. Thomas White, Emigration Commissioner to Great Britain from Ontario, arrived at his home in Hamilton on Wednesday, and received a hearty welcome.

At Toronto he was waited upon by a deputation consisting of the leading citizens of the "Ambitious City," and presented with the following address:

To Thomas White, Jun., Special Commissioner of Emigration for the Province of Ontario to Great Britain:

A few of our old friends, and inhabitants of the City of Hamilton, in coming to meet you, desire to express to you their hearty congratulations on the success of your mission as Special Commissioner of Emigration for the Province of Ontario to Great Britain, and their cordial welcome on this your return to your home and friends.

We have watched with special interest the progress of your mission from the time of your departure from amongst us in April last up to the present moment; we have read with pleasure and great satisfaction the able lectures you have delivered, and the letters you have written on emigration.

We have observed with pleasure your unwearied exertions in doing your part to remove false impressions concerning our country, the effect of which is to be seen in the additional stimulus which has been given to emigration from the laboring classes of Great Britain to our shores.

The four months of your absence has been to you a period of anxiety and labor. Let us assure you that while you enjoy the satisfaction in your own mind that you have faithfully discharged the duty to which you have been appointed, it will be no less gratifying to you to know that the public of Canada justly appreciate your exertions, and that throughout the Province there is a feeling of the highest commendation, both as to the manner in which you have fulfilled your mission and the apparent results of it. We believe that the real result of your work will be seen in a large emigration to this Province of men of intelligence, of means, of respectability, and of practical ability in their several departments of labor.

We welcome you back; and in the different departments in which you employ your talents, our community will be glad again to hear your voice and feel your influence.

The reception which has attended your mission points to a wide career of useful ness for you in the future.

We wish you all the blessings which friendly hearts can dictate, or a beneficent Providence bestow. Accept them, Dear Sir, these hearty congratulations and wishes, and be assured that to these we give utterance to the feelings of a large number of persons who are unable to join us to-day in shaking hands with you, and welcoming you home.

Mr. White, in rising to reply, was very warmly cheered. He thanked the gentlemen present for their very great kindness in extending to him this formal welcome. He could, he felt, say that while much has been left undone by him which he would gladly have done, had time permitted, during his back now upon the last four months, he was unconscious of having done anything which had better have been left unperformed. He had found in Britain the strongest interest in the subject of emigration, and he had spared no pains to place fairly and candidly before the people the advantages which Canada, and especially Ontario, offered as a field for settlement. (Cheers.) He did not suppose that a speech was expected from him at this time, and he could only again cordially thank his Hamilton friends for this renewed mark of their kindness. (Cheers.)

A number of toasts were then proposed and responded to, and a very pleasant time was spent during the passage from Toronto to Hamilton.

At Hamilton a large number of gentlemen, including among others the Hon. Isaac Buchanan, Hon. Mr. Merritt, Messrs. Thos. Swinyard, Geo. Lowe Reid, John Brown, Æmilius Irving, Col. Gray, Alex. Turner, and others, met the party on the platform to welcome Mr. White on his arrival.

The Sunday School Convention.

We clip the following from "The Christian at work," as it refers to one who will occupy a prominent position at the approaching Convention at this place:

"Mr. Reynolds, of Peoria, the present President of the Illinois State Sunday School Convention, with a Mission Sunday School of six hundred children under his care, and with a large and engrossing business, one would think he had no time for outside work. But he has been known to attend a dozen Sunday School Conventions in half as many weeks, holding open air meetings in the streets. He is a man of means and social position, who has the advantages of European travel, and yet quite young. He preaches constantly in the street and elsewhere. The results following his labours are as encouraging as his labours are multiplied."

Mr. Reynolds, we understand, is to be present at the Convention here, and we doubt not but that his earnest addresses and practical experience, will add much to the enthusiasm and success of the Convention. It is his first visit to our Provincial Convention, and we have no doubt his "first impressions" of Ontario and its Sunday School workers, will be favorable ones.

A CLOSE RACE.

OXFORD CREW THREE LENGTHS AHEAD.

Harvard Six Seconds Behind.

By Special Cable Telegram.

London, Aug. 27, 5.48 P. M.

The race between the Oxford and Harvard crews came off this afternoon. Oxford won by three lengths. The Harvards were six seconds behind.

LATER.

London, Aug. 27.—The Harvard crew won the toss, and chose Middlesex side, the outside of the semicircle. Both boats started at five o'clock, 14 m., 6½ s. The Oxford's arrived at the ship first, three length ahead. Time of race, 22 m. 40½ s. The weather was fine and hot. There was some wind, but the water was in good condition. Before the race the excitement was intense. The river banks had been filled with spectators since morning. The cars were almost unable to carry the crowds waiting at the depots.

American Despatches.

THE BOAT RACE.

New York, Aug. 27.—The result of the boat race will be sent to all papers for bulletin immediately on receipt.

The Tribune's London special says:—The crews done little work to day, both resting for tomorrow's struggle. The fierce question has been settled, Mr. Hughes remaining in that position, while Chitty consents to serve as Umpire for Oxford and Mr. Gaiston, of the London Rowing Club, acts in the same capacity for Harvard. The choice is a good one. All preliminaries have now been arranged, and the Harvard crew have carried all points upon which they insisted. To day they look perhaps a little over-trained on account of intensely hot weather. There is every prospect of a clear day for the race and smooth water. The police arrangements are perfect, and every one is determined that there shall be a fair race and that the best men shall win.

COMING YOU HOME.

DAMAGE BY FIRE.

San Francisco, Aug. 26.—The damage to the Pacific Railroad by the fire, is greater than at first supposed. Trains will probably not pass the burnt district before Saturday.

THE FENIAN CONGRESS.

New York, Aug. 26.—The Fenian Congress assembled to day. President Savage brought down his report, in which he shows that the spirit of insurrection is still strong in Ireland that the organization is in full working order and drilling, in rank and file going on quietly but constantly, and the number of sworn members here was never greater than now. He hoped dissension in this country was about ended. Important matters are said to be under consideration, and Congress is still in session this evening.

FIRE ON THE CENTRAL PACIFIC R. R. LINE.

San Francisco, Aug. 26.—Two miles of snow sheds on the Central Pacific Road, between Cisco and the summit, were burned last night. Considerable iron was badly bent and a great number of ties burned. The eastern and western trains were delayed. A large force is at work clearing and repairing the road, which will be ready for the passage of trains to-morrow a.m. The passengers, mails and baggage were transferred across the break to-day in waggons.

—Victor Emmanuel is hunting in the mountains of Piedmont.

—There is promise of a very large and fine orange crop in Florida.

—Gen. Bourgard is interested in the patent right of a new kind of skate.

—Silver is now sold in Montreal at only 2½ discount.

—A western reporter calls a marriage license "a preliminary way bill to be freighted over the sea of life together."

—The peach-stones cast aside by the armies at St. Petersburg have shot up into a grove of trees forty-five miles long, which is now loaded with fruit.

—Ike Marvel having spoken disrespectfully of the New York and New Haven Railroad in the 'Hearth and Home,' that paper is banished from the train stations on that line.

—One Mr. Savage, a lonesome old eccentric of London, has just died, and, though it was generally supposed that he was living on the charity of his relatives, he left $500,000 to Louis Napoleon.

Hearts are not trumps in a great game of life. As a sentiment, the heart is commonly regarded as pretty, but as a fact of little account. It is quite the thing to splurge about the little beater, but the world really holds it in no more estimation than did Shylock. Money is the trump card, and to which all others in the game pay homage. If any one disputes this let him open his eyes and look about him.

—Cast-iron tubes for water or gas are now made in England by turning off one end conically, and boring out the ends of the tubes to which it is to be fitted at the same angle, so that the end of one tube may be inserted into the other without the addition of the ordinary cement. The junction is effected very quickly, and the joint is perfectly tight. Pipes 36 inches in diameter have been perfectly joined in this way. Liverpool has about 90 miles of gas pipe with this joint, and the leakage is said to be much less than in other cites.

Business Notice.

Not many weeks ago a rich but cuddlesa landed proprietor breathed his last, leaving a large circle of relations to mourn his loss and squabble over their prospects of sharing his wealth. The day for reading the will at last came; the room was crowded with anxious expectants; the will was opened and to the inexpressible joy of all, the rich gentleman's relations found that to each of them had been bequeathed a case of Royal Italian Bitters.

THE PRESS ON THE POSITION OF CANADA.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—The 'Times' referring t the condition of the British Colonies, says:—Canada is in all respects independent, and she is fitted to become so. She has institutions of great power, and it is a fair subject of inquiry whether she might not assume her appropriate position.

THE FIRST SEASON'S CARGO OF TEA.

The ship 'Agamemnon,' from Han Kow, June 9th, has arrived with the first cargo of the season. A submarine telegraph from Pangor by the way of Singapore to the Island of Java thence to Unlua is projected.

THE SENATUS CONSULTUM.

PARIS, Aug. 26.—The Senate will commence the discussion of the Senatus Consultum on the 18th of September. The reports on the Senatus Consultum points to the results of the legislation in 1860—tranquility, development of education, and increased wealth. France is supported by 1,400,000 soldiers, ready to proceed to the frontier. She is respected by the great Powers of the earth, and she has passed from a dictatorship to complete liberty. The report concludes—"The generation of '69 can improve upon that of '52 should it consolidate the work undertaken.

The Empress and Prince Imperial have arrived in London.

THE PRESS ON THE REJECTION OF MR. BURLINGAME'S TREATY.

LONDON, August 26.—The Star, in an article on the rejection of the American treaty by China, shows that the treaty secured substantial advantages for the Chinese, while America disclaimed any interference with their internal administration. It cannot be supposed that the Pekin Government is dissatisfied with the Convention but that a weak Government should yield to the pressure of Minister Burlingame's enemies, who represent to it that the Convention is at variance with the traditions of the country, is not surprising. It now remains to be seen whether Mr. Burlingame or Mr. Browne reflects the mind and purpose of President Grant.

The Standard thinks that the Chinese, in refusing to endorse the agreement, show that they are animated by impulses, which Mr. Burlingame denied they possessed, and hopes their action will lead him to abandon functions which secure neither honor for himself nor benefit for the world at large.

TROOPS FOR CUBA.

MADRID, August 26.—General Prim has gone to Vichy, and Admiral Topete acts in his absence. Six thousand additional troops will be sent to reinforce the Spanish army in Cuba within the coming two weeks.

POLO SENTENCED TO DEATH.

Polo and his Secretary, who were recently captured at the head of a Carlist band, have been sentenced to death. Unsuccessful efforts were made by the wife and friends of Polo for clemency in his behalf. Several other Carlist prisoners have been condemned to death. An official circular has been issued by the Government, thanking the volunteers and others for their efforts made towards the restoration of peace.

THE LATEST.

ABOUT THE GREAT RACE.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—The Harvard and Oxford crews have only practiced starts to-day. The Elliott Boat, in which the Harvard's have decided to row the match to-morrow, is 44 feet long, 21 inches deep; depth over all, 11¾ inches; depth forward, 7 inches; and depth aft 6¼ inches. She was built on a draft and model brought from New York, and is of purely American construction; even her framework having been brought over with the crew. The oars to be used were made by Ayling. The following are the weights of both crews as they stand to-day:

Harvards.—Faye, bow, 155 lbs., Lyman, 155 lbs., Simmons, 171 lbs., Loring, stroke, 154 lbs. Burnham, coxswain, 112 lbs.

Oxford.—Darbyshire, stroke, 159¾ lbs., Liune, 159¾ lbs., Yarborough, 159¾ lbs., Willar, bow, 154 lbs., Hall, coxswain, 101 lbs.

Galston, Captain of the London Rowing Club, will be the Umpire of the Harvard's, and Chitly will probably act in that capacity for the Oxonians.

Mr. Blakie has been chosen starter, and Sir A Pauli will probably be agreed upon as Judge. The Oxford men are confident of winning but the Americans are hopeful. Simmons is again slightly indisposed to-day.

Mr. Blakie has written a letter to the Times for publication on Saturday, protesting against the contents of the English press in regard to the Harvard style of rowing, and against the assertion respecting an alteration in the style. He declares that their style now differs in no respect from that which they always used at home.

The Pall Mall Gazette this evening says:—If the Harvard's are beaten it will be by the best crew ever seen on the Thames; one which would make short work of the fastest Henly crew There used to no fear but that the race will be rowed entirely on its merits.

THE LATE AMNESTY.

PARIS, Aug. 26.—The Journal Officiel to-day states that the recent amnesty granted by the Emperor, does not extend to those who have been convicted of an attempt to take the life of the Emperor or that of any other political person. The Empress and her son were very brilliantly and enthusiastically received at Lyons.

DEATH SENTENCES COMMUTED.

MADRID, Aug. 26.—The Government yielding to the pressure of solicitation from all parties has commuted the death sentences of several Carlist clergymen, and there will probably be no more executions.

NOT SATISFACTORY.

The answers received from six Bishops in regard to the recent decree of the regent, are unsatisfactory and defiant. No further steps will be taken against them until Gen. Prim returns.

NEW ALBION HOTEL,
McGILL STREET,
MONTREAL, CANADA.

THE "NEW ALBION HOTEL," the largest Hotel in Montreal, has just been opened under the most favorable auspices.

Whilst the "Old Albion" has been long noted for the strict attention paid to it's numerous guests, the "New Albion" takes its position as a first class Hotel, and is really first class in every respect, except the charges, which better suit the ideas and requirements of the majority of travellers, than many of the so called, "first class Houses;" which deserve the title more through the amount of their charges than such c &c.

Already the crowded state of the "New Albion" promises well for its future career; everything associated with its construction has been carried out with artistic taste and system attic correctness.

The large Hall, commodious office, spacious Reading room, convenient Dining, Coffee, Wash Room, etc., etc., on the ground floor; and the Reception Room and Suite of SPLENDIDLY FURNISHED and THOROUGHLY VENTILATED LADIES' PARLORS, on the second floor, will form no small luxury during the hot summer season. And, what is an exception to the general Rule in Hotels, the Bedrooms are all well ventilated and lighted, there not being a dark room in the House.

Being situated on the widest and healthiest Street in Montreal, commanding a Magnificent View of the River St. Lawrence and the Victoria Bridge on the left, and a full view of the Victoria Square with its numerous "Jets d'Eau" and Mount Royal on the right, it cannot fail to commend itself to the travelling public.

From its situation on McGill Street, the great thoroughfare and commercial centre of the City it cannot fail to be, as the "Old Albion" has always been a strong favorite with the Merchants of Canada.

Notwithstanding the very large outlay in building and furnishing the house, the old price of $1 50 per day will not be departed from.

We, therefore, bespeak for ourselves a continuance of the patronage so liberally accorded to us during the past twelve years.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry.

Where this article is known it is a work of supererogation to say one word in its favor, so well is it established as an unfailing remedy for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Asthma, Diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs, as well as that most dreaded of all diseases, Consumption, which high medical authority has pronounced to be an incurable disease. Those who have used this remedy know its value; those who have not, have but to make a single trial to be satisfied that of all others it is THE REMEDY.

THE REV. JACOB SECHLER,

well known and much respected among the German population of this country, writes as follows:

HANOVER, Pa., Feb. 16. 1859.

Messrs. S. W. Fowle & Son, Boston.

DEAR SIRS,—Having realized in my family important benefits from the use of your valuable preparation—Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry—it affords me pleasure to recommend it to the public. Some eight years ago, one of my daughters appeared to be in a decline, and little hopes of her recovery were entertained. I then procured a bottle of your excellent Balsam, and before she had taken the whole of it there was a great improvement in her health. I have, in my individual case, made frequent use of your valuable medicine, and have always been benefitted by it. I would, however, caution the public against imposition, because there is a good deal of spurious "Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry" afloat throughout the country.

Grace's Celebrated Salve.

From Mr. JAMES CURLIN, of AMESBURY, MASS.

"I was afflicted with a severe felon on one of my fingers, and tried many remedies without relief. My friends induced me to apply your Salve. In two days it extracted the inflammation from my finger so as to enable me to resume my work. I can almost say that the Salve worked like magic, for it effected a cure without leaving a scar. I unhesitatingly pronounce Grace's Salve an excellent remedy, and do not doubt it will be appreciated throughout the land." 25

A Balloon Story.

Mr. Samuel A. King, the Aeronaut, gives the following amusing account of an adventure in the northern wilds of Maine; I had an unusually long air voyage from Bangor, with several companions, and was passing over almost an unbroken wilderness of forest and lake, looking in vain for a landing place. Night was coming on, and the question where to land became a serious one. No sound of civilization, not a gun or an axe, nothing but primitive sounds of nature. "Here is an opening" cried one passenger, "why not land here!" No! boys, have a little patience; we can do much better by running down to the coast in the counter current above us. Darkness had come on, but see—A light! a light!" This was the exclamation of one who a moment before thought he was doomed to starve in the wilderness. Sure enough, there was a light; but it was a great way off, and might not be in our course; yet gradually we approach it. At one time it seems to be off to the right, and then away to the left; but nearer it comes till it is seen streaming from a window beneath us. There is a dark, open space below. Is it land or water? I see a fence. Over with the anchor and in a moment more we find ourselves swinging by the anchor-rope over a newly cleared field, among the stumps and logs. We had landed in the only inhabited spot within twenty miles, near a saw mill, on the Oromucto River. The people who ran the mill lived near by, and it was from their window that we saw the light. Winding the rope some distance to remove the balloon to smooth ground, if possible, before letting the gas out, we remained in the car, and taking up my speaking trumpet, I hallooed; but the unearthly sound I was adding there to the already frightened inhabitants. One man, however, a little braver than the rest, ventured out after a while, and inquired what is it, my how! By dint of explanation and persuasion, we succeeded in getting him to come to us. Giving him a line that was attached to the car he was requested to make it fast to a certain log to prevent the balloon from swaying about till we could get more help. Becoming impressed with the idea that our lives were in danger, and that our safety depended on him, he froze to that rope in a wonderful manner. It was a little short, and, though he tried hard to make it fast, every time the balloon would settle, still he could not get it fastened.—Then the balloon would rise, and up he would go twenty feet or more, and down again to try the same thing over; but soon began to get exhausted, and remembering his companions, broke out with: "Say! you blasted, goldumered, cowardly sneaks, come out and help me; the darned thing 'll kill me!" This started them soon; five others made their appearance and assisted in moving the balloon to a better place. The first they knew of the balloon was from one of the women, who was just returning from milking, seeing the monster just above her, and descending, she dropped her pail and fled to the house, screaming in the most frantic manner; when asked what was the matter, she could only reply, "Oh, its a forerunner! I know it's a forerunner!" In this backwoods place they had never heard of a balloon, and many were the wonders and surmises as to the meaning of our strange appearance among them. The oldest man of them all, however, seemed to have hit upon the right idea, and coming up to me, in a jocose way says he; "Ah! yeer skedaddlers!" I shook my head, and pointed to the balloon, he asked, "How many more is there up in the'r? It didn't take so big a coach to bring so few of ye!" He was induced to change his mind at last, when "big couch" lay prone upon the ground.

How he Won a Place.

'Sir,' said a boy, addressing a man, 'do you want a boy to work for you?'

'No,' answered the man, 'I have no such want.'

The boy looked disappointed; at least the man thought so, and he asked, 'Don't you succeed in getting a place?'

'I have asked at a good many places,' said the boy. 'A woman told me you had been after a boy; but it is not so I find.'

'Don't be discouraged,' said the man in a friendly tone.

'O, sir!' said the boy cheerfully, 'because this is a very big world, and I feel certain that God has something for me to do in it. I am only trying to find it.'

'Just so, just so,' said a gentleman who overheard the talk. 'Come with me, my boy; I am in want of somebody like you.' He was a doctor; and the doctor thought any boy so anxious to find a work would be likely to do it faithfully when he found it; so he took the boy into his employ, and found him all that he desired.

THE BRITISH NAVY.—The question has been often asked whether the Navy of Great Britain, steaming as it does over six thousand guns, and manned by 75,000 sailors, exceeds the navies of France and the United States, or France and Russia, and were it not that we might be considered a little egotistical, we should say it exceeded them altogether, but it is useless speculating upon this, when there are other questions that do not admit of any doubt. No one after seeing the "Canadian Pain Destroyer" but will admit that the very best for coughs, colds, sore throat, diptheria, pains in the stomach, sides and back, spinal affections, &c. Sold by all Medicine Dealers at 25 cts. per bottle.

The efficacy of Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers in curing Coughs, Colds, and all Bronchial affections, and relieving the afflicted, has passed into a proverb. In the United States, where these marvellous wafers are known, they bear down all opposition and eclipse all rivalry. The demand for them has steadily increased for the last twenty years, and now the sales average over one hundred thousand boxes a year. Eminent members of the medical profession without number admit that they know of no preparation producing such beneficial results as these wafers. When taken in season they effect a permanent cure. Sold by every druggist and most of the respectable stores throughout the Province, at 25 cents per box.

Ayer's
Hair Vigor,
For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

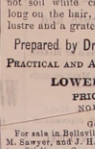

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. In consequence, frequently the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,
For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, found in a mere portable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate into healthy action the various organs of the body, restoring them to their proper tone and vigor, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptom, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, no mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

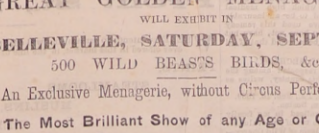

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels himself well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,
FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys, is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Inveterate cases of Scrofula, in which the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been entirely and permanently cured by its use. Scrofulous affections and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulous taint, continue until their vitals painfully sicken, have been radically cured in such great numbers in almost every section of the country, that its value scarcely need to be informed of its virtues or even its composition.
Scrofula is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this unseen and unfelt source of corruption undermines the whole system, and invites the attack of pitiless, and fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again it seems to breed in action throughout the body, and from a state of perfect health, the victim, in a few hours, or weeks, is prostrated on the bed of sickness, and found to be in the grasp of some one of the many forms of disease which are the offspring of Scrofula. Hence the importance of a tonic of this Sarsaparilla is unrivalled, even when no symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints should not hesitate to give this medicine a fair, and, in most cases, speedy trial, as it will surely cure, or greatly relieve, the most distressing cases.
Syphilis or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time required for subduing these obstinate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Leucorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute directions for each case are given in our pamphlet, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by the accumulations of uric acid in the system in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Constipation or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when arising, as they often do, from a disordered condition of the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a Strengthener, by the strength and vigor it imparts to the system. Those who are Languid and Tasteless, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the affections commonly called Nervous Complaints, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,
For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Influenza, Asthma, Bronchitis and Consumption.
Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of community as this extraordinary remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among every class of the people, it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become known. Its unvarying power of character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a sure antidote to those dreadful scourges. While admired by mother forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. Even in cases of violent and apparently desperate character, if relief be not speedily obtained, the use of this remedy will never fail to subdue the most distressing of these, and bring about a healthy action in the system. When nothing else could, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has relieved and cured thousands.
Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.
Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.
Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in connection with Ayer's Sarsaparilla. As recently as its virtues known that we need not publish them in this locality. Our friends all know the public that its qualities are fully sustained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,
For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, miasmatic, or miasmatic poisons.
In its same tendies, it does Cure, and does not, as do other remedies, leave the system subject to relapses, but any other ingredients or poisonous substances. It is perfectly harmless, and while it is the best remedy, the number and importance of its cures in the name disease, is truly astonishing, and well known to every one, without a parallel in the history of Ague medicine. Every fact in relation to its character, composition, and power of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and the various complaints which arise from it, are fully detailed in our pamphlet. Unprincipled persons, therefore, will be disappointed by taking the AGUE CURE daily.
For Liver Complaint, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy activity.
For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly remarkable cures, where other medicines had failed.

ROYAL ITALIAN BITTERS
OR TONICO REALE.
Del Dottore F. P. Verri, Prof. of Chemistry, in the of University Padua, Italy.
THIS Celebrated Preparation—for which a Certificate of Merit was awarded to the original preparer at the National Exposition at Torino, Italy, by whose favor Mr. Gianelli obtained the Recipe, and was also awarded a Diploma at the Provincial Exhibition of Canada, held at Montreal in September, 1868, is without exception, the most Genuine, Salubrious and agreeable Tonic ever introduced to public notice either in Europe or America.
For seventeen years it has, in Italy, been a universal favorite among the élite of society, being generally served in the Drawing Room immediately before dinner, in preference to Vermouth.
☞ The ingredients of its composition have been imparted to the leading Physicians of Montreal, and have received their unqualified approval on every account.
The Proprietor has no idea of parading or puffing it before the public, but merely asks a sound and unprejudiced trial.
Kept by the principal Wine Merchants, Druggists, and Grocers in Canada.
Prepared and sold wholesale by the Proprietor,

VOL. 3. BELLEVILLE, COUNTY OF HASTINGS, DOMINION OF CANADA, SATUDAY EVENING, AUGUST 28, 1869. No. 100.

The Three Little Chairs.

They sat alone by the bright wood fire,
The gray-haired dame and the aged sire,
Dreaming of days gone by ;
The tear-drop fell on each wrinkled cheek,
They both had thoughts that they could not speak,
As each heart uttered a sigh.

For their sad and tearful eyes descried
Three little chairs placed side by side
Against the sitting room wall ;
Old fashioned enough as there they stood,
Their seats of flags, and their frames of wood,
With their backs so straight and tall.

Then the sire shook his silvery head,
And with trembling voice he gently said—
" Mother, those empty chairs,
They bring us such sad, sad thoughts to-night,
We'll put them forever out of sight,
In the small, dark room, up stairs ?"

But she answered : " Father, no not yet,
For I look at them and I forget
That the children went away.
The boys come back, and our Mary, too,
With her apron on of checkered blue,
And sit here every day.

Johnny still whittles a ship's tall masts,
And Willie his leaden bullet casts,
While Mary her patchwork sews ;
At evening time three childish prayers
Go up to God from those little chairs,
So softly that no one knows.

Johnny comes back from the billow deep,
Willie wakes from the battle-field sleep,
To say a good night to me ;
Mary's a wife and mother no more,
But a tired child whose play-time is o'er,
And comes to rest on my knee.

So let them stand there, though empty now,
And every time when alone we bow
At the Father's throne to pray,
We'll ask to meet the children above,
In our Saviour's home of rest and love,
Where no child goeth away.

An Heroic Boy.

A few weeks ago, on board an English steamer, a little ragged boy, aged nine years, was discovered on the fourth day of the voyage out from Liverpool to New York and carried before the first mate, whose duty it was to deal with such cases.

When questioned as to his object in being stowed away,and who brought him on board, the boy, who had a beautiful sunny face, and eyes that looked like the very mirrors of truth, replied that his step-father did it, because he could not afford to keep him, nor to pay his passage out to Halifax, where he had an aunt who was well off, and to whose house he was going.

The mate did not believe the story, in spite of the winning face and truthful accents of the boy. He had seen too much of stowaways to be easily deceived by them, he said ; and it was his firm conviction that the boy had been brought on board and provided with food by the sailors. The little fellow was very roughly handled in consequence.

Day by day he was questioned, and re-questioned, but always with the same result. He did not know a sailor on board, and his father alone had secreted him and given him the food which he ate.

At last the mate, wearied by the boy's persistence in the same story, and perhaps a little anxious to inculpate the sailors, seized him one day by the collar, and dragging him to the fore, told him that unless he told the truth in ten minutes from that time,he would hang him from the yard-arm. He then made him sit down under it on the deck. All around him were the passengers and sailors of the midway watch, and in front of him stood the inexorable mate, with his chronometer in his hand, and the other officers of the ship by his side.

It was the finest sight, said our informant, that I ever beheld—to see the pale, proud, sorrowful face of that noble boy, his head erect, his beautiful eyes bright through the tears that suffused them. When eight minutes had fled, the mate told him he had but two minutes to live, and advised him to speak the truth and save his life ; but he replied, with the utmost simplicity and sincerity, by asking the mate if he might pray.

The mate said nothing, but nodded his head and turned as pale as a ghost, and shook with trembling like a reed with the wind. And there, all eyes turned on him, the brave and noble little fellow—this poor boy whom society owned not, and whose own step-father could not care for him—there he knelt with clasped hands and eyes upturned to Heaven, while he repeated audibly the Lord's prayer, and prayed the dear Lord Jesus to take him to heaven.

Our informant adds that there then occurred a scene as of Pentecost. Sobs broke from strong, hard hearts, as the mate sprang forward to the boy and clasped him to his bosom, and kissed him and blessed him, and told him how sincerely he now believed his story, and how glad he was that he had been brave enough to face death, and be willing to sacrifice his life for the truth of his word.

—A high officer of the Sons of Temperance presenting himself with the smell of grog he had been drinking upon him, at the door of a "Division" for admission, was waited upon by an Irish sentinel, to whom he gave the password, when the following passed : 'Sir,' said he, 'as yez are Mister O'Wright the Grand. Worthy Patriarch of the State of Khaintucky, I do after be belavin' Yes,' said Jim, 'you are perfectly right, my friend but why do you ask the question ?' 'To tell yez the truth, then, sir and shame the devil,' said Pat, 'yez do be havin the right password for a Son of Temperance, but yez got the wrong smell.'

The Ribbonman's Oath.

THE "SWEARING" HE HAS TO GO THROUGH—WHAT IT IS ALL ABOUT.

A correspondent of the Dublin Express gives the following as the correct copy of a form of Ribbon oath, recently found by the police in making a sudden irruption into a public-house in a country notorious for agrarian outrages :

" I (A. B.) hereby agree to become a true and loyal member of this society, and I solemnly swear before Almighty God to be true and loyal to the brotherhood, and to each member of the same ; and I will be obedient to my committee and superior officers, and agree to all their articles, laws, rules and regulations that have been since the commencement, and all amendments added thereto, and to perform all duties imposed on me with loyalty, faith and fidelity ; and I swear that neither hopes or fears, rewards or punishments, shall induce me to give evidence against any brother or brothers for any act or expression of theirs, before magistrate, judge jury, or else, and be ready at all times to aid by every means in my power to assist in procuring his or their liberation, and, if myself a witness, to disregard any oath delivered to me on such occasions by judge, jury, magistrate, counsel, clerk, lawyer, official, or else, and that I will not regard such oath as binding. And in revenge for the sufferings of our forefathers, and protection of our rights, I further swear to aid as best I can, in exterminating and extirpating all Protestants and heretics out of Ireland or elsewhere ; to hunt, pursue, shoot and destroy all Protestants or heretic landlords, proprietors, or employers, and also to hunt, shoot, pursue, and destroy all landlords or proprietors belonging to the Church of Rome, should he or they evict his or their tenants from any house, land, home, or holding of theirs. And further solemnly swear, to aid, as best I can, in burning, sacking and destroying all Protestants or heretic churches or places of worship, and all houses used as such by members of different heretical denominations in this country, and to level the same to the ground.

" I also solemnly swear to have no intercourse, communion, or trade, neither to buy or sell, barter or exchange, give or take, or have any dealings whatever with said Protestants or heretics, unless on such occasions as cannot be avoided.

" I also swear to defend the farmer, the poor man, the widow, and the orphans of any brother against the oppression of landlords and the tyranny of the Saxon laws ; and I further solemnly swear to do all in my power to procure the independence of Ireland, and aid as best I can in allowing none but Irishmen to possess land, and Ireland for Irish.

" I also solemnly swear to shoot, destroy, burn and pursue to death any former brother who may turn informer or traitor, or who may refuse to perform any duty ordered by his committee or superior officers, or any other duty which may fall by lot or otherwise to execute. And I agree that my person shall be at all times at their service, to go wherever required or do whatever sent, and also to aid by every means in my power any brother or brothers of this society executing the orders of other committees or officers belonging thereto, though not in my district and to aid as best I can he or them in the performance of their duty.

" And I most solemnly swear to keep all secrets, passwords, signs, orders or otherwise belonging to this society, and that I shall never divulge the same by word of mouth or otherwise ; and I swear neither to mark, or indite with pen, pencil stone, chalk, or any other mineral or substance above or under wood, above or under water, above or under land, above or under air, on the sea or elsewhere, or to use therewith any substance whatever above or under, &c., be it herb, tree, shrub, wood, liquid, mineral, or else, above or below this earth, above or under, &c., in the sea or elsewhere, to betray or inform of any signs, secrets or passwords, orders, doings, actions or expressions that have been or are going on, or that will be belonging to this brotherhood."

A form of oath so prolix must be a heavy tax upon the memory of the conscientious Ribbonman who wishes to discharge his duty fully.

A SLEEPY SERMON.—Dr. South, when once preaching before Charles II., observed that the monarch and his attendants began to nod, and some of them soon after snored, on which he broke off in his sermon, and said, "Lord Lauderdale, let me entreat you to pause yourself ; you snore so loud that you will awake the king."

—A doctor ordered some powerful medicine for a sick boy, and the father, not liking the appearance of it forced it down the cat's throat. When the Doctor called again and inquired if the powder had cured the boy,the father replied : 'No ; we did not give it to him.' 'Good heavens !' said the doctor, 'is he child living ?' 'Yes, but the old cat isn't twe gave it to her.' The doctor sloped.

BELLEVILLE, FRIDAY, AUG. 27.

INWARDS.—The steamship Nestorian passed Father Point inwards at noon to-day, with 124 cabin and 407 steerage passengers.

BASE BALL.—The return match between the first nine of the Hastings Base Ball Club and the Cricket Club, will take place on Monday, the game commencing at 2 o'clock, p. m.

SABREVOIS CHURCH MISSION.—A sermon will be preached on behalf of the above truly Protestant institution, (D.V.) in Christ Church, West Belleville, on Sunday next, the 29th, at 7.30 p. m., by the Rev. Mr. Lewis, one of the deputation from Lower Canada. A public meeting will be held in the same place on Monday evening, the 30th inst.

TIMELY RAIN.—The thirsty earth has been furnished with a bountiful supply of rain to-day, for which the grass, and plants, and flowers, and vegetables, and all Nature, give hearty thanks. The withered stems, and dried up leaves, and faded flowers, give promise of a new life, and the gardener is made to rejoice again. We have had the early and the latter rain; our barns and storehouses are full and running over, peace and contentment are ours; and the "good time is coming right along."

MR. ROSE GOING TO ENGLAND.—There seems to be no longer any doubt that the Hon. John Rose is going to England. A deputation consisting of leading gentlemen of all shades of politics waited upon him on Thursday to ask him if he would accept a demonstration, to which a favorable answer was returned. The Gazette referring to the non-party character of the deputation says properly: "It is fitting that the city of Montreal should make some demonstration of respect for Mr. Rose on the occasion of his departure, as having been for many years a representative of the city. It is pleasant, too, to see the hatchet of party strife buried on such an occasion, and men of all sides uniting to pay a tribute of respect to Mr. Rose's personal character. Those who may have opposed him in politics compromise themselves in nothing by doing so, while our whole political system gains infinitely by the interchange of personal good will between the opposing parties. May we not say that this is a happy omen for the Dominion?"

FOR THE TORONTO ISLANDS.—For the past few summers a very pleasant and healthful day's sport has been afforded by attending any of the numerous Pic-nics or Excursions which take place almost every day. Various routes are from time to time adopted by different parties, but we know of none that offers a more pleasant sail, romantic scenery, and real worth for the price of the tickets, (which are extremely low), than that to take place on the steamer Bay of Quinte, on Tuesday next, 31st inst., to the far famed Thousand Islands. Who has ever passed down the mighty St. Lawrence, through those beautiful Islands but has left them with deep regret, and a determination to visit them again at the first opportunity, and to those who have seen them, the chance is now within their reach of revisiting the Islands for a mere trifle; and any that have not, should purchase their tickets at once, from Mr. DAVY, the steamer's agent, and not miss seeing a picture that travellers have spent hundreds of dollars to behold. The hour for leaving here is pretty early, but it would be impossible to make the trip through the Islands if it were later, as the steamer will run nearly fifty miles below Kingston; however Capt. Comer has not forgotten to look after the comfort of his passengers, and will provide extra sleeping accommodation, so that exotourists from Belleville can go on board on Monday evening, and sleep till morning. He is also determined to make the trip pleasant to all, and with that view has secured the services of the splendid Band of the 16th Battalion, whose leader, Mr. Jacobs is well known to Belleville people. Let all who can prepare for this delightful trip, and we will guarantee that the Captain will do everything in his power to make you enjoy yourselves.

A NEW CHAIR.—A new chair has been exhibited to us to-day, which is a model of neatness, comfort and luxury, and a marvel of cheapness. It is called the Patent Hammock Folding and Lounging Chair. The chair, which consists of two frames, folding inside each other when not in use, may be stretched out into the different forms of a chair, easy chair and lounge by means of notches into which a back support fits, the seating being composed of webbing or carpeting, which, without pressing, as do the chairs in general use, upon any one part of the body more than another, conforms itself to the position of the occupant, giving him the most easy resting place possible. The whole thing, when folded up, would not occupy as much room as an inch and a quarter board, 55 x 24 in., and need not exceed 7 lbs. in weight. The chair can be had in all woods, and upholstered to match any set of furniture. The chair is very cheap, the price from $2 50 upwards, putting it in the power of every one to make this valuable addition to his household goods. It answers for a child's cot, an easy chair, a lounge, a camp bedstead, an invalid's chair and is in fact one of the most useful and cheapest articles that can be had in the household. An Agency will be established for the sale of the chair in this Town.

Comforted at Last.

The Hamilton Times has got a crumb of comfort at last. Curses are sometimes blessings in disguise, and after all the curses which that paper has heaped upon the Ontario Government for locating the Deaf and Dumb Asylum at Belleville, it is a satisfaction to know that the removal of the Asylum from Hamilton is to be a blessing to that city. Some wealthy Southerners have purchased Dundurn Castle and grounds, and intend making a summer hotel there and such are the attractions they are going to offer, that hundreds of families will take up their summer residence in that city. The Times goes into figures to show how much more profitable the conversion of the castle into a hotel will be, than if it were kept for an Asylum, and consoles itself with the reflection that if they have lost a penny they have gained a pound. We congratulate the Times that it is satisfied at last, and hope the enterprise it so warmly commends will confer upon the city all the advantages it anticipates.

Our Halifax Letter.

To the Editor of the Daily Intelligencer.

HALIFAX, August 18th, 1869.

DEAR SIR,—Once more, after a silence of considerable duration, I take my quill to give you a brief outline of the leading events in this tight little Province. Of course I needn't delay to allude to the weather and crops; they are both not far from an average. Though I must say that the coolness of our warmest weather this summer contrasts very strangely with the almost tropical heat of the last two warm seasons which I spent in Ontario. Pic-nic season has for some time been upon us, though it begins later here than in Ontario, owing to the longer continuation of cool weather in the Spring. I find that there is more truth than poetry in the statement which I informed you last fall is sometimes made about the climate of Halifax, viz., that it has nine months winter and three months cold weather. It is true we have a longer season of open, frostless weather than you have in Ontario, but this is owing to the sea. The same cause modifies the heat of summer, and produces the curious phenomenon of a South wind cooling the atmosphere, while the North wind blowing over the land, tor, say 150 miles, becomes heated, oftentimes by the action of the sun, and reaches Halifax quite warm.

I sent you some time ago clippings from the Bulwark, containing a pretty full account of the doings of the Orange Brotherhood on the time-honored Twelfth. I have since heard that a certain Pat or Dennis Carrol (I am not certain about the christian name) has been letting off his pent up indignation through the pages of that lovely, pure and moral sheet the Boston Pilot. A brother of the Lord Dennis or Pat showed his courage and good breeding by attempting to drive his cart through the ranks while the Brethren were parading the streets of the quiet town of Pictou on the Twelfth of July, but two Marshalls with drawn swords convinced him of the greater benefits of a judicious exhibition of discretionary valor, and he had the honor of their escort down to the end of the long line. His brother has been exhibiting his feelings in the somewhat less risky manner alluded to. Among other things he informs the Americans of the feelings of the Brotherhood regarding the corruptions of the American Government. So sure as the ill wind may blow a little good over to our cousins, by way of informing them that Orangemen are loyal to the old flag still, notwithstanding the senseless croaking of a few Annexationists who have leaped up to make their presence known amid the confusion and discontent which has arisen from the ill managed Confederation scheme. And when our American cousins know that our Order is nearly a quarter of a million strong in the Dominion, they will see what poor prospects of Annexation there are at present.

The Governor General arrived here on Monday afternoon. His reception was a perfect ovation. When the matter of preparing to meet His Excellency was first mooted in the City Council a requisition was handed in, signed by a number of the wealthiest men in the Anti-Union Camp, requesting a postponement of the question, that it might be decided at a public meeting. Said meeting was called, and when respectable people arrived at the hour appointed they found the room pretty well packed with determined Anti-Confederates and Annexationists, but still a number of Union men forced themselves into standing space around the walls and between the seats. When the resolution to extend a public reception to the representative of Her Majesty was moved, an amendment, was read, setting forth the expediency of such a step, on the ground I believe, that His Excellency was supposed to be accompanied by a number of the members of the Dominion Government, and then the ball opened. I was not there, but by carding together all the stories that appeared in the papers, and where circulated by parties who were present, I have had no trouble in discovering that there was considerable of a row, which ended by the judges and other wise men leaving the platform, and the majority of the persons present leaving the chaos, at the desire of the Mayor that all respectable persons should withdraw. He, good-natured fellow, fell into the mistake of remaining, and afterwards putting the amendment, which was of course, carried by its own supporters, who were left almost alone to vote upon the question. This, of course, was duly noised abroad, and ended in another public meeting in the Temperance Hall, which was numerously attended by all loyal union men, and I believe by many loyal anti-confederates—who felt that the honor of this ancient Province was stained by the proceedings of the day before.—The upshot of the matter was a resolution to give Sir John Young a reception—as Her Majesty might convince all who may have been deceived by the loud braying of the Annexationists—that, no matter how we may differ down here regarding the chain that binds our Province to the Dominion—whether we believe it to be silken, golden or of galling iron, we are, as a people, loyal to our beloved Queen, and faithful to the glorious old flag beneath whose broad protecting fields a slave can never breathe, and longer wear his servile badge. This good resolution was nobly carried out. The day, though somewhat lowering in the morning, cleared up beautifully towards noon. The city was was one mass of bunting, though more than one large store on Orangeville and Hallis streets gave forth no sound or sign of the general holiday. But this only displayed to greater advantage the arches laden with more bunting than I ever though: Halifax contained, which stretched from one lofty warehouse to another, across those leading business thoroughfares as well as Water and other streets along which the procession moved. The display at Richmond Depot was very grand, and the multitudes who gathered on almost every available point—even upon the top of the idle cars, and away up the slope of Fort Needham Hill to the number of some six thousand souls gave evidence of a feeling that probably would not have been exhibited had it not been for the miserable, spiteful opposition of a few mal-contents, who, because they happen to have made large fortunes under the old Provincial Regime, think by means of their wealth contro the city as they see fit. Of course al our wealthy merchants are not Anti-Confederates, but a large number of them are, and money is power in these mercenary times, though knowledge used to be in the good old days. But the enemy have learned a lesson which I trust may make them wiser if not sadder men. They fired at their neighbor's bird, and instead of killing him only made him roost a little higher, while they shot their own game cock by mistake.—His Excellency was followed in his procession to the Government House by something over 100 carriages, belonging to our leading citizens. Yesterday the levee was largely and influentially attended. To-day the Governor General has gone off in company with a number of interested parties to open the Windsor and Annapolis Railway. He is expected back in a day or two to wait the arrival of the Prince, whom he will accompany up to Canada.

Trade is very dull just now. If you Ontario people would put a duty on coal equal to that which the Americans have imposed upon the article it would go far to cement this Province to the Dominion. A man's pocket is a tender place to touch. If loyalty pays it will soon come into fashion, and I think it would do here if our coal were put into your market under a protection equal to that with which the Americans have guarded theirs. More anon.

Meanwhile, I remain yours very truly,

VOX.

The Great International Boat Race.

FULL PARTICULARS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Smalley telegraphs to the Tribune as follows:—The morning opened bright and clear, and the absence of the English drizzle increased the chances of the Harvard's success. The crew passed a good night, though this morning Mr. Simmons showed weakness from the severe attack of diarrhoea, with which he has suffered for several days. Loring, too, has been troubled with a boil, which is far from well, but the rest of the crew are in splendid condition and were full of confidence. When the word was given the Harvard's noted start came into play, for their oars took the water first, making 45 strokes to the minute; the Oxford's made only 40; for a mile and a half the race was splendid, the Harvard's soon being away from Oxford and kept the lead to Craven cottage, a distance of three quarters of a mile. The Oxford's drew up level just beyond Hammersmith Bridge, and when off Chiswick, two miles and a half from the start, regained the lead, and after that they won as they liked. The Oxford crew never changed their stroke during the race. The stroke of the Harvard's was irregular; they lost form wholly above Hammersmith, and when off Chiswick were rowed to pieces, though they pulled to the end of a hopeless race with magnificent pluck, and that long after their strength and control over their muscles had failed. For the last two miles they had pluck, and that only. The coxswain steering wide and the stroke being fatally quick, the superiority of Oxford manifested throughout the race was never doubtful after the first half mile, though the Harvard's retained the lead some time after that point.

Mr. D. Conway telegraphs to the World the following:—The race is conceded universally to have been perfectly fair and honorable on both sides. The Harvard's rowed in most brilliant, and many believe that the race might have been gained had the coxswain made a better effort to take Oxford's water. As Hammersmith Bridge was passed, the advantage was still with the Harvard's, but it was perceived that the pace at which they started could not be sustained, as the Harvard's sank from 42 to 40 and lower; Oxford rose to 40 strokes per minute and maintained it without alteration to the end. A little before Chiswick was reached, about half way, Oxford, by a splendid manœuvere of the coxswain, took the Harvard's water, and all of Mr. Burnham's efforts to escape Oxford's wash was in vain. As Chiswick Church was passed the Harvard's were visibly distressed, and Mr. Burnham began throwing water over his stroke, and Simmons, on whom the labor and the saltiness told heavily; it was now perceived that the race was lost by the Harvard's, though one more heroic effort was made to gain Oxford's side. When the gun sounded the Harvard crew, after a moment's rest, drew up by the side of the Oxford boat and applauded their victors by clapping their hands. The Oxonians acknowledged this by taking off their hats.

There are various theories of the cause of Harvard's failure. Loring is criticized for not having English coaching; Burnham for bad steering; but many good judges declare that the race was almost a repetition of the race between the English University, and Harvard failed, because its style is that of Cambridge. The relative crews are very kindly; to-night they dine together at Mr. Phillips' residence, at Morlake. Yesterday the Oxford crew were to dine with Morgan Baker, and on Monday both crews will be at the London Rowing Club banquet. Immediately after that, the Harvard crew will disperse. Mr. Simmons goes to Heidlyburg to spend a month, where he has gained much admiration for his beautiful rowing; as has Loring for his science. Thomas Hughes visited the crews just before the race. Hall, the Oxford coxswain, who looks like a boy of 12 years, receives much praise for his tact. Kelly, the coach, declares that lack of scientific rowing and bad steering lost the race.

THE FENIAN CONGRESS.

NEW YORK, August 27.—In the Fenian Congress to-day the report of the committee on Claimants to Representation gave rise to a long discussion. It was decided that Circles not in good standing shall not be represented but that Circles may be restored to good standing by the Congress and allowed representation.

—Herapath' says of the Grand Trunk:—The Company is now advertising a through route to California in 20 days from Liverpool, via the Montreal Ocean Steamship (Allan) Line to Quebec in summer or Portland in winter, and thence overland by the Grand Trunk and Pacific railways to Omaha, Cheyenne, Denver, Salt Lake City, Sacramento and San Francisco. Two through express trains are announced to run daily, and through and return tickets are issued at low fares. The journey from Quebec or Portland to California takes ten days of the twenty.

SINGULAR SAGACITY.—The Hamilton Spectator says:—"A couple of days ago, a Newfoundland dog owned by Mr. Jas. Jardine, Barton, exhibited a remarkable degree of sagacity, approaching reason. While the family were at dinner he bolted through the open door, frantically leaping about and whining most piteously, and would not be pacified until Mr. Jardine followed him out doors and around the building to the summer cook-house, which was found to be on fire. The fire was soon extinguished, the dog looking on the while with the deepest concern, and when all the flames were subdued, frisked about with every demonstration of delight.

BREAKFAST.—EPP'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—The very agreeable character of this preparation has rendered it a general favourite. THE CIVIL SERVICE GAZETTE remarks: —"The delicate perfume and rich flavour manifested by his homœopathic preparation of cocoa has never been surpassed by any production of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa. Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast table with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills." Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold by the Trade also in ½lb., ¼lb., and 1lb. tin lined packets, labelled—JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemist, London, England. 94—6mT&S

Business Notice.

Not many weeks ago a rich but childless landed proprietor breathed his last, leaving a large circle of relations to mourn his loss, and equable over their prospects of sharing his wealth. The day for reading the will at last came; the room was crowded with anxious expectants; the will was opened and to the inexpressible joy of all, the rich gentleman's relations found that to each of them had been bequeathed a case of Royal Italian Bitters.

THE PARAGUAYAN WAR.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—The mail steamer from Rio Janeiro has received. She brings as passengers the Duke of Saxe and wife, the Princess Tepoldina and family. The latest advices from the seat of war in Paraguay, show that a battle was imminent. The land and naval forces of the allies were in motion. Official despatches received at the Brazillian War Department announce that Gen. Portinho had commenced his march on Villa Rica, and the Brazillian ironclad fleet was steaming up the Tebicuary to support the army and assist in the attack on Villa Rica.

THE PRESS ON THE ERIE RAILROAD SCANDAL.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—The Times in an article on the Erie Railroad scandal, says: We need not point out the darkest side of the story—the prostitution of justice. The utter contempt for its administration it is plain would be impossible if the violators had not had good reason to believe, from past experience, that the Legislature is as amenable to corrupt influences as the judiciary. These facts are well known in the States. We are not without hope that consciousness of existing evils will lead to the only way of correcting them.

MURDER OF A EUROPEAN LADY AND PARTY.

LONDON, August 27.—News has been received from Tripoli that Miss Tinne and two attendants, were murdered by their own camel drivers while travelling on the Abergoosh road, between Murzeuk and Ghat.

—A good old Quaker lady, after listening to the yarn of a shop-keeper as long as her patience would allow, said to him: 'Friend what a pity it is a sin to lie, when it seems so essential to thy happiness!'

—'Jennie,' said a venerable old man to his daughter, who was asking his consent to accompany her urgent suitor to the altar, 'Jennie, it is a very solemn thing to get married.' 'I know it,' replied Jennie, 'but I know it's a heap solemner not to get married.'

—Said a Baptist to a Methodist; 'I don't like your Church Government. It isn't simple enough. There's too much machinery about it.' 'It is true,' replied the Methodist, 'we have more machinery than you; but then, you see, it don't take near so much water to run it.'

The New York Sun finds it wo_th while to describe as a "Phenomenon of Fashion" a wedding in wealthy circles, which had "no dazzle, no flutter, no princely presents, no nonsense,' but where the guests came in their every day attire, and so could be social and polite without disarranging their toilets and "everything was done quietly and without ostentation." It must have been a very oasis of good sense in the Sahara of Avenue nonsense.

—Potatoes are more nutrious baked than they are cooked in any other manner; and they relish better with those who have not been accustomed to eat them without seasoning. Wash the potatoes clean, but do not soak them. Bake them as quickly as possible without burning in the least. As soon as they are done, rub each potatoe in a cloth, so as to crack the skin and allow the steam to escape. If this is omitted, the best potatoes will not be mealy. They should be brought immediately to the table, as they will soon become solid and lose their flavor.

—The 'Scottish American Journal' says the Fenian Senate has decided that more money must be raised at once. A call has been made on every member of the Association, the money to be paid before the 10th inst. Our readers will therefore see that a raid is actually resolved upon. But it is a raid upon Paddy's purse and Bridget's store in the savings bank—not in any direction where British bayonets are likely to be met.

DIED.

NEW ALBION HOTEL,
McGILL STREET,
MONTREAL, CANADA.

THE "NEW ALBION HOTEL," the largest Hotel in Montreal, has just been opened under the most favorable auspices.

Whilst the "Old Albion" has been long noted for the strict attention paid to its numerous guests, the "New Albion" takes its position as a first class Hotel, and is really, first class in every respect, except the charges, which better suit the ideas and requirements of the majority of travelers, than many of the so called, "Family Houses," which deserve the title more through the amount of their charges than aught else.

Already the crowded state of the "New Albion" promises well for its future career; everything associated with its construction has been carried out with artistic taste and systematic correctness.

The large Hall, commodious office, spacious Reading room, convenient Dining, Coffee, Wash Room, etc., etc., on the ground floor; and the Reception Room and Suite of SPLENDIDLY FURNISHED and THOROUGHLY VENTILATED LADIES' PARLORS, on the second floor, will form no small luxury during the hot summer season. And, what is an exception to the general Rule in Hotels, the Bedrooms are all well ventilated and lighted, there not being a dark room in the House.

Being situated on the widest and healthiest Street in Montreal, commanding a Magnificent View of the River St. Lawrence and the Victoria Bridge on the left, and a full view of the Victoria Square with its numerous "Sea of Ears" and Mount Royal on the right, it cannot fail to commend itself to the travelling public.

From its situation on McGILL Street, the great thoroughfare and commercial centre of the City it cannot fail to be, as the "Old Albion" has always been a strong favorite with the Merchants of Canada.

Notwithstanding the very large outlay in building and furnishing the house, the old price of $1 50 per day will not be departed from.

We, therefore, bespeak for ourselves a continuance of the patronage so liberally accorded to us during the past twelve years.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry.

Where this article is known it is a work of supererogation to say one word in its favor, so well is it established as an unfailing remedy for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Asthma, Diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs, as well as that most dreaded of all diseases, Consumption, which high medical authority has pronounced to be an incurable disease. Those who have used this remedy know its value; those who have not, have but to make a single trial to be satisfied that of all others it is THE REMEDY.

THE REV. JACOB SECHLER,
well known and much respected among the German population of this country, writes as follows:

HANOVER, PA., Feb. 16. 1859.

Messrs. S. W. Fowle & Son, Boston.

DEAR SIRS,—Having realized in my family important benefits from the use of your valuable preparation—"Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry"—it affords me pleasure to recommend it to the public. Some eight years ago, one of my daughters appeared to be in a decline, and little hopes of her recovery were entertained. I then procured a bottle of your excellent Balsam, and before she had taken the whole of it there was a great improvement in her health. I have, in my individual case, made frequent use of your valuable medicine, and have always been benefitted by it. I would, however, caution the public against imposition, because there is a good deal of spurious "Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry" afloat throughout the country.

Grace's Celebrated Salve.

From Mr. JAMES CURLEY, OF AMHERST, MASS.

"I was afflicted with a severe felon on one of my fingers, and tried many remedies without relief. My friends induced me to apply your Salve. In two days it extracted the inflammation from my finger so as to enable me to resume my work. I can almost say that the Salve worked like magic, for it effected a cure without leaving a scar. I unhesitatingly pronounce 'Grace's Salve' an excellent remedy, and do not doubt it will be appreciated throughout the land." 25

Irish Astronomy.

A VERITABLE MYTH, TOUCHING THE CONSTELLATION OF O'RYAN, IGNORANTLY AND FALSELY SPELLED ORION.

O'Ryan was a man of might
With Ireland was a nation.
But poachin' was his heart's delight
And constant occupation.
He had anould militia gun,
And sartin sure his aim was;
He gave the keepers many a run,
And wouldn't mind the game laws.

St. Patrick wasn't was passin' by
O'Ryan's little houldin',
And as the saint felt wake and dhry,
He thought he'd enter in.
"O'Ryan," says the saint, "avick!
To preach at Thurles I'm goin',
So let me have a rasher quick,
And a dhrop of Innishowen."

"No rasher will I cook for you
While leather is to spare, Sir,
But here's a jug of mountain dew,
And there's a rattlin' hare, Sir."
St. Patrick, belooked mighty sweet,
And says he, "Good luck attind you!
And when you're in your windin sheet,
Its up to heaven I'll send you.

O'Ryan gave his pipe a whiff—
"Them tidins is transportin';
But may I ask your saintship if
There's any kind of sportin'?"
St. Patrick said, "A Lion's there,
Two Bears, a Bull, and Cancer"—
"Belad" says Mike, "the huntin's rare
St. Patrick, I'm your man, Sir."

So to conclude my song aright,
For fear I'd tire your patience,
You'll see O'Ryan any night
Amid the constellations.
And Venus follows in his track
Till Mars grows jealous really,
But, faith he fears the Irish knack,
Of handling the shillaly.

Notes on Science.

BRILLIANT GAS LAMP.

An Edinburgh inventor has patented a plan for a new lamp giving a most brilliant light. He takes two tubes of different diameters, the smaller within the larger one of the tubes being connected with a reservoir containing condensed gas or air, or a mixture of both. Over the tubes is a perforated plate of platinum, or a piece of platinum wire-gauze, through which the gas issues divided into numerous small jets. The gas being ignited and the supply of air is properly regulated, so that the flames is made to disappear, and the plate and gauze becomes incandescent, and the result is a most intense light.

FIRE FROM SOLAR HEAT.

Late London papers record a very unusual occurrence in the preceding Sunday afternoon, in connection with the burning of a cottage in a certain section of that city. After the fire had been subdued an investigation was ordered, resulting in clearly showing the ignition cause to have been the sun's rays setting fire to a swallow's nest under the eaves.

A NOVEL REFRIGERATOR.

A very ingenious application of scientific principles with practical results is made the subject of a patent by a Birmingham (Eng.) firm. Refrigerators are to be built, in which water is used instead of ice, for keeping the temperature within a low point. The base of the refrigerator is surrounded by a run containing water, and the metallic body is covered with a porous textile fabric. By capillary attraction the water rises over the whole surface, evaporation ensues, and a cooling effect is produced. The greatest effect is, of course, produced in the hottest weather, and the difference between the temperature within and without grows less as the demand for such difference diminishes.

FENIAN FIRE.

A novelty, outside of France, in the category of self-inflammable mixtures is described by M. Nickles, in a paper just published on Greek Fire. This compound he calls fenibornite, and describes it as composed of a solution of phosphorus in bisulphide of carbon and chloride of sulphur. When strong liquid ammonia is added to the mixture violent chemical action ensues, and sufficient heat is developed to instantly ignite the inflammable ingredients. A dangerous application for incendiary purposes readily suggests itself. If a thin glass bottle containing the ammonia be enclosed within the larger vessels containing the inflammable materials, and the whole be thrown against a building with sufficient force to break the thin vial, the action explained above would take place, and fire would be instantly communicated to the building.

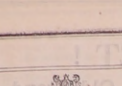

INVISIBLE LIGHT.

A photograph of the famous bronze statue of the Amazon at Berlin, was taken some time ago with some unaccountable marking. From the tip of the lance which is held by the figure perpendicularly, a black streak was noticed extending upwards, two other similar streaks projecting from prominent points. The picture was sent to Professor Dove, well known from his investigations in connection with light, and after examination the Professor gave it as his opinion that the markings were due to discharges of electricity from these points; which, though invisible to the eye, were of such active power as to produce a photographic effect. More extended observations and subsequent experiments have confirmed this hypothesis, and he now announces the fact that the flow of electricity which is continuously given off from metallic points under certain circumstances, exerts a photographic effect on a sensitized plate, though the light cannot be seen by the human eye.

Ayer's
Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. Its sugar coating renders it pleasant to take, and perfectly safe at any time, so that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its compounding. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates, containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by any one. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, where they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Langour and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be prudently taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one pill is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continually taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. When such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, and thereby purifies the blood, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious complaint exists to take it. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys, is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Inveterate cases of Scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous affections and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulous contamination until they were painfully afflicting, have been radically cured in such great numbers in almost every section of the country, that the public scarcely need to be informed of its virtues in these.

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Wherever it exists, and under whatever form it may be developed, it undermines the constitution, and lays the seeds of enfeebling or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed infection in the blood, and, at times, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develop into one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals of the body. Scrofulous ulcers may be suddenly deposited in the lungs of heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it throws its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcers upon or from some part of the body. Hence the occasional use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla is advisable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, at length, cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions of visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Rheumatism, and other kindred and obstinate Glandular affections of the muscular and nervous systems.

Syphilitic Poisons and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though its use has been extended for subduing these obstinate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Leucorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when arising as they often do, from the same morbific poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a Great solvent for the strength and purity of the system. Those who are Languid and Listless, Despondency and Horrible Dreams, Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the attendants or symptoms of a disordered state of the blood, will find immediate relief and conquering evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Colds, Coughs, Whooping Cough, Influenza, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this cherry pectoral has upon the confidence of pulmonic complaints. Through a long series of years, and among all climates of the country, it has been held in higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its unconquered character and power over the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a remedy liable rarely to disappoint. While adapted to the milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most speedy and effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and for the more formidable affections of the throat and lungs. As a preventive of consumption, no other medicine can be relied on with the confidence which may be placed in this. Keeping the system well under its influence, colds cannot fasten upon the lungs, coughs cannot become deep-seated, and the hidden seeds of consumption cannot germinate in them. Hence, those who are predisposed to pulmonic complaints should never be without it. Keep it by you, and at the first symptom of disease, which the slightest cough or cold indicates, resort to it for relief. Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed certain have been completely cured, and the patients restored to sound health by the use of Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the most obstinate affections of the throat and lungs, that the most alarming symptoms soon disappear before it. When nothing can be done to check the disease, this remedy will check the subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers and great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish certificates of them here. A trial of it will thus assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As it became hopeless, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing no form of Arsenic, Quinine, Bismuth, Zinc, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it is entirely harmless upon patients. The number and importance of its cures in the ague districts, are literally beyond account, and we believe without a parallel in the history of Ague medicine. For pills of equal efficacy, the sick and suffering receive or effected the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and where other remedies had wholly failed.

Unacclimated persons, either resident in, or travelling through our ague districts, will be protected by taking the AGUE CURE daily.

For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy activity.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly remarkable cures, where other medicines had failed.

From the Seaside.

BOSTON, Aug. 17th.

Since arriving here on Thursday morning last, we have made good use of our time in visiting the many beautiful places and objects of interest in the city, and its immediate vicinity. Boston possesses so many attractions to a visitor, that a few days of sight-seeing passes along, and still leaves many a place well worthy of a visit, unseen. It was with much regret that we were compelled to retrace our steps homeward, after the five days so pleasantly spent, the recollection of which I am sure will not soon be effaced from the memory of those who formed our happy party. In this, (and perhaps a following) epistle, I propose endeavouring to give your readers a faint idea of some of the many Boston "sights," we had the pleasure of feasting our eyes upon, and hoping that should another excursion to this part of the country take place from our town, that a larger number will avail themselves of the opportunity, than on this occasion, for I am sure were they to do so, they would feel fully repaid for the time and cost of the trip, which is by no means so expensive as some imagine. Taking into consideration the length of time the trip occupies it will compare favorably with any trip almost that can be taken, as regards outlay, and far surpass the majority in the multiplicity of its attractions. Any one doubting the above assertions I would refer them to those who are participating in the present excursion; for almost without an exception, the most flattering expressions of satisfaction are heard from all parties concerned. But to return to

WHAT WE SAW IN BOSTON.

One of the first places we visited was that great feature, the Common. This delightful park, with its handsome malls, walks and magnificent elm trees, consists of forty-eight acres of land, finely situated in the very heart of the city, and as may be supposed, is a most popular place of resort for Bostonians, and but few of those who visit Boston fail to take a walk through it. At this season of the year especially, when the trees thick with their summer foliage, interlace their leafy boughs and form continuous arches over its broad avenues. It presents a most beautiful appearance. The citizens of Boston may well thank the wisdom of their forefathers in laying out such a beautiful spot for the benefit of their future generations. It is a great pity that our people do not follow such an example. From an old history of Boston I find that the Common was reserved in the year 1634, by Commissioners who were appointed to sell unoccupied lands, and it became a training field and pasture. Years afterwards the city authorities put an end to citizens pasturing their cows upon it, and the use of it was curtailed to its present purposes. As the city advanced in prosperity and increased in size, a number of attempts were made to encroach upon the property, but notwithstanding the efforts that were brought to bear upon the authorities to dispose of it, the Common still retains its original size, and is likely to for years to come. One very interesting feature in the Common is the "Old Elm." This venerable monarch of the forest is, from various data, supposed to be two hundred years old, and from appearance is still strong and vigorous, although old time has left some marks of his destroying fingers as he passes onwards.—Severe tempests have threatened and hurled their destroying elements at it, and once, in the year 1832, came very near being successful in putting an end to its existence. Although four of its largest limbs were separated from the tree, they were put back in their original places and secured with iron bolts and props, and the "Old Elm" still lives to be the Chief of the Common. It is enclosed with a neat iron railing, upon the face of which is the following inscription:—

"THE OLD ELM.

"This tree has been standing here an unknown period. It is believed to have existed before the settlement of Boston, being full grown in 1722. Exhibited marks of old age in 1792, and was nearly destroyed by a storm in 1832. Protected by an iron fence in 1854.

"J. V. C. Smith, Mayor."

Other dangers also, has this venerable old colossus of the woods undergone. The small hill, at the foot of which the tree stands, was, during the seige of Boston, occupied by the British as a fortification, and bombarded by Washington. In 1812, also, the American troops protecting the city were encamped around it, and its gigantic branches has often been used for hanging and burning effigies, especially during election times. Notwithstanding all this, the old tree stands as weather beaten old veteran, and a memorial of past ages. Long may it live.

A beautiful little lake, supplied from the waterworks, is also an object of beauty on the common, from the middle of which a fountain sends up a solid column of water ninety feet, and by changing the jets, is made to assume different forms, such as weeping willows, fans, &c. This lake is also a great source of amusement to "Young Boston," whose representatives may be seen on almost every fine days, sailing their miniatures steamers, vessels, and other craft across its waters. These "early navigators" are quite expert in the management of their vessels, steering them for any particular point desired. They carry on a supposed trade between different ports, and it is quite interesting to take a seat on one of the numerous benches around the pond, with one of the tall elms throwing its cooling shade over you, and watch the youngsters in their fun, and to see the little boats sailing over the mimic ocean. Another source of enjoyment on the common is the evening performance of the city bands. One evening during our stay in the city, we had the pleasure of hearing Gilmore celebrated band play some fine selections on the common, which were listened to and loudly applauded by over ten thousand people. Passing out of the common through the western gates, we enter the Public Garden, another beautiful place of twenty acres. It is but a few years ago that this place formed part of the Back Bay, which is now being rapidly filled in, forming a broad and magnificent avenue, lined on each side with handsome brown stone front residences, making one of the most fashionable streets in the city. Down the middle of this Commonwealth Avenue (so called), there is an enclosed place or park (sixty feet wide) running its entire length, in which are some very fine fountains and statues. The Public Gardens which lie between the western end of the common and the commencement of Commonwealth Avenue, contain an immense variety of very beautiful flowers laid out in the most tasteful style. Fine walks intersect the whole place. There is also a very pretty pond spanned by a handsome bridge of iron resting on cut stone piers. On the pond are several boats in which visitors are invited for the small donation of three cents to take a sail around the pond, and of course we sailed.—Another attraction was the newly invented velocipede boat, or rather I should say boats. There are two very narrow, fastened together with a paddle wheel between them, worked on the velocipede principle. The temptation to have a ride in one of these affairs was so great that one of our party could not resist it; the result was that his desire was gratified for the sum of fifteen cents, and the owner was equally so by the receipt of that amount. After spending about an hour or so in the garden we started for the great Coliseum or Peace Jubilee building, a structure of immense size, but a description of which has so recently went the rounds of the press, that I shall not attempt a description of it. Suffice it to say that it exceeded our expectations as regards its size, and is well worth seeing.

In the evening we attended the theatrical performance at the Boston Museum, and enjoyed it exceedingly. There is a vast number of curiosities to be seen at the Museum, also paintings, statuary, wax figures, revolutionary and Indian relics, &c., which alone are worth the cost of admission.

The next morning we went to Strawberry Hill to see the muster of the State militia, and will give you an account of their doings in my next Sublime.

I rise, Mr. President, to argue the case of the rich man against the poor man, and I believe that before I have concluded you will allow that it admits of no argument. The rich man, Mr. President, declines his emancipated form on a mahogany sofa, cut down, hewed out, surveyed and manufactured from the tall cedar of Lebanon, which grew upon the lofty and cloud-capped summit of the ever memorable mountain of Jesohophat. Then, Mr. President, he lifts up to his cadaverous lip the golden china cup, manufactured, as is well known, Mr. President, in Chili, Peru, and other unknown and unhabitable portions of the universe. While on the other hand, Mr. President, the poor man declines his expectations in a cottage, from which he retires to the shade of an umbrageous stream, there to contemplate the incomprehensibility of the vast constellation and other fixed and immovable sattelites that devolve round this celestial axletree, to this tenequatious firmament on high. Then Mr. President, after calling his wife and the rest of the children, he teaches them to perspire for scenes of immortality beyond the grave.

MIXED.—A writer of the Albany Argus says:—While passing through State street this morning, we met a lady who approached us and asked, 'Are ye acquainted in this place, sir, if ye plase; I'd like to find one John McHunnigan, me first cousin. He's living with my brother so I'm tould, here below; and I have lost the direction. My brother's a contractor, and my first cousin left the old country eight years ago and went to Westconsin, and the last time I heard of him he was down on the railroad by Philadelphia; and if ye only knew any one that wanted a woman to do the work about the house for the bit she'd ate and a place to sleep, for I have't closed my eyes this last two nights, and if ye had ten cents about ye to give to a poor woman that walked all the way from Troy last night, and haven't broke my last the last twenty-four hours, I'd be much obliged to ye, if ye plase, sir, and the Lord bless ye!' We gave the lady the stamp and passed on meditating.

A Ride with a Can of Nitro-Glycerine.

A correspondent of the Titusville Herald tells this story:—

"A torpedo 'exploder' of the nitro-glycerine class is an arrangement something like a double cylinder, a small one inside the exploder proper, a much larger one. We will suppose the larger will hold 12 lbs. of this explosive, of the weight of tallow—the inner cylinder or tube a few ounces. The latter is filled with an extremely sensitive and powerful explosive. Ralph Baker, of Pioneer, was riding on horseback, on the east side of the Alleghany a mile below Venango city, with an exploder strapped over his back, the outer cylinder not yet filled with glycerine, 12 lbs. of which he was carrying in a tin can in his hand to be poured into the cylinder around the exploder when required. The exploder was capped (they are not usually capped when being carried about). In shifting this exploder from one sholder to another the precussion got a jar and the exploder went off, throwing the tube downwards, cutting a hole in the horse's flank, frightening the animal, which immediately became unmanageable. Certain of being thrown, with only one hand that could be used and 12 lbs. of nitro-glycerine in the other! Imagine it and his feelings if you can!

"In another instant Ralph was in the air; he fell upon the can; he struck heavily on his left side, letting the can come lightly to the ground with his own weight thrown upon it cornerwise, breaking one rib and severely bruising him otherwise; but not exploding the can. The awful fright he must have had, with the actual hurts, for a time caused his mind to wander, but he is now all right, and has exhibited a presence of mind in thus saving himself that few, perhaps, are possessed off."

—During the thunderstorm at Oswego on Friday afternoon, the starch factory of that place was struck by lightning. According to the statement of the Oswego Advertiser, "a charge struck and exploded in the cupola, passed down through the box factory, passed through all the elevators and conveyors, and did considerable damage. There were a number of girls in the upper story, and one of them was so crazed with fright that they were obliged to hold her to prevent her jumping from the window. A man and girl were going down one of the stair ways and were about half-way down when the building was struck. Both were knocked to the bottom, and one of the girl's elbows was dislocated. A workman stood by the elevators as the electric passed down. His beard and hair were singed off, and his face and hands badly burned. Three girls in the upper part of the building were knocked down and paralysed for some minutes.—Mr. Southwick was thrown from his feet, and other incidents of the wild pranks played by the lightning are related. It is a piece of good fortune that no one was more seriously injured."

A Centenarian in the Captive Balloon.—On the 3rd instant Mrs. Hogg, an inmate of St. George's Workhouse, Chelsea, attained the age of 100. On being previously asked how she would like to celebrate that event she replied: "Send me up in the balloon, that I may admire the world I have lived 100 years upon." Her wish was transmitted to Mr. Godard, who kindly made every arrangement conductive to her comfort. The weather on the third was unpropitious, but the ascent was made on Thursday the 5th, the day being calm. The full extent of the rope, 2,000 feet was reached, at which altitude the old lady was provided with wine and biscuits, and presented with a medal to commemorate the event. She was accompanied by the medical officers of the parish, the matron, and a party of ladies. Mrs. Hogg is in full possession of all her falculties, has never required the use of spectacles, can walk without assistance, and was fully able to undertake her ærial voyage, which she thoroughly appreciated and enjoyed. Mrs. Hogg is a native of the Highlands of Scotland, but has resided in St. George's parish nearly half a century.

—If the Oxford crew are the plucky fellows we take them to be, they will not rest on their easily won laurels, but cross over, like the equally plucky Harvardians, and row them again in American waters. The Harvard boys, owing to their spirit, careful training and modest, but yet confident assurance, deserved a better fate, and it would be only right to give them their 'revanche' on the Charles River, Lake Quinsigamond or any of the other New England courses. We hail the English triumph as a triumph of English skill and bottom, but it none the less diminishes our esteem for the sinewey young athletes who carried the American colours and relied for victory upon American boats and American style.

DEPARTURE OF PRINCE ARTHUR.

Halifax, Aug. 28.

Prince Arthur left by special train this morning for Pictou. Thousands of people gathered along the railway line to catch a glimpse of him as the train passed, and great enthusiasm was manifested. At Truro and Pictou addresses were presented, and the Prince replied briefly. He will receive a royal welcome at Charlottetown. Monday will be a public holiday in that city, and the officers are fitting up the old Halifax Provincial building for their ball to the Prince on Tuesday night. Extensive preparations are being made for the citizen's pic-nic on Wednesday. There will also be a banquet on the grounds.

BELLEVILLE, MONDAY, AUG. 30.

The Fisheries.—The report of the seizure of two American fishing vessels in the Bay St. Lawrence was erroneous, and arose from the fact that the British cutter was among the fleet warning them off, and afterwards took a disabled vessel in tow and proceeded to Malpeque.

Another International Match.—Another "International Match" is upon the tapis. It is said that the preliminaries for a race between the British yacht Cambria and the almost equally well known American yacht Dauntless have been arranged, and that it will come off shortly, over an ocean course. The London Times says in a recent issue that British yachts-men have a very poor opinion of Bennet's craft.

What will he do?—The thought of what that unfortunate young gentleman, Prince Arthur, will have to go through in the way of processions, receptions and speeches in Canada is enough to arouse the liveliest compassion. But his work in Canada will be a mere bagatelle to what he will have to endure in New York and Boston should he venture there. There is that wretched mountebank, "Admiral" Fisk, Jr., who will array himself in his most gorgeous trappings and take possession of him; Bonner will take him to ride behind Dexter, or perish in the attempt; the "Buchufullest" lady will be escorted about by him; Olive Logan will interview him and give us a pickled olive taste of his quality; the jubilee man will monster concert him; Colfax will "smile and smile and be"—a smiler still when he pounces upon him. Grant will insist upon Arthur's giving him something (for his mother's sake), and Arthur will be a dead-broke prince when he leaves.

Van Amburgh & Co's Golden Menagerie.

Every one is on the qui vive for the great Golden Menagerie which will exhibit in Belleville, September 4th., and from present indications the enormous pavilion—the largest ever made—will for once have its capacity fairly tested, for everybody in town is going to see the wild beasts, and witness the performances of the trained animals, and be sensationised by the thrilling feats of the lion king, in his den; and the country promises to send such a delegation of sight-seers as have never come to town before, and all of these will, of course, go to see the menagerie, and take their wives, sweethearts and little ones. The first performance will be given at one o'clock, p. m. It is so long since Van Amburgh's show was in Belleville that a fresh generation of little ones have sprung up, and every one of them must be taken to see the elephants, rhinoceros, lions, tigers, and all the rest of the wild animals, while every body, old and young, will avail themselves of this opportunity of seeing the many rare specimens of the animal kingdom which they have never seen before, and which can be seen only in the great Golden Menagerie. The grand procession, with all its glittering display and the living lion loose in the streets, will take place at 10 a. m. After the procession the lion will be transferred to his cage, in presence of the public, at the place of exhibition.

It will be remembered that there are no circus performances connected with this highly moral, amusing, interesting and instructive exhibition.

In speaking of Van Amburgh & Co's late visit to Hamilton, the Spectator says:—Hamilton was in a state of unwonted ferment yesterday. The rural districts within a circuit of ten miles were represented by thousands, and, at an early hour in the morning the principal streets were thronged with an excited and expectant crowd of citizens. The cause of the excitement was the visit of Van Amburgh & Co's Great Golden Menagerie, which entered town about 9 o'clock, a. m., with drums beating and flags flying, and its immense retinue of tableaux cars, chariots, vans, dens, cages and aviaries, containing their large and interesting Zoological collection. The procession was the finest of the kind ever seen in the Province, and was received with loud plaudits and waving of hats and handkerchiefs, especially when the Grand Golden Chariot of Cleopatra made its appearance, with a splendid Numidian lion—sometimes couchant and sometimes rampant—upon its broad summit, entirely loose and free from restraint, his ever vigilant keeper by his side. The procession, of course, whetted the curiosity of the populace to the highest pitch, and the enormous six pole marquee, or pavillion, was densely crowded both afternoon and evening. The collection of animals is very fine, and numbers a great many which are entirely new to this latitude, such as the lordly Eland, from the plains of Central Africa, the Rhinoceros, the Impoon—a perfect love—the Bles-Bok, the Spring-Bok, the Onadad, the white Vartany Yak, a very remarkable beast; the Cariboo, and others, besides lots of lions, elephants, tigers panthers, and all sorts of gay plumaged birds. The ring performances—there are no circus performances whatever—were exceedingly amusing and interesting, and a lecture on the habits, etc., of the various animals was given to which the audience listened with much pleasure and attention. The attendance was very large, and among the crowds were all the clergy of the city and our most respected and fashionable people. Every thing was satisfactory, the best order prevailed, and the whole town seemed to be happier for the visit of this excellent and respectable establishment."

—Trichina has made its appearance in Chicago, prostrating a family of eleven, exciting the authorities and causing the local papers to blossom all over with extended descriptions of the patients and their pains. The disease originated from one porker, and there is no danger of its spreading.

The Sabbath School Convention.

Our readers have already been made aware that the annual Convention of the Sabbath School Association of Canada, is to be held this year in Belleville. It is expected that from five to six hundred delegates will be present, and amongst them will be a number of distinguished Ministers and gentlemen engaged in the Sabbath School cause from the United States as well as from Canada. It will be an important gathering, the largest assemblage which ever visited Belleville, and we have no doubt the people will do everything in their power to make the occasion one of interest and profit, and render the visit of the delegates one which will be long remembered with pleasure and satisfaction.

An efficient local Committee representing, we believe, nearly all the Sabbath Schools, has been appointed, upon whom the management of the affairs connected with the Convention will chiefly devolve. This committee has been divided into sub-committees, who will probably commence active work before many days, and who we doubt not, will be warmly supported by the people of all classes and creeds. We are sure a cheerful and hearty response will be given to the calls of the different Committees, and that Belleville will sustain its well-earned reputation for Christian liberality and hospitality.

The Convention is to be held in the Wesleyan Methodist Church, Bridge street, on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, 12th, 13th and 14th, of October. From a circular issued by the Executive Committee, we copy the following information, which will be of interest to our readers:

"The Executive and Local Committees have used their best endeavors to make the proposed meeting profitable and pleasant, as a school of instruction, and a social gathering, calculated to render teachers more efficient, and to inspire them afresh for their work.

"The valuable assistance afforded at previous Conventions, by eminent and earnest brethren from the United States, has induced the Committee to solicit the attendance of the Rev. E. Eggleson, editor of the National Sunday School Teacher; W. Reynolds, Esq., of Peoria, Illinois, and the Rev. Stephen H. Tyng, jun., of New York. The Rev. R. F. Burns, D. D., of Chicago, the warm and able advocate of Sabbath Schools, has promised (D. V.) to be present. Mrs. Smith, of the Normal School, Oswego, will give specimens in Infant Class Teaching. Philip Phillips, Esq., that Master in Sabbath School Song, is expected to conduct the singing, and address the Convention on Singing in Sabbath Schools; and some of our gifted Canadian brethren are deputed to introduce subjects proposed for consideration. With such a staff, and with assembled workers from all parts of these Provinces, the best results are anticipated.—Yet remembering, that "Except the Lord build the house they labour in vain that build it," the fervent prayers of God's people are asked, that His glory may throughout the meeting be kept in view; that wisdom from on high may direct and control the proceedings, and that great grace may be upon all assembled; so that a spirit of love and forbearance may prevail, and blessed results may follow.

"It is recommended that the first Sabbath in October be set apart for special prayer for the Convention.

"Certificates and notices to be addressed to William Johnson, Esq., Secretary of Local Committee, Belleville, Ont., so that they may be received not later than the 28th of September. Upon receipt of such notice or certificate, a card of introduction will be mailed to the post office address of the Minister or Delegate, so that all, on reaching Belleville, may proceed to the home assigned them.

"The Reception Committee will be in attendance in the basement of the Church to afford any information required.

"Delegates are reminded that at the last Convention it was unanimously resolved, that, in future, Sabbath Schools represented in the Annual Convention should contribute (not less than) one dollar through their delegates.

"In the above, Ministers and certified Delegates only have been mentioned, yet any others who please may attend, and those coming from a distance will be furnished with certificates entitling them to make the return journey at the reduced rate—the Committee, however, not binding themselves to provide entertainment during their stay at Belleville.

Railway and Steamboat Companies will convey delegates at half fare. To give the reader an idea of the work to be done at the Convention, we copy a programme of the proceedings of each day.

To the Editor of the Daily Intelligencer.

Big Potato Yield.

Dear Sir.—In these days of wonders we should not be surprised. As some of the public journals occasionally call the attention of the reading community, to some of the extra productions of the soil, such as "long stalks of wheat," and longer "stalks of timothy-hay." I apprehend there are a great many epicures who would like to hear of something else more eatable than either hay or straw, and as a matter of course they anticipate in sharing largely of the fruits procured by the hardy "sons of toil," which we, by no means shall grudge them if a fair remuneration be given in hard cash, or something else just as good.

Although not of that class of epicures "who fare sumptuously every day," I can, and do rejoice at seeing such an abundant harvest, now almost saved into the granary, and am tempted to say I would like to have a finger in the pie; what pie say you? why nothing less than a potato pie! and as a proof that I possess the material for making it, allow me to state that last spring I purchased one pound of the Early Rose potato from Mr. Price, a grocer in Belleville, and paid him for it, at the rate of sixty dollars a bushel.

This day I dug the produce of that pound of potatoes, and realized from it one hundred and ten pounds, some of the tubers weighing twenty ounces, as can be seen in my shop. I don't mention this to provoke competition, as I am aware that Mr. Glass, and Dr. Boulter can beat this, if they were only simple enough to let the public know, and therefore of all the burlesque and slang used against taters, and the chaps that raise them, it must be admitted that in "fortunication" there is nothing like potatoes or "leather."

Yours, &c.,
T. Emo.

—Some of the great New York (monied) people are not ardent admirers of gay and gorgeous 'turnouts.' The Astors ride in very shabby vehicle, as also do the Livingstons and the Roosevelts, if they ride at all. He puts a good deal of his money, however, into horseflesh.

Business Notice.

Not many weeks ago a rich but childless landed proprietor breathed his last, leaving a large circle of relations to mourn his loss, and squable over their prospects of sharing his wealth. The day for reading the will at last came; the room was crowded with anxious expectants; the will was opened and to the inexpressible joy of all, the rich gentleman's relations found that to each of them had been bequeathed a case of Royal Italian Bitters.

THE PROPOSED RELEASE OF FENIAN PRISONERS.

It is rumoured to-day that one of the first questions which will be brought up in the next session of Parliament will be the consideration of the unconditional release of the Fenians, without exception. It is said in the face of the French amnesty, that the Government is not disposed to offer any strong opposition if the subject is properly and influentially supported.

A desperate conspiracy was discovered on board the U. S. frigate 'Sabine,' now lying in port of Cherburg. Some of the crew to revenge themselves on their officers, attempted to set fire to the powder magazine, and blow up the ship. They had proceeded so far as to light a fuse communicating with the magazine, when the plot was frustrated by the cabin boy, who discovered the burning fuse.—It was found that 23 sailors were implicated in the plot, and they were placed in irons. Several have since been condemned to death, and hanged at the yard arm.

NEW ALBION HOTEL,
McGILL STREET,
MONTREAL, CANADA.

THE "NEW ALBION HOTEL," the largest Hotel in Montreal, has just been opened under the most favorable auspices.

Whilst the first attention paid to its numerous rooms for the "New Albion" takes its position as a first class hotel and is really first class in every respect, as to the charges, which better suit the ideas and requirements of the majority of travellers, than many of the so called, "first class Houses" which deserve the title more through the assault of their charges than aught else.

Airy the crowded state of the "New Albion" promises well for its future career; everything associated with its construction has been carried out with artistic taste and systematic correctness.

The large Hall, commodious office, spacious Reading room, convenient Dining, Coffee, Wash Rooms, &c., etc., on the ground floor; and the Reception Room and Suite of SPLENDIDLY FURNISHED and THOROUGHLY VENTILATED LADIES' PARLORS, on the second floor, will form no small luxury during the hot sultry season. And, what is an exception to the general Rule in Hotels, the Bedrooms are all well ventilated and lighted, there not being a dark room in the House.

Being situated on the widest and healthiest Street in Montreal, commanding a Magnificent View of the River St. Lawrence and the Victoria Bridge to the left, and a full view of the Victoria Square with its numerous "Jets d'Eau" and Mount Royal to the right, it cannot fail to command itself to the travelling public.

From its situation in McGill Street, the great thoroughfare and commercial centre of the City it cannot fail to be, as the "Old Albion" has always been a strong favorite with the Merchants of Canada.

Notwithstanding the very large outlay in building and furnishing the house, the old rate of $1 50 per day will not be departed from.

We, therefore, bespeak for ourselves a continuance of the patronage so liberally accorded to us during the past twelve years.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry.

Where this article is known it is a work of supererogation to say one word in its favor, so well is it established as an unfailing remedy for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Asthma, Diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs, as well as that most dreaded of all diseases, Consumption, which high medical authority has pronounced to be an incurable disease. Those who have used this remedy know its value; those who have not, have but to make a single trial to be satisfied that of all others it is THE REMEDY.

THE REV. JACOB SECHLER,

well known and much respected among the German population of this country, writes as follows:

HANOVER, PA., Feb. 16, 1859.

Messrs. S. W. Fowle & Son, Boston.

DEAR SIRS,—Having realized in my family important benefit from the use of your valuable preparation—Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry—it affords me pleasure to recommend it to the public. Some eight years ago, one of my daughters appeared to be in a decline, and little hopes of her recovery were entertained. I then procured a bottle of your excellent Balsam, and before she had taken the whole of it there was a great improvement in her health. I have, in my individual case, made frequent use of your valuable medicine, and have always been benefited by it. I would, however, caution the public against imposition, because there is a good deal of spurious 'Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry' afloat throughout the country.

JACOB SECHLER.

Grace's Celebrated Salve.

From Mr. JAMES CURLIS, OF AMHERST, MASS.

"I was afflicted with a severe felon on one of my fingers, and tried many remedies without relief. My friends induced me to apply your Salve. In two days it extracted the inflammation from my finger so as to enable me to resume my labors. I can almost say that the Salve worked like magic, for it effected a cure without leaving a scar. I unhesitatingly pronounce Grace's Salve an excellent remedy, and do not doubt it will be appreciated throughout the land." 25

The Song of the Printer.

Click and click
Goes the type in the stick,
As the printer stands at his case;
His eyes glance quick and his fingers pick
The type at a rapid pace;
And one by one as the letters go,
Words are piled up steady and slow—
Steady and slow,
But still they grow,
And words of fire they soon will glow,
Wonderful words that without a sound
Traverse the earth to the utmost bound;
Words that shall make
The tyrant quake,
And the fullers of the oppressed shall break;
Words that can crumble an army's might,
Or treble its strength in a righteous fight.

Yet the type they look but leaden and dumb,
As he puts them in place with finger and thumb;
But the printer smiles
And his work beguiles
By chanting a song as the letters he piles,
With pick and click,
Like the world's chronometer, tick! tick! tick!

Oh, where is the man with such simple tools,
W... Can govern the world like I?
Striking proof, an iron stick,
With paper-mâche leaden die;
I support the liligo and ink of black,
"the Wrong attack.
Say, where is he or who is...
That can rival the printer s...
To so monarchs that live, the will dow...
Their sway lasts only an hour;
While the printer still grows and God only knows,
When his might shall cease to tower!

A FAMILY THAT COULDN'T SPELL.—Being at dinner, Johnny passed his plate for turnip. "Spell turnip, Johnny, and I will serve you." "T-u-r-n-i-p," shouted the young hopeful. "Oh fy! my son, that is not right—hand up your hand, and hear how you spells it: t-u-r-r-n-i-p-s (turnip). "Sakes alive!" ejaculated Madam, from the head of the table, "I should like to know it I am married to a man that can't spell his own vegetables." Mr. Smith's dignity was wounded. He has been school-master down east, and he thought he knew turnips. "Spell it yourself, my dear," cried Mr. Smith, wiping his moustache with unusual care, while he glanced knowingly around the table. "Well I guess I'm able to," jerked out Mrs. Smith, a sublime toss of her cap border—" t-u-r-n-e-p, (turnip). Words are generally spelled as they are pronounced." "I say its pronounced turn-up," shouted Johnny. "It is pronounced turn-up," said Mr. Smith, "it is pronounced turd-ep," reiterated Madam. After much wrangling, the family remembered there was a dictionary in the house, which was called for, and as we left, we had the pleasure of hearing them spell it in concert, with evident surprise [illegible]

The signboard of a tavern near Strasbourg, France, bears the following inscription: "Strong beer and wine of the best quality. Customers drinking more than twelve glasses will be sent home in a cab free of charge, in case they are unable to walk."

"That's a tarnation tall horse," said Laidlaw. "Yes—I guess you can't account for it," replied Jonathan. "No—how!" said Laidlaw. "He belongs to Hummins, the Livery man, replied Jonathan," and his tallness comes through his having been regularly higher'd every day for the last seven years.

Mr. Stiggins says "I am a charitable man, and think every one entitled to his opinion; and never bear selfish malice against my foes, and not even against Mr. Mulberry, who has indirectly called me a sinner; but still, if the Lord has a thunderbolt to spare, I think it would be well bestowed upon brother Mulberry's head.

Some ungenerous biped has a patent medicine to make a man rise early in the morning. A young Benedick says a six-months old baby can beat it to death.

A learned doctor has given it as his opinion that tight-lacing is a benefit to mankind, inas much as it kills all the foolish girls, and leaves the wise ones to grow into women.

Among the curiosities lately placed in a museum is a musquito's bladder containing the sous of twenty-four government contractors, and the fortunes of twelve editors. It is nearly half full.

Mark Twain says Horace Greely once tried to make a living as writing master, and failed. His copy was, "Virtue has its own reward," and the scholars got it, 'Washing with soap is wholly absurd.'

An ex-"devil" of a country printing office was questioned as to the duties of a "printers devil." He replied, "to bring in clean water, carry out dirty water, steal wood, lie and numerous other things."

Mike can you account for the extraordinary curve in this horse's back?" "Sure, an' I can, sir. Before the baste was your property, she was backed again an Irish horse, that base lief all hollow, and she never got straight since."

An Irishman dropped a letter into the post-office the other day, with the following memorandum on the corner for the benefit of all indolent postmasters into whose hands it might fall: "Please hasten the delay of this."

Ayer's
Hair Vigor,
For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

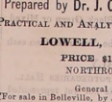

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white bandkrs, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,
For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cures them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. The sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the disordered action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continued regularly, as each dose will assist the gradual action of the system. With such change of those complaints.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken for such time and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, purifies the blood, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious complaint exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,
FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys, is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Inveterate cases of Scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous affections and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulous contamination until they were painfully afflicting, have been radically cured in such great numbers in almost every section of the country, that the public scarcely need to be informed of its virtues or uses.

Scrofula is poison in the blood, the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this unseen and unfelt tyrant of the organism undermines the constitution, and invites the attack of enfeebling or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again it appears to breed infection throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develops into one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or heart, or commence their work in the liver, or any of its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcers on some part of the body. Hence, the importance of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla to all who have, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, in many cases, a perfect and permanent cure, from the use of this SARSAPARILLA: St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Sore, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sores, Sore Eyes, Tetter, and other eruptions or blotches of the skin. Tumors, internal and external, of benign character, Dropsy, Dropsy of the Chest, Female Complaints, Uterine Diseases, Falling of the Womb, and the various Uterine affections of the muscular system.

Scrofula or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required before these obstinate maladies by any medicine. But let the continued use of this medicine will cure Uterine Leucorhœa or Whites, Uterine monly Piles, and Female Diseases, are completely relieved and ultimately cured by its operations for all invigorating effect. Minute Directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis, and may be had of our agents below named.

Rheumatism and Gout, when in the blood, are also speedily and radically cured by it. Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Constipation or Costiveness, Piles, Erysipelas, Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Asthma, Consumption, and all Pulmonary and Bronchial Affections, and even Neuralgia, or Tic Doloureux, Heart Disease, Pain in the Side, Kidneys, and Liver, and Dropsical Swellings, when arising from Impurities of the Blood, are controlled and cured by it.

Nothing like it has ever been known as a blood purifier, and those who have tried it, know that it cures them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. The sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the disordered action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continued regularly, as each dose will assist the gradual action of the system. With such change of those complaints.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken for such time and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, purifies the blood, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious complaint exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

ROYAL ITALIAN BITTERS
OR TONICO REALE.

Del Dottore F. P. Verri, Prof. of Chemistry in the of University Padua, Italy.

THIS Celebrated Preparation—for which a Certificate of Merit was awarded to the original preparer at the National Exposition at Torino, Italy, by whose favor Mr. Gianelli obtained the Recipe, and was also awarded a Diploma at the Provincial Exhibition of Canada, held at Montreal in September, 1865, is without exception, the most Genuine, Salutary and agreeable Tonic ever introduced to public notice either in Europe or America.

For seventeen years it has, in Italy, been a universal favorite among the elite of society, being generally served in the Drawing Room immediately before dinner, in preference to Vermouth.

☞ The ingredients of its composition have been imparted to the leading Physicians of Montreal, and have received their unqualified approval on every account.

The Proprietor has no idea of parading or puffing it before the public, but merely asks a sound and unprejudiced trial.

Kept by the principal Wine Merchants, Druggists, and Grocers in Canada.

Jim Duffy.

THE SORROWFUL STORY OF A REPORTER.

Mr. James Duffy was the offspring of poor, but otherwise honest parents, who instilled into his mind many moral precepts and threw around him more kindly parental influences than you could get anywhere else in a week.

Jim was the child of their hope, and often when his mother tucked him in his little bed at night she would bend down over him and gently kiss his fair forehead and push back his golden hair, while in the far future her loving eyes thought she saw her only Jim going about doing good to his fellow men, and carrying a blessing with him as he went through life.

Thus did this tender parent think she saw Jim, but evidently hadn't her hand in at second sight. She was a self sacrificing woman and a good housekeeper, but as a gazer into the future she was a complete failure.

For although Jim had been brought up in the way he should go when he got old he departed from it and branched out in another line. He blasted his mother's hopes and dishonored his father's gray hairs by becoming a local reporter.

That was his strong point: If there was any one thing on which he could spread himself with a sense of hearty enjoyment it was local reporting. When he was a baby he would lay awake in his cradle and instead of playing with his toes, he would cry until you'd think he'd burst a blood vessel if he couldn't get his regular daily journal to play with. After a while he went to school, and he would sit there on a bench depressed and out of heart, hour after hour, until the copy books were passed around, when he would pick up his pen with tender joy and go in on heavy lines.

It made no difference whatever to Jim Duffy what the copy was. It might be "Contentment is better than wealth," or "Perseverance conquers all things," or "Virtue is its own reward," or any other popular old moral falsehood, it was perfectly immaterial to Mr. Duffy, for his instincts were strong, and he could no more help sidling across a sheet of paper with such copies as "A disastrous cold gratuitous is a good thing," or "A brutal atrocity is always to be desired," he could no more help this, I say, than you could help saying "yes," if anybody asked you to take a thousand dollar bill when you are poor and deserted by your friends.

He never spoke of summer simply as "summer," it was a matter of religious principle with him to characterise it as the "heated term," and when he wanted to express winter he would call it the "cool spell."

If he went to Sunday school he would come home and creep into his mother's lap and lay his head upon her breast and tell her what he had seen. But he did not express himself in the innocent prattle of childhood, on the contrary he would say, "The exercises passed off with great eclat, the elite of the city were there; and the chief feature of the occasion was the magnificent concourse of sweet sounds which were deliciously discoursed by the charming young lady at the melodeon."

The strong proclivities in Jim were developed in his childhood, and although his mother still cherished a hope that she would see him one day at the head of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, Jim was doomed to reach depths of degredation at which even an ordinary plaster of Paris might weep and shudder.

As soon as he grew up he went and took a job at five dollars a week as reporter on the Daily Exaggerator. His mother shed gallons on gallons of actual tears, and his gray headed sire told him that locating was necessarily a low calling; but James was immovable, and he stated to his gray headed sire that if he didn't get out of the way there would be material furnished for an item on filial impiety.

And Jim was a good local reporter, and the only thing that he cared for on this side of the cold and silent grave was an item. Give him only one item and he would swell up over it until he would rip all the side seams in his clothes. For that was his weakness.

And he educated himself up to such a pitch that he would fairly gloat over human misery. If a man was only run over by a milk waggon and mangled so that he couldn't budge, Jim would feel good and benign and happy. And if any stray boy or other went around anywheres where the attraction of gravitation was strong, and fell off a four story house and dislocated his neck, and expired on the pavement, Jim Duffy's heart would expand with bliss, and he would make it his particular business to give a ten cent stamp to a missionary society as a thank offering. It seemed cruel, but it was his nature. And if some man would butcher a fellow creature, James would feel so overjoyed that he would leave his work and go out and sacrifice some idol or other, just to relieve his feelings and express his sense of gratitude.

Jim was to low spirited when items were scarce that he felt as if he must make some active exertion to kill dull care and make away with melancholy. And what do you think Jim Duffy did in this emergency? Why, he would get hold of a little child and take it up on his knee, and tell it fairy stories about a little boy who was stricken with early piety to such an alarming extent that he felt it to be his religious duty to go up and build bonfires in the garret, and then Jim would make the child believe that all he had to do to get to heaven was to go into the cockloft and start a fire among the old rags. Then Jim Duffy would give him a box of matches and send him home, and he would get out his note book and follow him, and prowl around the corners until he saw the smoke, when he would rush down to the office and let himself out over a piece of paper with—"A Terrific Conflagration—Fearful Destruction of Property—Supposed Work of an Incendiary," and he would amuse himself exaggerating the price of the house that was burned.

And you know he never felt any remorse over this. He actually revelled in it, and considered that he was advancing the cause of civilization and Christianity.

Every now and then he would take a trip into the country in order to meditate upon the beauties of Nature, he said, but it was a singular fact that whenever he left town there was always a frightful railroad accident in the very identical rural district into which Jim went. It was thought that he misplaced switches and tied logs on the tracks, but he never alluded to it himself, although it was considered remarkable that he was always the first reporter on the ground.

When Jim paid attentions to a young woman, he would sit all serene and felicitous in the back parlour with his arm around her in order to soothe her and calm her fears, until he saw his chance, when he would let her go coax for cushions, and then he would upset a half dozen chairs and spill some red paint on the carpet to represent gore. Then he would rush out and tell the girl a pack of first class falsehoods about a fight with a burglar, and the next morning you might pick up the Exaggerator, and you would see a two columns account of "Desperate conflict with a ruffian—Heroic conduct of our Reporter."

But Jim Duffy thought no more of telling falsehoods than if it wasn't a sin, for he felt it to be a part of his ordinary business, and he knew he must have his regular item or he would die.

And when Jim's father died Jim hid off beside his bedside and pretended to be weeping, while he watched for the old man to blow his last breath, when Jim's face would light up with happiness, and he would break for his office and scratch out half a column, headed "Another old and respected citizen gone."

He absolutely wished he had a hundred fathers, so that he might write an obituary every week.

But at last his own time came, and Jim Duffy was about to die. He wasn't a particle afraid, notwithstanding all his falsehoods, for he knew it would help to fill the local column, so he sent all his relatives down stairs, and got his assistant reporter to stand by him, and made him swear that he would not give the item to any other paper, and then, with a serene smile on his face, he yielded up his life, and Jim Duffy was no more.

His will was full of items. He desired that they should put the last edition of the Exaggerator in his coffin, and bury him with the church service that had the greatest number of superlative adjectives in it.

This was all done, and it is fair to suppose that Jim's spirit will now be at rest, unless something of a startling nature occurs in the spirit world, when you can safely bet he will be rushing around among the mediums and knocking on old tables and chairs, so as to get the item into the Exaggerator.

EXEMPLARY PATIENCE.—In Court Judge Olin was violently attacked by a young and very impertinent attorney, but heard him quite through, and made no reply. After the adjournment for the day, and when all had assembled at the hotel where the Judge and many of the Court had their lodging, one of the company, referring to the scene in Court, asked the Judge why he did not rebuke the impertinent fellow.

"Permit me," said the Judge, loud enough to call the attention of all the company, among which was the fellow in question—"permit me to tell you a story. My father, when he lived down in the country, had a dog—a mere puppy, I may say. Well, the puppy would go out every moonlight night, and bark at the moon for hours together.'

Here the Judge paused, as if he had done with the story.

'Well, well, what of it?' exclaimed half a dozen of the audience at once.

'Oh, nothing—nothing whatever. The moon kept right on as if nothing had happened.'

BELLEVILLE, TUESDAY, AUG. 31.

CRICKET.—A game will be played between Canada and Old Country to-morrow on the Belleville ground, commencing at 2 o'clock.

PERSONAL.—In answer to numerous inquiries we may state that Mr. BOWELL, M. P., is still in Great Britain, and that he will, in all probability, reach home about the first of October.

PIC-NIC.—The Sabbath School in connection with St. Andrew's Church have their Pic-Nic to Massassaga Point to-morrow. The boat leaves the Ferry wharf we understand at ten o'clock a. m.

LAUNCH AT MILL POINT.—We learn that the schooner G. G. Bendict was successfully launched at the ship yard of Messrs. Rathbun & Son on Saturday. The dimensions of the vessel are as follows: 106 feet keel, 26 feet beam, 8 feet hold. She is 200 tons register, and classes A 1 for seven years with Star. Cost over $15,000. Wm. Yeoman was the builder.

SAVINGS' BANK.—The deposits in the Post Office Savings Bank at the end of July amounted to $905,504. The excess of deposits over withdrawal cheques paid during the month was $48,689. The deposits in the Halifax Savings Bank continue about stationary. They were $730,575 on the 14th August.

A RICH STRIKE.—We are informed that a telegram was received here last evening from a reliable source, that an extremely rich strike was made yesterday at the mine of the Gilleu Mining Company, Marmora, at the depth of sixteen feet. The telegram was to one of the proprietors, who immediately left for the mine, and from whom we shall probably receive further particulars in the course of a day or two.

THE FENIAN CONGRESS.—There has been a row in the Fenian Congress now in session at New York, which promises to culminate in another split in the ranks. Head Centre Savage who has apparently managed the Irish as well as the American organization, gave an account of his stewardship which did not appear to give satisfaction to the Manhattan delegates. It is said that after the close of this Congress a meeting of the Centres of all the Circles of the District of Manhattan will be called, to give their views on important questions connected with the present and future of the Fenian Brotherhood.

A CHALLENGE ACCEPTED.—The Hamilton Spectator says:—"In our Saturday's issue we stated that Professor Jenkins would give $500 to any newspaper man who would propel the machine with which he crossed the river at the Falls, along a rope, stretched at an elevation of 50 feet. A gentleman connected with the Hamilton Press, fired by an ambition to emulate the daring feats of the professor, says that if the latter means business, he will accept his offer. Jenkin's star will indeed be in the descendant if he allows a newspaper man who can successfully perform the double feat of working the so called velocipede along the rope, and at the same time 'landing' from the 'professor' the comfortable sum of $500.

THE FENIAN PRIEST MCMAHON.—A New York paper says:—Rev. Father McMahon, the priest at present at Holy Cross, Buffalo, N. Y., studiously avoids all public demonstrations, and as soon as his health will permit, will leave for his home in the West. By the advice of eminent counsel in the United States, he will at an early day proceed to Washington, and represent his wrongs to the Cabinet, demanding damages for false imprisonment, &c., from the Canadian Government. He is now suffering from partial paralysis, lung disease, and other afflictions, caused by his prison life." By all means let him make the demands. Having succeeded in convincing the Roman Clergy here that he was a persecuted man, he probably thinks he can get his brethren across the lines to bring their powerful influence to bear in favor of this new movement. Who knows but he may succeed?

Why Not?

"A Reformer" urges George Brown's selection as Premier Minister in to-day's Telegraph. Undoubtedly Mr. Brown is the ablest financier in Canada, and could not be expected to serve under John A.—London Advertiser, Aug. 28th.

Why not? It would not be the first time he turned a political somersault, nor would it be the first time he served under John A. Mr. Brown is, no doubt, a very clever man, and may be an able fincancier, but it is assuming too much to suppose he would not serve under John A., or even John S., if he got the opportunity. Whatever may be Mr. Brown's virtues that of consistency is certainly not one of them, and as to serving under John A., what more willing time-server did the gallant knight ever have than Mr. Brown, when they were working together in the same political harness? If John A. were to offer Mr. Brown the position to-morrow, we are not sure that he would not cheerfully accept it, but we don't think the Premier will give him the chance.

Why Not be Fair?

"Should a vote occur next session, though clearly right, that might oust the Government which has shown itself so incompetent and so extravagant, the editor of the Intelligencer, who has a seat in the House of Commons, will find some excuse for voting to keep Ministers in their places. And at the next election, the Intelligencer will support the Macdonald-Cartier candidates in the three Ridings of Hastings and in the adjacent constituencies where it circulates. There is not much danger that it will "drift," very far from its old Tory moorings, though the Government should allow the Dominion to drift into bankruptcy."—Toronto Globe.

If the Globe was disposed to act fairly towards its political opponents it would not have so misrepresented the position of the member for North Hastings, nor prejudged his future actions. No one knows better than the Globe that Mr. Bowell on several occasions last session, and at the previous session, spoke against and voted against measures introduced by the Government; and no one knows better than the Globe that that gentleman would be prepared to do the same thing to-morrow, if, in his judgment, the measures of the Government were not for the good of the country, even though such a vote would send the Ministry to the wall. The record of the member for North Hastings is pretty clear upon this point. However much he might dislike to vote against the party with whom he has always acted, adherence to principle, and loyalty to his own conviction of what is right and just, are paramount to party alliance. This has formed the ground-work of his conduct hitherto, and we doubt not will be the basis of his future actions.

But it is useless—and we say it with regret, for a journal in the position of the Globe should be above resorting to such petifogging and contemptible means to serve its purpose—to expect fairness from that paper. The Montreal Star was not far wrong in yesterday's issue, in saying: "the Globe which never before was silent "while there was a word to garble, a fact "to misrepresent, an opponent to malign."

Council adjourned.

—A rich man who died lately in Independence Missouri, left ten dollars each to his two sons who are working on a farm at twenty dollars a month, and the rest of his property, worth more than half a million of dollars to a married neice.

—A telegram from Whitby, Aug. 30th, says: "As the mixed train from Cobourg was backing up to take wood this forenoon a wood cutter named B. Murphy, from Belleville, stepped on the cars while in motion and fell between the platform and cars. Unfortunately one of his feet went under the wheels and got crushed. Hopes are entertained that the foot may be saved, although it is badly injured below the ankle joint."

Forty Years Ago.

To the Editor of the Daily Intelligencer.

MR. EDITOR,—In my last I promised to give some particulars about the River Moira, Mills, &c., of 40 years ago. There were but three Bridges from the Bay to Stone Lake, one at Bridge street, Belleville, one at Canniff's, and Ashley's making up the number. All communication between Ashley's and Manor's, now Tweed, in crossing the river, had to be done by fording, raft, or canoe.

A bridge was shortly after erected at O'Brien's, Latta's and across the West branch of the Moira to Sugar Island, but on the East branch there was no bridge until after 1840; that Spring I had to swim my horse across from the East shore to the Island, or travel over a bad road all the way down to O'Brien's, now Thrasher's Corners, and this I had often done before, rather than take the worst road in going and returning to and from my shanties.

Shortly after coming to Belleville I was informed of what would have been called a thrilling adventure, if it had taken place in the daylight. Some years before, a farmer from Sidney who had been at Kingston, on his return home, started from Belleville after dark, taking the road he usually travelled, by way of Ashley's Bridge. The night was very dark, and he rode on horseback, quite unconcerned as to danger, reaching Ashley's tavern all right. On being asked which road he came, he said, "across the Bridge;" he was told that "it was impossible, as the bridge plank had been taken off." A light was procured, and on going down to the bridge it was found that the horse had taken the string piece, and had, in the extreme darkness, safely carried his rider over stringer after stringer until he reached the shore; four stringers were thus passed, in each of which the marks of the horse's shoes were plainly visible. The farmer would not part with that horse, but kept him with the best of care until he died full thirty-two years. The old gentleman lived long to tell of the adventure.

The first mills above the Bay were Coleman's grist mill, saw mill, and Mr. Dame's turning works. Mr. Dame's had been a carding and and fulling mill, but he had closed that branch, or was about closing it in 1820, and went into the pail, tub and other wooden ware. The grist mill had two run of rock stone, and was leased by Messrs Bird & Macarty. John Bauder was miller; this mill was the first on the river to put in a run of Burr stone, some five years later.

The next was Meyers' Grist and Saw Mills, and Sleepers Carding and Fulling Mill. The Grist Mill had two run of of rock stone was rented by the late John Patterson; and on the opposite side of the river Mr. Bleeker had a Saw Mill. Jonas Canniff's Saw Mill, about a mile and a half further up the river, and three miles out were Joseph and Daniel Canniff's Saw and Grist Mills on each side of the river. The Grist Mills had each two run of rock stones. A little over a mile further up Samuel Read owned a small Grist Mill, one run of rock stones, driven by water taken from a wing dam. The flour from all the grist mills, was rather a poor quality, seldom passing for anything over fine, and often rejected fine, instead of color, being mostly too low ground. The Millers would not warrant the flour to brand fine under five bushels and a peck of the best wheat, and at that rate, often had to pay the difference between rejected and fine flour. The next on the stream was four miles further up; a Saw Mill owned by David Read. This mill was run by water taken from a wing dam—about eight miles further up, by the course of the stream was Latta's Grist and Saw Mill on the west, and Carter's Saw Mill on the east side of the river. Latta's Grist Mill had one run of rock stones, mainly for gristing purposes. All the Saw Mills had but one saw each, and were driven by the old flutter wheel. The amount of lumber cut at these saw mills was trifling, compared with the present mills; 1,500 to 2,000 feet per day when there was a good head of water was about the average of each mill.

Passing by Meyers' saw mill one day, I noticed the sawyer setting the log, and after starting the saw, he said to a man who stood near him, "come let's go and take something to drink," they did so and left the mill running; as I was returning from the grist mill I met the sawyer returning to his work; I asked him how he dare leave his mill running? he answered, "when I start the saw I have plenty of time to go down and take a drink, and light my pipe, and return before the saw gets through the log." Closer attention would be required at the present time, when the mills, both steam and water, turn out during the sawing season about 200 000 feet every 24 hours.

In 1833, I made the late Colonel Coleman an offer of $40,000 for his mill privilege and the west bank of the river down to Bridge street, and for the house and lot south of the bridge; we agreed as to price and time of payment, but not that he should be required to carry out our verbal agreement, as he wanted to retain the mill privilege on the east side, with first use of water in the dry season; this I could not consent to, and the bargain was dropped.

My intention was to form a company, canal the bank down to the point where the Asbury now stands, so as to turn the whole water of the river for a dry time into the canal for manufacturing purposes. It would pay well if the present owners would make the canal, and let out the water power.

Yours, &c., &.

Business Notice.

Not many weeks ago a rich but childless landed proprietor breathed his last, leaving a large circle of relations to mourn his loss, and squable over their prospects of sharing his wealth. The day for reading the will at last came; the room was crowded with anxious expectants; the will was opened and to the inexpressible joy of all, the rich gentleman's relations found that to each of them had been bequeathed a case of Royal Italian Bitters.

PLANTAGENET
MINERAL WATER,

CONTINUES to be the favourite with the people, in consequence of the quantity of Iodine, Iron, Magnesia, &c., it contains, as compared with other Springs, and its superior medicinal combination so providentially supplied. It is unsurpassed as a Tonic, Alterative, Laxative and Diuretic. As a beverage it is at once cooling and healthy. When aerated it takes the place of Soda Water and Seltzer. It is of much service to ladies, and should be used by gentlemen of sedentary habits.

To get the genuine article from the Springs, now 50 years in use, ask for PLANTAGENET WATER, at Hotels and Druggists.

For sale by Charters & Webster, L. W. Yeomans & Co., J. H. Hambly, Apothecaries Hall, J. C. Holden & Co., and at the Dafoe House, Belleville.

Orders to the undersigned agents will have prompt attention.

THE COTTON TRADE.

LONDON, Aug. 30.—The Times to-day, in its Manchester Cotton Trade report says:—"It is admitted that the returns of sales of cotton at Liverpool were falsified every day last week. The figures really amounted to but little more than half those given to the public, and as the result there is something like a panic at Manchester, and for the present all confidence is lost in the truth of the returns from Liverpool. There is no disposition to do business either on the part of seller or buyer.

PETITIONS FOR THE IMPRISONED FENIANS.

Excursions were made yesterday by Irish citizens of London to Hampton Court and Gravesend. At both places the excursionists organized a meeting at which appeals were made to the Government for an amnesty to the Fenians now under conviction.

MRS. STOWE'S STORY OF LORD BYRON.

The article in the Atlantic Monthly by Mrs. Stowe on Lord and Lady Byron created considerable excitement. The Telegraph comments editorially: "Without further explanation this fearful story cannot be accepted as true." The Post says: "Questions arise whether in the absence of authority this article can be received as Lady Byron's own statement."

AGRARIAN OUTRAGE.

Mr. Mayo, a farmer of Newport, was yesterday shot and killed by an assassin. The act is regarded as an Agrarian outrage. The murderer has not been arrested.

LOSS OF A VESSEL.

News has been received of the total loss, on June 18th, of the Jersey for Boston, off Samotavoc, Madagascar. The crew were saved.

THE EMPEROR'S HEALTH.

LONDON, Aug. 30.—The Times says: "There is much anxiety respecting French intelligence. Napoleon was seriously ill. He spoke of any imminent danger yet. There was the utmost uneasiness in Parisian society, and on the Bourse the panic was intense on Thursday, and has been so since, though the alarm is now subsiding. News is still confused. Public opinion refuses to be reassured. We have no wish to lay great stress upon the Emperor's indisposition but we hardly believe that these rumours are the the result of stock stratagems. We do not see any good end can be obtained by a stubborn denial of the fact of the Emperor's sickness. It is not without reason that physicians attend St. Cloud daily. It is satisfactory to hear that he is able to transact business."

PARIS, Aug. 30.—The following is official: "The condition of the Emperor grows more and more satisfactory."

MASSACRE OF MISSIONARIES.

HONG KONG, via London, August 30.—The reports of a massacre of Christian missionaries in the Province of Sichren are confirmed. Twenty are known to have been killed by the populace. The Pekin Government has instituted enquiries concerning the outrages.

TROUBLE IN THE COAL MINES.

SCRANTON, Pa., Aug 30.—All quiet here to-night. The bars and saloons have been closed; four hundred special police have been sworn in and seven hundred citizens been enrolled as volunteers. All coal mines are heavily guarded. The miners were worked to-day, but none with full force. The miners of Delaware and Hudson Canal Co., at Olyphant, voted to-day to return to work.

DINNER TO THE HARVARD AND OXFORD CREWS—CHARLES DICKENS MAKES A SPEECH.

LONDON, (Evening), Aug. 30.—The London Rowing Club this evening, gave a grand dinner to the Oxford and Harvard University boat crews, at the Crystal Palace. The Oxford crew was represented by Wilmot alone, while the Harvard crew was represented by Simmons, Fay, Limau, Bass, Rice, Burnham and Blakie. The party, though private, numbered more than 100 persons, including Chas. Dickens and Thomas Hughes, ex-Member of Parliament.

Charles Dickens, in proposing the principal toast of the evening, said:—That remarkable volume which was published within a short time of his visit to the United States, contained biographies of ninety-five young men well nurtured, well born and trained in peaceful pursuits, who, when their country called them, sought distinction in the late war. Those great spirits displayed extraordinary aptitude, and were distinguished by their deeds and great heroism. Every one of them had been educated in one school, and that school the Harvard University. They fought against odds and were remarkable for the invincible spirit in which they received defeat. Was not the contest of last Friday an evidence in point of the spirit such as was shown by their predecessors in the late war? He then paid a handsome compliment to the Oxford crew. In referring again to the Harvard crew, Mr. Dickens said that the manner in which they would be received on their return home, would find a ready echo in every corner of England.

Mr. Simmons, of the Harvard crew, briefly responding, said that he considered that it was no disgrace to have been defeated by such a crew as Oxford pitted against them.

Mr. Willar, of the Oxford crew, rose and replying to the compliments of Mr. Dickens and Mr. Simmons, apologized for the absence of his colleagues. He then stated that of all the races in which he had rowed, he had never been so hard pressed as in the race with Harvard's.

NEW ALBION HOTEL,
McGILL STREET,
MONTREAL, CANADA.

THE "NEW ALBION HOTEL," the largest Hotel in Montreal, has just been opened under the most favorable auspices.

Whilst the "Old Albion" has been long noted for the strict attention paid to its numerous guests, the "New Albion" takes its position as a first class Hotel, and is really, first class in every respect, except the charges, which better suit the ideas and requirements of the majority of travelers, than many of the so called, "first class Houses;" which deserve the title more through the amount of their charges than any other one.

Already the crowded state of the "New Albion" promises well for its future career; everything associated with its construction has been carried out with artistic taste and systematic correctness.

The large Hall, commodious office, spacious Reading room, convenient Dining, Coffee, Wash Room, etc., etc., on the ground floor; the Reception Room and Suits of SPLENDIDLY FURNISHED and THOROUGHLY VENTILATED LADIES' PARLORS, on the second floor, will form no small luxury during the hot summer season. And, what is an exception to the general Rule in Hotels, the Bedrooms are all well ventilated and lighted, there not being a dark room in the House.

Being situated on the widest and healthiest Street in Montreal, commanding a Magnificent View of the River St. Lawrence and the Victoria Bridge on the left, and a full view of the Victoria Square with its numerous "Jets d'Eau" and Mount Royal on the right, it cannot fail to commend itself to the travelling public.

From its situation on McGill Street, the great thoroughfare and commercial centre of the City it cannot fail to be, as the "Old Albion" has always been a strong favorite with the Merchants of Canada.

Notwithstanding the very large outlay in building and furnishing the house, the out price of $1 50 per day will not be departed from.

We, therefore, bespeak for ourselves a continuance of the patronage so liberally accorded to us during the past twelve years.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry.

Where this article is known it is a work of supererogation to say one word in its favor, so well is it established as an unfailing remedy for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Asthma, Diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs, as well as that most dreaded of all diseases, Consumption, which high medical authority has pronounced to be an incurable disease. Those who have used this remedy know its value; those who have not, have but to make a single trial to be satisfied that of all others it is the REMEDY.

THE REV. JACOB SECHLER,
well known and much respected among the German population of this country, writes as follows:

HANOVER, PA., Feb. 16, 1859.

Messrs. S. W. Fowle & Son, Boston.

DEAR SIRS,—Having realized in my family important benefits from the use of your valuable preparation—Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry—it affords me pleasure to recommend it to the public. Some eight years ago, one of my daughters appeared to be in a decline, and little hopes of her recovery were entertained. I then procured a bottle of your excellent Balsam, and before she had taken the whole of it there was a great improvement in her health. I have, in my individual case, made frequent use of your valuable medicine, and have always been benefitted by it. I would, however, caution the public against imposition, because there is a good deal of spurious 'Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry' afloat throughout the country.

Grace's Celebrated Salve.

From Mr. JAMES CURLIS, of AMESBURY, MASS.

"I was afflicted with a severe felon on one of my fingers, and tried many remedies without relief. My friends induced me to apply your Salve. In two days it extracted the inflammation from my finger so as to enable me to resume my work. I can almost say that the Salve worked like magic, for it effected a cure without leaving a scar. I unhesitatingly pronounce 'Grace's Salve' an excellent remedy, and do not doubt it will be appreciated throughout the land." 25

Albany Lumber Market.

REVIEW FOR THE WEEK ENDING AUG. 25.

There is no change to notice in the lumber market; the demand continues fair with large shipments, keeping pace, or nearly so, with the receipts. There has been a further advance in canal freights. Prices remain the same as last week, with good attendance of buyers, some of whom must buy largely to stock their yards, which up to this day have been poorly supplied. There is no change to note in river, Eastern or Southern freights.

The receipts at Albany by the Erie and Champlain canals for the third week in August, were:

Year.	Boards and Scantling, ft.	Shingles, M.	Timber, c. ft.	Staves lbs.

—Evening Journal.

Stick to the Plough and Plane.

The following we take from the American Agriculturist for June. It is good advice, the best, and given by one who knows. Let it be read and appreciated by all:—Don't come to the city, my boy. Your chance, in the long run, is better where you are. Hundreds, indeed, make fortunes here, but thousands live wearisome and even suffering lives in the city. Clerks have larger salaries than young farmers, but then their expenses for boarding, clothes, and amusements, are so much larger, that less is saved at the end of the year. Then the temptations of the city are so strong and so constant that few young men resist them. Not many young city clerks, even if they avoid bad company, are able early in life to have a home of their own. A young man in the country soon after his time becomes his own, can secure capital enough, with an economical wife to set up house for himself, and have a quiet, comfortable, and even beautiful little home of his own. One of the wealthiest men in Boston, who died a few years since, said the happiest years of his life were passed when he was gathering very slowly, the beginnings of his fortune. When he married, he and his wife were worth, each, twenty-five cents, and they labored lovingly and happily together. This was a small fortune for two to commence upon, but they were worth hundreds of thousands when they died, gathered by economical labor. The writer knows an excellent young man in this city who is nearly thirty. He has long been engaged to a young lady of fine talents and a good temper. It would be a great comfort to both to be married; but then, his salary, although quite large, would not support them in the style of life to which the young woman has been accustomed in her own home. Besides, the position of clerks is very uncertain. By the failure of what was considered one of the strongest houses in the city, this young man was thrown out of place and salary for six months. Stick to the plough, then, or to some solid, wholesome trade. You will be sure of a comfortable living. You can earlier have a home of your own, and you will be less exposed to the constant changes in business, which destroy at one blow the earnings of years.

The well meant enterprise of some of the Boston newspaper men was defeated in a curious manner the other night. There was a sensational meeting at the south end late in the evening, and a friendly policeman hired a small boy to go out and notify the Post, Mr. Harlow, who presides over that journal at night, had vision of a good exclusive, and he gave the boy a dollar to go directly home and keep away from the other offices with his information. Small boy thought that if it was worth a dollar to one paper it was to another, and he straightway visited the other editorial rooms and by shrewdly representing that he had not and would not visit any other offices, he was liberally rewarded by the several night editors. When, an hour later, the several reporters arrived at the scene, there was mutual astonishment and profanity all round. Harlow generously offers a week's salary if the small boy can be found.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, or do more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Bismuth, Zinc, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it in nowise injures any patient. The number and importance of its cures in the ague districts, are literally beyond account, and we believe without a parallel in the history of Ague medicine. Our pride is gratified by the acknowledgments we receive of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and where other remedies had wholly failed.

Unacclimated persons, either resident in, or travelling through miasmatic localities, will be protected by taking the AGUE CURE daily.

For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy activity.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly remarkable cures, where other medicines had failed.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass., and sold all round the world.

PRICE, $1.00 PER BOTTLE.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys, is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Inveterate cases of Scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous affections and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulous contamination until they were painfully afflicting, have been radically cured in such great numbers in almost every section of the country, that the public scarcely need to be informed of its virtues or uses.

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this unseen and unfelt tenant of the organism undermines the constitution, and invites the attack of enfeebling or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed infection throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develop into one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the occasional use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla is advisable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, at length, cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions or visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Fits, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various Ulcerous affections of the muscular and nervous systems.

Syphilis or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these obstinate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Leucorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute Directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when arising, as they often do, from the rankling poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are Languid and Listless, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the affections symptomatic of Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

ROYAL ITALIAN BITTERS

OR TONICO REALE.

Del Dottore F. P. Verri, Prof. of Chemistry in the of University Padua, Italy.

THIS Celebrated Preparation—for which a Certificate of Merit was awarded to the original preparer at the National Exposition at Torino, Italy, by whose favor Mr. Gianelli obtained the Recipe, and was also awarded a Diploma at the Provincial Exhibition of Canada, held at Montreal in September, 1865, is without exception, the most Genuine, Salubrious and agreeable Tonic ever introduced to public notice either in Europe or America.

For seventeen years it has, in Italy, been a universal favorite among the elite of society, being generally served in the Drawing Room immediately before dinner, in preference to Vermouth.

☞ The ingredients of its composition have been imparted to the leading Physicians of Montreal, and have received their unqualified approval on every account.

The Proprietor has no idea of parading or puffing it before the public, but merely asks a sound and unprejudiced trial.

Kept by the principal Wine Merchants, Druggists, and Grocers in Canada.
